"We decided to open it in Tofield because there was no glass business there. We're about the only glass business now in a 30 mile radius," says Ken.

They also considered the overhead cost in moving away from Edmonton, explained Ken, adding that he felt more comfortable in the country than in the city.

Most of their stock is purchased from wholesalers in Edmonton. Some of the more standard windshield sizes are kept on the premises, but most are acquired after the customer orders them.

Ken says they are able to keep up with their work by having a six-day week. Glass for residences can be cut immediately, but windshields require about one day's wait, he says.

With all the gravel roads in the area, they are guaranteed of some windshield work, says Ken, adding that windshields are more shatterproof than in previous years.

And with little slingshot-wielding boys loose in the summer, the window business could get an additional boost.

Let's hear it for cholesterol

"Cholesterol is probably, after water, the most common substance in the human body." So says Dr. David Kritchevsky, of the Wistar Institute of Anatomy and Biology, Philadelphia, Penn., and he should know. Dr. Kritchevsky is known internationally for his work on the effect of diet on cholesterol metabolism.

On a recent speaking engagement in Toronto, he was asked about the function of cholesterol in the body. "It's an extremely necessary substance. Without it you couldn't live. Cholesterol is a component of every cell membrane; if you had no cholesterol, you'd be a blob. It's in the tissue, in the brain and spinal cord, in muscle. Actually, the cholesterol that gets talked about the most, which is present in the liver and blood, represents maybe eight to ten percent of the cholesterol in the body, which means it's very little."

But he doesn't agree that cholesterol is the cause of atherosclerosis. In fact, he says, "cholesterol is no more the killer than an automobile standing at the curb is the reason for automobile accidents." He cites a recent article in the medical journal 'Atherosclerosis' which has identified 246 possible risk factors to heart disease. However, according to Dr. Kritchevsky, there are three principal risk factors. They are elevated blood cholesterol, smoking, and elevated blood pressure. But "this is still statistical. There are still people who have all these things and live to a merry old age, and people who live like a monk and have a coronary."

He spoke of an extremely interesting trend, the marked drop - over twenty percent - in the incidence of coronary disease in Canada and the U.S. since 1968. He called it remarkable. "And while nobody really knows why this drop has occurred, we do know there's been an intensive campaign to stop smoking; an intensive campaign to identify people with high blood pressure, which is easily corrected by drugs. There has been an increase in surgical intervention - coronary bypasses, which were unknown then. There's been a great increase in the adeptness of people who practise cardiopulmonary resuscitation, so that today the guy who, 15 years ago, would have expired on the sidewalk, makes it to the hospital. And of all these, "the thing that's changed least has been the diet."

Another point to remember, says Dr. Kritchevsky, is that a lot of people with normal cholesterol levels have coronaries. His final word - "for people in good health, the important thing is moderation; eat a little of everything and not too much of anything".

April is cancer month.

STEP expanded

The Government of Alberta has approved an expanded Summer Temporary Employment Program (S.T.E.P.) to provide jobs for young Albertans between May 2 and September 5.

Manpower Minister Ernie Isley said today "Approximately 12 million dollars has been allocated to provide short term employment and work experience for some 6,000 young people in Alberta". This compares to 7.8 million dollars allocated last year which provided more than 2 million manhours of employment.

S.T.E.P., now in its 11th year of operation, provides employment through four program elements. Under the Provincial Government Department element, 1,500 post-secondary students will find jobs designed to emphasize individual career development with the 27 government departments. Reimbursement for these positions will total $5.50 per hour per employee.

Community Employment will provide 3,040 high school students with work experience. Eligible sponsors include municipalities, school boards, agricultural societies and Travel Industry Association of Alberta zone offices. The government will reimburse these employers the minimum wage.

Summer Farm Employment will provide jobs for 800 high school students. Participating farmers will receive up to $300 for each position per month.

Under Career Opportunity, 500 post secondary students will receive career related work experience in four areas: Recreation, Veterinary, Law Enforcement, and Fish and Wildlife. Recreation and Veterinary positions will be cost shared equally between the government and the employer up to $500 per month. Employers of Law Enforcement and Fish and Wildlife positions will receive $5.50 per hour per employee. In addition, post-secondary institutions are eligible to participate and will receive $5.50 per hour for each employee.

Energy conservation is the key to save money

By the end of the decade, it is estimated that the cost of home heating fuel will have doubled. In 1982, the cost of home heating oil increased by 17 per cent, electricity by 12 per cent and natural gas by 21 per cent. And it's a well-known fact that costs will continue to rise – in 1983 the average increase for all home heating fuel will be 12.4 per cent.

The answer for the Canadian home owner is conservation, according to Ron Galbraith, of Fiberglas Canada. "With home heating fuel escalating, the home owner must find ways to conserve energy. Real savings from 18 to 23 per cent can be realized by simple do-it-yourself techniques such as insulating key areas of the home and by caulking and weatherstripping the doors and windows."

A Worthwhile Investment

Insulation is a worthwhile investment and the government can help pay some of the costs. The Canadian Home Insulation Program (CHIP) provides a taxable grant of up to $500 to cover the cost of insulation materials. With this grant, the payback period, which is the number of years required to recover your investment, may be as low as one or two years. The savings will go on for the life of your home.

Much of the heat loss in a home is incurred through uninsulated or inadequately insulated attics. Many Canadians who recognize this, have taken the first step by insulating their attics. But there are many additional areas where expensive heat escapes.

Basement Walls Important

Next to the attic, the easiest, most accessible area for the homeowner to insulate himself is the basement. Since 20 per cent of the heat loss can be through the uninsulated basement concrete or concrete block walls, it really pays to add insulation here, especially if the basement is unfinished or if you plan to create a "rec-room" or play area. If you do the work yourself, the savings are enormous. For example, Ener-Save, the Federal Government's home insulation analysis program, estimates a saving of $1,100 on homeowner installed basement insulation as compared with contractor installed insulation, and an estimated $145 saving on home heating fuel the first year after installation (estimates are based on insulating concrete block perimeter basement walls in a house 40 x 30 feet).

Step-By-Step

The insulation experts at Fiberglas Canada recommend you follow these steps when insulating your basement:

Damp proof inside masonry wall surfaces with polyethylene or Bitumen waterproofing. Apply the damp-proofing only below grade level.

Install a framework of 2" x 4" on 24" centres against the masonry walls. You may wish to construct the framework before erecting it in place. This is not only acceptable but easier than building it upright.

Plumb the framework since the masonry wall may not be perfectly straight.

The junction between the basement and the first floor walls varies greatly, however, in most homes the "sillplate" is anchored to the concrete basement walls to support the "joists". These in turn support the walls and floor. The "wall plate" supports the verticle wood "studs". The stud space is usually uniform and this is where wall insulation is normally placed. Fiberglass insulation comes in a variety of widths to accommodate most stud spaces.

Nail the bottom plate directly to the concrete floor and the top plate to the joists above. It's a good idea to secure the bottom plate to the concrete with silicone caulking.

Install Fiberglas Pink friction batts or rolls between the studs. Select R12 (RSI 2.1) if more than 50 per cent of the basement wall is below ground level. If more than 50 per cent of the wall is above ground level R20 (RSI 3.5) will provide best insulating results (if you use R20 you will need 2" x 6"'s for the stud wall).

Minimize the breaks in exterior walls by bringing all wiring in at one point. The electrical box should be mounted so that insulation may be installed behind it. Be sure to put insulation behind electrical outlets and fit the vapour barrier around the outlet. Staple to the stud.

Fit insulation around electrical outlets, window, or any small opening. To insulate around electrical wire, split unfaced insulation and install on both sides.

Cut pieces of insulation to fit around the header joist between the top plate and the subfloor and push into place at each joist end and along parallel joists. Be sure to cover the header joists and around the electrical wire with the vapour barrier.

A continuous air/vapour barrier is essential to keep air and moisture from escaping in to the walls. An effective barrier requires a continuous sheet of four or six mil polyethylene with all breaks sealed with a non-hardening sealant or tape. The vapour barrier may be stapled or glued to the top and bottom plate, the studs and around doors and windows. Caulk around the electrical outlet, the joists and at the bottom plate.

Cover with the wall finish of your choice.

Heat tends to flow from the areas of warmth to areas of cold. Insulation blocks that flow by trapping tiny pockets of air within itself. By properly insulating your basement walls, warm air will stay inside in winter and outside in summer, providing a more comfortable living environment all year long, while saving fuel dollars.

Kinsella hosts Feeders Day

Beef and dairy cattle, horses and game animal farming will be featured at this year's Feeders' Day, which will be held at the University of Alberta's ranch at Kinsella on June 17.

The animal species were chosen from among the many that the University of Alberta's Department of Animal Science has been conducting research on because Feeders' Day is being held at the ranch.

Feeders' Day was first held 54 years ago and its location at that time was the University of Alberta's farm. It continued to be held at the farm until 1978. Since that date it has been held in various locations throughout the province to make it easier for farmers and ranchers to attend.

The fact that it is being held at Kinsella this year will provide all livestock producers, but especially those from central and eastern Alberta, with an opportunity to become more familiar with the Department of Animal Science's recent research findings. It will give them an opportunity to tour the ranch facilities and to see some of the research that is presently underway.

Feeders' Day is the occasion on which the Department of Animal Science presents the results it has obtained from some of the experiments that were conducted during the preceding year.

Results of the experiments that have been, and are being carried out on beef and dairy cattle, horses and game animals as well as results from other experiments will be contained in the 1983 Feeders' Day Report, which will be available at Feeders' day.

Holden plans supper

Holden Chamber of Commerce hosts the first "Meet Your Neighbor" community pot-luck supper on April 20th.

The supper will get underway at 6:30 p.m. with a social time from 7:30-9 p.m.

All families in the village and surrounding area are invited to this event.

There will be no charge and families are asked to bring a food item that would feed their family and any games or cards they would like to play during the social.

With many new people moving into the area, the Chamber feels this supper will be an ideal opportunity for the newcomers to meet the people of the community.

Special welcome will be given to families who have moved to the Holden area in the past year.

Families who have lived in the area for some time are being asked to make a special effort to invite the newcomers and contact Sharon Gill at 688-3795 with their names.

The Chamber has planned this evening as a fun and hospitality night for the community with the hope it can be an annual event.

In other Chamber news, the chairman for the Management Assistance Program, Ron Mulick, reports outstanding success in registration for the program.

At the kick-off held in Viking recently, eight businesses from Holden and eight from Viking attended.

The consultants have completed their initial three-day work with the businesses and will forward their suggestions and ideas very soon.

Tournament set

A basketball tournament will be held in Tofield during the coming weekend.

Men's and women's teams will be involved in the two-day tournament which is being sponsored by senior teams from Tofield.

There will be four men's teams and four ladies' teams competing.

In addition to the host teams, the other entries will come from Lloydminster, Edmonton and Calgary.

Gymnasiums in the Tofield High School and the C.W. Sears School will be used for the event.

Action on Saturday will begin at ten o'clock in the morning while Sunday's portion of the competition will begin at 9:00 a.m.

The men's team from Tofield earned silver medals during the recently held North Eastern Alberta Winter Games.

Both teams are seeking community support for the tournament.

Ex-smokers need not gain weight

by Phyllis Pals

The determination to lose weight is a gravy cut compared to the will power needed to throw away the cigarettes forever. Unfortunately there is the serious drawback of pampering oneself with candy bars and special treats craved during the first weeks of non-smoking, which tends to get out of hand. As the pounds pile up and clothes no longer fit, the ex-smoker is faced with a crucial test - to take up smoking again or take stock of their eating habits in order to plan a common sense reducing program.

Fortunes are being made on the dieters dilemma. Every month the Woman's magazines feature new ways to lose weight. Diets, pills, exercise, health spas and even hypnosis are promoted by the great gurus of weight loss. Read it all, but recognize that the first and most important start on losing unwanted fat is your own determination. The method of "wishing" away the fat without any physical effort is doomed to fail. Joining self-help organizations such as TOPS (Take Off Pounds Sensibly) sometimes helps in adjusting to step two which is diet control, the twin to exercise.

Simple requirements for step two are simply a $2.40 food scale, measuring cup, bathroom scale, pencil, paper and calorie guide in order to chart your program. Nearly every morsel of food contains calories. Most provide necessary body fuel while some such as the fast foods are composed mainly of salt, fat and empty calories. You may not want to follow the endless list of planned menus. You may choose to continue to enjoy most of your favorite foods by keeping count of the calories in each portion. Total the count each day. Lean heavily toward steamed and raw veggies using measured butter and low-cal dip. Drastically cut down sugars and table salt. "Spike" is a tasty salt substitute and "Equal" is a good sugar substitute for coffee and cereal.

If you consume an average of 2000 calories each day, it's best to look for a longshoreman's job or expect to continue gaining weight. The body uses the calories that it needs then stores the rest as fat. If you find that 1200 calories per day is a comfortable level, then increase your daily activities. Walking, jogging, aerobics, swimming or just plain old exercises must then be geared to use up the excess calories. It is most important to maintain a daily schedule of exercise.

Better food habits resulting in a general well being with the addition of exercise plus the added bonus of fresh clean lungs, will result in a slow but steady, permanent weight loss, not an agonizing program but a pleasure.

Drinking tied to social factors

by James Carlisle

Although alcohol and drug abuse are more common among Indians than among other Canadians, Reginald Smart and Carolyn Liban of Toronto's Addiction Research Foundation have collected evidence that the problems are due to Indians' social situation, not to any inborn tendencies.

Dr. Smart and his colleagues at the ARF surveyed the use of drugs and alcohol by Indian and non-Indian students living in Ontario. When the students were matched for geographical and socio-economic (class) background the researchers found little difference in drug use between Indians and other students. The study shows that young Indians who live in cities and who stay in school have no greater problems with drugs and alcohol than other students.

Other studies, which seemed to show a tendency to alcoholism among Indians, have compared Indians on reserves to white living in cities. Dr. Smart suggests that such studies, in comparing people of completely different class backgrounds, have overlooked economic and social conditions which might lead to different patterns of alcohol and drug use.

In the ARF survey almost 6,000 students ages 13 to 19 were questioned. Sixty-four Indian students were asked their father's occupation, region where they lived, age, grade and school and sex. The self-reported use of drugs and alcohol by these students was compared to that of 64 non-Indian students who matched them in all categories.

The researchers found that almost one-fifth of the 128 matched students drank alcohol more than once a month. About 15 per cent of them had used cannabis (marijuana) more than 10 times. The only significant difference between the Indians and the matching non-Indians was the Indians' tendency to "binge drinking". The Indians did not drink more alcohol per month than the others but they were more likely to drink a lot at one time.

The survey also showed that more than two-thirds of Ontario students had used alcohol in the 12 months preceeding the survey, almost a third had used cannabis; about one in 10 had taken LSD and one in 30 had tried heroin. These results were not a surprise to Dr Smart. "We survey drug use in Ontario every two years. There was an increase in the use of alcohol and cannabis in 1979. The levels stayed about the same in 1981 with a slight decrease in the use of alcohol," says Dr. Smart.

Are people happier when they have an opportunity to earn their daily bread?

Rats are. Scientists working with lab animals offered them the alternative of free food in a dish, or the same kind of food obtained by pressing a lever. The rats were so enthusiastic about "earning" their food that they climbed right over the free food to reach the levers. When the researchers increased the number of lever-pushes required to get a portion of food, the rats went along up to 10 pushes per morsel before they decided that this was just too much work, and returned to the free food.

Plainly, as long as the demands on them are not excessive, rats prefer to earn what they eat.

Just like people.

Mrs A Arnston

L.C.W. members of St. Joseph Lutheran Church are busy this week organizing their annual turkey supper. The supper will be held in the Hay Lakes Rec Center on April 8 from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m.

Mrs. Elsie Lager is presently a patient at the Royal Alexandra Hospital in Edmonton where she has undergone further surgery.

Alan Welde, son of Donald and Helen Welde, has returned home from another stay at the University Hospital in Edmonton where he underwent additional surgery on his eyes. The results were very encouraging. Alan's mother will accompany him to Boston, Mass., on April 7 for further examinations and consultations. Alan continues to teach Grades 7, 8 and 9 at Czar School.

SURPRISE PARTY

The children of Mrs. Anne Kongsrud held a surprise birthday party Sunday at the Legion Hall at Ryley for their mother Anne when open house was held from 3-5 p.m.

Garfield Kongsrud was the emcee for the family.

The Auxiliary served lunch to about 150. A birthday cake made and decorated in Maroon and white by her sister Ruth Bratrud of Earling centred the table, also a basket of maroon and white silk flowers, a gift from the Auxiliary Ladies - Anna's favorite color.

In charge of the guest book was Heidi Kongsrud of Jasper. A gift from her children was a family ring, and from her sister Ruth Bratrud of Earling, Lil Hoveland, Camrose, and brothers Orval, Garry and Clarence Reum a swival chair.

A basket arrangement of planted flowers with an Easter Lily in centre from her nieces and nephews, also a plant from Kim Adcock of Kamloops, B.C. and another plant from Mrs. Lorraine Meson and Glenda of Edmonton, plus many cards and numerous gifts.

Friends were present from Ryley, Tofield, Holden and Bawlf.

Attending from a distance were her daughter Mrs. Sheila McCready of Whitehorse, Yukon, Garfield and Gloria Kongsrud and Heidi and Kable of Jasper, Deanne Shadeyk, Tross and Brina, Calgary, Brian Reum, Jasper, Garfield (Garry) Reum and Janice of Terrace, B.C. Clarence and Jean Reum of Mile 100, B.C. Kaline Gilquist, Delores Nord, Joan and Diane Beastie, Gordy and Cheryl Pape, Peter Rempel and family, Mrs. Lorraine Meson and Glenda, all of Edmonton. From Camrose were Ted and Ruth Grafaas, Clarence and Vi Hellekson and Bert and Lil Hoveland, and Merli and Dinny Johnson of Wetaskiwin. Anna Reum Kongsrud grew up in the Earling area before residing in Ryley.

On Monday 10 ladies from the Calvin United Church had a birthday party for Anna Kongsrud at the Church kitchen when a lunch and birthday cake was served.

Protein cell growth linked to cancer

by James Gorham

Ottawa researchers have recently discovered how normal cells are transformed into cancer cells in humans and animals.

Dr. James Whitfield and his colleagues at the National Research Council laboratory found that all cells must have the protein "calmodulin" if they are to grow normally, but making too much of the protein turns a normal cell into a cancer cell.

In their first experiments, the researchers grew normal cells in laboratory cultures. They measured the calmodulin in the cells and found that the amount doubled or tripled just before the cells divided. When the scientists added a chemical to the cultures which blocked the action of calmodulin the cells did not grow or divide.

Dr. Whitfield decided to look at tumour cells, which divide continuously. They had high levels of calmodulin all the time.

To explain why cancer cells make so much calmodulin, the scientists looked to the other function of calmodulin - guarding the cell from poisons.

Body fluids which battle the cells are full of poisons which would kill cells if they got inside. The most dangerous poison of all is the metal calcium. "Almost all cell death is caused directly by calcium leaving it from the body fluid," says Dr. Whitfield.

The NRC group showed that carcinogens (substances which cause cancer) make holes in the cell membranes which let calcium in. The cell responds by quickly making calmodulin, which binds to the metal and inactivates it. Calmodulin also starts the pumps in the cell membrane which expel the poison. According to Dr. Whitfield, "The cell is like a submarine with a hole in its side. It must get the pumps working quickly or it will perish."

A carcinogen may respond by attack the cell membrane and force the cell to make calmodulin. When this happens, the cell will also divide. Soon a row in the calmodulin level is the signal for cell division. If the cell is attacked by carcinogens too often, it must make the protein continuously, according to the scientists' theory. This transforms the normal cell into a continuously dividing cancer cell. "Tumour cells form as an adaptation to a nasty environment," says Dr. Whitfield. "Cancer is really an abnormal consequence of a normal process."

The Ottawa researchers have tested their theory successfully on almost 50 different types of cancer cell. They are now investigating the "switch" which turns on calmodulin synthesis, and the relation between calmodulin and a similar compound, named "oncomodulin", found in cancer cells.

Plastic prints to catch crooks

Solving crimes may be a little easier thanks to the perseverance of a North Bay police officer. After five years of experiments, Constable Paul Bourdon has discovered a reliable, rapid method of making fingerprints permanently visible, even on surfaces where it is difficult to detect them by standard methods.

Bourdon's discovery is now marketed all over North America under the trade name, "Vinaprint".

Fingerprints are just the films of oil left behind when we touch an object. They are fragile and easily destroyed. Policemen use fine powders or chemical fumes which adhere to the oil to make the prints visible.

Many surfaces, such as plastics, don't show prints with the current methods, and the attempt to develop the prints often destroys them. The Federal Bureau of Investigation in the U.S. estimates that with a good system only five per cent of fingerprints can be detected.

After experimenting with hundreds of chemicals Constable Bourdon finally found that cyanoacrylate, an ingredient in the new "super glues" would develop and preserve fingerprints.

Dr. J. Watkin of the National Research Council analyzed the chemistry for Bourdon's discovery. The cyanoacrylate hardens the prints into a tough, white plastic.

The plastic prints will not wipe off and can be easily photographed to use as evidence. As a bonus, Bourdon's method will work even on difficult surfaces, such as credit cards, where other systems won't yield prints. It works so quickly that an investigating officer can examine the results right at the scene of the crime.

PROPOSAL TO RE-OPEN ABANDONED TOFIELD MINE

On November 17th and 18th, 1982, Forestburg Collieries Limited held an Open House regarding its proposal to re-open the abandoned Tofield Mine. The project is proposed as a replacement mine to the Diplomat Mine where coal reserves are nearing exhaustion. The Tofield Mine will produce 100,000 to 200,000 tonnes of coal annually to supply domestic and industrial customers located principally in Alberta and Western Canada. The project area is comprised of 3 and ¾ sections of land, located immediately south of the Town of Tofield as indicated on the map below.

At the time of the first Open House, Forestburg Collieries Limited agreed to hold another Open House once more information on the project was available. The Company has recently completed an exploration program to define the quantity and quality of the coal reserves, a groundwater investigation, a marketing survey and has developed a mine/land reclamation plan. This information has been gathered in accordance with the "Coal Development Policy for Alberta" and the Minister of Environment's request for an Environmental Impact Assessment.

As part of the public information program on the project, Forestburg Collieries Limited will be holding a second

Renewable Society

How Will We Keep Warm?

Heat and comfort are extremely important to Canadians who have to contend with months of cold weather each year. Yet environmentalists, architects and designers point out the chilling fact that almost all existing homes in this country, as well as plans for many that will be built in the future, are inefficient and too expensive to heat.

Because our houses have not been designed with energy conservation in mind, they will not be readily adaptable to solar heating, nor can their energy consumption be reduced easily. We are warned that the cost of heating homes will continue to rise until the owners can no longer afford to heat them. The market value of large, poorly-designed, poorly-insulated houses will inevitably fall. This has already happened in the Maritimes. However, with added insulation many of these homes have increased in market value.

Because of the problems we are facing it is necessary to change many of our housing practices. However, the technology exists to build houses with energy-conserving structures and power based on renewable energy sources.

With new technologies and abundant energy sources, people living in conventional modern homes have become high consumers of energy, water and other resources. People have also become high producers of waste products. Because energy and building materials can now be brought in from far-off sources, modern buildings can also have heavy impact on both local and distant environments.

Both resources and money will be saved in the long run if houses are built to last. Experts advise that local materials such as wood and stone should be used whenever possible. A house with a large surface area will have a proportionate heat loss. Therefore, a square shape is preferable to a rectangular or L-shaped house. Since a roof can leak up to 18% of a home's heat (sometimes as high as 30% in older homes) it is important to minimize roof area. A two or three-storey house will cost less to heat (and cool) than a sprawling ranch-style bungalow of the same size.

The mass, or quantity and density of the materials, is an important consideration in house building for heat retaining qualities. Experts maintain that insulation is more effective if installed on the outside of the building with brick or stone on the inside. Sometimes additional mass is incorporated into houses with interior walls made of stone or with large masonry fireplaces.

Houses should be built in such a way that they derive maximum benefit from the surrounding environment. Designers should take into account windows and large wall surfaces in relation to sun and wind.

Southern windows are a good source of inexpensive solar heat and can provide substantial heat savings in combination with insulated panels, shutters or curtains which minimise heat losses at night.

Large glass areas should be avoided except on southern exposure, because they contribute heavily to heat loss. Heat losses through exposure to cold north winds can be substantial.

An ideal situation in this climate would be having a house embedded into a south-facing slope. This can result in considerable heating and cooling savings since the ground temperature below the frost line provides insulation and loses heat in winter and cooling in summer.

Houses which are not built on slopes should have a low profile to the north. Alternatively, earth can be piled up against the north wall, or coniferous trees planted on the north side to achieve similar effects.

Another excellent energy conservation suggestion relates to the incorporation of a greenhouse into the basic housing structure. It should be positioned on the southeast exposure of the house so that it will warm up quickly in the morning but will receive shading from the main housing structure in the afternoon when the sun is often too hot.

The Camrose One World Institute and Camrose-Wetaskiwin Cable TV are airing the ACCESS series "Renewable Society" on Wednesdays at 6:30 p.m. and Thursdays at 2:30 p.m. on Cable 19.

80th birthday

Josie Miekmaka of Holden recently celebrated her 80th birthday at a family gathering in the top picture, she is surrounded by her son and seven daughters while she is shown in the bottom picture with some of her grandchildren and great-grandchildren. In all, a total of eighty-two relatives were in attendance

Tofield market set

There will be a healthy tip to the top hat tipped at the Tofield Farmers' Market at the community hall on Friday - a spring bonnet contest will highlight the events!

As a salute to spring, everyone is encouraged to decorate a bonnet and bring it to the community hall for judging. The winner will receive a fresh bouquet of fresh flowers.

Organizers want contestants to have their bonnets down at the market by 3 p.m. Judging will take place at 4:15. In conjunction with the market, the Katchemut U.C.W. will hold a flea market in the hall's meeting room.

Farmers' markets are held in Tofield on the second Friday of each month in the community hall between 3 and 5 p.m. During August, September and October, they are held on the second and fourth Fridays.

This season, the market organizers have come up with a "Salute" theme, promoting some local interest each market. Friday's market will be a salute to spring

In May, they'll be saluting the rodeo and give a free bedding plant to each customer. June's market will be a salute to youth, with staged displays from youth groups.

The first market in August will pay homage to the community fair, with judging and prizes for floral arrangements. During the second market, each child of school age will receive a free pen, pencil and eraser as the market salutes the schools.

Senior citizens will be saluted during the first market in September which will feature a houseplant display which will be judged and prizes awarded. Coffee for seniors will be on the house.

The second market will feature a tribute to further education where vouchers will be offered for further education classes.

Farmers will be saluted during the first market of October. Judging and prizes will be awarded for Thanksgiving arrangements. The second market of that month will salute the Garden Club, with judging and prizes for home grown vegetables.

In November, the market will salute winter sports with displays in meeting rooms from various winter sport clubs.

The market rounds out the year in December with a Christmas salute and one free photograph of each person with Santa.

Medically Speaking

by Dr. Bob Yeung

When a patient has the appearance of a chipmunk or a squirrel whose cheeks are full of nuts, it usually means that there is something wrong with his or her parotid gland.

The parotid glands, not visible unless swollen, lie just in front of our ears. They produce saliva, which keeps our mouths moist and aids digestion.

The commonest cause of swelling of the gland is mumps. Eighty-five percent of mumps cases occur in people under the age of 15 and in three out of every four cases, glands on both sides of the face are affected by the virus.

Mumps may be occasionally complicated by meningitis, and more frequently, by orchitis or involvement of the testicles.

The parotid glands may also be infected by bacteria, leading to the development of boils or abscesses. This is most likely to occur in sick, elderly people with poor mouth hygiene and is related to dehydration and debilitation. These patients appear toxic and ill.

Dramatic swelling of the parotid occurs when the duct that drains the gland is blocked by a stone. This causes swelling on one side only, occurs suddenly during eating and generally alarms the otherwise well patient. Sometimes the stone can be felt on the inside of the cheek opposite the upper teeth.

A doctor can locate the stone by injecting a little dye and then taking an X-ray. It may be encouraged to pass by sucking a lemon or pickle. These foods cause more saliva to be produced and, with luck, the extra pressure will pop the stone out. Often the stone must be removed through a small incision over the duct inside the mouth.

Less common, but far more serious, is cancer of the parotid gland. This causes a firm swelling that is not painful. The tumour is usually a slow-growing one and it may be years or even before the swelling is noticed.

The diseased gland is removed surgically. It is a delicate operation, as important structures pass through the gland and these should be preserved if possible. X-ray therapy usually follows the surgery.

The parotid glands may be affected by tuberculosis, diabetes, cirrhosis and other disease states. Elevated lead, mercury and iodine levels can damage the gland. Some drugs also cause inflammation of the parotids.

Medically Speaking is published with the cooperation of this newspaper and the Alberta Medical Association.

Weather worn

Springtime has always been heralded as a sign of rejuvenation and new life. For this hapless abandoned farm, however, spring just means more rain through the roof. The broken structure wobbles amid rusted and broken down farm machinery echoing better times on the land.

Card has side trip

A Christmas card arrived in Olston after what might be termed a trip around the world.

The card was mailed in Jackson, Mississippi on Dec. 18th, 1982 and was addressed to Mr. and Mrs. Jack Laird.

Somewhere enroute to the tiny Alberta hamlet, the card got sidetracked.

It went to Poland.

Post Office employees in Warsaw stamped the envelope as being received in that European city on Jan. 31st after which they then forwarded it back to Canada.

It was delivered to the Lairds on Feb. 18th, one day less than two months after it had been mailed in the United States.

According to Mrs. Laird, the address and postal code on the envelope was correct.

Anyway, they did get their Christmas greetings, if somewhat belatedly.

Farm expenses will rise

Total farm operating expenses and depreciation charges for Alberta farmers in 1983 are forecast to be up 1 per cent, but, in deep back by 1.2 per cent in 1982.

Chuck Sterling, head of Alberta Agriculture's statistical branch, says that increases in farm costs, inflation, interest charges, energy related costs have all continued to erode farm income and to create cash flow problems for Alberta farmers because they have not been accompanied by a corresponding increase in cash receipts. He reports that cash operating costs are now nearly $700 million more than they were in 1979, and he expects total operating and depreciating charges to increase by $6 million or to exceed the $3 billion mark in 1982. This figure would represent nearly 80 per cent of Alberta farmers' total cash receipts in 1982.

Mr. Sterling says many Alberta farmers were caught unprepared for the present financial situation and are now implementing all possible ways of holding costs in line with anticipated incomes. Purchase of farm machinery and equipment, for example, has dropped dramatically in 1982, and some farmers had to refinance their debts to match their debt payments with their incomes. Still others either have or will be cutting back on their inputs to keep their costs down. And present land price trends and the reduction in land sales are further indications of the tight money situation that has been caused by higher expenses and lower income.

According to Mr. Sterling, interest costs are still the largest single expense in most Alberta farmers, even though rates have continued to fall in 1982. Projections of total interest costs to farmers, which include the refunds from Alberta's Small Business and Farm Interest Shielding Program, show them to be below those of 1981. Further declines and fewer loans being taken out next year are expected to further reduce interest costs in 1983.

Total farm machinery expenses, including farm fuels and other petroleum products, will reach $975 million in 1982 compared with $930 million in 1981. In 1982 farmers repaired and upgraded older equipment as opposed to purchasing new machinery.

Fertilizer costs and other crop expenses increased by nearly 3 per cent in 1982 compared with 1981, despite a 5 per cent drop in fertilizer usage. However, fertilizer prices increased by more than 5 per cent in 1982. Projections for 1983 show a slight increase in the costs of pesticides, herbicides and crop seed. Although there will be a marginal reduction in their use, prices will rise.

Feed and other livestock expenses will prove to have been lower in 1982 because of lower feed grain prices compared with 1981. And as farmers cut costs, a further reduction in crop expenses is expected to occur in 1983.

Depreciation charges on buildings and machinery are forecast to have decreased by 4 per cent for buildings and to have increase by 3 per cent for machinery by the end of 1982. And a substantial reduction in new purchases is expected for 1983.

Taxes, gross farm rent, wages or farm labor and utility expenses for 1982 will remain similar to those of 1981. While the cost of some of these have risen during the past year, an expected decrease in the amount of farm labor and grain farm land will keep the total expenditure at $485 million compared with $485 million in 1981.

Mr. Sterling reports that total operating expenses and depreciation charges are expected to be 20 per cent higher in 1983 than they were in 1982. If this is the case, it will be the first time that Alberta farm operating and depreciation charges have decreased since 1979. However, in terms of constant dollars, the cost of operating a farm in Alberta today is double what it was in 1970.

Gymnasts are active

The Tofield Gym Club will be resuming classes on April 12th and 14th (Tuesday and Thursday).

Classes will be climaxed by a trip to Fort Saskatchewan where the club will participate in a meet against Fort Saskatchewan and Sherwood Park.

Plans are also being made to have an "in club" meet.

The club was able to raise approximately $1,200 in a recent dance.

The club has purchased a balance beam, training beam and transporter kit with the money.

Projects approved for farm program

To date, 37 projects have been offered awards under Alberta Agriculture's On-Farm Demonstration Program, which is a sub-program of Farming for the Future.

Grants offered under the program are intended to assist farmers and farm organizations in the on-farm testing and demonstration of projects concerned with new concepts and new technology in agriculture. And the funds may be used to purchase materials, equipment and supplies or they may be put towards the costs of travel, labor, data analysis, etc.

The 37 awards total $80,382 with an average of $2,682 being awarded per project.

Since the last funding of demonstration projects in the August 20, 1982 issue of Alberta Agriculture's publication, "Agri-News" the following new projects have been approved, listed by Project Title, Applicant and District Agriculturist, and Location of Project in Alberta.

Savory Grazing Method, Taber and Fort Macleod, B. & M. Heitzman (D.A. - C. Rex and A. Toly), Taber and Fort Macleod.

Semi-Automated Gravity (Irrigation) Distribution System, A.E. Echert (D.A. - G. Frank), Duchess.

Soil Moisture Conservation, B. Somerville (D.A. - G. Werner), Endiang.

Soil Moisture Conservation Practice, L. Kennedy (D.A. - G. Werner), Botha.

Liming and Ripping Acid Solonetzic Soil, D. Hughes (D.A. - B. Goudreau), Wetaskiwin.

Dairy Pasture Demonstration, E. Siemens (D.A. - G. Berger), Rockyster.

Two Four-Wheel Drive Tractors Hooked in Tandem to be Operated by One Operator, J. Bauer (D.A. - J. Vanderkeel), Thorhild.

Chaff Evaluation, Athabasca District, D. Beacharsky (D.A. - G. Berger), Boyle.

Farmers who are interested in conducting demonstration proposals should contact their local district agriculturist.

More information on a particular project or on the On-Farm Demonstration Program can be obtained from the Secretary, Agricultural Research Council of Alberta, Alberta Agriculture, 9718 - 107 Street, Edmonton, Alberta, T5K 2C8.

Lakeshore-McKenzie news items

by Elsie Bates

Mrs. Ellen Eaton returned home on March 15th after spending three months at the home of her daughter Mrs. Rita Powell at Ancaster, Ontario While there Rita and Ellen's cousin, Eva Bridgman and Ellen spent a Sunday at the home of Ellen's nephew Gordon and Betty Westman at London, Ontario. On the way home Ellen stopped off with Eva at her home on Walker's Line, R.R. Burlington for a five-day visit before returning to Rita's. The weather there was as reported here only the temperature didn't get quite so low but with the dampness in the air there and wind chill, it seemed much colder.

Ellen and Rita also visited Rita's daughter Sherry Niemetz at her apartment in Scarborough one Sunday. Ellen accompanied Sherry to a musical concert at the Scarborough Civic Centre during the afternoon.

Sherry works for the Ontario government and her office is on the second floor just above the concert centre.

If any of you Lakeshore-McKenzie folks have any news items for the paper, please phone 662-3691 or have it ready when I call. Mrs. Bates has to be in by noon Tuesday.

Mrs. Donald Kyle (mother of Mrs. Isabel Roderick of the McKenzie district) who had moved to Tofield from Edmonton had the misfortune of falling and breaking her arm and is a patient in the Tofield Hospital.

Mrs. Edna Jones left on March 13 to visit her mother, Mrs. Mary Wilkie at Rosthern, Sask., returning home on March 31. Mrs. Wilkie spent most of the winter months with Edna and Arnold rather than staying alone since her husband passed away.

On Tuesday of last week several ladies of the Lakeshore-McKenzie districts as well as some from Tofield met at the home of Mrs. Deanna Nelson to help Deanna celebrate her birthday. The ladies brought the usual birthday cake and other goodies.

Lori and Kathy Brown, daughters of Howard and Doris Brown, left on Thursday of last week to spend two weeks at the skating school at Barrhead. Lori and Kathy are granddaughters of Mae Ferguson of Lakeshore.

Easter Sunday guests at the home of Rod and Isabel Roderick of Lakeshore-McKenzie were Isabel's brother Ross Kyle of Sherwood Park and their mother Mrs. Donald Kyle of Tofield, who got a pass from the hospital for the day.

Carl and Marie Jacobsen of the McKenzie district left on March 17 to visit their daughter Clarice and Peter and children Leif and Kari of Coleman. They returned home on Monday, April 4. They reported that Saturday, April 2, and Easter Sunday about 16 inches of snow had fallen, but it was melting and this morning, April 4, when they left for home it was still melting. The storm didn't hit very far and they ran out of it shortly after leaving for home.

Long Easter weekend visitors at the home of Mrs. Mae Ferguson were her daughter Donna and Frank Edwards and daughter Judy of Whitecourt, her son Nelson and Ken-Al Ferguson and boys of Sherwood Park, also her mother Mrs. Roberts from the Senior Citizen's Lodge in Tofield. Also visiting there on Saturday along with the above visitors were Mae's daughter Doris Brown and Mae's niece Joanne and Ken Horne and two boys of Calgary.

The Easter bunny was very good to Ellen Eaton with several visitors dropping in with Easter goodies. Among those dropping in were Ken and Rachel Ross, Rose Ross, Ellen's son Lorney and Shirley, their daughter and son Marg Eaton of Edmonton and Ron Eaton who is living with his parents at present in the Eaton farm, as well as a couple of others from Tofield who had dropped in for a few minutes during last week.

Several Senior Citizens as well as some others went to Edmonton to the Heritage Mall on a shopping trip on Monday.

Important Notice to Farmers Re: Wheat Varieties

At the present time, carriers of goods requiring an overdimensional permit may secure six such permits without filing evidence of adequate public liability and property damage insurance with the Motor Transport Board, although the carrier is expected to have a minimum of $200,000 coverage. Any permit beyond the first six requires evidence of coverage be filed with the Board.

Effective April 1, 1983, this policy of filing with the Board will be discontinued and the minimum PL and PD coverage will be $200,000 a condition of all overdimensional permits. The onus will be on the carrier to have the necessary insurance, but he no longer has to prove it to the Motor Transport Board.

The change affects farmers most farm-related truckers in such movements as hay hauling, and moving grain bins and oversdimensional equipment by truck.

Glean - Cropping Restrictions

Many farmers have by now heard of a new herbicide called Glean. In fact, some farmers may have obtained this herbicide last year under a temporary registration. For those that have, or intend on using this chemical, a few precautions and comments on cropping restrictions (the years following application) are in order.

Firstly, Glean should not be used on soils with less than 2 per cent organic matter or on soils with a pH of greater than 7.5.

The cropping restrictions in years immediately following application are associated with soil pH. If the pH of your soil is 7.0 or less, then the crop following the year of application can be wheat or barley. If the pH is between 7.0 and 7.5, then the crop following the year of application can be wheat or barley. If the pH is between 7.5 and 7.5, then the crop following the year of application can be wheat or barley. If the pH is between 7.5 and 7.5, then the crop following the year of application can be wheat only. Remember, this is for the year following the application year.

The use of Glean in a weed control program requires careful consideration of crop rotations during the two to three year period following application. The reason for this is that, under certain conditions, the small amounts of Glean remaining in the soil can injure crops other than wheat or barley for 2 to 3 years after application.

There are many precautionary steps that should be taken if you plan on using Glean in the future. We highly recommend that you come and talk to us before you use this herbicide.

COLOR SCHEMES

Spring is often when we get the bug to redecorate. Before making any big decisions about color, consider the following tips. You'll be surprised at how much color can affect your family.

The first question to answer is "What direction does the room face?" Warm colors like red, orange and yellow are good in rooms without windows or have a northern exposure. Cool colors such as green, blue and purple are best in the room that receives a lot of sunlight.

The size and shape of a room must be considered too. Warm colors can make a large area seem smaller and cozier. If the ceiling is very high, paint it darker than the walls and it will seem lower. If a room is long and narrow, paint the two end walls a warmer and deeper hue to make the room seem square.

Cool colors suggest spaciousness and can make small rooms seem larger. Paint the long walls of a narrow room with a cool color to make them appear further apart.

Small rooms are more comfortable if only one or two soft colors that blend well are used. Avoid painting woodwork and trim in a small room a different color than the wall, or it will seem cluttered and much smaller.

How a room will be used affects its color scheme. Use lively shades in a family room and quiet subdued colors in a living room for a quiet, relaxed atmosphere.

By planning carefully the color schemes of your home, you may find you've created more useable and comfortable living spaces.

Ketchemut Club meets

Ketchemut Creek Family Horse Club held their monthly meeting on Sunday, March 27th at Beaverhill Community Hall.

Old business discussed was the building of bleachers for our grounds. An estimation was given for the cost, which was accepted.

The Agricultural Society has asked the club to rent our ponies for children's pony rides, July 1st which everyone agreed on.

Diane Harper, our Queen candidate for the Tofield Rodeo had her tickets for distribution.

At our last meeting it was suggested we have a pit barbeque built at our grounds for wiener roasts during our gymkhanas. Don Fowler volunteered to make and donate the barbeque.

New business was a trail ride set for Sunday, April 10th at 1 p.m. starting and ending at Beaverhill Community Hall.

A prince and princess were again elected for this year, to carry out small tasks and throughout the years. Voted in were prince, Shane Norton, and princess Tamie Lowell.

We also held two mini raffles. One for 12 and under, won by John Hendrix and one for 13 and over won by Linda Cheney.

BETWEEN THE COVERS

There are no new books this week, for the first time in several months. The reason is that, until the Library's 1983 budget could be approved, the librarian has held back on ordering new material. Now that Town Council has approved the budget, and the amount set for book purchase is known, ordering and processing can resume. Meanwhile, rest assured that a week-old or two-week old book is still a new one!

Tofield Town residents, please take note: the Tofield Library is at present funded mostly from YOUR tax dollar. Come in and make use of this service which is provided by your town for you.

There are books for leisure reading, books to read aloud to your preschooler, and books for older children and teenagers. There are books to answer questions, help solve problems, or to provide ideas for entertaining, decorating or building. There are books to tease the mind and make you think, and there are books to help you forget problems and escape for awhile into fantasy.

There are books to provide information on handicrafts and animals, on popular medicine and cooking, on famous people and historical events, on foreign countries and exotic places. There are magazines and records to borrow, and toys to amuse your little one while you browse.

As well as books, a number of services are offered in public libraries. In many cases, a book not owned by this library can be borrowed from another one for you. A question that cannot be answered here can be referred by a direct line to a larger centre. A story hour is offered for three and four year olds, and book delivery may be arranged for shut-ins. Books in foreign languages and books on tape for the reading-impaired are available upon request. Books in larger print are here for those whose eyesight cannot cope with regular print (remember that Senior memberships are half-price).

Spread the word: the Library is here for YOU. The hours are Tuesday 1-5, Thursday 3-5 and 6-8, Friday and Saturday 10-12 and 1-5. Come in any time to look around and become familiar with your library.

Learning of China

Grade six students at the Tofield Elementary School literally got a taste of Marco Polo last week.

Although they didn't travel to the far-off, romantic land they took comprehensive lessons on the country - and wound up with a full-scale Chinese dinner!

Their teacher, Mr. Foster, explained that the students find the learning experience more exciting if they can actually participate in the lessons, rather than just being lectured.

Pupils learned of the customs and traditions of the vibrant, yet mysterious land sought for years by Marco Polo of Italy.

They learned of the school system and work-place, of domestic life and sciences discovered in China.

Mr. Foster said he decided to wrap up the series of lessons with the Chinese meal to give the children an Easter vacation treat.

The room hummed excitedly as the noon hour approached. The food was prepared at home by some of the pupils' mothers, and re-heated at the school in micro-wave ovens.

As the buffet-style dinner was being arranged, expectation gave way to hungry stomachs as some children suggested eating the egg rolls before the rest of the food was served.

Pupils were tantalized by a menu of egg rolls, chow mein, chicken fried rice, bacon fried rice, ham fried rice, sweet and sour pork, chinese chicken wings, mixed fried vegetables and fortune cookies.

Students anxiously awaited Mr. Foster's permission to go, table by table, to the buffet.

Most pupils questioned agreed that they had learned much of the far-eastern country. As they attempted to manipulate chop-sticks, they agreed that it was a very civilized country, but weren't enthused about going to school on Saturday, as do the Chinese.

Several chose to write the following about their learning adventure.

Our Unit On China
by Kelsey Carlisle

I enjoyed this unit because I learned alot of things such as they have a communist government, about 3,500 letters, and there are 4,500 keys on a typewriter.

In China they have much less crime because you have to work to eat. In China the people get paid in work points which they can change to Yuan which is their unit of money.

Their is no unemployment in China because everyone is assigned to a job and everyone works together.

Most of the people of China work in agriculture. The people who work in agriculture live on communes which are divided into bergades and then to work groups.

We had Chinese food on Thursday, March 31, for our unit on China. We used chopsticks but it was hard.

The school in China starts children at a younger age. The university is free and they go to school 5½ days a week.

China
by Jodie Silver

This year, the grade sixes of Tofield School took a new unit in social studies. This unit was on the country of China

There were many interesting subjects included in the study such as geography, government, communes, industrial and agricultural production, Chinese cultures and writings, recreations and sports, education and medicine.

Education in China is not very much like Canada. Children in China go to school from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., unlike our 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Also, instead of a morning recess, children do exercises to music, this can be called shadow boxing, and is a common Chinese culture for young and old people.

Children start kindergarten at two years of age, and start grade one at seven years of age. From there they go to primary school (7-12), junior middle school (13-15), senior middle school (15-17), and then to jobs or university. University is free in China, but only people that the government says can go are allowed to enroll Food preparation has been a part of the Chinese culture for thousands of years. Chinese people have made delicious dishes of chicken, fish, pork, mixed fried vegetables, and of course, rice.

At the end of our study, our teacher let us bring a few dishes of Chinese food, we even tried to use chopsticks.

I found this study very interesting.

China
by Lisa Kobberna

Learning about China was very interesting to me. I thought (before my study) that all Chinese people were very poor, but now I realize that they are a very strong country and don't need help from us. They asked if we would help build the Yangtze bridge, but we said no. We didn't think it could be done. But they didn't listen, and they 'did' build it.

Their foods are very different from ours. For breakfast we eat bacon, eggs, toast or cereal. But they eat millet porridge, maize bread and a vegetable dish of tomatoes, beans, and potatoes fried in oil. To drink Chinese have water or tea.

Their government is a communist one. That means that the government decides what occupations are to be for each person.

I really enjoyed the Chinese writing that I learned. They have 3,500 different characters in their alphabet and we only have 26.

THE WORLD OF MODELS
by G Foster

The word model usually brings to mind a picture of someone glueing pieces of plastic together. Models have always been a means of representing the real thing in miniature.

In the grade six science course students are introduced to the model world in order to create an understanding of how models and drawings are used as a base from which to create the real thing.

They found that in many cases what seemed a good idea on paper, proved impractical in production of both a model and the real object.

Forming the chains from their mental and drawn models proved a challenging and enlightening experience. Undoubtedly a greater appreciation for the inventive person was gained and there will be a carry over into problem solving.

Learning of China

These students in a Grade 6 class of Tofield Elmentory School wound up a series of lessons of China with a full Chinese dinner last Thursday. The dishes were prepared by mothers of the pupils, and featured over half a dozen dishes. Place mats were designed by the students

Ryley man dies in car accident

A collision at the main turnoff to Ryley on Sunday has claimed the life of a Ryley man.

Dead is Wendell Heintz, 84, of General Delivery, Ryley.

RCMP said the tragedy occurred at 7:30 p.m. when the victim, travelling east, collided with a passenger car going west.

The victim was the lone occupant of his car, police said. The oncoming car contained four members of a Sherwood Park family.

Two of the passengers were treated and released from hospital, one remains in hospital in Tofield while the fourth, a young girl, is being treated in hospital in Edmonton.

Police said visibility was good, and the roads were bare and dry. They were notified of the crash by a witness at a service station.

Cause of the crash is under investigation.

Bawlf wins title

Bawlf has repeated as the championship team in the County Senior Hockey League.

Bawlf stopped Tofield 6-3 on Saturday night to win the best of five championship finals in three straight games.

Bawlf had ousted Round Hill in one semi-final series while Tofield had disposed of Bashaw in the other round.

Bawlf led Saturday's contest 3-0 after the opening period, extended that lead to 4-1 after the middle stanza and the two teams split four goals in the final period.

C. Sawchuk and Campbell led Bawlf to victory when each notched a pair of goals while singles were scored by Wood and Rudosky.

Tofield's goals were netted by Horricks, Gilbert and G. Olson.

The game was loaded with penalties as each team was nailed for seventeen infractions.

Plans have been finalized for the league's annual banquet, awards night and dance.

The big event will be held on Saturday night in the Norsemen Inn with a limited number of tickets still available from players and management of all six teams.

Darren Stang of Bawlf will be presented an award for being the league's top goalie while Kevin Wolfe of Round Hill gets a trophy for being the league's top point-getter.

Five other individual awards will be presented.

By a vote of representatives from each of the six teams, awards will be presented for the most valuable player, top defenceman, rookie of the year, most gentlemanly player and the top coach.

Dale Winder and Ron Shantz will share the master of ceremonies' duties while Ed Clinton of The Canadian will be the guest speaker.

One week from tomorrow (Thursday) league officials will hold a wind-up meeting which has developed into an important session.

At least three teams in the league are having financial difficulties and one of those three might have a problem in obtaining enough players for next winter.

While the three squads might now be said to be doubtful starters next winter, league officials are determined that the league will operate and next Thursday's session will be vital in determining just how this will happen.

Bawlf 6 Tofield 3

1st Period: 1, Bawlf, C. Sawchuk (Tiffery) 10:31; 2, Bawlf, Wood (Tiffery) 11:53. Penalties: G. Borten (two minors), French, Tiffery, C. Sawchuk (two minors), D. Hudon, Berg.

Snippets

The size of a typical American household has decreased steadily in the 20th century. In 1890, the average home contained five people. That figure fell to 4 1/2 by 1920 and was down to 3 1/2 by 1940. After remaining at that level for 20 years, household size has since shrunk.

[illegible] CELEBRATE 40TH ANNIVERSARY

Happiness is always enhanced by the good wishes of others, that is what Joe and Emma Knudson realized on Palm Sunday, March 27, when about 165 attended the open house at Skudesness Lutheran Church which began with a one-hour program. The emcee was [illegible].

The audience sang the Battle Hymn of the Republic and Come to the Church in the Wildwood (by request of the couple). A duet by Bonnie Helleksen and Merrilynn Bratrud accompanied on guitar by Brian Helleksen, they had composed to suit the occasion. Two readings by Bernice Belding and Jeannette Knudson.

A solo by Mrs. Alberta Olsen, and Mrs. Margaret (Dave) Gibson also sang a solo. Reminiscing by Douglas Mondahl of Sherwood Park, Rev A. Ingebergsson, Camrose and Rev. Lee Woolery, Bawlf. Skudesness Ladies Group also sang.

In charge of the guest book were Helen Hovland of Dalburne, a niece, and Alice Hoveland, Holden Sn., another niece.

The bridal table was laid in a red lace cloth with a three tiered cake in white and red with three white lighted tapers and a bouquet of deep red carnations also a large decorated cake, a gift from the Knudsons.

The Skudesness L.C.W. served lunch before a social time of fellowship. Joe and Emma expressed their thanks for everything.

Trade-Cam begins Friday

Final preparations for Trade-Cam '83 are underway and organizers are expecting this year's show to be the most successful ever.

To be held Friday, Saturday and Sunday in the Camrose Agricultural Society's 66,000 sq. ft. facility east on Highway 13, Trade-Cam '83 promises to be an eventful show for visitors and exhibitors, organizers say.

"All the floor space is sold out and we're now filling in corners," said Barry Davies, an organizer. "We're all excited about the show ... this should be a successful venture and we're already planning Trade-Cam '84.";

Managed by the Camrose Agricultural Society, the show will get underway on Friday at 5 p.m., with the official opening of the new site scheduled for 7:30 p.m.

Solicitor General Graham Harle will unveil a plaque revealing the name of the new complex and MP Arnold Malone, MLA Gordon Stromberg, Camrose Mayor Rudy Swanson and a County representative will be present.

"Although there'll be plenty of farm displays, we haven't forgotten the city resident," said Davies. "There'll be displays for everyone."

With a total of 87 booths, Trade-Cam '83 will offer visitors the opportunity to view and discuss the latest consumer products and services with manufacturers, manufacture representatives, retail outlets, financial institutions, various agencies, associations and government departments.

Displays will represent businesses dealing in farm credit, real estate, insurance, automotive, sheet metal, plumbing, solar energy, tires, trophies, machinery, boats, pianos, stock farms, business machines and food.

A highlight of the Trade-Cam '83 show will be a display of vehicles by the Alberta Post-War Car Society.

"There'll be 10 or 12 reconditioned fully restored vehicles," Davies said. "The Society has its own show in Edmonton ... the cars will rekindle fond memories, especially for car buffs."

Tying in with the society's display, there'll be an auto shop display showing the different stages of car restoration, Davies added.

On Saturday morning, the farmer's market and pancake breakfast will be held at 9 a.m. and the Trade-Cam doors will remain open until 6 p.m.

Entertainment will be offered during the three-day event and this will include the Barbershoppers, CLC's choir, Emmaus and other local choirs and bands. On Sunday, Trade-Cam hours will be from noon until 4 p.m. and there will be entertainment during the day also Others attending Trade-Cam '83 will include Agricultural Society Past-President Rudy Gerber, President, Bill Wilson; Director of trade shows, Daryl Olson, Vice-President, Colin Millang, Trade-Cam '83 Chairman, Ken Nyback; and Agricultural Society General Manager, Neil Reid.

IN MEMORIAM

FALEBRENZA– In loving memory of our dear daughter and sister Janet Lynn, who left us so suddenly April 7th, 1977

Listening to the radio
When a song began to play
If said wishes were for dreamers
So that's what we are today
We wish that you were here with us
And dream of days gone by
So once again we ask Him
And ask again –GOD– why?
But still He doesn't answer us
And time just slips away
We're just wishing and we're dreaming
That we could have you home to stay
We miss [redacted] dear Janet –All our Love Dad, Mom, Susan and Denis. 31p-4867

Hat trick

Carrie Warkentin of Tofield gives a beaming smile and a tip 'o the spring bonnet at the farmer's market held last week. Everyone was urged to make a creative spring bonnet for judging at the market, which is held in the brier patch. The winning hat was designed by Theone Jones.

Crank calls irk firemen

by Don Umpherson

TOFIELD — Firefighters here are miffed by people crying "Wolf".

So they've decided to crack down on people - usually kids - calling in phoney alarms just so they can hear the wail of a fire engine, Chris Kenny says.

"We're extremely annoyed with the number of false alarms being called in lately. I can think of two dozen at least so far this year".

At the time of the interview, Kenny explained that Alberta Government Telephones (AGT) was in the midst of an investigation into several crank calls.

"We want to make it clear that adults who knowingly phone in a false alarm are risking prosecution by the RCMP." The law provides for stiff fines and a possible jail term for offenders.

The fire department officials have decided to take their case to the schools, in hopes of telling people about the inconvenience caused by a phoney alarm.

"We want to teach the public that the alarm does not go off every time someone phones in an alarm," Kenny said.

In most cases, however, the alarm does go off, summoning firemen and causing unnecessary disruption if it is a false alarm.

Kenny said blasebusters are getting sick and tired of people crying "Wolf" with the fire alarm and may be responding more slowly to the alarm.

"What happens if the fire department figures it is just another false alarm and doesn't respond immediately?" she queried. "It could be a genuine fire and someone's home may be burning down."

Kenny added that the department also wants the public to know the dangers of children standing in the street to have a glance at a speeding fire engine.

Most of the calls, she explained, come during vacation periods at school and most are made by children. But under an agreement with AGT, the calls can be traced to whoever made them.

The most recent trace led the department to the parents of a four-year-old girl who apparently had phoned in several false alarms one morning. The child was chastised and the parents apologized, Kenny said.

Kenny said she is also concerned that someone may have a crank call at the same time as a person with a real fire and they may not get through.

She added that department officials will be going to the schools in an education campaign.

Until the department receives its new communications system, they will have to rely on the present system of calling one another up on private lines.

Kenny said they expect the system shortly, but require the co-operation of the public in keeping the false alarms, or "nuisance calls" down.

Re-union set

Planning for the Lakeshore-McKenzie School re-union continues.

This event has been scheduled for the final two days in July and already, much of the planning has been completed.

Another planning session was held on Tuesday night.

Organizers are still interested in receiving more ideas of what should happen on the two days and are also wanting to obtain more addresses of former teachers and students.

A supper will be served on the first evening and will be followed by a dance along with programs for the non-dancers.

Scheduled for the Sunday are a pancake breakfast and a church service.

A concussion booth will be operated on both days.

Announcements will follow as more planning becomes finalized and the reunion nears.

Scouts honoured

Three Tofield residents have received the highest awards available in the Boy Scout movement.

Grant Berg, Doug Brown and Armond Eglesar were presented with their Chief Scout Awards.

The certificates were presented in Red Deer on Saturday night by Inspector Dan Nielson of the RCMP and Nick Malychuk of Edmonton, Boy Scout Provincial Commissioner.

The awards ceremony had been preceded by a banquet during which Waddell Smith of the Edmonton Eskimos was the guest speaker.

In total, twenty-five boys from various parts of Central Alberta were on hand to receive the scouting movement's highest honour.

The Chief Scout Award is presented only to those scouts who, in addition to having completed a specified level of accomplishments and participation in troop activities, has also carried out a number of voluntary services to their community.

Visitors win tourney

Visiting teams emerged with top honours during a basketball tournament in Tofield on the past weekend.

Ryley Jets won the women's division while the men's category was taken by the Edmonton Snow Snakes.

Both teams were presented with first place trophies contributed by the Tofield Hotel.

Marcy Haribert was selected as the most valuable player in the women's division while Gene Gerwing took that honour in the men's competition.

Named as all stars in the women's portion of the tournament were Haribert, Mel MacDonald, Sherry Kostewig, Janice Rosenburg and D. Young.

The men's all star team was composed of Steve Roth, Jim Leach, Jay Kelly, Lonnie Waterhouse and Ken Plumb.

Ryley Jets took top honours and gold medals in the women's division when they defeated Edmonton Teddy Bears in the finals with the latter team winning silver medals.

Edmonton F.P. Grads took the consolation playoff which earned that team bronze medals

Edmonton Snow Snakes took the men's playoffs and gold medals when they defeated Lloydminster in the deciding game.

Lloydminster got silver medals Lloydminster had gained its berth in the finals when they broke a tie with a basket with just four seconds left in regulation time to defeat Tofield.

Edmonton Point After Club earned third place and bronze medallions by winning the consolation playoff.

Both school gymnasiums in Tofield were used for the eight-team tournament which was held on Saturday and Sunday.

Accident takes life

by Don Umpherson

KINGMAN — A weekend traffic tragedy has claimed the life of a Kingman woman of this community and sent her husband to hospital.

Cheryl Lynn Benson, 25, died instantly when the vehicle she was driving collided with a pickup truck on Highway 27, just east of Olds, on Friday.

Olds RCMP said the collision occurred about 5 p.m. when the victim's westbound vehicle was hit by an eastbound truck driven by Clare Hammer, 67, of Olds.

Phil Benson, 42, was taken to Olds Municipal Hospital where he received treatment for several broken ribs and other assorted minor injuries.

Hammer was treated for minor injuries in hospital and later released, police said.

Police said the collision took place during a heavy snowstorm when the road was extremely slippery and slush covered.

Cause of the accident is still under investigation.

Train delay

Trains were delayed for about two hours last week when a CN freight car hopped the track near Holden. Repair crews were quickly on the scene, and righted the broken car before towing it away. Repairmen blamed the malfunction on a broken rear axle.

"It must have been pretty good in spots. I was dragged out three times to get a drink of water!"

Bilingual today

It's not many years since many Canadians felt the book by a long-time Navy man "Bilingual Today, French Tomorrow" was too far fetched, too improbable. Even the excellent detail he provided, the copious illustrations, failed to convince many people.

Certainly there have been many examples, but surely one of the most upsetting is the proposal that Canada's Book of Remembrance should be destroyed as an historic treasure, that the rank of all the servicemen listed in its pages should be ever so carefully lifted off the pages and replaced with abbreviated ranks which are bilingual.

A magnificent example of the calligrapher's art, the Book of Remembrance contains the names of all Canada's war dead, from the time of the Boer War, up through two World Wars, and on to the Korean War. It is displayed in a superbly designed chapel in the Peace Tower in the Houses of Parliament at Ottawa, and each day the book is opened to a new page, so that each of the names, in turn, will be readable by visitors that day.

The proposal to change the names was a good way along in its progress when the program was suddenly made public, deriving howls of outrage from many Canadians, from the Royal Canadian Legion, and indeed from many other groups.

To suggest that a national treasure such as this should be altered in such a fashion is like suggesting that the paintings of the Group of Seven should be repainted in keeping with the modern scene. How far are we, in the name of bilingualism, to go back and alter historic documents? Would the idea, for instance, include rewriting the diaries and records of Champlain, of Montcalm, of Bigot, or countless others, phrasing them in English as well as French?

The most insulting aspect is that the suggestion comes from people who will not permit the use of English in the names or the signs of many businesses in their provinces, who ask for equality everywhere outside the province, but utterly deny it within. No less insulting is the fact there are so few names from that province in the book. There were indeed numbers of superb fighting men, and superb units, from that province, yet nowhere else in the country was the war effort so opposed, or so undermined.

Surely the supreme irony . . . forty year later . . . would be to amend the record.

Even if it could be done without damage, which is highly doubtful. And in a time of dire economic restraint, surely it would be waste of the highest order.

Much was made a few weeks ago of the criticism levelled against one of the finest hospitals in the country, where an English-speaking nurse was so 'utterly unfeeling' as to minister to a French speaking women who was dieing, depriving her, as the daughter phrased it, of "the right to die in French." We still think it's utter twaddle, but if that case can be made to stand up, (as it did in court) then surely we should be prepared to allow the records of those men and women who died in service to continue the way they have been all these years.

Patricia Young Says . . . . .

Don't look for logic in a "socialist." Look for the double standard that makes a communist victory in Vietnam, Cambodia, Cuba or Portugal "liberation of the people" but a non-communist victory (as in Chile) the establishing of a Fascist dictatorship! Don't look for marchers protesting a Soviet or Red Chinese nuclear blast outside an Embassy. They are seemingly concerned only with the nuclear testing of non-communist nations! While the leftists will charge Ian Smith and South Korea are "servants of American Imperialists taking their orders from the C.I.A.", do they ever charge that Cuba, Vietnam or North Korea are servants of the communist Imperialists taking their orders from Peping and Moscow? Not on your life! Socialist logic must serve Marxist ends, at all cost. While the non-communist countries see "peace" as an absence of war, the socialist-communist sees it only as peace that follows a communist conquest.

Not so strangely, Marxist type socialists often gain power and try to implement their philosophy and programs under a facade of "democracy". The Rev. C. Bucher, writing in The Presbyterian Journal of November 13th, 1974, as eye witness to the Allende regime as well as the resultant "revolution", tells of Allende making use of loopholes in the Chilean constitution in his take over the nation's resources. This included expropriation of all banks, industries, farms and businesses. Newspapers and radio stations were closed down when they spoke out against the government. Many were panicked by having political advertising withheld from them.

Eventually, it was the Chilean Congress itself which declared that the Allende government had forfeited its right to govern because of its gross abuse of the Constitution and the democratic system. When Allende refused to resign, citizens began to strike and hold protest meetings which numbered in the thousands and as TV coverage showed.

Today, Chile again enjoys complete freedom of religion, freedom of speech and the freedom to travel - including the freedom to leave the country - a restriction imposed by Allende. While inflation continues in Chile as around the world, farmers are again encouraged to develop, notwithstanding the Allende expropriation of one million dollars worth of foodstuff assembly.

While Allende was unable to pay even the interest on the national debt, the new government in one year has built up a reserve of $500 million dollars. To be sure Chileans live under a military dictatorship, but like Spain perhaps, it is a paternal dictatorship which the majority of citizens accept as an alternative to the Marxist-socialism which had all but strangled their liberty and freedom.

Start-ups need a push

By W. Roger Worth

While governments procrastinate and big businesses hunker down in the face of the worst recession since the 1930s, average Canadians fully understand what's happening, and they're acting accordingly.

Consider, for example, the fact that savings rates are the highest they've been for years. Canada Savings Bonds are a sellout, the financial institutions are brimful of cash and ordinary mortals are actually paying down, rather than building up debt.

The major reason for this phenomenon is the fear and uncertainty connected with the employee layoffs and cutbacks that have become endemic.

Nevertheless, while attempts to maintain financial security have become the norm, a strange thing is happening in the very real world of entrepreneurship. At a time when bankruptcies and receiverships are at near-record levels, the number of business start-ups is [illegible]

Last year, 150,000 new firms were started in Canada, and in 1983 the number may reach 200,000, according to the 64,000-member Canadian Federation of Independent Business.

Such risk-taking in the midst of a full-fledged recession, of course, is good news for the policy makers in Ottawa and the provinces, because each new firm represents increased employment. And with 1.6 million Canadians unemployed, such jobs are badly needed.

But if the politicians and governments are going to take credit for the new jobs (and real assured they will), then surely they have an obligation to provide greater support for these hard-pressed entrepreneurs, all of whom risk their time, hard work, money and even their standards of living when they set up their own shops.

This government support can be handled in a variety of ways. Most important to the new job creators, of course, are low interest rates, because many have borrowed heavily as they attempt to make it on their own.

A few extra tax breaks also wouldn't hurt, particularly for those who lose heavily in the early business years and others who invest in research and development that may not pay off until well into the future.

Federation President John Bulloch puts the matter succinctly: "The best solution to our economic problems is the country's finest resource - entrepreneurs."

Now, if only the politicians would agree, and provide the right ingredients for even greater success among this rare breed of individuals.

VILLAGE OF RYLEY

NOTES TO FINANCIAL STATEMENTS

December 31, 1982

1. Accounting policies:

a) Inventories are not booked for accounting purposes.

b) Fixed Assets:

Fixed assets are recorded at cost. Depreciation of fixed assets has not been booked in the accounts. Major capital additions and improvements are generally financed through the issuance of long-term debentures. The debenture interest and principal payments are recorded as current expenditures when the amounts are paid. The corresponding debenture principal redemption is added to the capital and loan fund investment in capital assets when paid.

Capital assets additions may also be financed through expenditures in the general revenue fund. The expenditure is recorded as a current expenditure in the appropriate period. The corresponding amount is added to the capital and loan fund investment in fixed assets.

c) Comparative figures have been restated where applicable to conform with presentation used in the current year.

Ministik

by Catherine Beddoe

Sent for last week.

Barbara Herricks spent Good Friday with her brother and family, the Dennis Gilberts, in Edmonton.

Margaret and Pat Paterson were hosts to Ann and Murray Miles and John and Jill of Sherwood Park, as well as daughter Linda, of Edmonton, on Easter Sunday.

John and Vera Holtmann and daughters, Beverley, Lonnan and Paula were Saturday evening and Easter Sunday guests of Margaret and Fred Hanley of Rocky Rapids.

Jean and George Klatzenkroth and Margaret and Pat Paterson were among the many guests on the 50th wedding anniversary celebration of the Bill Pennanen, in Leduc on Saturday evening.

The March meeting of the Crafts Centre was held and final arrangements were made for the annual spring bazaar and raffle to be held on April 30th. There will be a tea, bake sale, sale of sewing and surprise packages. Tickets have gone very well on the raffle of a homemade quilt and homemade sleeping bag.

Plans are well on the way for the flea market to be held in the Community Hall, sponsored by the Community League. Joyce Bowerman is convener and if any information is requested, contact her. Lunch will be served from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. There will be plants, shrubs, trees, etc. for sale as well as a bake table and white elephant table.

The annual cemetery meeting was held on April 6th at the United Church in South Cooking Lake. Clean-up dates were set for the summer with the first one being on May 28th.

The last pioneers names are to be put on plaques and erected in the cemetery soon.

The executive for 1983-84 are president, Ray Ingram; sec.-treas., Alan Hosse; directors, Pat Paterson, Glenn Ferguson, Mart Bradshaw, John Heitman and Jim Grimoldby.

The annual meeting for 1984 was set for the first Monday evening in April.

Spring break blues

by Carol Livingstone

Spring is here. I know this thanks to these signs: a) kites are being flown in almost every open area around town, b) it has just snowed again — a natural consequence to putting away all the winter boots and c) we have just suffered through ten days of something called Spring Break. If Easter is a time for joy and renewal, Spring Break is a time for sorrow and the patience of a saint.

Break, indeed! Whoever named it that was certainly not thinking of the female of the household, unless they were taking into consideration the urge of most Moms to break a few heads during this time.

There are definite problems associated with having a school vacation at this time of year. One biggy is that the kids have been locked out of the school, and at a time when they are still recuperating from Christmas vacation.

But bigger still is the unpredictability of the weather. March could be roaring or April showers might be turning the garden into a swamp, in which case we had our beloved offspring inside for ten days, fighting, asking to walk the dog and refusing to eat any of the Easter eggs they colored for Easter. Should the weather be pleasant enough to keep them out from underfoot (and underhand, if yours are anything like mine, when cagod), we have them outside in as much dirt as each boot, pocket and rolled cuff will carry, begging for a new kite to replace the three already shredded and decrying they've been near any water even though they are wet to their hips.

Is there a solution? Well, we could all become teachers, the only ones really getting a break today, or we could ship the offenders off to Grandma's house. This is especially appealing if Grandma lives in the next county but unless yours is one who enjoys a noise level to rival that of the Edmonton International, does little for in-law relations. Perhaps what Mom should do is walk out one door as the children walk in the other on the first day of her sentence.

I suppose we should look on the bright side. It does last a mere ten days. It's just difficult to be cheerful when you realize that what they are doing is breaking us in for the Big One - Summer Vacation.

What do you say we all head together and have a protest march?

Water plan okay

RYLEY — Village Council this week have endorsed a scheme which will connect the water treatment plant to the upper reservoir in the east end of the Village.

Councillors learned from town foreman John Jeffrey that the project will cost about $15,000. The scheme should begin this month.

It calls for several hundred feet of pipe which will draw water from both the lower and upper reservoir. At present, only the lower reservoir is in use.

In other business, council approved a plan to do minor renovations to the Ryley Fire Hall.

Fire Chief Ken Reid told council firemen wanted to eliminate a bathroom at the front of the hall to provide more space.

The area is presently cluttered with filing cabinets, etc. and eliminating the bathroom would make for better organization, he said.

The plan will only cost about $100 as firemen are donating the labor, he added.

Students visit Ottawa

Off to Ottawa

From left, Dennis Clarke, Ken Podobornzy and Chris Clarke recently had the opportunity to participate in the Terry Fox Canadian Youth Centre in Ottawa. The trip was assisted by the Royal Canadian Legion in Ryley.

During the past four months, three students from Ryley School took advantage of a little-known program available to Canada's youth, sponsored by the Terry Fox Youth Foundation of Canada.

The program is available to students between the ages of 16 and 18 from all parts of Canada, the opportunity to be flown to Ottawa and stay at the Terry Fox Youth Centre for six days.

While in Ottawa, the students visited the parliament buildings, met various dignitaries, visited popular tourist sites, as well as attended museums and lectures on topics of interest to today's modern youth.

They had the opportunity to spend six days in the company of boys and girls from all parts of the country.

Dennis Clarke's week in Ottawa centered around the theme "Arts and Culture" and Dennis had the opportunity to visit museums, see several plays and a ballet, as well as a visit to parliament and a glimpse of the Prime Minister. He also attended the Ottawa Cultural Centre and listened to speakers on the theme, Arts and Culture. Skating on the Rideau Canal was a highlight of this tour.

Ken Podobornzy, who was sponsored by the Ryley Legion, went during a week in which the theme was "The Law". His group also visited Parliament while it was in session, and saw the Prime Minister and his three sons. There was a trip to the Supreme Court of Canada and one of their lectures was given by a Supreme Court judge.

One of the highlights of this theme was a visit to the parliamentary library.

Chris Clarke attended during Easter break and the theme was Natural Resources and Environment. Although Parliament was not in session, the students toured the building as well as the National Museum of Science. A visit to the RCMP headquarters was included as well as trips to two other museums and a performance at the National Arts Centre.

Scripts wanted

For the fifth season CBC 740 Radio and Alberta Culture have joined together in a province-wide search for scripts suitable for radio broadcast.

All Alberta residents are eligible to submit scripts.

Short stories, poems and personal recollections which are not more than 15 minutes in length when read aloud are being accepted by Alberta Anthology.

Scripts should be typewritten and accompanied by a stamped, self-addressed envelope and home and/or office telephone number.

Submitters are asked to retain a personal copy of their work and a receipt of scripts will be acknowledged.

Deadline for submissions is June 1, 1983.

A panel of three qualified readers has been compiled and the scripts selected will be produced for radio under the direction of Teresa Atterbury this fall.

Rodeo contestants

Six ladies were present at the Camrose Kinsmen Pro Rodeo Queen tea held at the Duggan Mall last week. Contestants were judged on appearance, poise and personality and also gave a three minute speech during the evening. Tim Schaefer, manager of the Duggan Mall, presented the contestants with their ribbons. Those vying for the Rodeo Queen crown are Teresa Williams of Tofield, Kim McKinney of New Sarepta, Wendy Reilly of Wetaskiwin, Susan Koetke of Camrose, Rhonda Baker of Camrose and Liesa Schroder of Rolly View. The Kinsmen Pro Rodeo takes place this weekend — Friday, Saturday and Sunday — at the CADRECA.

TREE PRUNING

People are beginning to ask about tree pruning. This is the right time of year to prune many trees. Perhaps the following info will help with the task.

DECIDUOUS TREES

1. Prune while dormant - late winter or preferably early spring. Exceptions: birch, maple and walnut must be pruned when the leaves are fully grown otherwise they bleed. (July 15 to August 15).
2. Annual pruning should be started when the trees are young in order to train them to the desired shape (form).
3. Select a leader.
4. Select vigorous side branches which will serve as the main structure of the tree.
5. Maintenance pruning of established trees consists mainly of:
a) removal of all dead or diseased branches
b) removal of crossing or rubbing branches (one only)
c) removal of water sprouts from the trunk and main branches and suckers from the roots
d) periodic thinning and heading back of younger branches to maintain the desired shape and size.

DECIDUOUS SHRUBS

1. Annual thinning is the main type of pruning necessary for shrubs - removal of branches which are weak, diseased, or growing in a manner undesirable from the standpoint of appearance.
2. Timing is important and varies with the kind of shrubs:
a) Shrubs which flower early, on growth produced the previous season, must be pruned at the time the blooms begin to fade. Examples: lilac, honeysuckle, potentilla.
b) Shrubs which flower late, on the current or new growth, must be pruned while the plants are dormant. Examples: some spireas, hydrangea.
3. Summer pinching, consisting of removal of the tips of new growth or even entire buds or shoots, may be done to direct growth and keep the plants within bounds.

CONIFEROUS EVERGREENS

Spruce, pine and fir - whorled habit of branching.
1. Removal of entire branches seldom possible since unsightly gaps result which will not fill in.
2. Pruning consists mainly of heading back new growth, to direct growth, and/or increase density.
3. Spruce and fir must be pruned in the spring after new growth has started but before it was matured.
4. Pines are pinched back in early June when the candles have grown but before needles have elongated, leaving a minimum of 5 cm of new growth.

Juniper, Arborvitae, etc. - branching habit, not whorled.
1. Prune as with deciduous material but take care to hide all cuts.
2. Pruning should be done in the early spring.
3. Very formal columnar, pyramidal or globe shaped plants can be lightly sheared at the time of new growth.

Zone reps are named

The people responsible for the success of the Alberta Summer Games, at the zone level, have been named.

This year's Games will be held from August 11-13 in Mountain View County, Cremona, Carstairs, Didsbury, Olds and Sundre.

A complete list of the different competitions were contained in a recent edition of The Mercury.

The Tofield-Holden-Ryley area is in Zone 7.

Co-ordinator for Zone 7 is Richard Way, Box 2177, Lloydminster, S9V 0Y7.

Northbound fowl

The sloughs and backwaters of central Alberta are awash in northbound ducks and geese. The raucous honking of many flocks of geese can be heard many times daily as the familiar V-shaped formations soar hundreds of feet over towns and villages. We're convinced it's a sign of spring.

Holden cadets win in curling bonspiel

In the last weekend in March, nine cadets from RCSCC Neotka travelled to Grande Cache for that Corps' 1st annual curling bonspiel.

They set out in two cars driven by Captain Dennis Cooper and Ray Stolarek.

The bonspiel was attended by members from five other Cadet Corps from Edmonton and the surrounding area.

As a result of hard playing and much effort, the team skipped by Ken Podoborozny brought the trophy home to rest in the ship's office in Holden.

All the team members, Marilyn Lodwig, Ken Ladwig, Morris Stolarek, Patrick Tardif Jr., and Ken Podoborozny received individual trophies.

COUNTY OF BEAVER NO. 9
Alberta AGRICULTURE

AGRICULTURAL DEMONSTRATIONS

The Agricultural Service Board of the County of Beaver No. 9 and the Ryley District Office of Alberta Agriculture are looking for farmers that are willing to co-operate in a number of demonstrations within the County. The purpose of these demonstrations is to initiate and encourage the use of various agricultural techniques and methods that may be of benefit to the area. Cost sharing agreements will be arranged. The following are brief descriptions of the projects for this year. Detailed descriptions will be available at the D.A.'s office.

Spring Seeded Fall Rye As a Forage	Liming Soils	Alberta Certified Preconditioned Feeder Program
Spring seeded Fall Rye can make excellent summer pasture for cattle. It withstands reasonable trampling and shows good regrowth ability. When seeded in the spring and adequately grazed, rye produces vegetative growth without heading. If fall rye is not overgrazed in the summer, and enters winter in good condition, it will provide a second year of grazing. When seeded with grainfeed, it can provide excellent fall pasture after the grainfeed is harvested.	The pH of some of our soils is somewhat lower than that required for the optimum growth of many crops. The pH of these acid soils is below 7.0. Lime can be applied to these soils to neutralize the acidity. The application of lime does not improve salinity problems.	The Alberta Certified Preconditioning Feeder Program is designed to prepare calves for the stress incurred when shipped to feedlots. The calves are given the required vaccinations, dehorned, castrated, and weaned 30 days before sale. Possible benefits of the program are increased market weights and health status.
Project Description: –sites approximately 20 acres in 1/2's –cow-calf herd to graze 4-5 months. –stocking rate will be adjusted –cost sharing will apply. Deadline April 29 Pasture productivity is dictated by the seeding date. Therefore, the projected seeding date is early-to-mid May	Project Description: Site 1 – Summer application on fallow. –approximately 30 acres. Site 2 – fall application on stubble. –approximately 30 acres. –a cost sharing arrangement will be made –Application deadline April 29, 1983.	Project Description: –Herd size approximately 50 cow/calf pairs. –Co-operating farmer will be assisted with labour and expenses. Periodic handling of cattle will be necessary. –Application deadline April 29, 1983.

Please call Ryley office (663-3555) immediately for detailed project descriptions. Sites will be limited due to limited funds. Deadline for applications April 29/83.

BETWEEN THE COVERS

Reference questions: the librarian gets all kinds, from A-Z, but the MOST frequently asked one is "What are your hours?" (In case you don't know the answer to that one, it's Tuesday 1-8, Thursday 1-8 and 6-9, and Friday and Saturday 10-12 and 1-5.)

Other than regular information searches, and the No. 1 Question, the most surprising one to me is "Oh, do you work when the Library is closed?!" Yes, I certainly do, as there are a multitude of tasks to accomplish during those hours that the library is closed to the public.

The most important, and time-consuming one is book selection, searching carefully through book reviews and publishers' catalogues to choose the books to order for your varied tastes, needs and interests. Trying to achieve a balance between adult and children's books, fiction and non-fiction, and making every effort to select with an eye to quality and probable use, takes time and thought.

Donations are often received by the library, and are appreciated, but time is needed to sort through them, checking against the records to see if there is already a copy on the shelves, and deciding how best to dispose of the extras. New books, when received from the suppliers, must be categorized and processed to be ready for loan; old books must have all records destroyed when they are removed from the collection.

Programs such as the Story Hour require organization and planning time; weekly columns and monthly reports each take up another slice of time. Displays of library materials are interesting, but do not arrange themselves! And there is usually a backlog of typing, filing, correspondence and invoices to deal with.

Training of volunteers and students takes time too, but is well worth it, because without them, the Library could not function as well as it does, nor could it possibly be open 31 hours each week.

The Librarian's is a constantly-changing and always interesting job, but most people never get a chance to see beyond the ongoing "housework" part of checking books in and out, or putting them away again on the shelves. I hope this has answered that frequent question: "But what do you do when the Library is closed?"

Hastings Lake

by Lois Pease

Once again the members of the Ladies' Club are busy preparing a great variety of ideas for dishes for the International Dinner, which is to be held this year on April 23rd, from 5 to 7 p.m. in the Hall.

A week later, the community will celebrate Spring Fever on April 30th, with a grand dance at the Hall. Tickets may be obtained in advance from Elaine Efford at 663-3880.

Dedication

At a dedication of the Telfield Alliance Church last week, pastor Don Miles, left, had a chance to talk to Garth Hunt, right, who was a missionary in Vietnam for 18 years and witnessed the desecration caused during the bitter Vietnam war. Mr. Hunt now resides in British Columbia, where he is director of the Living [illegible] and [illegible].

Farmers need insurance

Do you carry farm liability insurance?

Are you aware that if you employ farm labor, you can be liable for any sickness, injury or death that results from his or her work?

As the owner of the property, a farmer may also be held responsible for the injury or death of a salesman, buyer, canvasser, trespasser, etc. if he, the farmer, failed to maintain his property in a condition that was safe for others.

Farm animals that stray may cause injury to others or damage the property of others, while farm equipment that is used in a negligent manner may injure others.

Then, there is the danger of fire. A fire that has ignited to burn grass or scrub bush may get out of control and damage a neighboring property, and chemical weed sprays may drift into a neighbor's property and destroy his crop or crops.

Incidentally, since this risk is not covered by most farm liability insurance policies, anyone who is having custom spraying done should make sure that the operator is carrying adequate coverage.

The most common liability insurance coverage used by farmers in Alberta appears to be comprehensive liability insurance or else they have a rider put on to their farm fire insurance policy.

Farmers who would like more information on comprehensive liability insurance and/or information on workers compensation should get a copy of the publication entitled 'Liability Insurance for Farmers' (PS 826-3).

It is available from district offices and the Print Media Branch, Alberta Agriculture, 7000-113 Street, Edmonton, T6H 5T6.

Cadets learn of hunter training

by Don Umpherson

RYLEY — It's getting chilly, and darkness is closing in.

You're on a hunting trip, forgot your compass and got lost.

It's a scenario all-too-familiar to fish and wildlife officers, police forces and civilian search-and-rescue units who, every fall, search for missing hunters, explained Ken Podoborozny

"People get lost every year and don't know how to survive in the wilderness", said Podoborozny, a graduate from cadets who teaches hunter safety and wilderness survival to cadets in Ryley.

"And a lot of lost hunters end up with bush panic. There was one guy who taught hunter safety for ten years.

"Then he got lost himself. When they found him he was nearly dead with shock and exposure," Podoborozny said.

"Bush panic" is the mental disease which can drive a lost hunter half-mad. The individual experiences hallucinations and will often crash blindly through the forest without any sense of direction, the instructor added.

But if a person has survival techniques and keeps their wits about them, they can avoid panicking or even being lost in the first place, he said.

There are 20 cadets in Podoborozny's class, part of an extensive course operated under the auspices of the provincial department of Fish and Wildlife.

Pupils enrolled in the course range from ages 12 to 19. They take six lengthy sessions aimed at providing information on survival and hunting techniques.

At the end of the course, the pupils will take a multiple-choice exam and go on a camping trip to Narrow Lake in the Athabasca area, the instructor said.

We're trying to set the trip for the long weekend in May," Podoborozny added. "Once they're up there, they rough it, and learn some target shooting, fire building and orienteering."

Although the government-sponsored course has been ongoing, one of the major changes this year is the emphasis on survival techniques and orienteering, he explained

Another important area taught in the program is hunting ethics, he added. The course teaches respect for other hunters and their property, and the rights of landowners and the importance of respecting "No hunting" and "No trespassing" signs.

Following the session in ethics, pupils learn of wildlife management and the role of the hunter through various lectures and films.

Another extremely important area of the course deals with firearm safety and weapon handling. Pupils must be taught to always respect weapons and handle them properly, Podoborozny added.

Other areas of the course include field dressing for game and proper storage of game, identification of waterfowl and hunting regulations.

Podoborozny said the hunter safety program has intensified and now includes many more areas than before. Even instructors are drilled in certain levels before they can teach.

And the ultimate aim of the course is to prevent hunters from becoming lost in the woods, and knowing the safety rules of firearms, he added.

SFPF rate announced

Education Minister David King has announced a 1983 mill rate of 14.1 mills for the School Foundation Program Fund (S.F.P.F.).

This new rate reflects a decrease of 1.5 mills over the previous rate of 15.6 mills. The S.F.P.F. mill rate applies only to commercial and industrial property

The1983 adjustment was made in order to offset in-[illegible] ment which forms the S.F.P.F. tax base.

These increases have been exaggerated by the effect of inflation in increasing both building replacement costs and market value of land.

In the absence of the mill rate adjustment, the average increase in the S.F.P.F. tax bill for owners of commercial and industrial property would have been 15 per cent. With the mill rate adjustment the average increase will be between 3 and 4 per cent.

However, increases will vary from this average according to the increases in equalized assessment in the municipality

The S.F.P.F. is a fund from which grants are paid to school boards by Alberta Education to provide basic instruction, transportation and school construction. The S.F.P.F. mill rate produces approximately 16 per cent of the revenue for the S.F.P.F. The remaining 84 per cent is obtained through a legislative appropriation from general revenues of the province.

Mr. King said, "The announcement of this mill rate should enable municipalities to finalize their 1983 total mill rates for commercial and industrial property."

PROPOSAL TO RE-OPEN ABANDONED TOFIELD MINE

On November 17th and 18th, 1982, Forestburg Collieries Limited held an Open House regarding its proposal to re-open the abandoned Tofield Mine. The project is proposed as a replacement mine to the Diplomat Mine where coal reserves are nearing exhaustion. The Tofield Mine will produce 100,000 to 200,000 tonnes of coal annually to supply domestic and industrial customers located principally in Alberta and Western Canada. The project area is comprised of 3 and ¾ sections of land, located immediately south of the Town of Tofield as indicated on the map below

At the time of the first Open House, Forestburg Collieries Limited agreed to hold another Open House once more information on the project was available. The Company has recently completed an exploration program to define the quantity and quality of the coal reserves, a groundwater [illegible] a marketing survey and has developed a mine/land reclamation plan. This information has been gathered in accordance with the "Coal Development Policy for Alberta" and the Minister of Environment's request for an Environmental Impact Assessment

As part of the public information program on the project, Forestburg Collieries Limited will be holding a second

District news from Ryley

by Lena Bell

Kathleen Anderson had a busy time last week, with her family and friends dropping in to wish her a happy birthday. She also received phone calls from her step-children, Stanley Anderson of Calgary, Doris of Calgary, also Irene Sailor of Viking.

On Friday, Ted and Ellen Gjerde of Camrose were callers at the Andersons.

On Sunday, Dan and Gwen Campbell and Bailey and Pete Shanks were guests with Ida and Stan.

Jim and Myrtle Thersley and Del of Edmonton were Sunday guests with Myrtle's mother, Anna Elland and guests in the afternoon were Anton and Lucille Knudsten.

A two-week cooking school is currently taking place, sponsored by the Ryley Seventh-day Adventist Church. Next week's classes will feature economical salads and entrees and a final day buffet including the prepared foods, as well as other food ideas. Anyone wishing to attend the classes, held on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday mornings, can gain information by phoning 663-3888.

Herman and Hilda Jensen are home again after a 3-day holiday, visiting Australia and Hawaii.

Charlie Young, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Young, is a patient in Tofield Hospital, as are Annette Ehart and Jorgen Davick.

The Ryley indoor swimming pool features a seniors' swim every Monday between the hours of 1 and 3 p.m. No registration is required. If there is a good attendance, the program will continue all year.

Correction: Last week's article was mixed up.

A recent guest with Leonard and Violet Helgeland and family was Elvera Reil and, Elvera Reil had as her guests in Tofield, her son, Dennis and grandson, Kenny of Newbrook.

Potato Features

Bloomers is a very popular synthetic fabric used for upholstery. It is very strong and almost indestructible, but is often backed with a coating that can be completely dissolved and removed in cleaning. Since the seams are not well bound when sewn and the coating acts as the binding agent, this will cause severe fraying and raveling of the seams. In many cases, these articles are made for surface cleaning only. If the cushion covers are zippered the consumer may assume they can be dry-cleaned; this may not be the case.

Articles made with this fabric may respond well to careful hand washing and air drying without dye loss or shrinkage. All matching pieces should be cleaned at the same time.

Q. When is a walk more expensive than a disco?

A. When you're grocery shopping.

A study in a southern U.S. supermarket showed that gross sales increased by 30 per cent when the tempo of the background music changed from fast to slow. The effect was attributed to shoppers slowing their movements in time with the music. The longer the shoppers stayed in the store, the more they bought.

Deadlines near

Albertans are now being urged to take advantage of the provinces mail-in license renewal system to avoid lineups.

To date, almost 647,000 (37 per cent) Albertan motor vehicles have been registered. Of that total, approximately 237,000 (36 per cent) have used the mail-in renewal system.

The Motor Vehicles Division expects to renew about 1.8 million motor vehicle registrations this year before the final deadline of April 30.

Deadline for using the successful mail-in program (for vehicles not exempted under the previously announced temporary truck license fee reduction program) is April 23.

In addition, the deadline for renewing approximately 100,000 vehicles in the CV, DU, E, PSV, and PT truck license categories is June 30. Under the temporary truck license fee reduction program.

It's always a joyous occasion when the Senior's Lodge in Tofield holds a monthly birthday party for residents whose birthday falls somewhere in the month. Celebrating their birthdays this month were Pearl Thompson, Margaret McClymont, Grace Lawson, Anne Anderson, Willard McHefley, Neta Kindly and Nora Stauffer. The partygoers were entertained by Marie Eaglesham who played the accordion and took requests. —Photo by D Umpherson

Shake the shaker

by Phyllis Pete

Many of us have taught ourselves to use the salt shaker at every meal.

Added to the natural salt contained in vegetables, fruit, fish and meat, the artificially high content found in fast foods, Chinese dishes, even dill pickles and sauerkraut, all result in a constant overloading of our system with sodium chloride.

Sodium (contained in ordinary salt - sodium chloride) is an essential nutrient and too drastic restriction can produce deficiency symptoms. Sodium helps maintain the acid-alkaline balance. It is necessary for good nerves and muscle tone, for nutrient transportation and together with potassium helps regulate the water balance around cells. Sodium produces hydrochloric acid in the stomach necessary for digestion of proteins. It is important that a person on a rigid low-sodium diet be under a physician's care.

As the body ages, constant abuse of "over-salting" is often related to high blood pressure, kidney disease, cardiovascular disorders and water retention. Smart mothers never add salt to their children's plate of food. It is much easier to form good habits early. A child who has never learned to crave additional salt will have less chance of suffering the ill effects of mis-use later on. A few years ago, some areas of public pressure finally forced the baby food companies to eliminate salt and sugar from commercial baby food - a fact which most young mothers did not know. This practice was used in order to please the taste of the mothers, not the infant who had never tasted either of the white substances.

A healthy person must use common sense in controlling the salt shaker urge. In some cases, low calorie foods are high in sodium. For instance, three inner stocks of celery contain only 9 calories but a rather high 170 milligrams of sodium. This being a necessary "natural" salt, is a far cry from say a 30g package of mix for French dip - Au Jus Gravy Mix at only 95 calories but a whopping 2980 milligrams of sodium. Be aware of the hazards of heavy use of table salt. The next time you pick up the salt shaker, ask yourself, "Do I really need this?"

Rally is a success

On March 26, more than 70 women gathered at Emmanuel Evangelical Church for a Christian Women's Rally under the theme: A Spirit of Praise.

Sophie Hein began the general session with introductions and prayer. Doreen Zinyk led the group in songs of praise.

Two morning seminars were offered by Janet Klist and Peggy Brown.

Lunch was served by the ladies of the church and there were three skits presented by ladies from the New Sarepta Evangelical Church.

In the afternoon, ladies chose one of two seminars by Lydia Penner and Doreen Zinyk.

Evelyn Reinhart addressed the entire group in a final session, challenging the ladies concerning the need for the blessing experienced through God-directed praise.

This rally was sponsored by the Evangelical Women of the Evangelical Church. (Emmanuel Evangelical Church is located between Holden and Bruce roads, on the Correction Line).

New police aide for Beaver area

by Don Umpherson

TOFIELD — They may be only auxiliary, but they sure come in handy.

And many's the time the RCMP officer has avoided a possible physical confrontation through the presence of the auxiliary RCMP officer on the scene to assist if necessary.

Tofield RCMP detachment's newest auxiliary officer, Werner Wiens, is one of the many "stand-by" officers who can render assistance to and receive training from a non-commissioned officer.

Sworn in at an official ceremony Friday, Weins will cruise with NCOs on a part-time basis, learning the ropes of police work, crime solving and crime prevention.

Weins and other auxiliaries across the country are being trained mainly in areas of assisting in the event of natural disaster of large-scale public disturbances and crowd control.

"The auxiliary officers are designed to help out in some disasters, demonstrations and things of that nature when regular police services wouldn't be enough," Inspector Allen Burchill said in an interview following the ceremony.

Insp. Burchill explained that the federal Attorney-General's department has an established number of auxiliary officers across Canada.

At 27, Weins is one of many applicants who applied for the position, much the same as applying for any other job.

Those applying for the post must demonstrate good character and academic capacity. They pledge allegiance to The Queen and swear an oath of secrecy preventing them from publicly disclosing any information they receive during an investigation.

The RCMP has never had to advertise the program. There are still outstanding applications, Insp. Burchill added. Stout-hearted chaps, they come from all walks of life ranging from farmers to bank managers, he said.

Many enjoy police work. "At present, there are many full-time RCMP officers who at one time were auxiliary men," Insp. Burchill explained.

Weins will work several days a week with a full-time officer. To date, he has had some academic training on various laws and the powers he has to enforce them.

When in the presence of an NCO, Weins has all the regular powers of arrest. That does not mean, however, that the auxiliary officers can take the law into their own hands when alone, Insp. Burchill explained.

Often their presence with another officer acts as a deterrent to those who might provoke a fight with a peace officer.

"I can't recall any specific incidents, but there were many occasions when we were glad to have them aboard," Insp. Burchill added.

Welcome aboard

Health Unit study outrages Holden

by Don Stephenson

HOLDEN - The possibility that the Vegreville Health Unit may close the doors of its sub-office here has met with stiff opposition from local residents and associations.

Letters of protest have been circulated ever since the provincial department of health announced it was conducting a feasibility study to determine whether or not the office should be shut down.

The feasibility study was announced after the present quarters housing the sub-office were sold and the Health Unit was forced to search for another location.

In a letter of protest circulated to village elders here, Future of Holden School C[ommittee] Chairperson Roberta Schweitzer called the subject "a source of concern to our committee".

The chairperson stated that the large number of senior citizens often requiring health care would be affected and the schools would no longer benefit from the health care programs conducted out of the sub-office.

"Tofield and Viking have hospitals and medical personnel, we need to maintain the public health personnel we have in the sub-office", she states.

Schweitzer continues that the FHSC is opposed to any study being conducted to determine the feasibility of keeping the sub-office open.

"...the erosion of our community will escalate to the point where the community is no longer viable (if the office closes)," she maintains.

In correspondence from County of Beaver school principal Oleh Slykers, the principal states that as far back as May, 1982, the County Board of Education recommended that services provided by sub-office staff be increased.

Board members motioned that services provided to schools, community vision and hearing screening, dental services and speech therapy be increased.

Christine MacKay, Holden Village Administrator, says some other area will benefit at Holden's expense if the sub-office closes.

Holden Village council members, meanwhile, have passed a unanimous motion opposing any move by the sub-office from Holden.

Village elders rate the central location of Holden within the county and the amount of available office space as reasons for keeping the service here.

"We need the Health Unit Office in Holden as we do not have any medical facilities. We do not need to lose a service to another community ..." say council members.

The Holden and District Chamber of Commerce has also voiced opposition to the possible closure of the sub-office.

Meeting requested

by Don Stephenson

RYLEY - Beaver County councillors here have been approached by the County of Strathcona in efforts to establish a student exchange program.

Strathcona officials hope to revise a pact which has existed between them and Beaver County for about ten years.

Under the existing agreement, much like mutual fire protection, Beaver County students attending classes in Strathcona and Strathcona County students attending classes in Beaver County pay tuition or a busing fee.

The contract eases the college distance for students living on the fringe of the county and would have to travel greater distances to attend school in their own county.

County officials say they are not sure what Strathcona administrators have in mind with regard to the pact, but the meeting should take place shortly.

Young equestrian

It's no secret that they love to ride horses around Beaver County, and they start them young. Why Rebecca Martini isn't yet two and she's already learning the ropes. Rebecca of Tofield took advantage of the summerish climes last week to enjoy the park.

School requisition rapped

by Don Stephenson

RYLEY - A whopping deficit in 1982 has forced the County Board of Education to raise their requisitions from local town and village councils by up to 10 per cent. Board of Education administrative secretary Ron Pepper said last week.

Pepper said the $393,610 shortfall was the major reason for the increase in requisitions, but future expenses and escalating overhead costs added to the dillema.

To clarify their position and explain the reasons for the staggering increase, a delegation of Board of Education members have been appearing at council meetings and answering questions.

Pepper explained that the Board of Education was fortunate that accumulated surpluses of $215,877 were enough to offset the deficit of last year.

But with expected fuel cost increases and utilities expected to jump as high as 24 per cent during the coming year, it was necessary to solicit more money from councils, he added.

The proportionate share paid by village councils of Ryley and Holden, Tofield town council, Viking village council and the County of Beaver are dictated by the provincial "Equalization Assessment" policy, Pepper said.

Tofield's share has leaped 27 per cent, from $144,889 in 1982 to $183,761 in the coming year.

The Village of Ryley's share has jumped by 39 per cent, bringing their contribution to $68,618, up from $42,382 in 1982.

Holden's share has gone up 23 per cent. This year they'll pay $40,536 as compared with the 1982 figure of $33,000.

Cost to Beaver County is up 25 per cent, bringing their amount to $1,177,191 as compared with $939,454 paid last year.

Hardest hit by the increase, however, was Viking whose increase jumped by 49 per cent as their equalization assessment figure climbed. Whereas last year they paid $97,886, this year they will pay $131,360.

Town administrators have reacted by saying this will mean an increase in the mill rate and a further burden to the taxpayer.

While Holden has not yet adopted a formal budget, village administrator Christine Mackay said the mill rate may increase by more than two to meet the increase.

In Ryley, administrator Sheila Pitt said council was extremely unhappy with the increase and would have to raise taxes to compensate for the requisition.

Town of Tofield assistant manager Lyle Wack said council was expecting perhaps a ten or 15 per cent increase in the requisition, but hadn't anticipated one as high as 27 per cent.

Viking appeals

by Don Stephenson

VIKING - Fuming town fathers have vowed they won't take the requisition increase without a fight.

In an unprecedented move, they launched an appeal last week before the Alberta Assessment Appeal Board.

"We don't know what the reaction will be, but we've got to try it even if we're unsuccessful," said Viking administrator Lydia Hanson.

The administrator said council gave notice of appeal as an indication of disgust with the increased assessment and amount to be paid to the Beaver County Board of Education this year.

Faced with a deficit of $393,610 in 1982, the Beaver County Board of Education raised their requisition from Viking by 49 per cent. While all villages and towns have received an increase in the requisition, Viking is the highest.

"It didn't make our council happy at all," Hanson said. Viking's equalization assessment, established by the province, has also increased while it has decreased in other communities.

Town officials are seeking the appeal to lower that assessment. "We were wondering on what they based that increase," Hanson added.

Hanson said taxes will "have to go up accordingly" with the increase in the school requisition.

Council, however, is hoping to hold the municipal portion of the tax down while raising requisition taxes.

OUR NEW MODEL MAY COST A LOT OF MONEY. BUT YOU DON'T SEE IT CREEP UP ON YOU AND IT CAN CAUSE AN AWFUL LOT OF DAMAGE... WE CALL IT 'STEALTH'..

CRUISE MISSILE TESTING GROUNDS

An awesome potential threat

When Alberta Wheat Pool calculated the future freight costs to the year 2000 using the same assumptions as the Department of Transport, people were impressed. The graph above illustrates the growing producers' share of an ever increasing total. It reaches over five times Crow in the crop year 1999-01; it becomes eight and one half times the Crow in 1985-86; and by the turn of the century, a farmer would be expected to assume a net payment amounting to 12½ times the current cost of transporting grain.

a) The assumptions which the government made and used in these calculations provide that the producer will pay the first three per cent of an increase in the cost of transporting grain in the years 1983-84 to 1985-86.

b) After that two year period, producers will be required, according to the Pepin formula, to pay the first six per cent of any cost increase.

c) At all times, producers will pay the full cost of transporting grain over the volume limit of 31.1 million tonnes. The western Canadian grain system is already at that volume. 31.1 million tonnes represents the grain movement for the year 1985-86.

d) Additional assumptions used after the 1985-86 crop year provide for an annual volume increase of one to three per cent in grain moved by rail.

e) The method of payment described means the government's share of subsidy in 1985-86, 33 per cent, would go to producers. This would change to 41 per cent to producers in 1984-85 and reach roughly 50 per cent in 1985-86. The fifty-fifty split in regard to the government subsidy would continue beyond that date.

Another method of demonstrating the same trend using exactly the same background material is found in the table below. Projected costs to transport 1000 bushels of grain from an average location starting now and going to the year 2000-01.

Projected Costs to Transport
1000 Bushels of Wheat, Barley and Rapeseed From a Typical Location

	Wheat	Barley	Rapeseed
1982-83	$ 133.11	$ 106.49	$ 136.91
1985-86	266.60	266.39	213.27
1990-91	706.90	883.37	889.09
1995-96	1,138.27	902.37	940.46

It's time for a common front

by Hermann Gmeiner
Executive Head

TORONTO - Occasionally, even opinionated people like myself find themselves stymied or, worse, at a loss for words.

This probably could not happen too often for some readers, but when it does it denotes genuine bewilderment with an issue.

Such is the case with the peace movement and related bizarre behavior, like the burning of the U.S. flag outside the U.S. consulate in Winnipeg which External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen refuses to apologize for.

Or - and perhaps more importantly - the extraordinary attitude of our media to nuclear arms policy.

Their attitudes are simply incomprehensible. Is the Globe & Mail, the CBC or more particularly, the Toronto Star, for example, with its seemingly endless encouragement of the peace movement wilfully trying to destroy our system or are they simply short-sighted?

Traditionally, there has been such a thing known as the common front, where people of different ideological permissions join together for a greater good.

Like many people in the West in the 1930s, I would have made common front with the communists against the Nazis. It is a separate matter that the Soviets then betrayed them in their cowardice in making a deal with Hitler. What was important at the time was the undeniable fact that in Western Europe prior to World War II, the communists seemed to be the only organized group actually fighting the Nazis.

Hence a common front.

Today, we are facing the most extraordinary threat to decency, peace and survival since World War II in the form of an expansionist Soviet Union equipped with murderous weapons and involved in aggressive behavior on a scale unprecedented since Hitler.

This is a time for a common front. And yet the instinct of so many of our intellectuals, politicians and media is to make common front with the enemy.

Nobody wants nuclear war. No one wants to continue spending enormous amounts of money on nuclear weapons. Only a handful of psychotics enjoy the idea of confrontation.

Most of us are pinning our hopes on some genuine agreement for reduction in nuclear weapons at the upcoming Geneva talks.

But how on earth can the Soviets be persuaded to genuinely negotiate when the West is having the rug pulled out from its negotiating position by the peace movement - which in turn is gaining in clout and credibility by the respect heaped upon it by the passegyrics of our commentators and politicians?

In a nutshell: Where was the peace movement when the Soviets diligently put down their SS-20 missiles aimed at London, Paris, Amsterdam, etc.?

The question is rhetorical. The answer, alas, is that they were nowhere. Silent. Peace on earth.

Even today they seem unable to come to terms with the plain simple fact that the Soviets have nuclear weapons aimed at us - while we have no heavy intercontinental ballistic missile at all (the nearest thing is the old Titan missiles which are to be scrapped) and no significant NATO response to the SS-20's aimed at European cities.

Even as the Soviets lock up their peaceniks, invade independent countries, stir troubled waters all over the world, still our protesters stand outside the embassies of the country ready to defend them, rather than the more alarming the weapons at our heads.

And then the media obfuscates with simplistic nonsense about "overkill".

It is true that if both sides have enough vats of boiling oil to hurl over the castle walls at the enemy, they can each kill one another several times. The trouble with that sort of reasoning is that when one side then gets gunpowder that invalidates the effectiveness of the boiling oil - even though you have enough to kill the enemy several times over. You just won't get to use it.

It is time for a common front. Time to show the Soviets that the West means business. That and that alone will be the way to gradual disarmament. A child's course in logic and history could fathom it.

And it is surely time for those who will not make common front behind the West and against the Soviets, to explain clearly what are their motives.

"Of course he has a bloody expression - the set isn't on!"

Smokey business

Tofield of late has been plagued with numerous grass fires which have kept firemen hopping. The largest one to date occurred Tuesday when a four-mile stretch of grass and shrubs caught fire. Here, a Tofield firefighter, amid a haze of smoke, tries to keep the flames from advancing to a meat processing plant on the east side of Tofield.

Lakeshore-McKenzie news items

On April 5th Walter and Evelyn Nelson and granddaughter, Brandy of Fort McMurray, their two sons, Donald and wife, Marlene Eaton and three children and Brian Eaton and his friend, Terry Hiltz, all of Soba Beach, arrived at the Eaton farm for a visit with Walter's brother, Leroy and Shirley Eaton and son Ron and daughter, Marg of Edmonton who was spending a few days at home with her parents and all of them, along with Walter's and Leroy's mother, Ellen Eaton, were guests at a barbeque supper in honor of Donald's birthday. All were overnight guests at the farm excepting Brian, Terry and Ron who spent the night in Tofield with Brian and Ron's grandmother, Ellen Eaton.

On the 6th, Donald and Marlene and children visited their grandmother in Tofield for a few hours before returning to Soba Beach. Brian and Terry went to Fort McMurray for a few days at home with Brian's parents, Walter and Evelyn. Marg Eaton also left for Edmonton to return to work at the University Hospital where she is a security guard.

Grace Phillips of the Lakeshore District, who had been a patient in the Tofield Hospital, was taken to the University Hospital last weekend for treatment.

Mrs. Loretta Weir, daughter of Mrs. Mae Ferguson is home again after spending a week in the Tofield Hospital.

Nelson and Ken-Ai Ferguson and two boys of Sherwood Park spent the weekend at the home of Nelson's mother, Mrs. Mae Ferguson, of Lakeshore.

The Lakeshore U.C.W. met at the home of Mrs. Ethel Moss on April 13th with only a small attendance. After all business was discussed and a few cards sent to those in the hospital, the meeting was closed and a lunch was served by the hostess, Ethel Wood. The May meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. Isabel Rudnicki.

In recent discussions, Chamber members have expressed concerns that the village could lose a service which attracts people to Holden and ultimately boosts business.

Chamber members also cite a loss of jobs and consumer spending in the area.

"The fact that we have no doctors or a hospital here is another strong point for wishing to retain some trained personnel in Holden", says the Chamber.

According to Vegreville Health Unit Director Mollie Cunningham, a special committee has been summoned to assess the situation.

The director says the Unit welcomes written submission and will consider them before arriving at a decision by the end of April.

Through decisions on planting machinery have already been made for this spring, many farmers are still evaluating air seeders and the advantages or disadvantages of using them. The following article, written by the Prairie Agricultural Machinery Institute, is one that will add to the stock of information that interested farmers have already accumulated.

AIR SEEDING -
Advantages and Disadvantages

Air seeder disadvantages can vary depending on the make and model of the air seeder. A high initial cost is typical of most air seeder-cultivator combinations However, when the machine uses of most air seeders are considered, the increased cost may be justified.

Air seeders with large tanks usually reduce cultivator visibility significantly Others have smaller, low profile tanks or seeder units which trail behind the cultivator for good visibility.

Seed placement is generally slightly less accurate than seeding with a hoe drill and is felt to be somewhat similar to seed placement with a duster. In hilly terrain, air seeders used with conventional cultivators provide less accurate seed placement due to the wide, rigid, cultivator frame sections and due to the greater distances between rows on a cultivator than on a hoe drill.

Distribution uniformity with most air seeders in cereal grains is similar to conventional seeding equipment. However, a number of air seeders have unacceptable distribution uniformity when applying fertilizer on oilseeds such as canola. Grain cracknge is not significant with most machines when applying cereal grains. However, a reduced fan speed is necessary to avoid canola cracknge for some air seeders.

Packing, after seeding crops with an air seeder, is beneficial for crop emergence and considered necessary for most field conditions This requires the use of packers behind the air seeder or packing as a separate field operation.

Careful cultivator depth and levelling adjustments are critical in obtaining uniform field emergence. Seed depths from both front and rear cultivator shanks and from each frame section should be checked and compared. Adjustments are commonly required when field conditions change or when moving from field to field. Heavy duty cultivators tend to require more careful and frequent depth and levelling adjustments than is necessary with intermediate or light duty cultivators. Seeding shallower than two inches is not recommended with heavy duty cultivators

Tourism study released

The results of a tourism destination area study in the Battle River Tourist Association area were released on Monday during a press conference in Camrose.

The study was released jointly by Al Adair, Minister of Tourism and Small Business and Camrose MLA Gordon Stromberg.

The study had been commissioned by Travel Alberta and had been undertaken by the consulting firms of Marshall Macklin Monaghan Western Limited of Edmonton and Pannell Kerr Forster Campbell Sharp of Calgary.

Ten open houses have been scheduled throughout the BRTA zone to discuss the results of the study.

The first open house will be held one week from tomorrow (Thursday) in the Killam Legion Hall, starting at 3:30 p.m.

An open house will be held in the Council Chambers of Camrose City Hall on May 24th, beginning at seven o'clock in the evening.

Other open houses have been slated for Provost, Consort, Wainwright, Wetaskiwin, Bruton, Fort Saskatchewan, Leduc and Stettler.

The area included in the study goes east to the Saskatchewan border, south to just beyond Highway 12 west to Highway 22 and north to slightly beyond Highway 14.

The basic purpose of the study was to provide an inventory and assessment of tourism resources in the zone and to identify potential tourism development opportunities.

The consultants cited six areas that could be developed to attract tourists to the area including the Camrose-Wetaskiwin area and another around Buffalo Lake.

It has been suggested that man-made facilities related to agriculture should be developed around Camrose which was cited as a hub for the holding of agricultural events.

Development in the Buffalo Lake region was projected because of water-related activities, two provincial parks were located in the area and the nearby attraction of the Dunsirn Lamp Museum.

Adair pointed out that the study indicated that additional development could bring an increasing share of the Alberta tourist market into the Battle River region although he did note that, although the study was prepared for Travel Alberta, the conclusions reached did not represent government policy.

Other areas considered for future development were Buck and Pigeon Lakes, Cooking Lake, Beaverhill Hills and Dillberry Lake.

BETWEEN THE COVERS

April is Volunteer Appreciation month, and this week in particular is one when we will all appreciate the efforts of the Library Volunteers.

Mrs. Peggy Nabirniak, the Library Board Treasurer, and I will be away attending the joint annual conference of the Alberta Library Association and the Alberta Library Trustees Association in Jasper for four days. Other Board members, and the regular volunteers will be keeping the Library open during my absence and doing their very best to provide service to all patrons. It is thanks to all these volunteers, that the library does and have to close this weekend.

Thanks are also due to volunteers, Mrs. McLachlan, Mrs. Wildeman, and Mrs. McIlrath at the conclusion of another very successful Story Hour session. They will be taking a few weeks break before the final session begins May 10.

Another group of volunteer workers, the Lioness Club, has just made a generous donation to the Library for the purpose of purchasing new children's books. With the greatly increased use of the Library over the last year or so, such donations are very welcome and can be put to good use. Thank you Lionesses!

COUNTY OF BEAVER No. 9
Alberta AGRICULTURE

AGRICULTURAL DEMONSTRATIONS

The Agricultural Service Board of the County of Beaver No. 9 and the Ryley District Office of Alberta Agriculture are looking for farms that are willing to co-operate in a number of demonstrations within the County. The purpose of these demonstrations is to initiate and encourage the use of various agricultural techniques and methods that may be of benefit to the area. This year's projects are:

—Using spring seeded fall rye as a forage.
—liming to neutralize acid soils
—demonstrating the Alberta Certified Preconditioned Feeder Program

Cost sharing agreements will be arranged.

Please refer back to the ad in last week's paper for brief descriptions of the projects. Detailed descriptions are available at the D.A.'s office.

Report from

Parliament Hill

By The Honourable
Don Mazankowski, P.C., M.P.
Deputy Prime Minister and Minister responsible for Privatization and Regulatory Reform

Don Mazankowski, M.P. for Vegreville, speaking on behalf of the P.C. Caucus, has called upon the Liberal government to immediately implement a 10-point Agriculture Program to aid in economic recovery for Canadian producers.

The program - developed by the PC Agriculture Caucus - would provide up to $100 million to assist producers in renegotiating their existing high interest loans to levels more in line with current rates.

Mr. Mazankowski said that the program also proposes to establish voluntary Farm Finance Review Boards which could serve as negotiator and referee in assisting producers in re-organizing their debt repayments.

Stressing the need for stable and low interest rates, Mr. Mazankowski restated the need for implementing the Agribond Concept. "This would encourage retired farmers and others to invest their savings with the Farm Credit Corporation and other financial institutions by providing for tax reductions and incentives, including the waiver of the capital gains tax."

"As a further measure" continued Mr. Mazankowski, "the Government should eliminate the 9% federal sales tax on farm fuels thereby reducing the cost of diesel fuel by about 3¢c a gallon. The price of natural gas and fertilizer should also be reduced through the elimination of the natural gas and gas liquids tax."

Other incentives include the creation of a Voluntary National Income Stabilization Program, doubling the cash advance payments; amending the Western Grain Stabilization Act to provide for payouts based on receipts of a three-year, rather than a five-year, period which could trigger payments of $150 million this year; and maintaining the current initial grain price levels for this 1983-84 crop year.

In recognition of the increasing number of farmers who have been forced to engage in off-farm activities to maintain their farm operations, Mr. Mazankowski called for major changes in, or the repeal of Section 31 of the Income Tax Act.

"These initiatives" concluded Mr. Mazankowski "will spur new growth in Canadian agriculture which, in turn, will contribute to our much-needed economic recovery."

Progressive Conservative 10-Point Agriculture Program

1. Many producers find their economic viability threatened as a result of being locked into long term high interest rate loans. In order to assist these producers to refinance their loans at current prevailing rates, financial assistance should be provided up to a maximum of $100 million.
2. The establishment of an Agribond Program is necessary to provide credit to producers at reduced rates. Tax exemptions or reductions should be provided to encourage retired farmers and others to loan their savings to the Farm Credit Corporation and the Agribond Program with a capital gains tax waiver if the taxable portion is invested for not less than five years.
3. To assist young farmers, and those facing financial difficulties, as well as providing for a necessary communication link between farmers, governments and the financial community, Farm Finance Review Boards should be established to act as a financial referee and negotiator for financial and time extensions in meeting their repayment timetables.
4. The current excise tax rebate on farm fuels is bureaucratic and inadequate. Fuel costs are a major component in the production of food, including greenhouse operations and the manufacturing of fertilizer. The price of gasoline and diesel fuel used for agricultural purposes, should also be reduced by 3¢c per gallon. This could be done by the complete removal of the 9% federal sales tax. As well, the price of natural gas used in greenhouse operations and in the manufacture of fertilizer should be reduced. This could be done by immediately removing the natural gas and gas liquids tax and reducing the price of natural gas by about 50¢ MCF.
5. The 1983-84 Initial Grain Prices should remain at the 1982-83 crop-year level.
6. Legislation should be immediately introduced to double the maximum cash advance level for individual farmers from $15,000 to $30,000. Partnership and multi-farm unit levels should also be substantially increased.
7. The Western Grain Stabilization Act should be amended to provide for payouts based upon eligible net cash flow over the previous three years, rather than the current five-year average. This would trigger an immediate payout in 1983 of approximately $150 million.
8. A Voluntary National Income Stabilization Program for the red-meat sector, and any other non-supply managed sector, should be developed with producers and the federal and provincial governments.
9. The purpose for which Section 31 of the Income Tax Act was originally intended, is no longer valid. Section 31 should be repealed, or alternatively, revised, in order to increase the period of loss deductible, and the time period of write-off.
10. The federal government should immediately allow dual labelling (metric and imperial) for farm chemicals and fertilizer products.

RYLEY MAN DIES

A collision at the main turnoff to Ryley, Easter day claimed the life of a Ryley man, Wendell Heintz, 24. The tragedy occured at 7:30 p.m. The victim was the lone occupant of his car The other vehicle contained four members of a Sherwood Park family. Two passengers were treated and released from hospital. One remains in Tofield Hospital, while the fourth, a young girl, is being treated in an Edmonton hospital.

Several families from this area attended the funeral April 8 at the Ryley Catholic Church. His only sister, Mrs. Joe Bourque of B.C. arrived for the funeral and her son of Fort St. John, B.C. and her daughter of Cold Lake. Pallbearers were Dan Manderson, Jim Korenko, Don Wagner, Ted Strichink, Billy Kirkelund and Raymond Krupicinkski.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Staal and Colleen spent Good Friday at Spruce View at the home of his sister, the Joe Staunderds.

Sunday Eve visitors at Reuben Hovelands were Hank and Greta Hahn, Dayaland.

Many attended the silver wedding Sunday, for John and Rosica Haydoc.

Visitors at Art Kneley's were Garry and Star Vornbrock, Julie, Lisa and Ryan, Camrose and Casper Radinski, Edmonton.

Brian and Douglas Remple and Kerry Pire were brief visitors at Grande Prairie with Hazel and Brian McKay.

The Zion L.C.W. met April 13 at the home of Bonnie Hellekson. Lillian Reum presented the Bible lesson to the 17 ladies present. April 18 they held a bake sale at Sears in Camrose Delegates to attend the May convention in Camrose are Lorraine Hellekson, Delores and Selma Bratrud Meditation read by Diane Bratrud and devotion by Ruth Bratrud. Discussions were made re the 80th Zion Church anniversary July 2 and 3.

Jim Peter is busy building a new home on his acreage in the Likeness area.

Ed and Jeanette Knudson, delegates from Zion Church, attended the Central Alberta Conference over the weekend at Hastings Lake.

Chester and Valerie Forre and Ed and Jeanette Knudson were visitors at the John Bruce's.

Skiing recently at Fernie, B.C. were Harvey and Mildred Pederson, Lori, Brian and Rick and Mr. and Mrs. Terry Pederson and Heather.

Visitors at Earl Heintzman's for Bonnie's birthday, April 1, were Vi and Clarence Hellekson, Dave and Vivian Christianson, Collin, Neal and Susan, Camrose, Mrs. Marilyn Bratrud and Renee, and Allan and Lorraine Hellekson.

Mrs. Ainsy McClure, who fell and injured her ankle has returned home from hospital

Ed Aker is a patient in St. Mary's Hospital having undergone surgery.

STORAGE OF WEDDING GOWNS

Many customers have unfortunate experiences in the proper cleansing and storage of wedding gowns. It is extremely important that these items be completely cleaned before storage. Food or beverage spots are often invisible to the eye, although invisible when first stained. If stains are not removed before storing, you may find permanent yellow stains on the article after several years.

Before articles of this type are stored it is very important to remove any rubberized perspiration odors. Mildew or mildewlike smell to brush down with age and release a colouring material that can permanently stain the fabric.

Gowns should not be stored in the attic, where it is extremely hot in the summer, or in the basement because of mildew. Instead, store garments in a cool, dry place. If you don't have a cedar chest indoor, contact a professional cleaner for boxes made specifically for preserving gowns.

From the International Fabricare Institute - January, 1983.

NON-CALORIE DRINK

Consumer's Research Magazine reports that plastic or rubber-like shoes are not recommended, especially for children's feet Synthetic materials do not let air into the shoe, resulting in increased perspiration. That in turn, can increase the risk of infection. Leather not only allows the feet to breathe but also conforms better to the shape of the foot.

Special Manpower Project in County

by Anne Shewchuk

This year one high school student in Ryley, Holden and Viking has been hired by Alberta Manpower to help students find jobs and help employers find someone to do jobs that they do not have time to do.

Chris Clarke in Ryley, Leann Kraus in Holden and Rhonda Shippy in Viking are registering students looking for work and matching them to job orders called in by everyone, including farmers, homeowners and businessmen.

If you should have a job for a student to do, call: Chris Clarke (Ryley) 663-3683; Leann Kraus (Holden) 688-3784, or Rhonda Shippy (Viking) 336-3882.

NEW CROSS BOSS OVER THE

On behalf of the Canadian Red Cross Society the Campaign Chairman, Mrs. Joe Knudsen, would like to thank the volunteers, Leslie and Joyce Measdahl, Reuben Haveland and Joe Knudsen and all who contributed for making it possible for us to take in $661 and go over the top. Our quota was $650.

Benefits could prevail

The economic benefits to the prairie grain sector from expanding transport capacity are substantial.

The value of the additional rail capacity would far outweigh the costs of higher transportation rates if that capacity permits anywhere near an increase of 10 million tonnes moved to export positions.

The Canadian Wheat Board has set an export target of 20 million tonnes by 1986, compared with 26 million tonnes exported in 1981/82. Changes in Canadian grain exports have little impact on world grain prices because of their small portion of the trade.

A change in freight rates will result in different relationships changes in farm gate prices since the major Crow grains are not priced equally (wheat being more valuable than barley and oats). More production of the higher valued Crow grains such as wheat and rapeseed would be expected if crop rotation, summerfallow and returns per acre allow this. Moreover, the total acreage seeded to Crow grains can also be expected to fall slightly. There will be a greater trend towards crop diversification.

Reduced farm gate prices of Crow grains following an increase in statutory freight rates will mean lower input for the western livestock and agricultural processing industries including oilseed crushing, feed milling and meat packing. This will increase their processing margins which will lead to an increased output from these sectors relative to maintaining the status quo or Crow rates.

Medium and long term forecasts of agricultural markets indicate significant improvements from the current weak market situation. There are two broad sources of demand: the regional food and processing demand, and the export demand from population centres elsewhere in Canada and the rest of the world.

The regional growth patterns indicate a faster rate of population growth and income growth in the prairie region than for Canada as a whole. This will lead to a growth in demand for livestock and commodities with a lower growth in demand for staple products.

Over the medium term there will be a fast rate of growth in the export demand for agricultural commodities from western Canada. World trade in wheat, coarse grains and oilseeds have continued to outstrip forecasts for the last ten years.

Western Canada will continue to have a strong competitive advantage in grain and oilseed production in the future due to a consistent record to research, new management practices and the removal of delivery constraints. Technology is now available which would allow Prairie producers to increase production of grain and oilseeds by over 30 per cent of current levels through the utilization of available mature and improved varieties, and the more optimal use of fertilizers and herbicides as well as other new technologies.

The regular meeting of St. Stanislaus C.W.L. was held on April 11 at the home of Mrs Mary Yurkoski Present were Director Father G. Roebuck, one visitor Mrs. John Zenuk, and 11 members. Treasurer Mrs Karol Ilnicki gave an update on supplies and items available from National Office. Mrs. Stan Banack gave a reading.

Six resolutions, which will be presented at the Diocesan Convention, were read and discussed, and the voting delegate was instructed on the wishes of the group. The Diocesan Convention will be held on May 13, 14 and 15 in Red Deer, and voting delegate will be Mrs. Joe Banack, alternate Mrs. William Banack.

Election of officers was held for the coming year, president, Mrs. Joe Banack; 1st vice-president, Mrs. Victor Zenuk; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. Allen Tarnasewski; 3rd vice-president, Miss Linda Wnuk; secretary, Mrs. William Banack; treasurer, Mrs. Karol Ilnicki.

Installation of officers will take place at 7:30 p.m. Mass in the church on April 16. Father Roebuck reiterated the Easter message for the ladies. Flowers will be presented at the church on Mother's Day.

Mrs. John Haydak was the hostess prize.

The next meeting will be held on May 9 at the home of Mrs. Victor Zenuk.

The Round Hill and district History Book committee announces that printing has started on the book, Round Hill and District Salute the Pioneers. We hope the printers will have the book ready for homecoming on July 29 and 30, 1983. Artificial 'hair' aids deaf

by Hugh Bromley

An electronic device that restores partial hearing to the profoundly deaf has been implanted in the ear of a 36-year-old B.C. woman.

The hearing device, called a cochlear implant, was placed in the woman's ear by Dr. Patrick Doyle, head of otolaryngology (ear, nose and throat medicine) at St. Paul's Hospital in Vancouver. The operation last October was the first of its kind in Canada.

The recipient of the implant, Lacy Philpott, was struck deaf two years ago from meningitis. The disease destroyed tiny hair cells in her inner ears. These hair cells, vital to hearing, transform sound vibration from the outside world into electrical nerve impulses that go to the brain.

In place of the hair cells, Philpott now has an electrode capable of stimulating the nerve cells leading to the brain. The electrode is connected to a dime-sized transmitter that she wears behind her right ear.

Between the electrode and the microphone is an electronic converter, which transforms sound signals (from the microphone) into electrical charges. The converter is small enough to be worn in a shirt pocket or tucked under a brassiere and connects to the microphone and to the electrode by tiny wires.

The sounds Philpott hears are by no means normal. But they fit into her round lips and she can soon pick up a rhythm in speech. As well, she can now tell when a telephone rings, a door slams or a car is approaching on the street.

She expects to be able to carry on a limited phone conversation if the caller limits his replies to "Yes", "No" and "I don't know".

Philpott, a resident of Fraser Lake, learned about the cochlear implant while watching the television program "That's Incredible". She wrote to the producers of the program, who referred her to Dr. William House, an ear surgeon in the United States who has implanted 300 of the hearing aids. Dr. House referred her to Dr. Doyle in Vancouver.

The cochlear implant is still in the early stages of development and is helpful only to the profoundly deaf. Despite many requests, Dr. Doyle says he won't be able to perform more than four implants a year.

"There are hundreds of deaf people in B.C. and thousands in Canada who might benefit from this operation", he says.

Patricia Young Says . . . . .

Like nuclear fission, everyone talks about love, but few people understand it. Many teenagers and aging "swingers" still measure their "love" by the number of female beds they can occupy in a given week. Husbands and wives often contain their love in a cocoon of jealousy and possession. Other people use their love like bait - or a tasty bar reward for favours received. People will measure how much they are loved by the number of Christmas or birthday cards they receive or the number of social invitations they receive.

While one cannot discount physical magnetism between the sexes, this by no means constitutes love - not unless that magnetism continues to exist under all conditions of living. Like that Cheesecake Charlie you love to be seen with but who couldn't care less about children, pets and old people. He might mix a mean martini - but try him on mixing some oatmeal or breakfast pancakes!

Philosopher Tupper said of love: It is "The misery without and fiery angels throng to bear." The Duke of Buckingham declared: "All true love is based on esteem." Robert Browning called love: "The energy of life." St. Paul called it "The fulfilling of God's law." Nowhere do we find the sex act as the core of love - only as a by-product. Neither do we find love as the exclusive property of the married couple, the family and their friends. Rather, as the Duke of Buckingham said: "love is based on esteem. Rather, it is the smile we wear, the humour we generate, the generosity, understanding, courtesy and kindness we express without discrimination." Yet another philosopher said: "To love is to be useful to yourself; to cause love is to be useful to others" - pointing up that love multiplies and returns to the giver. Happy indeed is he who sows the seeds of love without thought of the harvest - for his shall be overflowing granaries.

Needless to say, love is more than a physical act. It is an attitude of mind that is so appreciative of life and its circumstances that love continues to generate itself. That state of mind belongs to no one, but is available to everyone who seeks it - be he Prince or Pauper. It cannot be sold or purchased - for it is priceless. Yet, like the first breath taken into an infants lungs, once learned, it becomes a way of life.

Boundaries determined

New boundaries for federal constituencies in Alberta have been prepared by the Electoral Boundaries Commission For Alberta.

Because of population changes, Alberta will gain six new seats in the next federal election and also because of population shifts, the new boundaries are required.

Prior to reaching its decision, the commission held fourteen public hearings in various centers with one in Camrose having been held in January.

Under the new scheme, Alberta's population of 1,237,724 will be represented by twenty-seven members of parliament, each serving a constituency whose average population is 23,570.

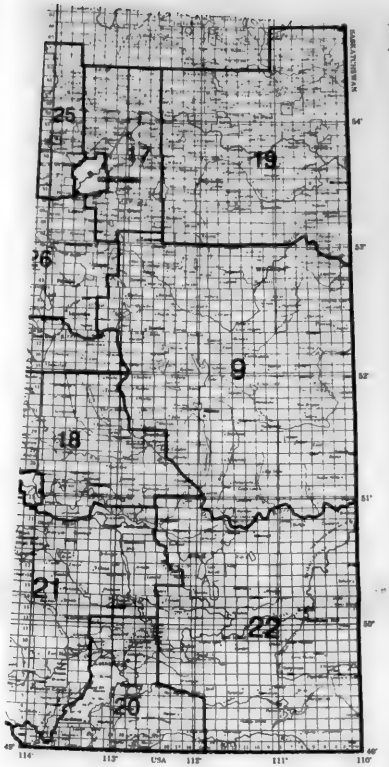
In this area, one constituency has a population above the average while the other is below.

Don Mazankowski's Vegreville Constituency has a population of 22,510 which ranks it ninth overall.

Mazankowski's constituency will undergo a name change. In the future, this area will be known as the Lakeland Constituency.

The Crowfoot Constituency, presently held by Arnold Malone, has a population of 70,310 people and only four constituencies are smaller.

On the provincial map, Crowfoot is number nine, while Lakeland is number nineteen.



Jamboree held

March 28 was the Swinging Beaver's "Dam It Day".

Two hundred and fifty square dancers jammed the old school gym at Bruce.

This square dance jamboree has become an annual event and now, in its third shoeing, has increased its popularity with a speed that has left the club astounded.

Dancers poured in from many different clubs. A partial listing would include Lloydminster, Camrose, Edgerton, Wainwright, St. Paul, Lac La Biche, Czar, Edmonton, Thorsby, Chumbstad, Hay Lakes, New Sarepta, Bonnyville and Wetaskiwin.

The "Dam It Day" jamboree, non-dancers might call it a marathon, or endurance test, started at two in the afternoon. It slowed down after three hours for supper, followed by an hour's entertainment put on by the host club, The Swinging Beavers. Then, the chairs were pushed back and another three hours of dancing followed.

Visitors were especially congratulatory about the hot meal served by the Bruce Ladies Agriculture Society, and the excellence of the three callers who guided the dancers, Clem Nadon and Andy Peacock of Edmonton, and the club's own, Allan Zwierschke of Holden.

Multiplying caribou mystify experts

WINNIPEG (CP) - Baffled wildlife officials say it seemed impossible but a herd of barren ground caribou in Canada's north - thought to be steadily declining in number - apparently has tripled in population in the past five years.

The caribou herd, called kaminuriak by inland Eskimos in the Northwest Territories and the far reaches of northern Manitoba and Saskatchewan, was down to 60,000, according to a 1977 survey.

However, results from a survey done last spring, with officials using the same procedures, shows there now are 130,000 of the majestic mammals in the region - all of which leaves Harvey Payne, northern wildlife specialist with the Manitoba Department of Natural Resources, quite puzzled.

"From what we know about caribou populations, populations just do not grow that quickly," Mr. Payne said in an interview. "Caribou never have twins or triplets like the white-tailed deer population."

Mr. Payne said there were indications that calf survival had been particularly good in recent years and that the population of wolves, the caribou's chief natural enemy, had been reduced at the same time.

"So, if there was going to be a slight increase in the herd, it wouldn't have surprised us one bit." Simply, he said, the results of the most recent study "are difficult to explain."

Mr. Payne said the survey, carried out at the herd's calving grounds in a remote area in the Northwest Territories, is 95 per cent accurate.

"But when you have a 95 per cent probability of being right, there is a 5 per cent chance that you were wrong. And, if you are wrong, there is no guarantee whatsoever that you were even close."

While admitting that the spring survey could be wrong, he said it also is possible past surveys have been incorrect and the most recent one is accurate.

Department workers are busy trying to figure out where they could have gone wrong in the spring survey and all are anxious to find out if, in fact, the caribou herd is as large as the survey showed.

Another survey, although expensive, is planned for next spring to see if the result is the same, Payne said. If last spring's results are borne out, the department will have to evaluate its testing procedures.

Mr. Payne says there are other possible reasons for the apparent sudden increase in population.

He said it's possible a neighboring herd migrated to the calving ground at the time of the survey for one reason or another, but this has never been observed in the past.

Mr. Payne, who said nothing is impossible in nature and that caribou in Canada's north have been studied closely only in recent years, acknowledged that no theory for the apparent population explosion is too preposterous.

meat for inland Eskimos, who have been referred to as the people of the caribou, and has cultural significance as well.

The antlered animals, relatives of the reindeer, are herbivores that feed on lichens and other hardy northern plant species. The kaminuriak roam the barren northern tundra in summer, but retreat to south of the timberline in winter to find refuge in lakeside forests, Mr. Payne said.

"We would be very pleased if we can substantiate and repeat the results of this year," he said. "If we can do that next spring, we will be very pleased."

Grandparents Guide To Toy Buying

* Trust your ideas of fun. Toys that were popular with children in the past are still popular today. Games, stories, trucks, cars, dolls, balls, blocks, crayons and paints will generally please children.

* Ask your children (their parents) for a few suggestions. You can choose among them or disregard the suggestions as you see fit.

* Buy toys that will give you opportunities to play with your grandchildren: blocks that you can build with together; books that you can read to them; games that you can play together.

* Interest your grandchildren in activities that you can do together. Children enjoy helping in the kitchen. If you don't mind more mess and taking more time, you will enjoy making cookies together. Even very young children can dump in the ingredients, mix with a spoon and form with a cookie cutter. If you are entertaining several grandchildren, make the cookies beforehand so you can ice and decorate together. Handyman grandfathers can make use of enthusiastic sanders in the workshop. Children are more interested in the activity than in the finished product. Give them opportunities to hammer nails, saw boards, screw with a screwdriver, and join nuts and bolts. Children need supervision in the workshop. Take time to talk about safety and the rules you wish to establish in the workshop.

* Take your grandchild shopping. Set a price limit and help him to choose an item that he would like. See what you can find out about the child and let him/her know about yourself. (Leave Mom and Dad behind - or ditch them for an hour).

* Give the child money. You choose the amount with the stipulation that he buys something with it that he really wants and that he tells, or shows or writes to you about the purchase.

* There are certain standard toys for children. Continue the tradition. Every child needs a teddy bear. Give each of your new grandchildren a teddy on their first Christmas. Choose one that looks like the one their parents had as children. There are other such toys; dolls, wagons, blocks.

* Handicraft items for your grandchildren: dolls, furniture, blocks and clothing are possibilities.

* Have old family photographs enlarged for your grandchildren.

Fish and game news

by Mrs. A. Anston

Hay Lakes and District Fish and Game regular meeting was held April 13, at which time the Association was made aware that all trophies for 1982 were ordered and are ready for presentation. It was decided at this meeting that the Fish and Game Association would hold a members only pot-luck supper on April 30 at 7:30 p.m., basement of the Rec. Centre and all members and their families are invited to attend this supper at which time the trophies for 1982 will be awarded.

There will also be a film shown along with recognition to those people taking the Alberta Conservation and Hunter Education course presently sponsored by the Bay Lakes Fish and Game Association.

It was also decided at this meeting that the Bay Lakes Fish and Game Association would hold a boat raffle to start a fund for stocking a fish pond; the tickets should be on sale about the 15th of May.

The summer activities for the Bay Lakes Fish and Game Association are as follows:

May 15 - Trap Shoot with Conservation and Hunter Conservation class and all other members, also plan to have the Camrose Archery Club out for demonstration and instruction in archery. Coffee, pop and doughnuts will be available. Shoot starts at 1:30 p.m.

June 5 - Trap Shoot - 7:30 p.m.

June 19 - Family Fish and Game members picnic - 1:30 p.m. with the highlight being the Ladies Trap Shooting Competitions.

Close call

There was keen competition and many a close call in a pick-up game of soccer played last week at C.W. Sears School during the recess break. This young goalie fumbles with a shot and tries to save the rebound from a charging opponent. The warm sunshine dried out the playing area for the pupils to enjoy themselves.

Hazel Patterson feted

Cavell Rebekah Lodge celebrated its sixty-sixth anniversary with an open meeting in April. Over one hundred guests were welcomed.

A chartered bus from Edmonton brought visitors from both the Oddfellow and Rebekah Lodges of Edmonton. Lodge members from Canoree, Fort Saskatchewan and Innisfree also attended.

Distinguished guests were the President of the Rebekah Assembly of Alberta, Mrs. Helen Collier, and the Grand Master of the I.O.O.F. of Alberta, Bill McLennan, among many others.

The District Deputy President, Miss Mary Zapernak, read her commission and presented the president's program for 1983. She was given a cheque from Cavell for the Crippled Childrens Fund.

Members of the Cavell presented five emblems of the Rebekah Degree in a colorful pageant to illustrate the principles of Friendship, Love and Truth upon which the Rebekah Lodge is founded.

Greetings on Cavell's anniversary and best wishes to Hazel Patterson from non-resident members, various Alberta Lodges, and members of the Assembly Executive were read by the secretary.

The highlight of the evening and a great surprise to the recipient was the presentation by Bertha Wismer, of a fifty-year veteran jewel to Mrs. Hazel Patterson who joined Cavell in 1933.

A program honoring her was presented by the members of Cavell who paid tribute to the legacy she has established in her fifty years of service. To add to her surprise and pleasure, members of her family were guests for the evening including her sisters, Mrs. Evelyn Moon from Red Deer and Mrs. Beulah Gwilhelhaus and daughter from Holden; her brother, Glen Hillerud from Ryley; her daughter, Gleeda from Edmonton and her husband, Conrad.

Twenty members answered roll call, receiving a badge showing the number of years of membership, from Lisa Orbeck.

The Lodge Hall was decorated with flower arrangements and Easter Lilies by Anna Kongarud. Mrs. Kongarud presented Hazel with an Easter Lily and with a corsage of roses.

At the conclusion of the anniversary ceremonies, lunch was served and an hour was spent reminiscing and renewing old friendships.

Seek new fire system

by Don Umpherson

RYLEY - The system of firefighting presently in use in Beaver County will soon be obsolete and needs revamping, says county Fire Chief Laurie Weatherill.

And the county, in conjunction with the Villages of Ryley and Holden, towns of Tofield and Viking and other tiny hamlets will probably unite to purchase a modern system, he predicts.

"I think we're at the stage where the municipalities will make arrangements to purchase the first phase of the new system," he said.

County council last week decided to mail letters to the various towns and villages, suggesting that the county pay for 50 per cent of the facilities, with the remainder divided among the towns.

The proposed system, which has been in effect in Leduc for five years, "will probably be phased in over a number of years," Weatherill said.

The first phase will probably come on stream in about six months after everyone agrees on a cost sharing plan, he added.

The existing system is strictly a telephone system, he explained. There are fire phones in each firemans home and are manned around the clock.

Firemen take turns watching the phone during weekends. They must always stay within earshot of the telephone, Weatherill added.

Under the new system, a remote answering and paging system, several firemen will have radios and be able to page other firemen and activate the siren.

Each fireman will have a pager and will be able to be contacted anywhere as long as he is wearing it.

It is not necessary for every town and village to agree on opting in on the new system, although it is expected that all will because of its efficiency, the chief said.

The county will now await replies to their cost sharing suggestion made last week. "I don't expect any problems with this agreement," the chief added.

Tomorrow's plants deep-frozen today

Next decade's crops may be grown from plants deep-frozen this year.

Scientists at the National Research Council's Prairies Regional Laboratory in Saskatoon have developed a way to deep-freeze plant tissues and store them to be cloned years later. (Clones are identical descendants of plants or animals grown from cells taken from the parent)

The researchers treat tissue from a plant's growing shoot tip ("apical meristem") with chemicals that protect the tissue from damage by extremely low temperatures.

After treatment with these "cryoprotectant" chemicals, the plant tissue is gradually cooled to the temperature of liquid nitrogen (-196°C)

In trials with strawberries and peas, the researchers were able to grow complete plants from meristem samples that had been stored frozen for two years. They also cloned the tissues to produce several hundred genetically identical plants.

The method can also be used to produce healthy descendants from diseased plants. The researchers merely take meristem cells which have not yet been infected by disease. The regenerated plants are genetically identical to the parents, but are healthy.

Appleby named

Tom Sydness, general manager of the Alberta Agricultural Products Marketing Council, has announced the appointment of T.J. (Terry) Appleby to the position of secretary of the council.

Mr. Appleby, who was raised on a mixed farm at Holden has a B.Sc. from the University of Alberta and an M.Sc. in agriculture economics from the same institution.

Prior to this appointment, Appleby worked as a dairy and poultry market analyst with Alberta Agriculture.

In his new position, Appleby will be responsible for assisting members of the marketing council by analyzing policy issues and preparing reports on relevant marketing matters.

The Agricultural Products Marketing Council is responsible for the establishment and supervision of Alberta's agricultural marketing boards and commissions.

Coming of the green

Barring another dose of April showers (otherwise known as snow), it looks like the time has arrived for cleaning up the yard and garden. The brown lawns need a good raking and perhaps a sprinkle of fertilizer. The flowerbeds need turning over. The trees need pruning and a spirnkle or two of water. There is an accumulation of rubbish in our back yard that has me thinking of taking up a new hobby – Garbage d'Art – or at least opening up my own dump. It is a job that needs doing before the neighbours start complaining.

Around our house, spring clean-up is a family project, whether we like it or not, and it always starts out seemingly organized. Everyone has his or her own job to do. Dad does the digging, pulling, pruning and the heavy lifting. Mom does the raking, weeding and watering, and the kids pick up the rubbish, fetch-and-carry and bag the grass.

Once outside, however, bedlam takes over. The kid's enthusiasm wanes as soon as they realize that the day is more conducive to bike riding than to shoving dead grass into plastic garbage bags. It becomes necessary to bribe them. Then their interest is not in doing the job and getting it over with, but in how much they are getting paid and if they can stop now. Dad's back goes out but his brain is still in gear and he begins asking futuristic questions like, "What kinds of bedding out plants do you want out front?", "How many rows of spuds should we put in?" and "What are we going to do with this silly tree?" For some reason, he doesn't appreciate my answers, "I don't know", "I haven't the faintest idea" and "I haven't thought about it." Doesn't he realize that I need my full concentration on pulling the rake with arms that would rather be elsewhere and in not stepping in the dog do decorating the grass behind me?

"Sure is a nice day," a neighbour calls across the fence. He can say that, since his yard was done by his sons yesterday. I would've had them do ours, as well, but their hourly rate was more than Pocklington pays Gretzky.

When we discover that the dog (who has been moping around, wondering why all these people are ruining his playground and ignoring him except to yell everytime he wanders onto a freshly dug flowerbed), has chewed up the hose into several smaller ones, it seems that the best idea might have been to hire the boys next door, after all. No doubt they would have more use for the money than I do for these blisters.

Since spring clean-up has never been one of my favorite ways to spoil a sunny Sunday, I sure hope that watching it all "green up" will make it worthwhile.

It always has before.

Building engulfed

This structure on the east side of Tofield became engulfed in flames and clouds of smoke last week during one of the many grass and brush fires which have occurred. Because of the difficulty in reaching the abandoned building, it was demolished in the blaze. Firemen, however, were quick to bring the grass fire under control before rushing off immediately to another one.

Blazes busy firemen

by Don Umpherson

TOFIELD - Fire fighting officials here are urging caution on the part of the public in burning leaves and grass after a series of fires here last week.

Twelve firemen responded to a blaze which broke out at 10 a.m. Sunday on the southwest side of Tofield. It was quickly extinguished, fire department spokesmen said.

The second fire occurred four miles north of the Lindbrook store at 2:30 p.m. This time, 16 firefighters responded to what amounted to a major grass and brush fire.

Firefighters managed to snuff the flames, but not until the blaze had demolished a yard and two wooden utility sheds and their contents. Estimates on the damage were not available at presstime.

Although the flames were whipped by a heavy breeze, the landowner's house was in no great danger because of the favourable direction of the wind, the fire official said.

On Tuesday, a three-mile stretch of burning grass and brush alongside the railway line kept firemen busy for about three hours. The grass began smoldering 1½ miles east of Tofield and, whipped by an east wind, raced past the town for another 1½ miles before it was contained. The only damage suffered was to an abandoned shed.

The incidents, however, have prompted officials to warn the public against the hazardous or careless burning of leaves, grass and trash.

People lighting fires in their yards should always have plenty of water on hand and enough bodies to quench a blaze.

Officials caution against lighting fires on windy days or near exceptionally dry piles of brush or wooded patches.

People with smoke detectors are urged to check the batteries to make sure they are live and purchase a fire extinguisher.

Anyone wishing to purchase an extinguisher can contact any member of the Tofield Fire Department.

Hastings Lake

The Ladies' Club will be meeting at the Hall this week, the monthly meeting being scheduled for 1 p.m. on Thursday, for a session of soft-toy making in aid of the Tofield Hospital. Last-minute arrangements will also be made for the International Dinner to take place on Saturday from 5 to 7 p.m.

The monthly Community Association meeting will be held on Thursday evening at 8 p.m. at the Hall, when plans will be finalized for the Spring Fever dance due on Saturday, April 30th at the Hall. Tickets are available from Elaine Efford at [illegible].

Hobby show set

Preparations for the annual Hobby Show are going into their final stages in the next two weeks.

This show, sponsored by the Tofield Gun Club, is becoming one of Tofield's most popular events.

Last year, it attracted over 1,500 visitors to 100 plus tables of antiques, collectables, guns and related items, arts and crafts, etc.

Combining aspects of a trade fair with a flea market, it brings artisans, dealers and hobbiests together with the public for two days of viewing, swapping and buying and selling.

It will be held in the Tofield Arena on April 30 and May 1, commencing at 10 a.m. on both days.

A few tables are still available and anyone desiring more information should contact either John Daoust at 662-4015 or Ron McAdam at 662-3613.

Viking seeks firemen

by Don Stephenson

VIKING - Apathetic townspeople are responsible for the bare-boned volunteer fire department here, ratified fire chief Bill Kamphius has charged.

"Apathy, straight apathy ... that's when I call it," Kamphius, who is also a manager with the Bank of Montreal, said.

Excluding the chief, the volunteer fire brigade here has only nine men. Their numbers have dwindled in the past several years as this town has not found replacements for those who have departed.

"Some quit, some have retired, some take off or move or whatever. What bothers me is that we haven't been able to fill their shoes."

Kamphius acknowledged that some people are frightened of fire, but blamed the skeleton brigade on people just not caring.

"We're really having a tough time getting guys to volunteer down here," he added.

Ryley, Holden and Tofield each have a volunteer fire brigade of about 18. The patriotic group in Viking, however, always turn out in full force when there is an alarm, he said.

Kamphius said he's anticipating a great improvement in the fire fighting system when a proposed plan to update the system presently in use is approved.

Viking is scheduled to participate with Tofield and Beaver County in the first phase of an updated communication and paging system designed to come on stream in about six months.

Viking firefighters have also been without a town siren since December 7 when an electric timing device in the siren malfunctioned. It was just repaired last week, Kamphius said.

But during that period of time, firemen could not be summoned by siren and had to be called on the special fire phone system in use across Beaver County, he added.

In addition to the meagre volunteer force, the special fire phone system is "obsolete and outdated," Kamphius said.

"There have been errors ... wrong directions given," he added.

The Viking fire department has asked town council to consider applying to the provincial Department of Disaster Services for a grant to assist them in purchasing the necessary equipment for the proposed communication and paging system.

Tea serving

The Masonic Hall in Holden was the site of a delightful tea and strawberry shortcake social last weekend as the Brownies and Girl Guides served tea and cakes to local residents who popped in to socialize. Here, Kathy Laube serves Anna Shabchook, left, and Anna Laube. The Brownies also held a plant sale.

Holden, Ryley not in fire proposal

by Don Stephenson

RYLEY - Beaver County Fire Chief Laurie Westhorill says he's concerned that the villages of Ryley and Holden aren't participating in the first phase of a revamped fire prevention and communication system being sought.

"That system is designed to go right across the county. I'm concerned that if Ryley and Holden aren't going to go for it right away, their fire [illegible] may not be as effective," Westhorill said.

The county has been seeking the co-operation of towns and villages in purchasing a communication and paging system for battling blazes.

It will replace the current system of private fire phones which fire bosses say are inadequate and obsolete. Westhorill said, it will eliminate the need for a fireman to "baby-sit" the fire phone every weekend.

To date, Tofield and Viking have agreed to participate in the purchase of the first phase of the equipment, scheduled to come on stream in about six months.

Ryley and Holden, however, are sticking with the present system and will not be going with the updated communication and paging operation.

"Ryley and Holden are both in the same situation," Westhorill said.

"I get the feeling that they won't feel the need (for the system) for maybe two or three years."

Westhorill explained that the paging system works on a special frequency which is unique only to that one system.

While it is possible that the two villages can enter the communication and paging system in its second or third phase, they will require the unique frequency and equipment, he said.

"Our basic concern is that when we put equipment in Viking and Tofield, that we are able to eventually expand into Ryley and Holden," said Westhorill.

"What we don't want is to have some small communities isolated and not be in communication with the other towns on the system," he added.

The chief said the proposed system is expensive, but some funding is available for the equipment through the Department of Disaster Services.

"We don't want each place to end up with a different type of system," he said.

Tofield town fathers have applied for the dollar-matching grant, up to a maximum of $2,500.

Tofield may see mine mega-project

by Don Stephenson

TOFIELD - A multi-million dollar mine mega-project is slated to commence just south of the town limits here in 1984, coal mining industry spokesmen say.

Bob Logan, spokesman for Luscar, the parent mining company of Forestburg Collieries Ltd. who will tackle the project, said about $3 million in capital expenditures will be spent to develop the strip coal mine.

In two days of informal information meetings designed to inform residents here of their plans to develop the four-section piece of property.

The proposed mining site was formerly a strip mining operation between 1967 and 1987 under the auspices of Tofield Coal Company owned by Claude Gallinger Sr.

Tofield Coal employed up to as many as 125 people on a 320-acre parcel of land, and mined about 130,000 tonnes of coal per year during peak operational periods.

But like other mines in the area, Tofield Coal shelved their operations when diesel fuel and natural gas became cheaper, and the demand for coal diminished.

Forestburg Collieries Ltd. has now, however, signed an agreement with Gallinger's successors allowing the company to conduct tests and possible strip-mine the old property.

Logan explained that the decision to pursue development at the old site was forced by dwindling supplies of domestic coal at their existing mine near Forestburg.

"There is only enough coal left in our Diplomat mine to supply domestic orders for about five years," Logan said.

The Diplomat mine is near the end of a 20-year contract to supply industrial orders of coal to an electrical generating plant at Battle River.

Forestburg Colliers Ltd. has opened a second mine, the nearby Tainterth mine, to continue to supply the industrial orders. Coal taken from Diplomat will now be used to fill domestic orders, Logan explained.

Once in operation, the Tofield mine will replace the Diplomat mine in domestic supply.

Logan said the company plans to mine about 20 acres per year and take out about 350,000 tonnes of coal per year as opposed to two million tonnes of coal which will be taken from the Tainterth mine per year.

Logan said the company has been conducting extensive studies on soil and ground water in the mining area in determine if any neighboring farms will have water problems.

"We've been doing a lot of ground water monitoring and have a very good feel of that now.

"We will continue to monitor the ground water situation from time to time to make sure no one's water supply is endangered through possible pollution or a lowering of the water table," Logan added.

Ground water studies are only part of the scientific information gathered by the company for its Environmental Impact Assessment report, which will be presented to the provincial government for approval.

Proposed mining site

Informal public meetings were held last week in Tofield to educate residents on a coal mining company's plans to open a strip-mining operation on the south edge of town. This was the site of an old strip-mine which closed in 1957. The company plans to open their mine on the same site.

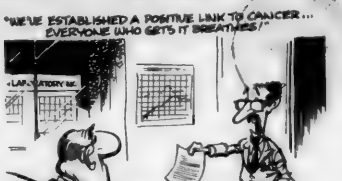
It was announced last week that the Lee Trail Rodeo Company will be the stock contractor for the rodeo.

Many local cowboys and cowgirls will be competing along with contestants from the Lakeland Association as some of the best rodeo stock in the business.



April is Cancer Month

Complex document

Canada's new finance minister mystified almost the entire country last week, as he brought out his new budget, overtones developing in almost countless aspects.

First and foremost, he managed somehow to bring out the sort of budget that made everyone wonder how the same people, working in the same department, could have managed more than twice in just the last few months to introduce such rebellion-inspiring concepts as did those of Alan McEachen. Not even in his own party were Mr. McEachen's ideas acceptable, while most of Mr. Lalonde's have gained support.

The wonder is that it could have been produced, basically, by the same mandarins.

There was something of genius in his approach, in that there seemed to be a little (sometimes so very little) for everyone. In one instance, it seemed some sixteen million dollars was to be spread, as tax savings, among some four million people . . . a paltry four dollars each. Using sound and mirrors, however, it looks great.

It looks, on the surface, as though it significantly favors small business, giving it . . . nay, assigning it . . . the responsibility of job creation/jobs. But it completely overlooks the philosophy of Mr. Lalonde, recalled recently by Alberta Chamber of Commerce President Tom Sterling, when he was minister of energy only a couple of years ago, and gave us numbers of unsubstantiated stories on how "business was ripping off the consumer", only shortly before he gave us the National Energy Program, that program which turned Alberta overnight from the golden hotspot of the nation into a wasteland which will endure for years.

It is indeed interesting to wonder if Mr. Lalonde really has changed his mind about business, especially since his budget did nothing to amend, to alter, to improve that National Energy Policy which proved so disastrous, not only to Alberta, but to all producing provinces, and indeed, to Ottawa itself.

Equally significantly, even his Liberal cohorts, sparked possibly by Agriculture Minister Whelan, have been quick to point out that Lalonde did nothing to relieve hard-pressed farmers across the country. Indeed, when Mr. Lalonde was questioned in the House by the Conservatives over this failure, he shrugged it off with a typically Gallic shrug and a glib "better luck next time" dismissal. So much for the farmer.

One thing apparently not noticed by some of the senior commentators was the increase of the federal sales tax from nine to ten percent, an effective eleven percent increase, on top of whatever inflationary increases are represented. Levied on almost everything produced in this country, and magnified by mark-ups of wholesalers, distributors and retailers, this may have more effect at the consumer's end than all the other changes together.

The basic matter now is investor confidence. The consumer wants to believe, the worker wants to believe, the industrialist wants to believe . . . even the government wants to believe. The question arises, does the government have enough confidence in its own people to give them the room for recovery?

'83 crop outlook

World wheat supply may shrink in 1983-84 because of reduced prospects in the U.S. and USSR, the world's leading wheat-producing nations.

Statistical odds favor smaller harvests in Canada, the European Economic Community (EEC) and Argentina, as well.

These were some of the predictions made by Gail Martell, meteorologist and assistant vice-president of E.F. Heaton & Company, Winnipeg, in her address to Accent '83, Alberta Agriculture's grain and oilseed outlook conference held in Edmonton.

Ms. Martell went on to outline world weather and crop conditions for the major grain-producing nations. U.S. wheat producers may harvest eight to nine per cent less acreage than last year, depending on final acreage-reduction figures in the various government farm programs. She added that soil moisture conditions are tied least to many years in the northern U.S. Historically, spring wheat yields are increased by sufficient moisture.

Ms. Martell suggested that production of U.S. soft wheat should plummet in 1983 based on sharply lower acreage and reduced yields. Excessively wet weather has been plaguing southern U.S. states this winter. Currently Ms. Martell looks for U.S. wheat production to be substantially lower than last year's record output.

On the other hand, she expects Canadian wheat acreage in 1983 to increase by at least four per cent. In spite of potentially higher acreage, it seems doubtful that yields will match last year's record level. Subsoil moisture conditions are not particularly good in the northern grain belt, where cumulative precipitation since last fall has been only two-thirds of normal, suggesting conditions not as ideal as last year.

When viewing the global situation, Ms. Martell suggested that Argentina wheat output will be less than last year's record crop. Similarly EEC production should be slightly lower than last year's record.

Australia should rebound following the worst drought of the century and Russian wheat crops should be average or worse in 1983-84.

The Soviets, this year, are expected to import a record amount of wheat.

Mainstream Canada

Challenging times, changing attitudes

By W. Roger Worth

In the last couple of years, people from Newfoundland to British Columbia have been forced to accept a hefty dose of economic reality, and the results have been fascinating.

The "dose of reality", of course, came in the form of a recession that created massive unemployment, high interest rates, near-record business bankruptcies and, most important, a great deal of uncertainty about the future, particularly as it pertains to jobs.

The result: the attitudes of ordinary Canadians about spending and getting value for their hard-earned cash has changed dramatically, and people may never return to the heavy borrowing, free-spending ways that characterized the 1970s.

It's true, Canadians generally don't have as much money to spend, but they are even shopwhoring the money that is available. It seems we've made the giant leap from a nation of seemingly unscaring spendthrifts to one where frugality and value-for-a-dollar are paramount. Some retailers even contend that consumers are becoming so selective in their buying habits that the attitude verges on stinginess.

The evidence:

• Everyone in the country, it seems, is developing a rainy-day nest egg to offset the threat of a personal layoff, reduction in pay or a cutback in the number of hours worked.

What else could explain the acknowledged fact that Canadians are saving a staggering 14 percent of disposable income (about $20-billion), up 50 percent from a normal 9 to 10 percent. Attractive high interest rates have certainly played a role in this savings binge, but there is little question people are heeding the Boy Scout motto — "Be Prepared".

• While Canadians are saving more, it follows that they are spending less, which is indeed the case. Imports of mainly-manufactured goods were down 13 percent in 1982, and some major department store chains are losing money because of the drop-off in sales.

Discount retailers and bargain basement operations, on the other hand, appear to be packing up business as consumers shop around. It seems we're really becoming price conscious.

• Then there's the change in borrowing patterns. Simply put, we're paying off loans rather than increasing the amount we buy more consumer goods. Consider credit (as a percentage of disposable income) is now at its lowest level since the 1960s, and even credit card companies are feeling the pinch. Canadians are in fact paying down those "plastic" balances with the high, high interest rates.

• Restraint in wage settlements, it appears, has suddenly become natural. One union after another has accepted the reality that many companies cannot afford big salary increases, so mediocre raises or even reductions have been negotiated.

At the government level, restraint programs have been grudgingly accepted.

The point, of course, is that the average Canadian has reacted quite reasonably and realistically to excruciating changes in the economic environment. Savings are up, borrowing is down and there is real soul searching and investigation before major consumer items are purchased.

Now, it appears the recession is ending. Yet even the policies included in Finance Minister Marc Lalonde's recent budget may not be enough to change people into free spenders soon. That may take a long while indeed.

Patricia Young Says . . . . . .

No one will deny that we in North America are living in the greatest age of all history. The achievements of science are fantastic in scope and consequence. In our lifetime we have come all the way from the card file to the computer. Certainly taxes and the cost of living have gone up - but so have wages and salaries. In our affluence, we have not separated our needs from our greeds.

Yet sometime along the way, we abandoned the science of morality and donned the robe of humanism and materialism. Man, in the arrogance of his achievement, dismissed his Maker as a myth. In doing so, he struck a blow at the very pillars of his being - his struggle for excellence and what pertains to established principles of right and wrong; righteousness, ethics; standards; values; character; nobility and right morals of human conduct.

In effect, while we found our way to the moon, we cannot find our way out of inflation or war. We bridged the world with a network of roads, railways and airlines - but cannot bridge our differences in race, colour and creed. We invented a communications system of radio, telephone, TV and printing press - but are unable to communicate with our children and neighbours. We have probed the highest heavens and deepest oceans - but have not measured the heights and depths of the human heart. We have sanitized, purified and pasteurized everything we eat or wear - but exposed our children's minds to the filth of the sewer.

We have stretched the concept of freedom into a moral of permissiveness. We have been stampeded into honouring the child and his total worship - while dumping Grandma in the Squarebin. We have established laws for the protection of society - and hamstrung those who would enforce them.

But like those who built the ancient tower of Babel, our tower of humanism is doomed to failure. That is, unless someone - and everyone - grabs the helm and sets a new course for mankind - a course based upon all the knowledge we have acquired - up to and including that much neglected "Science of Morality."

Computer baffles adult learners

Learning to use a computer can reduce adults to a state of terminal frustration, says a University of Toronto education professor.

Mary Barrie, a graduate student, interviewed nine men and nine women who had learned to use a computer. All had found the experience extremely frustrating; they felt intimidated, incompetent and angry. Some became so wound up they couldn't sleep.

When they learned to be precise and logical, realizing the computer could only "understand" certain sequences of logical commands, they began to master it. At that point, said Barrie, who was addressing a U of T Faculty of Education conference, they felt they were in control, and the confrontation stage passed.

Interestingly, said Barrie, the learners felt that the primary interaction - even in computer courses - was between them and the computer. None even mentioned the role of the instructor in the experience.

Barrie also found that men and women had different attitudes towards the experience. The men wanted to learn to use computers because they felt it would advance their careers; the women did it out of curiosity. Afterwards, men felt their logical thinking had been enhanced. Women felt better about their self-image; "If I can do that, I can do anything," was a common response, she said.

Barrie suggested that learning to use a computer would be easier for adults if they were given preparatory courses before actually trying to use the machine. She also said they might find it easier if they worked with the material and programs about common life experiences. For example, designing a program of how to get up and go to work in the morning would make students realize that even ordinary actions have a logical and linear sequence, and would encourage them to think more logically.

tal Impact Assessment which it must present to the provincial government for approval.

The site must also be developed in accordance with the Provincial Coal Development Policy which states that a full formal public meeting must be held in Tofield, Logan said they hope to have that meeting in July.

Following the meeting, residents will have a chance to submit written letters of opposition to the Energy Resources Conservation Board, who must endorse the project before it officially goes in Cabinet.

Logan said they hope to have full government approval by 1986 so the project can commence in 1988. The initial $3 million investment will cover equipment, buildings and an office, he said.

The project will likely create about 30 jobs for local residents, he said. "Certainly the best thing to do is get local residents working there."

Logan said they had many inquiries for jobs. "Some of them were ready to get up on the grader the same day," he added.

Degree granting status nears reality for CLC

. . . with Stromberg bill

Camrose Lutheran College is a giant step nearer to attaining degree granting status.

In the Provincial Legislature on Friday, Camrose MLA Gordon Stromberg piloted a bill through first reading which would provide an amendment to the Universities Amendment Act.

The bill, when passed, will provide the mechanism which would allow CLC the right to grant academic degrees.

Passage of the bill would establish the Private Colleges Accreditation Board who would be appointed by the Minister of Advanced Education and whose main task would be to establish the criteria which would allow CLC the right to award degrees.

In an interview on Monday, Stromberg told The Canadian that second reading of his bill will likely take place next week although there was a possibility that it could proceed on Friday of this week.

Third and final reading of the bill could be expected during the first week of June, according to Stromberg and Royal Assent would be received on the final sitting day of the Legislature.

If Royal Assent is received and, if the Private Colleges Accreditation Board recommends to the Minister of Advanced Education that CLC should obtain degree granting status, college officials have indicated that they are ready to proceed in that direction almost immediately.

Third and fourth year university courses could be offered this fall and CLC could present its first degree(s) in the spring of 1984.

CLC President, Rev. Glen Johnson told The Canadian that CLC could offer a Bachelor of Arts program in the fall of this year with five majors in music, English, psychology, history and religious studies.

According to the college's president, programming would gradually be expanded so that a Bachelor of Science degree could be offered.

CLC has been working towards obtaining its degree granting status for a number of years and has already embarked on a major construction program on campus to provide the needed facilities at an overall estimated cost in excess of twelve million dollars.

Curlers meet

by Ron Stephenson

TOFIELD - The curling rink here should have a new roof completed by mid-summer if all goes according to schedule.

About 20 members of the Tofield Curling Club were given the news at their annual meeting last week.

The new roof is being funded through the club's general revenue and a provincial grant, and is expected to cost about $16,000.

Treasurer Don Swift said the roof is being covered with metal to replace the leaking shingles. To date, the project is about one-quarter finished since construction began last fall.

Swift added that they are in need of volunteers, as the roof is being replaced by club members.

Dennis Valliere replaces Murray Lindsay as President, Karen Pike replaces Dennis Valliere as Vice-president, Marg Schroeder replaces Susan Belanger as Secretary and Don Swift was returned as Treasurer.

The club also plans a dance in the Community Hall here on May 7 to raise funds for their projects.

Seniors news

A drop-in center in Tofield is steadily moving towards reality.

Blueprints have been drafted and the project has been approved for a NEED grant.

Contributions for the center are coming in on a regular basis.

A regular swim session is now available for senior citizens in the Ryley Swimming Pool.

This swim is scheduled each Monday at one o'clock. Anyone interested in attending or, who can provide transportation, should call 663-4188.

A meeting of the Tofield Golden Club was held recently with forty members in attendance.

Cards were played and whist winners included Ida Niemetz, Lillian Berreckin, Bulford Williams and Joyce Wang.

Slides of potential tours will be shown next Wednesday.

Gardeners meet

The April meeting of the Tofield Garden Club was held at the home of Peter and Yvonne Brown.

After the minutes of the last meeting were read and the treasurer's report was read, we were informed of the entries to the fair list from the Alberta Horticultural Association. There will be one vegetable entry, one flower entry and a poster contest for the juniors. The events of July 1 were discussed but nothing definite was decided as no theme was chosen.

We were asked to help with pies for the booth. Yvonne showed slides and souvenirs of Douglas' trip to New Zealand and the scout jamboree in Australia.

Lunch was served by Keitha and Lillian.

The next meeting will be on May 4 at the home of Thesne Jones.

Auxiliary meets

The regular monthly meeting of the Tofield Hospital Auxiliary was held on April 18 in the Tofield School Library.

The crafts committee is still in need of the following items: panty hose (for stuffins), small empty spice jars, pull-off caps from pop cans and baby food jars. These items from Mary Ann Hall, 662-3911 and any others may be left in the drop box in the Owl Value Drug Mart.

The results of fund-raising efforts of the Auxiliary are to go towards furnishing a "Volunteer Room" and Lock Shop in the new Hospital. The members present at the last meeting were suggesting other uses for these funds, but no definite plans were made.

By the time you insulate the house, add new storm windows, buy an energy efficient furnace and add aluminum siding, you've run out of money for gas or oil.

Past Time Pastimes

by Nancy Shank

February 24, 1897 - Anti-Chinese riots erupted in Vancouver over the use of Chinese labour in the building of a railline between Port Moody and Vancouver. The riot began when unemployed whites protested at city hall. It was believed that the Chinese workers were willing to work for cheap wages. The tiny Vancouver police force, aided by some citizens, managed to prevent serious violence against the Chinese community. Damage to property was estimated at $15,000. A lawsuit against the city was placed under the control of the provincial police force. Thirty five extra police officers were sent from Victoria to Vancouver until order was restored.

February 25, 1946 - The International Canadian's Maurice 'Rocket' Richard took a pass from Tom Blake and beat Toronto Maple Leaf goalie Frank McCool to establish a National Hockey League scoring record. The goal was Richard's 45th of the season, breaking the previous record of 44 goals in a season set by Joe Malone in 1918. Richard ended the season with a record 50 goals in 50 games. These goal scoring marks have been exceeded by numerous modern day players.

February 27, 1900 - The final engagement of the Boer War was fought in South Africa, took place. Canada had sent a contingent of infantry and cavalry to fight under the command of British generals. The Battle of Paardeberg began when Canadian troops led the pre-dawn assault against the Boer's defences. The Boers inflicted heavy casualties on the Canadians, but were unable to withstand the attack. Later in the day, Boer forces surrendered, ending the Boer War.

March 3, 1870 - Thomas Scott was found guilty of treason at a mock trial held by Louis Riel and his provisional government at Fort Garry, Manitoba. Scott was one of the many 'Canadian' prisoners being held by Riel's provisional government. Scott was an Orangeman from Ontario. His hatred of Catholics, Frenchmen, and Metis led him to constant attacks on his captors. A failed attempt to escape custody resulted in the treason charges. Scott was sentenced to be executed. The next day, a Metis firing squad shot Scott to death. This needless execution became the decisive event in the 1870 Red River Rebellion.

Electric fences are useful

Electric fencing is becoming increasingly common in Alberta and has proven to be a versatile and effective method of animal control.

Andrew Livingstone, Alberta Agriculture's regional engineering technologist in Barrhead, offers the following information as a summary of the available information on electric fencing.

Permanent electric fences can be used for perimeter fencing for cattle, hogs and sheep. Temporary electric fences are used as cross-fencing for rotational grazing systems and for animal control around feed supplies. Use for predator control around bee yards, vegetable gardens and sheep pastures is becoming more common.

A wide variety of solid state fence energizers, or controllers, is available. Controllers for permanent fences are often utilize a 110-volt power supply and can energize up to 80 kilometres of wire, although 15 to 20 kilometres is more common. Controllers for temporary fences can be battery powered using a three to six 25-volt power supply. Some companies offer a wind generator to energize remote fences. A photovoltaic cell that recharges the battery using solar energy is also available.

The controller should be CSA approved, with an integral lightning arrestor. It should produce a short duration pulse of high voltage, low amperage electricity. Common pulse lengths are 1/2000th of a second, repeated every second. Common voltage output ranges are 5000 to 10000 volts.

Posts for electric fences are commonly placed 15 to 30 metres apart, depending on upon terrain. Stays, or droppers, are required every 10 metres to ensure correct wire alignment in multi-wire electric fences.

Most electric fences use insulators on the fence posts to isolate the hot wire from the post, eliminating current leakage to ground. Polyethylene or porcelain insulators are commonly used. Certain types of electric fence can be installed without insulators. One type relies upon a very high voltage output from the controller to compensate for voltage drop that occurs at each uninsulated wire-post connection. These types of fence are usually suitable for short runs (unless than five kilometres). One company sells "Insulimber" posts, which are basically a very high resistance (or "insulating") wood, which eliminate the need for additional insulators.

The wire used for electric fences is usually one or more strands of barbed, or smooth, high tensile wire stretched to 700 to 900 newtons (150 to 200 lb) tension. One strand at two-thirds the height of the animal is adequate for cross fencing for rotational grazing. Two or three strands are recommended for permanent fencing. A fourth strand can be added, 150 millimetres from ground level, for hard-to-control animals such as sheep, goats, calves, etc. Braided plastic twine, with steel wires woven into it, is lightweight and easy to handle, making it ideal for portable fences. Electrified mesh, usually in metre-wide rolls, made from braided plastic and steel wires, makes an excellent portable fence for sheep, and for protection for predators of vegetable gardens, bee yards, etc. Insulated cable containing a hot and ground wire, with protruding energized barbs (such as "Post-Shock") has proven successful in controlling feeding of large round bales, silage in bunker silos, etc.

An additional lightning arrester on the fence hot wire(s) is recommended in areas usually located near the controller. In arid areas, where the dry soil has little or no conductivity, it may be necessary in addition to the hot wires to run one or two ground wires to serve as a ground return. Equip the ground return wires with a ground rod every kilometre. The effectiveness of this type of fence is limited, since accidental contact between the hot and ground wires, such as a falling tree, will short-out the fence onward from the point of contact. This type of fence has limited application and should not be used under damp conditions.

Permanent electric fences will require stretcher or pull-post arrangements every one to two kilometres and at corners. They add significantly to the physical strength of the fence and also allow re-tensioning of the fence wire periodically. Ratchet-type wire tensioning devices and tensiometers can be home-made or purchased, and are useful tools.

A wide variety of spring-loaded wire gates, gate handles, connectors, cut-out switches, etc., are available. A common gate is a single hot wire, extending across the gate opening. Additional hot wires in the fence are carried underground, beneath the gate opening, through insulated cable. For electric fencing across ditches or runoff channels subject to periodic flooding, special insulators are available. They cut off the power to the wires submerged in the water, while maintaining power in the dry wires. For prolonged periods of submergence in water, the power should be mechanically cut off from the submerged wires with a cut-out switch.

For more information on electric or conventional fencing, contact Alberta Agriculture's engineering field services staff. They are located at all Alberta Agriculture regional offices and in Edmonton.

Hobby show set

The Hobby Show that is to be held this weekend is expected to have full booking of tables by Friday.

Promotions Chairman Allen Doucet of the sponsoring Tofield Gun Club reports that 100 tables were booked by last weekend and that the remainder should be filled by the opening, if past experience is any indication.

Exhibitors from as far away as Winnipeg will be displaying their goods and services, commencing at 10 a.m. Saturday morning and continuing through the day until 8 p.m. and again on Sunday, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The local Lions Club will have their sports car that is to be raffled, on display and there will be other antique vehicles as well.

One exhibitor is bringing native handicrafts and many other crafts will be on exhibition. Collectables are always popular with the public and many will be in evidence.

Guns and related items are featured and many sportsmen are finding that this type of show is prime bargain hunting territory.

The concession in the arena will be in the hands of Laurie and Liz Hudon.

Chairman Doucet says that this show should be the best ever.

AGRICULTURAL DEMONSTRATIONS

The Agricultural Service Board of the County of Beaver No. 9 and the Ryley District Office of Alberta Agriculture are looking for farms that are willing to co-operate in a number of demonstrations within the County. The purpose of these demonstrations is to initiate and encourage the use of various agricultural techniques and methods that may be of benefit to the area. This year's projects are:

—Using spring seeded fall rye as a forage.
—liming to neutralize acid soils
—demonstrating the Alberta Certified Preconditioned Feeder Program

Cost sharing agreements will be arranged.

Please refer back to the ad in last week's paper for brief descriptions of the projects. Detailed descriptions are available at the D.A.'s office.

Tofield events for education

On Thursday, May 5 from 7 to 9 p.m., Tofield School will open its doors to parents and the community to acknowledge and celebrate Alberta Education Week.

Activities will include demonstrations, displays and performances by Tofield students and teachers. Other events include:

Music Classes from Grades 4 to 6 featuring the Tofield Choral Club performances in the school library at 7 p.m. The Choral Club were winners of the Wendy Brook Women's Institute music festival.

Physical Education classes will present a gymnastics demonstration in the gym at 7:30 p.m.

The Drama Club will present a short comedy sketch in the library at 8 p.m. A display and demonstration of computer programming will kick off the school's new [illegible] and the students' achievements at 8:30 p.m.

A science presentation featuring the tar sands will be shown in room 22. Other displays will reflect student work in art, social studies, language arts and science.

Spilstead news

The Ladies Ball Team will be having practice Monday at 7 p.m. The team is looking for interested players.

There will be a general meeting May 3 at 8 p.m. for the ball club and on the first Tuesday of each following month.

Co-op may be changed

by Don Umpherson

Financial woes may force the Tofield Co-op to copy its sister Co-ops in British Columbia and move to a new system.

Co-op executive will take the matter before their membership before June 1 to see if they will endorse ratification of the present system to one being proposed.

The present system of regular dividends paid to card-carrying Co-op members would be replaced by one in which only members are allowed to shop in the stores.

Purchasers would pay the wholesale cost of the product plus [illegible] per cent. Each member would pay a yearly service fee.

Food is not stocked on shelves but placed in large crates for bulk purchases. Some B.C. Co-ops which adopted the new system are doing better financially than they were on the old system, an executive member said.

There are about 800 Co-op members in Tofield.

Biddin' fever

Tofield was the scene last weekend of a very successful equipment furniture and appliance auction held north of Highway 14.

Folks turned out in droves to hear the auctioneer entice people to bid on farm machinery, old cars, etc. Bidding was fast and furious as onlookers swarmed about the merchandise photo by D Umpherson

Homecoming set

The organizational meeting for Holden and District Homecoming 1984 to commemorate Holden's 70th anniversary was held last week.

Twenty-seven people representing 20 organizations and church groups were present.

The meeting was spearheaded by the Holden and District Chamber of Commerce, with Christine MacKay, Ken Sharpe and Bill Darcy as co-chairman.

The following committees were set up: Fund Raising and Finance; Accommodation; Long Range Planning and Program; Promotion and Publicity.

The dates set for Homecoming '84 are August 4, 5 and 6.

The Holden Historical Society is working towards having the History Book finished and distributed in conjunction with the Homecoming.

The next meeting will be held on June 16, at the Holden Complex.

Committees formed will meet before that time.

Any other groups, organizations or individuals who are interested in attending the meeting are welcome.

Auction onlookers

A well-attended auction was held in Tofield last weekend as hundreds of local residents turned out to look over and bid on a wide variety of merchandise offered. Bidding was swift on such items as older farm machinery, some old vehicles, appliances and furniture. The scene took on a carnival-like atmosphere.

Annette Short is home after spending some time in the hospital.

Jim Karenko, a maintenance worker for the County of Beaver, has retired after working at that job for 25 years.

Any ads, announcements, Mercury subscriptions? If so - phone 663-3773.

Bud and Maxine Cabush of Edmonton visited in Regina last week and on their way back, they ran into a real snowstorm and wind which made roads dangerous. They stopped in at Uncle Ezra's on Monday.

Barbara and Bradley Johnson received a surprise visit last week from her son and his wife, Doug and Leah Harbak of Lahr, West Germany.

On Sunday, a family gathering was held at the Johnson residence. In attendance was Doug and Leah, Harry and Jean Harbak of Edmonton, Morris and Lynn Rosen and family of Round Hill, Jerry and Darlene, Leah's two sisters from Calgary, Alfred Harbak, Edwin Harbak of Wainwright and Lesley Primeau of Onoway.

On April 18, Oscar Landin of Edmonton, formerly of Ryley, passed away at the age of 82 years.

He is survived by his wife, Sophie; one daughter, Margery of Edmonton; and two grandchildren.

Predeceased by two brothers, Elmer and Ludwig and two sisters, Thea and Elma.

Funeral was on April 20 at Park Memorial Chapel with interment in Evergreen Memorial Gardens.

WORK SMARTER - NOT HARDER

Some people gyrate around and never seem to get anything done. Others placidly go their way accomplishing miracles. The secret seems to lie in their ability to arrange efficiently the twenty-four hours in each day and the sixty minutes in each hour.

Good managers are made - not born! Is it worth the trouble to try to change old habits? That depends on what you want out of life, what you'll do with the time you save. You can only have twenty-four hours a day but you can "make" the time for more of the things you enjoy.

Managing time is like going on a diet - talking about it gets you nowhere; you must start doing something and keep doing it.

Here are some ways to save time:

Think through your goals and dangle them constantly before you as bait to get off to an early start. Families with goals get more out of life.

You'll get no reward for working harder than necessary to get a job done. But by working smarter you can save time to do some of the things you've always hoped to do.

Time is intangible and your job as homemaker is too broad and varied to tackle it all in one big package. Break it down in parts, select a starting point, and shorten the task to one part at a time.

Life is hard by the yard, by the inch, it's a cinch. OR You can't eat an elephant in one bite!

Form habits of doing jobs at a certain time. You'll save minutes you would otherwise waste in deciding what to do next. You'll also get started promptly on jobs you don't like. Remember "A" job begun is a job half done".

Change your standards if necessary. Are your standards for some jobs too high? Could children do the job in a fairly satisfactory manner? Can you skip some jobs occasionally, especially when children are small or during busy seasons? Schedules should make time for your family - not be so rigid you are a slave to them.

Keep a bulletin board, calendar and note pad beside the phone to write down things that must be done - appointments and messages. Most people have a good memory - but it's terribly short!

Don't drive so hard one day that you have no energy left for the next. Distribute your work evenly over the week and avoid fatigue.

Don't procrastinate. Delays can make a job seem bigger than it really is - and thinking about what you haven't done steals time from the job you have before you.

Worry takes more time and energy than work and doesn't pay as well!

There are two books available from this office and they are yours for the asking: "If Only I Had The Time" and "Work Smarter, Not Harder".

Thanks to Elizabeth Davis, D.H.E., Vegreville, for the above article.

USING YOUR MICROWAVE

A short course on using your microwave to its fullest, is planned for May 2, 1:30 - 3:30 p.m. at the Tofield Legion Hall. We will cover some microwave basics as well as some more advanced techniques.

To register, phone this office at 663-3[illegible]. A fee of $5.00 will be collected at the door.

The second annual International Dinner at the Hall on Saturday was a culinary, social and financial success, according to several of the hundred people present.

Next Saturday a gala dance is scheduled, entitled "Spring Fever", with tickets available from Elaine at 662-3[illegible].

At the Ladies' Club meeting last Thursday, six members had a busy afternoon manufacturing soft toys for the Tofield Hospital.

Two overseas visitors will be living in the community this spring, Joan Bowie from Sydney, Australia and Elizabeth John from Sussex, England, who will be staying at the Fenna place for a few months.

One of the activities planned there this summer is a Riding Camp for 10-14 year olds, and interested people can obtain more information from 662-3[illegible].

Strawberry social

It was a beautiful spring day for a strawberry shortcake and tea social at the Legion Hall in Ryley last weekend. A group of energetic Brownies served cake, tea and juice to a hall full of local residents who caught up on all the latest news. In addition to the social, there were trays of baked goods and a mini-flea market.

League has problems

The County Senior Hockey League may be facing a major problem.

A lack of teams.

And a shortage of money!

Three of the six teams that operated in the league during the past winter may not be back for a new season.

Only one team, Kingman, has paid its league debts which currently harass the league operating in the red, although that problem might be rectified before the fall.

Kingman, Round Hill and Tofield are the only teams that are definite starters in the 1982/83 season.

Doubtful starters, at least at the present time, are Bashaw, Bawlf and New Norway.

When a league meeting was held recently, New Norway was the only center not represented.

It has been decided to give all teams some time to assess their positions before making any final decisions for next winter.

Definite commitments will be required from existing teams when an executive meeting is held about the middle of July.

News from Ministik

by Catherine Reddick

Margaret Petersen was a delegate to the Yellowhead Presbytery meeting in Whitecourt last Wednesday and Thursday representing the Ministik Pastoral Charge.

On Sunday, George and Jean and Sarah Kleinschroth were at Norma and David Hughes' near Wetaskiwin where, along with other members of the Kleinschroth family, they celebrated the birthday of Sarah Kleinschroth.

Elmer and Clifford Herrichs enjoyed a few days of skiing recently at Jasper.

Theresa Regier arrived home last Tuesday after spending six months in Phoenix, Ariz. She was on a mobile estate there and was able to have her dog with her.

The last whist drive was once again a most successful affair. Winners for men were: First - George Lee; Second - Glenn Ferguson; consolation Joe Davenport.

For ladies: First - Gladys Gill; Second - Isabelle Lee, and consolation Edna Selsen.

A door prize donated by Lillian Berreleth was won by Edna Selsen.

A lunch was served by the ladies.

The Ladies meeting for April was held at the hall on Wednesday afternoon. Final plans for the annual day "out to dinner" were made.

Jean Ferguson will again convene the Strawberry Tea, the club's 30th annual one. A large cedar planter and a hanging pot of plants will be raffled. There will also be a bake sale.

The April Community League meeting was held on April 11th.

A dance by the young people is planned for May 28th. Margaret Petersen will be convenor for the annual community picnic.

Gravel is to be hauled into the low spots of the hall yard.

A capacity crowd attended the spring rock dance in the Community Hall on April 9th.

A turkey supper complete with all the trimmings was served before the dance by Heather Ratcliffe and Rhonda Ratcliffe, along with helpers Grant Wilson, Glen Lawrence and Ian Ratcliffe, Mike Meisic and Angus Ratcliffe.

The annual spring bazaar will be held in the Crafts Centre on Saturday from 2 to 4 p.m. Lunch will be served and draws made on the raffle of the homemade quilt and cheese and the homemade sleeping bag. Plans are completed for the flea market to be held in the Community Hall on May 7th, from 10:30 to 5 p.m.

Lunch will be served all during that time. There's a bake table and plants and shrubs will be available. A bird house, made and donated by Verden Beers, will be raffled.

Bertha Lefebvre returned home on Thursday, after spending eight days in Misericordia Hospital.

Holden and district news

by Mrs. G.R. Taylor

Mrs. Lene Kawalaczuk, who was a patient in Dayaland Hospital for several days with pneumonia, is back home but her husband, Pete is now a patient there with an attack of bronchitus. Mrs. Kawalchuk was to Dayaland Hospital on the weekend with Clare Anderson, to visit with him.

Major Leslie Brekstad of the Canadian Armed Forces stationed at Inuvik was a surprise visitor on Tuesday evening with his mother, Mrs. Ethel Brekstad.

Mrs. Frances Hanson, who has been a patient in Dayaland Hospital for a few days, returned home on Monday afternoon.

Mrs. Irene McGregor is home after being a patient in Tofield Hospital for a couple of weeks with an infected toe.

Seven ladies of Holden Lodge Order of the Royal Purple attended the annual meeting of District #4 Order of the Royal Purple in Wainwright on Saturday. A total of 144 ladies attended and Holden took part in the ritualistic work. Those attending were H.R.L. Mary Semotiuk, Ladies Olive Good, Anne Scherger, Ethel Brekstad, Rene Taylor, Kate Nichols and Kathleen Hurum. A buffet supper was served at the close of the meeting.

John and Eleanor Ogonoski who have purchased the former County of Beaver house on 51st Avenue, have been busy the past couple of weeks painting trees.

Mrs. Vera Scott of Dawson Creek, B.C., a member of one of the pioneer farming families of the Holden district, the Clarks, passed away on Saturday in hospital. She had been a patient for some weeks after breaking a hip and then other complications set in.

She had been a resident for several years in the senior citizens' lodge in Dawson Creek. Her younger sister, Jane Clark is residing there after leaving Holden a few years ago after the death of their brother, Lloyd.

On April 18th, the Holden B.P.O Elks held an open installation of officers for the term 1983-1984 with District Deputy Bro. William C. Johnston of Irma being the installing officer.

Members from Wainwright, Irma and Hardisty also attended. Six members of Holden Lodge Order of the Royal Purple assisted as a Drill Team. They were H.R.L. Mary Semotiuk and Ladies, Mary Gardecki, Kathleen Hurum, Kate Nichols, Ethel Brekstad, and Helen Sieczyk.

Officers installed were as follows: Exalted Ruler - Matt Helfrich; Imm. Past Ex. Ruler - Lyle Grosland; Leading Knight - Mel Rose; Leading Knight - Nick Shihinski; Lecturing Knight - Bill Dary; Sec.-Treas. William Ogrodnick; Esquire - John Michlich; Chaplain - John Semotiuk; Historian - Gene Kwasnik; Inner Guard - Jacob Michlich; Tyler - Lud Mielkuzain; 3 Yr. Trustee - Ben Last; Pianist - Earl Hardy.

At the conclusion of the ceremony, the Elks served coffee and a buffet lunch.

Raymond Palmer Benson of Bruce passed away on April 13th in the Viking Hospital, at the age of 70 years. He leaves to mourn his passing, his wife, Vivian; one son, Larry of Edmonton; one daughter, Mrs. Dale (Ellen) Collinson of Bruce; three grandchildren, Sheri and Lane Collinson and Rebecca Benson; also his mother, Marie, and three sisters. He was predeceased by his father, Martin in 1968 and a brother, Ernest in 1981.

The funeral service was held on April 18th in the Bruce Community Centre with Rev. Tim Johnson officiating and interment was in the Bruce Cemetery. Mr and Mrs. Larry Benson resided in Holden for a few years when they were on the staff of Holden School, before leaving to reside in Edmonton.

Vernice and Lyle Grosland were Monday visitors in Dayaland.

CUSTOM RATES GUIDE

As the demand for custom work increases, farmers in Alberta continue to seek information on machinery costs and custom rates. Custom operators want to ensure they are charging enough to cover their costs and farmers hiring custom operators are concerned that a fair price is paid for the work being done.

Since 1975, Alberta Agriculture has annually published a guide to machinery costs.

This publication provides current machinery cost information as a basis for negotiating fair custom rates for farm machinery operations. It is also a useful guide for budgeting machinery costs for other purposes. The best decision information, however, is the actual costs for your specific machine. Because of the variability in machinery costs between farms, the guide is intended as just that - a guide. Worksheets are provided to assist in calculating individual farm costs.

Custom rates for the following operations are included: seeding, fertiliser and herbicide applications, baling, silage making, grain harvesting, tillage, livestock hauling, fencing, corral cleaning and land rental in Alberta. Rates are listed for 1982.

Custom rates normally include all operating costs and some or all fixed costs depending on the type of custom operator - casual, part-time, full-time. Operating costs are fuel, lubrication, repairs and labour. Fixed costs include depreciation, investment costs, insurance and housing. A management fee and profit margin may also be included in the rate.

The following are 1982 provincial average values of some of the commonly asked custom rates. The rate varies depending on the specific type of machine:

- cultivators: $3.85 - 4.75/ac
- seed drills: $5 - $6/ac
- sprayer (trailer): $2/ac
- swather (SP): $4 - $5/ac
- combining: $12 - $15/ac
- baler (Standard): - .25c - .30c/bale
- (large bale): - $3 - $5/bale
- trucking (3-3 ton): $5/tonne
- (4-5 ton or tandem): $30 - $40/hr.

The "Custom Rates Guide" is available at our office.

Snippets

More than 1,000 U.S. soldiers and their leader, Gen. George S. Patton, are buried in Luxembourg soil, Belgium. Their graves are carefully tended by the grateful citizens whom they liberated from the Nazis.

A thousand years ago, Indians made the first decoys in order to attract ducks to move within an arrow's range. They were made of bulrushes, sewed and twisted into duck shapes. This Indian invention was quickly adopted by North America's first white hunters. In the Old World, hunters used tame birds to trap wild ones in a cage the Dutch called an "eende kooi" — what the Englishmen pronounced "decoy."

Nomadic Celts, who lived as recently as 10,000 years ago, may have been more sophisticated than the brutish creature traditionally pictured. Recent excavations in Iraq Sefiraw he had some knowledge of medical practices. Skulls from ritual burials had been laid on beds of branches and wildflowers with known medicinal properties.

Hundreds of White Swans stop to feed

Hundreds of white swans were feeding on the Bob Sensy farm near the water ponds on April 16. The next day they were all gone.

Observes 80th birthday

Mrs. Elsie Olson observed her 80th birthday on April 15 at the First Baptist Church, Camrose, when several locally attended. She has her own house on the farm of her son Elmer Olson.

Some locally attended the Golden Wedding April 17 at Camrose Mooser Hall for Cliff and Myrtle Rud, of B.C., formerly of Camrose.

Powerline has full slate

The Powerline Baseball League has survived intact.

A few weeks ago, it appeared that the league might be reduced to seven teams as indications were that the Round Hill squad would not be returning.

At organizational meeting was held last week and it was announced that Round Hill definitely will be back in the fold.

So, all eight teams are back.

Returning for a new season will be Armena, Bardo, Camrose, Holden, Round Hill, Ryley, Tofield and Viking.

The drafting of the 1983 schedule was undertaken on the past weekend, and is to be released later this week with the first games of a new season to be held about the middle of next month (May).

It was agreed by team officials that playoff games will follow the same format as the regular schedule.

In recent years, games during the schedule were seven innings while all playoff games were lengthened to nine innings.

It was noted that darkness usually resulted in playoff games being called before nine innings were completed and all teams were in agreement that they should be shortened to conform to the regular season's games.

The possibility of individual or all league teams being entered in provincial playdowns was discussed and it was agreed that there seemed to be little interest in competing in this playoff.

Lars Rude of Armena was returned to another term of office as the league's president.

Jack Lampitt, also of Tofield, will be back in his familiar role as the league's secretary-treasurer-statistician.

Although it was only mentioned during casual conversations, indications are that most, if not all, teams would be holding tournaments in 1983 in conjunction with their respective community sports days.

It is likely that the first tournament of the season will be held in Armena during the holiday weekend in May.

Officials of the Armena team will decide, within the next week, whether they'll hold a one-day six team tournament or, a two-day eight team affair.

BILL 44 THREATENS ALBERTANS

If Bill 44, the Labour Statutes Amendment Act, 1983, goes through as proposed, then Albertans can expect:

1. The weakened ability of unions to protect and improve the quality of public service in medicare, hospital care, social services, education, community health, transportation, parks and recreation, etc., etc.
2. A drastic decline in real job opportunities, as public sector employees become cheap labour.
3. A dramatic increase in labour unrest, as working people protest lost rights in collective bargaining.

YOU have reasons for concern.

Tell your M.L.A. about them.

Issued by the Alberta Union of Provincial Employees.

The Flea Market sale April 16 at Strathmoore was successful, amount take in $300 which will be divided between the children's home at Gwynne and Crippled Children in Edmonton Zion L.C.W. had a successful bake sale the same day at Sears, Camrose.

The Strathmoore L.C.W. will serve at the Harold Schaefer Auction sale April 30. On Friday at a pot luck dinner will be served following the Sunday services at Strathmoore church.

Sunday guests at Keith Bratrud's were Henry and Ida Gunderson of Valhalla Centre, Selma Bratrud and Dan and Gwen Campbell.

Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Vassberg and Cheryl have returned home after a three week motor trip to see their uncle Clarence Vassberg and cousins at Lyford, Texas. The cotton and sorgum fields were about four inches high. At New Mexico they enjoyed the Carlsbad Cavern — the San Diego Zoo at California — Disneyland — Knotts Berry Farm, Wax Museum and also called at Las Vegas.

Nominations sought for Alberta awards

Nominations are being accepted now for 1983 Alberta Achievement Awards.

If you know of someone who has made an outstanding contribution in sports, the arts, community service, science or other fields, send in your nominations.

Nomination forms are available from Alberta Culture, Alberta Achievement Awards program, 13th floor, CN tower, Edmonton, T5J 4R3.

At last year's awards banquet and presentation in Edmonton, a total of 100 awards were given out in three categories: performance, service and excellence.

Performance awards are given to Albertans who, as Alberta representatives, placed first in a Canadian championship, or first, second or third in a recognized international Championship, between January 1, 1982 and May 31, 1983. This applies to sport and non-sport competitions. Detailed Criteria guidelines appear on nomination forms.

Service awards are given to individuals who, in a voluntary capacity, have performed outstanding service for ten years or more, having provincial or wide regional impact.

Excellence awards are given to individuals for exceptional contributions and/or achievements in a professional or occupational capacity at provincial, national or international levels.

Deadline for nominations is June 15, 1983.

Hobby show is a success

by Ken Kroetsch

The fifth annual Tofield Hobby Show did well but, not as well as had been expected, said John Daoust, chairman of the Tofield Gun Club.

Daoust said that at the last minute, 12 exhibitors cancelled out. Also, gate sales were down about 150 people from last year.

It was speculated by some of the members that this downtrend this year might have something to do with the economy.

"Next year should be better if the economy picks up," said Daoust.

About 350 people toured the displays, some there out of curiosity and some were there to buy or trade.

There was a wide assortment of guns, gun accessories, collectible items, leather goods and hobby items. There were approximately 100 tables rented out, said Daoust.

Daoust said the hobby show has been popular because of its roominess and because of its other drawing card, the concession booth.

Daoust said that a lot of exhibitors appreciate a hot meal instead of just being able to get hot dogs and hamburgers.

Exhibitors said they also like the roominess of the show. They were able to drive their vehicles into the arena, right up to their display tables.

"I like the variety and the space. One thing I can't stand is being crowded shoulder to shoulder," said Grant Lavigne from Pender, Saskatchewan.

Lavigne said he had traded with exhibitors from Alberta at the Saskatchewan shows and had decided to try one at the shows in Alberta.

He brought with him 30 long rifles, shotguns and handguns to either sell or trade.

Lavigne said he'll probably be back next year.

Another display at the show was the RCMP's patrol boat. Officer Dick Cockshott, of the Federal K division in Edmonton was at the show to hand out pamphlets on water regulations and to answer any questions asked.

Sunday afternoon, trophies were awarded for the best hobbies, the best collectibles and for the best guns.

The trophy for best guns went to Allen Fiske of Smoky Lake.

The trophy for best collectibles, the Bill Stefanyk Memorial Trophy, went to David McLeod of Shaunavon, Saskatchewan.

The trophy for best guns went to Les Dunning of Edmonton.

Fair goes Saturday

by Ken Kroetsch

It started out as an idea between two local businesswomen and developed into the first Beaver County Improvement Fair on May 7

"Essentially the Fair is to let people know what services are available in the community," said Josie Aubrey of Aspen Textiles.

Aubrey said that Donna McShane, of Especially For You, and she were discussing ways to inform people of services in the community when the idea came up.

In the first meeting, there were eight businesses involved.

After measuring the Legion Hall for the event, it was discovered that there was more room than expected.

Other businesses were contacted and invited to take part. There are now between 16 and 18 businesses involved in the Fair, said Aubrey.

Each business will have a display set up in the Hall from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. on Saturday.

There will be free coffee and doughnuts and each person visiting the Fair will have the chance to put their name in for one of the many door prizes available.

Aubrey said that, because this is the first time the Fair is being presented, she doesn't expect that there will be too many people there.

She said she hopes that the idea will go over well so there can be another one next year.

RCMP find property

by Don Umpherson

A rash of burglaries in the Tofield area has prompted RCMP officials to request that home owners take an inventory of their property.

"We're getting quite a bit of property that has either been lost or stolen and we're interested in getting it back to its proper owner," Constable Hugh McKenzie said.

Each spring, the RCMP receive numerous pieces of property through burglary investigations and people turning in articles found during the winter.

To date, the RCMP Detachment in Tofield has received lengths of extension cord, bicycles, propane tanks and welding tanks.

"We'd like people to have a look around their place to see if anything stored during the winter is missing," McKenzie said. "And people should realize that after 90 days, the found property is given to the person who turned it in."

McKenzie said the property room at the RCMP headquarters is filling up quickly.

All residences should have a look around the house and the yard to determine if anything has been stolen or lost, he added.

MMMM Good!

Rodeo draws closer

by Ken Kroetsch

Preparations for Tofield's first annual rodeo are drawing to a close as the date set for the rodeo draws closer.

"Things are pretty well under way," said Glenn Jones, Rodeo Committee Chairman.

New bleachers and a new chain link fence around the rodeo grounds should be completed soon, said Jones.

The rodeo should prove to be exciting with the rodeo stock being provided by Trask Rodeo Company. Trask stock has taken several awards for their bucking ability in the past.

The rodeo, planned for May 28-29, will feature bareback and saddle bronc riding, steer wrestling, calf roping, junior steer riding, ovation bustin', ladies' and junior barrel racing, team roping and ball riding.

Other events planned for the rodeo are a beef roast, supper and dance, the beerfest and a breakfast planned for Sunday morning.

Service groups and clubs will be running concession booths, directing traffic and supporting events such as the beerfest.

Also a major part of the rodeo will be the crowning of the first Tofield Rodeo Queen.

Guns and more guns!

The Tofield Hobby Show was the place to be for gun enthusiasts of all ages. There were handguns, rifles and shotguns for sale or trade. There was also an assortment of gun accessories to choose from.

Meet Ken Kroetsch

As the new reporter-photographer for The Mercury I am looking forward to working in the County of Beaver.

This is my first newspaper job after finishing a two-year course in journalism at the Lethbridge Community College.

I expect to make mistakes, but working closely with local officials I hope these will be few and far between.

My family, my wife and four children and I plan to settle in the area and become an active part of the community.

Before going to college, my family and I lived in the community of Carnation where I worked first as a meatcutter and later, as a milk distributor.

While I was there I saw how small town newspapers could influence and unify a community. I felt I wanted to be a part of this type of work, out meeting people and carrying on an active part in the community.

I believe in reporting news accurately and fairly, and if I make mistakes, to make corrections.

I am looking forward to being an active member of the community, involved in all its aspects. I am also looking forward to meeting and getting to know all members of this fine community.

Extradition

Even as the Canadian Charter of Rights was being discussed in the House of Commons several months ago, it was being pointed out that many aspects of the new legislation were entirely unclear, and would be firmed up only after they had been tested in the courts, and rulings, forming precedents, were established.

Suddenly one of the early tests of this kind is being projected in the recent request for extradition of a former resident of Germany, charged with mass murder of Jews under the Nazi regime.

We don't know what the courts will decide. And possibly we're fearful that the issue will be decided on legality, rather than on right or justice. As far as we know, the picture was clear-cut before the new legislation . . . Canada was one of those nations which in the main considered very seriously the right of another country to extradite one of its former nationals charged with dreadful crime.

Are we now to refuse requests from other nations for extradition? Where does that leave Canada, if, for instance, we should appeal for extradition of someone, to use one example, such as Clifford Olson. Many of his crimes, to push the matter were committed in the region surrounding Vancouver, from whence it is only a short hop across the border out of this country.

How would Canadians feel if the United States responded to our pleas for extradition by telling us it contravened their Citizens' Rights Act? Would justice then be served? Would every nation want to revert to the level of Britain which kidnapped from a South American country one of the main players in the famed Briggs railway theft, since the host country refused extradition.

We'll admit that nearly forty years of peaceful residence here might have some bearing, but the testing of the new Charter suggests many years of expensive court action to prove where the fences are, raising serious doubt that we'll be one bit better off afterward.

Prime area

Experts in the field of medical research were protesting recently that so little money is being devoted to research in the field of Multiple Sclerosis. Only some $20,000 has been appropriated in this field, the claim was made, and Alberta shows one of the highest incidences of this crippling debilitation.

The protest seems to be exceptionally well founded, and it could even be extended in more concerned tones to the Camrose area, which seems to show a higher incidence of MS even than the rest of Alberta. In other words, one of the highest levels in the nation.

Surely if sufficient attention were paid to the subject, if enough money were made available, if enough scientific deduction could be employed, there must be ways of finding whether there is something in the air we breathe, the water we drink, the soil we live on, which is different from that of other areas. It can hardly be the food — too much of it is the same as in other regions. It can hardly be the way we live, too many areas are similar. Could it be in the sulphur in the air, the natural gas exhausted by countless oil wells, was it prevalent before the advent of oil, is there some special deficiency in the soil, or the water, or is there the presence of some undesirable special extra element, in either water, or air, or soil?

Has it anything to do with elevation above sea level? In the amount of daylight? Alberta has more hours of sunshine than most parts of Canada, but surely not nearly as much as many areas afflicted with a good deal less MS, such as the United States.

$20,000 doesn't go very far these days in promoting research into a problem which is worse here than in other regions. We can't compare it as to relative significance compared with heart disease, or cancer, or other ailments in this region. Maybe it's well down the scale on a percentage basis. But we do know this should be one of the very best areas for research, for establishing some sort of break-through on what engenders or supports development of this disease. We also know any kind of break-through would earn the undying gratitude of many many afflicted people as well as that of their families.

Dear Sir:

The facts contained in an article on page 1 of the April 25, 1983 edition of The Mercury concerning our proposed coal mine development at Tofield are largely correct, however, two points are misleading.

The proposed mine is not of "mega-project" scale as labelled in your headline. With capital expenditures of approximately $9 million and employment opportunities for about 20 people "mini-project" would be a more appropriate title. By comparison, the new Tofield Hospital is estimated to cost $11 million and will employ over 100 people.

The photograph which accompanied the article is neither of the old coal mine nor from the proposed project location. It is a recreational pond in the Tofield area.

I hope that in publishing this letter, the scale of the proposed coal mine will be kept in perspective. That is, it offers a small, positive benefit to the Tofield area through employment opportunities and diversification of the local economy.

Yours truly,
R.J. Logan

Race to oblivion

Box 14,
Hedley, B.C.
April 30, 1983.

Dear Sir:

An Open Letter to All Members of Parliament, House of Commons, Ottawa, Ontario.

Today, the terrible threat of nuclear annihilation hangs like an ominous cloud over the heads of all human beings inhabiting this earth. No danger of this magnitude has ever confronted human kind in all of recorded history.

The arms race has now reached terrifying proportions and the foolish game of "Chesupmanship" now being played by world leaders is dangerous in the extreme. For some unfathomable reason it seems to have escaped the attention of present world powers that nuclear weapons as a means of defense or offense can never be used. To do so would spell the end of man's existence upon this planet and the continued presence of these deadly weapons poses a constant threat to man's survival.

We stand today at the very edge of this awful abyss. One error in judgement, one maniacal of panic, one accident, can unleash a nuclear nightmare upon the world. Nothing would be left then but the smoke curling up from the ashes of our once beautiful planet.

It is quite possible that there will be no human intelligence then to make any kind of an assessment, but should there be, what kind of questions would he be asking himself as he surveyed the smoking ruins in the wake of a nuclear holocaust?

Firstly, I think he would have to ask himself why we did not realize that the piling up of nuclear arms as a deterrent to nuclear war was not only wasteful of human and material resources but in the year 1983 had become a totally futile exercise. All humanity, seemingly paralyzed, watched with horror as one deadly weapon succeeded another in the mad race for nuclear supremacy; a race in which all would lose; a race towards man's extinction.

Secondly, I think he would have to ask himself why, at this critical time in history, politicians should still have felt constrained to bow to the party line? Why, with nuclear oblideation staring us in the face why could not our representatives in Parliament have shown some real leadership? In the matter of human survival why did they not put their political affiliations to one side and more fairly attempt to represent the people who elected them to office? Instead, being creatures of habit, they clung desperately to their old traditional way of doing things. Had they developed a larger awareness in this one area alone, humanity might have been saved.

Thirdly and perhaps most importantly I think he would have asked himself why we did not realize that we had so little time left? Even back in 1963 had the governments of the world made a concerted effort to turn this thing around our chances of avoiding a nuclear war were not good, but we did have a chance. Instead, world leaders chose to squander this precious time when we might still have saved ourselves and all future generations, in a useless jockeying for position.

Albert Einstein, one of the greatest scientists that ever lived saw the picture clearly when he uttered those now famous words some years before his death, "The splitting of the atom has changed everything save man's mode of thinking and thus we drift toward unparalleled catastrophe."

Yours sincerely,
G.H. Rutherford

Patricia Young Says . . . . .

It constantly amazes me how much we allow nosey parkers to dominate our lives - be they government civil servants, university researchers, businesses or pressure groups in search of supporters, funds or both. And while we may get our backs up at the thought of police bugging or credit rating investigators, we continue to be patsies for an army of telephone, mail and door to door snoopers wanting to know how we vote, what we eat, earn, spend or save.

Day after day, citizens innocently tell complete strangers the details of when they take their vacation, how many people occupy the home and their ages. Few have the guts to point out that it's nobody's business. Now I have no objection to anyone trying to make a living selling "free" dance lessons or offering to vacuum my carpets. I just wish they'd get around to their pitch before the milk boils over and the cat gets the canary. More than once I've been tempted to walk away from the telephone and leave them hanging.

Then there's my overburdened postman. I love him to death - but one of these days I'll be tempted to jam some of those "free" goodies down his throat. How I hate those smoky mirrors that assure me they bear news that will put me on easy street. As I rip all the envelopes, I'm bound to find at least a ten cent coupon on my purchase of fifty dollars worth of merchandise!

Time was when I could browse around a department store at my own pace, strolling around an armful of items for trying on. Today, I am intimidated by the steely eye of the TV camera watching me. I don't tuck a mattress under my coat or steal some fluff from the drying rack. When I read of the Swedish government keeping tabs on [illegible] by way of the [illegible] computers, I wonder how close we are to being stamped with an identity number on our forehead the day we are born.

How does one get on to a computer list for junk mail? There's always the telephone book, subscriptions to magazines and government questionnaires. Try misspelling your name beneath a letter to the Queen. Your junk mail will come from as far away as Red China - complete with mis-spelled name! Of course, one can always accidentally leave the telephone off the hook while taking a bath - or answer it as one's own automatic recorder. One could forget one's dignity long enough to tell them to go to Hellsinki! The point is, it should not be necessary. Just as we enact legislation to protect ourselves from car artists, so we should be protected from this gross invasion of our privacy. Of course, one might consider all this as part and parcel of the communal togetherness cult. For that very reason, more and more citizens are beginning to react more violently than they normally would.

GANDHI A MEMOIR
by William L. Shirer
Written By Chris Ejon

During the month of April, all of Hollywood focuses its eyes and attention on the Oscar Awards. This year's choice for the best picture of the year was Gandhi. For those who have not had the opportunity to see this movie, there is a new book in our library at the Camrose One World Institute written by William L. Shirer, which portrays this Indian leader.

Shirer's account of Mohandas K. Gandhi commences while Gandhi is studying law in England, during which time he becomes richly "absorbed in the Englishman's passion for political freedom". Upon returning to India, Gandhi finds that the Englishmen who rule India, regard Indians as culturally, racially, physically, and intellectually inferior. Thus begins Gandhi's long struggle for India's independence.

In achieving India's independence, Gandhi worked and lived "sat-yagrahs" or non-violence. Shirer quotes Gandhi as saying "Non-violence is the first article of my creed" As well as stressing non-violence, he also stressed the importance of truth and love. So, although Gandhi aroused the Indians to revolt against the white man's rule, this non-violent revolt, in Gandhi's eyes, was always tempered by love and truth.

In contrast to Gandhi's non-violent philosophy, the massacre of unarmed Indians gathered for a peaceful meeting on April 13, 1919, became a crucial turning point for Gandhi. Known as the Massacre at Amritsar, it showed to Gandhi that India needed independence from England. Thus, the goal of setting India free became an obsession to Gandhi and to obtain this goal he motivated people to action through this fasting, he organized boycotts of English goods, he lived a life of renunciation and simplicity and he became the centre of the Indian nationalist movement.

Finally, after considerable negotiations, India became an independent nation in 1947. After this long struggle, Gandhi who was then 79 years old, met with a sudden end by the hand of a Hindu assasin.

Mahatma ("great soul" - the title the common people of India gave him) Gandhi was one of the great leaders of the 20th century. Hopefully through Shirer's account of Gandhi's life, we who live in the Western world can develop a deep respect for Gandhi's achievements, while at the same time, appreciate India's struggle for national identity.

If you haven't had the opportunity to see the movie Gandhi, it is now showing at the Bagley Theatre in Camrose until May 6th. It'll change your life!

Decision on Crow Rate kills prairie livestock

Ed Thiessen, a director of the Alberta Feed Grain Users Association, says it appears the federal government has chosen to sacrifice the prairie livestock industry in order to retain political support in Quebec. Jean Lac Pepin, Minister of Transport, is expected to announce changes in the Crow freight rate which will include paying the crow benefit to the railways. This is despite the government's February policy announcement that the crow payment would be split 50% to producers and 50% to the railways. "It appears the government has decided to play politics rather than doing what is best economically for Canada", says Thiessen.

Thiessen says, "If the government decides to pay the Crow benefit to the railways the current distortions which discourage livestock production on the prairies will not only continue but will increase. The result will be a relocation of western industries to Quebec and decreased jobs and income for western Canadians."

The sale of livestock and its products earns Alberta farmers about $1.6 billion per year - 32% of their total cash income. This industry also has a tremendous multiplier effect in the economy through meat packing plants, feed companies, animal health products, trucking, and marketing.

Thiessen says, "The government seems prepared to sell out this important part of the prairie economy to Quebec.

The prairies will be left solely as suppliers of raw material with no opportunity for further economic development."

Barbershoppers set

The Barbershoppers are ready.

The annual show put on by Barbershoppers will be presented on Saturday night.

This year's show will be staged in the gymnasium of the Charlie Killam School and will get underway at eight o'clock.

The Rose City Chorus will be a major attraction along with the Mirror Lake Chorus.

This year's feature guest performers will be the "Jim Dandies" who hail from Burnaby, B.C.

This group was formed in 1977 and has been performing in Barbershopper shows in B.C. and the United States on a regular basis since that time.

During the coming summer, the "Jim Dandies" will be going to the State of Washington where they will be the headline performers for the Young Men in Harmony convention.

Other guest performers will be the "Peacepipers" from Wetaskiwin and the "Unbalanced Four" from Edmonton.

Reserved seats are still available and may be obtained from any Barbershopper or by calling Gordon Hay at [illegible]

GET THOSE HARD-TO-KILL WEEDS TOO!

Add Banvel to your mix and supercharge it. Get those hard-to-kill weeds like Canada thistle, cow cockle, hempnettle, and wild buckwheat, weeds that 2,4-D or MCPA alone don't even touch. Banvel added to your mix acts like a supercharger. Mixed with 2,4-D, MCPA, Sencor or Lexone, Banvel delivers effective control of Tartary buckwheat, corn spurry, pigweed and many others.

SUPERCHARGE YOUR MIX WITH BANVEL.

Spray weeds early, when they are in the seedling stage. Early control of weeds means greater yields at harvest time. Banvel in your mix means you'll get the real tough ones too. If you don't mix with Banvel, you've still got weeds.

Bingo is held

The Holden and District Agricultural Society held a successful cash bingo on Friday.

Proceeds from the bingo will be used towards operation and maintenance of the Holden Complex.

Winners were Katie Mayt, Alfred Gibson, Donna McKinney, Nick Shibinski, Ida Sychkowski, Katherine Ogonoski, Maynard Olson, Mrs. Lehman, Laurie Runnels, Calvin Story, Anne Kurka, Stella Komarnisky, Irwin Keith, Aaron Lutz, Nellie Landbo, Rose Dary, Helene Hrabec, Nancy James, Helene Hrabec, Jean Grisde, Lorna Haybida, Paul and Adeline Pelisite, Ann Scherger, Rose Dary and Anne Kurka.

Blackout was won by John Semeniuk and the door prize was won by Adolph Shimko.

Bonanza winners were Mrs. McHeffey, Ann Scherger, Sharon Mikulow, Ethel Fleming and Donna McKinney.

Ryley Pool news

The pool had a very good enrollment for it's first set of Red Cross lessons this summer. In fact, some classes were filled in various levels, and a few students had to be turned down.

We hope the public understands that we have put a maximum enrollment on the classes to keep the lesson quality and safety standards as high as possible. Please keep in mind that Red Cross lessons will be running all summer and fall with the next set beginning shortly after school holidays begin.

OTHER PROGRAMS

We have changed our "Senior Swim" to "Over 40 Swim". We hope to get a few more people out for this swim and exercise hour.

The hour is usually spent doing a few aqua exercises to music, or you are welcome to just swim or relax in the Spa. There is still a discount for seniors.

Our "Adult Swim and Exercise" is becoming popular. Wednesday from 7 to 8:30 we spend about 40 minutes of the time doing aqua exercises to music. Anyone 17 and over is welcome.

If you are planning a party or a group get-together, keep the pool in mind. It can be rented at a very reasonable price. For more details call the pool and ask for Rod.

COMING UP

Red Cross lessons will be finishing on May 11th and 13th.

If you would like to take part in some lessons yourself, the pool will be running another set of Adult Lessons beginning May 17. The lessons will run for 5 weeks on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 11 to 12 a.m.

The pool is planning a "Mid Nite Swim" for May 17. For more details watch for the ad in next week's Mercury.

ON MAY 7, OVER 6000 YOUNG PEOPLE WILL BE CLEANING UP ALBERTA'S HIGHWAYS.

Every year on a Saturday in May, a group of young Albertans make a special effort to clean up Alberta's highways.

Over 6,000 members of our 4-H Clubs and Junior Forest Wardens will take part in removing the litter left along Alberta's roadsides by careless motorists. More than 6,000 km of provincial primary highway rights-of-way will be cleaned and about 50,000 refuse bags will be filled.

This coming Saturday, May 7th, is the big day.*

Although these terrific young people will be wearing safety vests and bright clothing and supervised by their parents and leaders, you, as the operator of a vehicle that day, must be extra cautious.

Watch out for our young volunteers! Look for the road signs!

Please do your part. Use extra care and caution. Drive safely while these young people are on our highways.

They'll be working hard all day to make sure Alberta's highways are clean, neat and tidy for the summer season ahead.

The very least we can do is make sure they all return home safely Saturday night.

Lil and Ralph Leach accompanied by Bill Davenport of Tofield, motored to Kelsey where they were guests of Donna and Niel Orr and family, on Sunday. Two birthdays were celebrated, the 91st of Mr. Davenport and the other, that of Donna.

Liz Clements of Lethbridge was a guest of Gladys and Frank Swabey on Saturday and visited Joe and Eva and Doris Davenport on Sunday. She was on a pass from the Royal Alexandra Hospital in Edmonton, after having undergone surgery.

The last whist drive of the season was held on Friday evening at the Crafts Centre. It was once again a most successful one.

Prize winners were for gents: first, Joe Davenport; second, George Lee; consolation, Bob Berreckeh. Ladies: first, Jean Kleinschroth; second, Gladys Gill and consolation Betty Williams.

A lovely lunch was served by the ladies and a promise was made for more whist drives in September.

The April meeting of the Crafts Centre was held on Monday evening. A clean-up day was planned for May 11th. Garbage bags were supplied by Shell Canada and County of Strathcona for this purpose.

A report on six whist drives was given and they proved to be a profitable undertaking for the centre.

Jean Ferguson was lunch hostess to those in attendance.

The flea market and bake sale to be held at the Community Hall on Saturday, sounds interesting as plans have been completed. Lunch will be available from 10:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. A raffle is also to be held, on a bird house.

Margaret and Bruno Jonke and Edna and Glenn Ferguson enjoyed the hockey game at the Coliseum in Edmonton, between Chicago Black Hawks and Edmonton Oilers.

Handicapped are people

By Phil Bellford

Have you heard of the Approved Home Program? This is a program that provides private homes in the community for developmentally handicapped adults who are in need of training in the basic life skills. These skills are needed for the individual to gain independence.

Life skills training involves daily living activities such as cooking, doing laundry, cleaning the bedroom, shopping for groceries, or for clothing, etc. The individual is assessed to determine the areas requiring training and a training agreement is written outlining the training program.

Each family or person in the program must complete an orientation program as well as ongoing training programs, including participation in Approved Home Seminars held 3-3 times a year. They must also be willing to make a long-term commitment to the program. Assistance and direction are given by the Program Worker and the Coordinator.

To become an approved home operator, applications are completed. Approved Home Guidelines are reviewed with the Coordinator, and a Home Study is done to evaluate the home. A six month trial period is begun when a person is placed in the home. An orientation program is required prior and during this time. Final approval of the home is given providing requirements have been met.

Those in the program are over 18 years, and able to utilise the various community resources. All are involved in day activities or are employed. A 4-6 week adjustment or probationery period begins on placement in the home. Once sufficient independence has been developed, arrangements are made to move the individual to a more independent setting.

Holidays and relief that you require are your responsibility. Suggestions for various relief services in the community may be obtained from the Program Worker.

Room and Board is paid by the person placed in your home. The program administrator pays an additional amount for training and supervision on a per month basis.

If at any time you cannot continue as an Approved Home operator you must agree to give 30 days notice.

Watch for the announcement regarding public presentations on Approved Homes in the near future.

Holden and district news

by Mrs. G.H. Taylor

Pete Kawalchuk, who had been a patient in Daysland Hospital, returned home the early part of last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Lashenki who have been residing in one of the apartments at Nor-tiview Manor, have left there owing to health problems and are now residing in the Holden Senior Citizens Lodge.

Correcting an error in the report of the last Holden Historical Society bingo on April 15th, it was Ethel Breen who won the door prize not Ethel Fleming.

A former Holden resident, Mrs. Mary Pechynsk of Vegreville, passed away on Friday at the age of 88 years. She is survived by two sons, Robert Pechynsk of Vegreville and Dr. Joseph Pechynsk of Edmonton; four daughters, Mrs. John (Anne) Kyftak of Vegreville, Mrs. Lloyd (Nancy) Anderson of Prince George, B.C., Mrs. Kindy McPhail of Wainwright and Mrs. Harry (Sophie) Shyba of Holden; 16 grandchildren; numerous great-grandchildren; one brother, Jack Cherniakowski of Provost; and three sisters, Mrs. Sophie Leader, Mrs. Nancy Archniak and Mrs. Cassie Secoish, all of Vancouver, B.C. She was predeceased by her husband, William on October 28, 1972; brothers Mike and Bill; and a sister, Pearl.

Prayer service was held Sunday at Park Memorial Chapel and Divine Liturgy was held Monday in Holy Trinity Ukrainian Catholic Church in Vegreville with the Basilian Fathers officiating and interment was in Riverside Cemetery.

Ralph Brekstad of Vancouver, B.C. has been visiting with his mother, Mrs. Ethel Brekstad, for a few days.

Helen and Allan Warren and family of Edmonton have been spending a few days staying at the Mrs. Cheale Sr. home, also visiting with Helen's brother and family, the Alvin Chesnics, and her mother in the senior citizen's Lodge.

Mr. and Mrs. Mel Haas have been receiving congratulations on the birth of a baby daughter last Thursday in Tofield Hospital.

The April meeting of the Holden Friendship Group was held at the home of Mrs. Ethel Brekstad with Mrs. G.H. Taylor in charge of devotions. The minutes of the March meeting held at the home of Mrs. Taylor were read and the financial report was given. The sunshine report was given by Mrs. Carlson. Cards were signed by all to be sent to Mrs. Bess Campbell in Extendicare Nursing Home in Leduc and to Miss Jane Clark, Dawson Creek, B.C., former members. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Kate Nichols on May 26th. At the conclusion of the meeting, a lunch was enjoyed.

David A. Stuart, barrister and solicitor of Vegreville, who attends at the Village of Holden office Thursday mornings was admitted to the Bar recently by His Honour, Mr. Justice V.W.M. Smith, in Vegreville Court House. Mr. Stuart received all his elementary and secondary schooling at Holden School. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Nick Stuart of Vegreville.

Pete Lashenki is a patient in an Edmonton hospital recovering from surgery. His wife was visiting him on the weekend.

Clare Anderson and Mrs. Frances Hanson were Friday visitors in Vegreville.

Mrs. Ethel Fleming was to Camrose on Wednesday, having the cast on her leg attended to.

Mrs. Anne Scherger went to the International Airport last week to pick up her mother who had been spending a couple of weeks in Vancouver, B.C. visiting with relatives.

Ryley news

by Lorna Bell

A family gathering was held on April 30th at Dave Nells and Ella's home for a turkey dinner, the occasion being his only brother Ezra's birthday. His sisters, Clara Vergelin and Annie Lyons and two sister-in-laws were also guests.

Frank and Phoebe (Beak) Drinnan of Edmonton were guests on Saturday with Elvera in Tofield as well as her brother-in-law and wife from Ryley. Phoebe also called on Nora Stauffer at the Tofield Lodge and Phoebe and brother Kenneth went to Camrose to visit Lena Hjelzer. Frank attended the gun clubs for a while then went out to their farm.

Repair work is being done on the Legion roof and north wall.

Visitors to help Ezra celebrate his 83rd birthday were Marilyn Campbell, Stan and Ida, Fred and Ida Sauerbier, Dana and Shirley Rawden and Kristina of Camrose, Neil and Bernadette Jansen, brother David, Lorraine of Camrose and Darlene Helgeland. He received many cards and phone calls.

Marilyn Campbell brought him a birthday cake.

Henry and Jane Nieman had their son Gary and friend home on Saturday.

Sylvia Solberg and son, Nelson are home from a holiday in California.

VILLAGE OF HOLDEN

PROCLAMATION
PITCH-IN '83

Whereas litter pollutes our parks, recreational areas, beaches, highways and school grounds by defacing them to our sight, and

Whereas litter can be dangerous by causing physical harm to man and animals, and

Whereas thoughtlessness and negligence are the main contributory factors in the occurrence and spread of litter, and

Whereas the litter can be reduced by modern technology, education, streamlined enforcement and updated litter by-laws, and responsible packaging, and

Whereas the Village of Holden is concerned with the problems caused by litter and to bring it to the attention of the public it is deemed appropriate to appoint the week of May 9 to 15, 1983, as the start of the 'Pitch-In '83' campaign in the Village of Holden, and urge all citizens to co-operate with the Village of Holden in the elimination and reduction of litter and littering.

Now therefore I, Nick Shilinski, Mayor of the Village of Holden Do hereby declare the week of May 9 to 1 , 1983 as Pitch-In '83 in the Village of Holden.

Jaywalkers coming

The countdown has started. The 28th edition of Jaywalkers Jamboree is only a month away.

Traditionally, the major shopping and fun event is held on the first Friday and Saturday in June.

Because of the many bargains offered by the business community in Camrose, over 20,000 shoppers are attracted to the Rose City each year for the two-day sales event.

While many people will take advantage of the bargains and discounts being offered by the business community, there are other attractions that make Jaywalkers Jamboree an annual success.

There is usually lots of entertainment.

Music is presented by various groups, there are rides and games for youngsters and a wide variety of other events to please old and young alike.

Jaywalkers Jamboree is for pedestrians.

During the two-day event, downtown is closed to vehicular traffic, booths are erected on the streets and everyone walks.

Jaywalkers Jamboree is sponsored annually by the Camrose Chamber of Commerce.

Powerline set

The Powerline Baseball League will open the 1983 season in less than two weeks.

All eight teams have returned from last season and each will play a fourteen-game schedule with seven home dates and seven away games.

Back for a new baseball season are Armena, Bardo, Camrose, Holden, Round Hill, Ryley, Tofield and Viking.

The league's defending champions are from Camrose.

The regular schedule will begin on May 17th and the final games are slated for June 30th.

The top four teams over the regular schedule will advance to the playoffs while the other four squads will hang up their gloves for the season, except for tournament action.

Each team in the league is likely to hold a tournament during the course of the season, usually in conjunction with their local Sports Day.

Armena is a possible exception in that this team has a tournament planned for the May holiday weekend and are drafting plans for a second tournament later on in the season.

Opening games on May 17th will be played in Bardo, Holden, Round Hill and Ryley.

Caterpillar forecast

Residents in many centres in central and northern Alberta can expect severe problems with forest tent caterpillars again this year

A report prepared by the Northern Forest Research Centre of the Canadian Forestry Service of Environment Canada predicts that several areas, particularly to the north and west of Edmonton, will experience severe defoliation of trembling aspen in 1983.

The prediction is based on results obtained from a survey of egg bands which was conducted in October of 1982.

The survey involved counting the number of egg bands found on three randomly selected trembling aspen trees in each of 86 localities. The predicted defoliation levels may be reduced by unfavorable weather conditions and an increase in parasite and disease levels.

This year's survey indicates that only 43 per cent of the sampled locations in Alberta (as compared to 68 per cent in 1981) will be severely defoliated in 1983. This suggests that forest tent caterpillar populations may be declining.

If people in heavily infested areas are considering a control program this spring, Michael Dolinski, supervisor of entomology for Alberta Agriculture, suggests that they should organize locally to hire an aerial applicator to do spraying.

Ground applications, says Mr Dolinski, are difficult to do except for individual shade trees and shelterbelts.

POTASSIUM

Potassium Plays Many Roles

Potassium (K) is essential for plant growth, but its exact function in plants is not well understood. Unlike nitrogen and phosphate, potassium does not form organic compounds in the plant. However, K is a very important constituent of cell sap where its primary purpose seems to be associated with plant metabolism. For example, it is essential for plant photosynthesis, respiration and protein synthesis. It's also important in transportation of other nutrients, formation of fruit and seeds, resistance to disease, and in activating and controlling many enzymatic reactions that occur within plants.

WHY USE POTASSIUM ? 0 – 0 – 60

1. Encourages root growth and increases resistance to disease.
2. Produces larger, more uniformly distributed xylem vessels throughout the root system.
3. Increases size and quality of fruit and grains, is essential for high quality forage crops.
4. Prevents grain lodging, stiffens the straw.
5. Pamper kernals, more weight per bushel.

The Right Choice

You have all the choice in the world when it comes to insurance coverage. There are hundreds of companies, offering almost unlimited kinds of coverage. You could spend a lot of time talking to just a few of them before you decided which one was right. There is an easier way.

Contact an independent broker in your neighborhood. We're the insurance professionals. We'll spend time with you, get to know your needs and your plans. Then we'll do the research, and recommend the company and the coverage that are right for you. We hope it doesn't happen, but if you ever have a claim, we'll be there to help you settle it.

Make the right choice — work with a member of the Insurance Brokers Association of Alberta in your community!

Winnipeg
29 April, 1983

Dear Sir:

It is evident from the current leadership race of the Progressive Conservative party, and from the Prime Minister's stated intention not to lead the Liberal Party in another election, that Canadians face a new generation of political leadership who will, for good or ill, guide our Dominion's fortunes through the 1980's and beyond. A central question which must be put to all contenders for office, and especially to the leaders of parties, is as to their stance on maintaining the Constitutional Monarchy, that pillar of Canadian democracy on which rests so much of what is just and decent and traditional about our country.

Rejecting the Monarchial minimalism of the past decades, which has seen an often subtle erosion in both the substantive powers and symbolic presence of the Crown of Canada, the Monarchist League of Canada has prepared a Manifesto, listing eight reasonable demands which, we believe, Canadian loyalists should make of their public officials with respect to the Monarchy.

For instance, we want the Canadian Citizenship Act to be amended to remove any doubt that the members of our Royal Family are indeed Canadians; we wish the status of God Save The Queen as Royal Anthem to be enshrined by statute; and we wish to see the proud, indigenous name 'Dominion Day' restored as our national holiday, rejecting the sleepy duplicity by which 'Canada Day' was imposed upon us.

Readers who might wish to obtain one or more copies of this Manifesto for their own consideration and, hopefully, for passing on to their Provincial and Federal legislators, should write to The Monarchist League of Canada, 2 Wedgewood Crescent, Ottawa, Ontario K1B 4B4. We must act now to assure the future of institutions which we have too often tended to take for granted!

Yours faithfully,
John L. Aimers,
Dominion Chairman and Founder

What is a mother?

by Carol Livingstone

A mother is not just another pretty face.

A mother is a great decision maker. She decides what to feed you, whether or not your room is clean enough (it never is), when you need a bath, what time curfew should be and if your choice of dress is a good one.

A mother not only listens, she hears.

A mother is a referee, between you and your brother, you and your sister, your dog and the one next door and your dad and the television. She is a good person to have on your side when the other fellow is bigger than you.

A mother is your best friend.

A mother is a short order cook, with the ability to whip up a gourmet meal in very short order. (The fact that in your house "gourmet" means "wieners and beans" doesn't matter.)

A mother is a laundress, char woman, upstairs and downstairs maid, dustman and garbage collector, gardener, purchasing agent and manicurist, banker, cashier and creative consultant - and all with just on-the-job-training.

A mother is a medical specialist (the only one who still makes house calls) who knows all the remedies for fevers, headaches, hypochondria, cuts and scrapes and all the dreaded childhood diseases. She can spot a bogus belly-ache faster than you can make one up but the only time she really complains is when you give her your cold.

A mother has been known to kiss it "I" almost as much as you did.

A mother frowns upon all the bad habits she has when they are taken up by anyone over 30 who is still living at home.

A mother is sometimes there when you wish she wasn't, but she's always there when you need her.

A mother is dished out "one to a customer" on treat years well, and she'll last you a lifetime.

Medically Speaking

by Dr Bob Young

In recent years it has been fashionable to find euphemisms for the term dementia, as though an unpleasant diagnosis can somehow be made better by giving it a currently acceptable name. Dementia consists of a progressive loss of brain function due to deterioration or damage to brain cells. It is not reversible.

Most of us know people with some degree of dementia. They are usually older, show evidence of memory loss, disorientation, and carelessness about their personal appearance.

It is difficult to interest these people in new activities, and they have trouble learning new skills. Thinking may become rigid and inflexible, and new concepts are neither appreciated nor understood.

There are many causes of dementia, and it is important to try and reach a fairly accurate diagnosis as some forms can be helped, at least to some extent.

Alzheimer-type dementia may begin between the ages of 40 and 50, but usually occurs later. It is caused by a degenerative process and is common. Alzheimer's disease is often used as a synonym for senile dementia, but always correctly.

Loss of mental ability may be related to blockage of blood vessels in the brain, infection of the brain, swelling of the fluid-filled cavities within the brain, severe head injury, or an inherited condition called Huntington's disease.

Dementia may be caused by alcoholism, vitamin B12 deficiency, thyroid disease and several other medical conditions. Some of these cases may be improved, at least slightly, by treatment.

Even when the disease cannot be reversed, the patient may be helped. In many cases, of course, the patient is quite content and is oblivious to the changes in his or her mental function. It is the family and friends who are upset.

Many caring people have become skilled in getting the best possible performance from brain-damaged patients. It takes a certain personality type to work with these individuals – patience, both in helping and in awaiting results, is perhaps the most valuable attribute.

Medically Speaking is published with the cooperation of this newspaper and the Alberta Medical Association.

Hay Lakes district news

by Mrs A Amoroso

Lenora Johnson was honored at a bridal shower held in the Wilhelmina Lutheran Church on Friday evening. Lenora is the eldest daughter of Ardis Johnson and the late Verner Johnson. She will become the bride of Michael Forseth on May 14. The shower was hosted by the Wilhelmina Willing Workers.

Neil Johnson spent several days at Duncan, B.C. where he visited with his mother, Mrs. Mary Johnson, and a sister, Mrs. Laurona Gunn and her family.

A former resident of the Hay Lakes area, Hjalmer Sware, passed away in Camrose on April 27 at the age of 78 years. He is survived by one daughter Janice Tollefson of Camrose; two sons, Herbert of Tofield and Rodger of Sherwood Park; 19 grandchildren, 10 great-grandchildren; three sisters, Ada Miller, Edith Holmberg and Betsy Berry; two brothers, John and George Sware.

He was predeceased by his wife Myrtle in January, 1983 and a daughter, Barbara Hovelson in 1981.

Funeral services were held in Camrose on April 30 at the Messiah Lutheran Church with Pastor Mike Bergman officiating. Pallbearers were six grandsons, Darrell Sware, Terry Hovelson, Donald Sware, Larry Tollefson, Richard Sware and Dale Tollefson. Honorary pallbearers were Conrad Odegard, Algot Eliason, Clarence Sware, Julius Sware, Lorne Sware and Stanley Sware. Interment was at the Camrose Cemetery.

Hjalmer was born and raised in the Hay Lakes District. Following his marriage to Myrtle Johnson in 1931 he took up farming in the Spilstead District where they remained until their retirement to Camrose in 1963.

The Hay Lakes Lions Club will observe Mother's Day by holding a pancake, sausage and eggs breakfast on Main Street the morning of May 8 from 8 a.m. to 12 noon. If the weather is unfavorable the breakfast will be held in the basement of the Recreation Center.

The famed heather honey of Europe is so thick it will not flow out of a jar turned upside down. If the jar is shaken, however, the honey will pour easily. The phenomenon has a name — thixotrophy — and is common to certain jellylike substances.

WEATHERRADIO CANADA

A new radio station in Edmonton is being operated by Environment Canada's Atmospheric Environment Service. It continuously transmits weather information over VHF-FM Radio Ordinary AM or FM radios will NOT receive the frequency of this station which is 162.40 MHz. Crystal radios receiving VHF-FM frequencies are needed. It is suggested that equipment be tested on location before being purchased.

The station transmitter is located near Loomis, Alberta which is south of Sherwood Park and has a range of 65 km. This range should reach as far east as Holden in the County of Beaver, Mundare in the County of Lamont and New Norway in the County of Camrose.

The continuous broadcasts vary in length and may include severe weather warnings, current weather forecasts and synopsis giving background to the forecasts and long range trends. Special weather information will be broadcast for different user groups such as agriculture, utilities, recreation, construction and transportation.

Alberta Youth Employment Program

This program, recently announced by Alberta Manpower is to provide work experience for youth in the private sector. That is, small business and farmers can apply, as long as employees are not immediate family members. The program is in effect from May 2 - October 31, 1983. The wage subsidy of one half of the wage paid, to a maximum of $2.50 per hour will be paid to employers. Please note that this program is separate from the Summer Farm Employment Program.

Application forms will be available at Alberta Manpower offices and Regional offices of the Small Business and Tourism Department or phone 427-4749.

REMINDER: We now have applications available for the Summer Farm Employment Program. Please call us or drop in and pick one up.

Anhydrous ammonia info

Note: Following is some general product information on anhydrous ammonia. Supplied by Andrukow Farm Sales Ltd.

Anhydrous ammonia is made from hydrogen from natural gas and nitrogen from the atmosphere. It contains 82 per cent nitrogen and weighs 6 lbs. per gallon at 27 degrees Celsius

As a gas, ammonia is lighter than air under normal conditions of temperature and pressure but may not rise from ground level under certain atmospheric conditions

To be stored as a liquid, ammonia must be either refrigerated to minus 33 degrees Celcius or else kept under pressure. Above this temperature, it boils or changes from a liquid to a vapor.

Ammonia is colorless as either a gas or liquid. However, under many conditions a cloud of water vapour will indicate the presence of the product.

Ammonia has a tremendous affinity for water and will remove moisture from any surface with which it comes in contact.

Although anhydrous ammonia is classed as a non-flammable compressed gas, it may burn when exposed to open flame under ideal conditions.

When a person is subjected to a medium concentration of ammonia ranging from 400 (4/100 per cent) to 700 (7/100 per cent) parts per million, it will cause irritation to the eyes and throat. Although there may be no direct adverse effects from concentrations in this range, exposure should be avoided.

Exposure to concentrations over 2,000 parts per million or 2/10 per cent are prohibited as they may be fatal after a short exposure.

High concentration of ammonia in the 5,000 parts per million range will cause convulsive coughing, respiratory spasms, strangulation and asphyxiation. At this level, even a short exposure is rapidly fatal.

Water, and lots of it, is the only first aid required for ammonia burns.

Handling anhydrous ammonia without an abundance of water is like skiing down a hill with your eyes closed - you may get away with it, but why take the chance.

Ryley has winners

by Ron Kroetsch

grade five students were presented with cash awards for their winning poems written during Dental Month, held in April.

Sandy Tillitson, Dental Hygienist from the Vegreville Health Unit, made the presentation to Marcy Kushnir and Shawna-Mae Ogonski in their Ryley classroom last Friday.

Marcy Kushnir was presented with $25 and a plaque for her first prize poem entitled Dental Decay.

Shawna-Mae Ogonski received $15 as second prize for her poem The Tooth Fairy Strikes Again.

The grand prize for the contest was awarded to Collin Elkow of Two Hills.

First and second prizes were chosen within each of the four counties, Lamont, Beaver, Two Hills and Minburn, by Suzanne Walker of the Dental Division of Community Health in Edmonton.

She then chose the grand prize winner from the best of all four counties.

Money for the contest was donated by each of the counties involved.

CLBI Bill introduced

... by Stromberg

The Canadian Lutheran Bible Institute Amendment Act has been introduced in the Provincial Legislature by MLA Gordon Stromberg.

The bill has received first reading and is now before the Private Bills Committee of the Legislature for consideration before being brought back to the Legislature for further action.

Stromberg told The Canadian that he did not expect the bill to return to the Legislature until about the end of the month (May).

The bill was first introduced to the Legislature for consideration last spring but, ran into difficulty and was deferred to the fall sitting and was further delayed until this year when there was no fall sitting of the Legislature.

The basic purpose of the amending act is to change the existing Act to incorporate the Canadian Lutheran Bible Institute, which was originally passed in 1947.

While a number of minor changes in the original act are being proposed, there are two major revisions that will receive consideration.

One change being sought would give CLBI the power to grant degrees in divinity

The other major change could result in all real and personal property owned by CLBI in the City of Camrose, which is used for religious educational purposes or, as residences by students and staff, being exempt from all taxes, rates and assessments of every nature and kind, except for local improvements and frontage tax.

The CLBI bill is the second introduced to the Legislature in recent weeks by Stromberg.

The other bill was introduced on April 22nd and could grant Camrose Lutheran College the right to grant academic degrees.

That bill has also received first reading and is expected to return to the Legislature for further action later this month (May).

First place

Marcy Kushnir is presented a cash award of $25 and a plaque for her winning poem Sandy Tillitson, of the Vegreville Health Unit, made the presentation

Hand writing wanted

A hand writing competition is now underway in Alberta.

This competition is open to all age groups.

According to the organizers, the competition is for school children of all ages and for any adult living in the province.

Certificates of merit will be presented to the winners and the winning entries will be displayed at the Calgary Stampede and Edmonton Klondike Days.

Entries must contain a minimum of ten lines of writing and must be on a sheet of white 8½ x 11 inch paper.

The entry should show the county and date on the upper left corner of the sheet and the name, address and postal code of the contestant in the bottom right corner of the page.

The deadline for submitting entries is June 1st and only one entry per person is permitted.

All entries should be forwarded to Hector Elliott, Box 189, Cremona, T0M 0R0.

The competition is being held under the sponsorship of the County of Mountain View Board of Education.

ANGLERS 1983 LICENCES REQUIRED NOW

Please Note Changes in the 1983 Angling Regulations

1. New regulations on the Bow River from the east side of Calgary to the Carseland Weir, require the angler to release all trout over 40 cm fork length back to the river. No natural baits will be allowed, only artificial lures and flies.
2. Six small alpine lakes in Kananaskis Country have been added to the list of High Mountain Lakes which have a daily and possession limit for trout of 2 and 4 respectively.
3. Senior Citizens (over 65 years old) have been exempted from purchasing a Trophy Lake Licence or a Spearfishing and Bowfishing Licence.

For complete information and angling licences please visit your nearest Fish and Wildlife office.

AND REMEMBER

- Licences must be produced upon request by a Fish and Wildlife Officer.
- Regulations controlling the use of boats are in effect on a number of lakes and can be obtained from any Fish and Wildlife or Forestry office, RCMP, municipal and county office.
- Two dollars from the sale of each angling licence will go towards the Buck for Wildlife Fund.

Report from Parliament Hill

by Hon. Don Mazankowski
P.C., M.P.

New Initiatives Announced in Budget

On April 19th, Mr. Lalonde presented his budget to the House of Commons. Contained in the budget were a number of initiatives that the Finance Minister hopes will encourage economic recovery.

Special Recovery Program

Mr. Lalonde announced a $4.8 billion dollar recovery program consisting of $2.4 billion for public works and $2.4 billion in tax cuts and funding to support business investment. The latter includes major changes to the federal investment tax credit and increased export development funding.

For small businesses, Mr. Lalonde announced that, in order to improve their cash flow positions between now and April, 1986, 40% of all unused investment tax credits will be refunded.

Agriculture

The Budget provided $100 million for the Farm Credit Corporation to assist farmers in financial distress. This money, loaned at 8¾% for the first two years, will help farmers refinancing their existing debt. Additionally, the budget will allow farmers to reduce their taxable income by carrying losses back three years and forward ten years.

HOUSING

Mr. Lalonde allocated $355 million for housing initiatives including the continuation of the $3000 grants available under the Renovation Plan and the Home Ownership Stimulation Plan. Mr. Lalonde also changed the RHOSP to permit, for 1983 only, partial withdrawals to purchase furnishings and appliances and to allow individuals buying a newly-built home before the end of 1982 to deduct from their taxable income the amount needed to raise their RHOSP to the $10,000 maximum.

Child Benefits

The budget contained several changes to the child benefits in the tax system including the doubling of the Child Care Expenses Deduction to $2000 per child. The child tax credit will be maintained at its $343 level. However, Mr. Lalonde also deindexed the level at which the child tax credit is phased-out.

Employment and Productivity

Mr. Lalonde provided $710 million for direct job creation, including another $180 million for NEED, $85 million for Youth Wage Subsidy and $70 million for summer student employment. To address the issue of productivity, the Minister proposed to establish a national productivity centre and also released proposed research and development tax incentives for further discussion.

Outlook

Overall, the budget will not have a significant impact on unemployment, predicted to be 12.4% this year. There is considerable concern that the $31.3 billion deficit will cause interest rates to rise again, thereby threatening any economic recovery in the long-term.

In the short-term, the initiatives should improve the investment climate somewhat and improve the attitudes of the private sector. Because there is an entrenched lack of consumer and investor confidence, however, it is difficult to accurately predict the degree to which this budget will improve our economic fortunes.

As one analyst suggests, it is a budget of short-term gain for long-term pain.

Concert planned

The Tofield Dance Class is preparing for its fifth annual concert entitled 'Showtime A La Carte' to be held March 15.

The performance will start at 2 p.m. and will be held in the Tofield Community Centre.

The students range in age from three to 13 years-old. All students will be performing in tap, jazz and ballet.

There will also be participants from Sherwood Park School of Dance involved in the concert.

Awards will be given to the most improved dancers.

Hastings Lake

by Vicki Whalley

The Hastings Lake Playschool recently purchased six new chairs which were desperately needed for the tots. The playschool will hold a bake sale at the next Farmer's Market, May 13th, to finance other such projects, and to assist the community in hall operation.

The Community Association held a very successful Spring Fever dance on April 30th, and hope to plan a similar event in the fall.

There will be an auction sale at Mrs. Emma Polsfoot's farm on Saturday, May 7th, at 11:00 a.m.

During the summer months, anyone wishing to include community news in this column, please contact Vicki Whalley at 662-3732.

Looking for an appropriate Mother's Day gift? Consider giving Mom a gift certificate for some well earned time off this summer.

A registration for Alberta Women's Week costs just $15.00 and ensures her three days of fun, fellowship and learning. This years keynote speakers are Ethel Marliss of CBC radio, Edmonton and Ruth Benedict, Managing Editor of Farm Wife News.

Alberta Women's Week, held annually at Olds College, is scheduled for July 18-21. Accommodation is available at Olds College and there is a children's program for children aged 3-8 years.

Present Mom with a gift certificate for the $15.00 registration fee and she can register in the program through this office.

Other ideas for a summer break for Mom are courses offered at college campuses such as Lakeland College in Vermilion. They offer a variety of classes including art, weaving, quilting, photography, pottery, flower arranging and even Kyak construction. Courses run for 4 days and accommodation and a children's program are available at the college.

For more information and a registration form, phone this office or Vermilion at 853-2971.

Give Mom a break this summer.

HOME IMPROVEMENT SHOW

Be sure to stop by the Home Improvement Show at the Tofield Legion Hall on Saturday, May 7. Displays concerning every aspect of home improvement will be set up. I will be setting a display of publications that are available free from this office. Hope you can make it.

BETWEEN THE COVERS

It is amazing what the price of a postage stamp will bring. The Library in Tofield has recently begun a mail campaign to update its files on many topics such as industry, foreign countries, government publications, etc. Now the returns are beginning to flow in, providing much interesting reading for the Pamphlet File. Nearly every foreign embassy we have written to has responded generously with current information on their country, colourful and informative. The Belgian consulate has even sent several art books in hard cover.

Chambers of Commerce of major North American cities and numerous Canadian Associations are next on our list. Come and browse through our filing cabinets some time to see what a postage stamp can buy.

If you wish to try the same yourself, you might be interested in the book Free Stuff for Kids, which lists over one hundred free or nominally priced items and brochures to send for. Children always enjoy receiving mail at any time. Adults might want to look through the Canadian Almanac and Directory on our Reference shelf for addresses connected with their areas of interest, to send for pertinent free information. This book lists sports associations, hobby groups, commercial concerns and much, much more.

Please note that the Library will be closed on May 24, for the long weekend (open on Saturday as usual). Books normally due on that date, will be due on May 25 instead.

HERE'S AN INVESTMENT WITH A GOOD RETURN.
ALBERTA YOUTH
Hiring young people could be one of the best investments you'll make this summer.
Alberta's youth want the opportunity to gain valuable work experience and training that will prepare them for future permanent employment.
The program.
The Alberta Youth Employment Program works with private sector employers to help youth through the Business and Farm Support element. If you operate an Alberta business or farm and can employ our youth for a minimum of three months, you may receive a subsidy of up to $2.50 per hour per employee. Jobs which provide skill development and training should be in addition to your regular full-time staff. New employees must be 15 years of age or older, and legally entitled to work in Canada.
Timing.
The program starts May 2, 1983 and ends October 28, 1983. You have until July 15, 1983 to submit your application.
What to do.
To participate you may obtain brochures and application forms from regional offices of Alberta Manpower and Alberta Tourism and Small Business.
For further information, call any of the following Alberta Manpower Offices:

Last rites are held for Margaret Bruce

Funeral services for Margaret Isabella Bruce, (nee Cookson) of Nanaimo, B.C., who passed away March 17, following a lengthy illness were held March 24 in St. Andrew's United Church, Nanaimo, with Rev. Robert Gates officiating.

Memorial services were held in the Tofield United Church on March 30 with Rev. Dan Newell officiating.

Interment followed in the Tofield Cemetery.

Margaret was an oldtimer of the Tofield area. She was born in 1920, in the farm home of her parents, Edmund and Olive Cookson, of the Lindbrook District.

Following the death of her father in 1925, she moved with her family to her Grandmother Ingram's homestead in the Woodlawn District, where she received her education.

In 1942, she was married to Hugh Bruce, also of this district, and lived and worked in Edmonton, until returning to farm at Lindbrook in 1960.

She moved with her husband and daughter to Vancouver Island in 1970, and in Nanaimo enjoyed her church work at St. Andrew's United Church, where she was also a member of the Senior Choir.

She was predeceased by husband Hugh, and one foster daughter, Lynne Ducharme.

She is survived in loving memory by her daughter, Linda, of Nanaimo; Garry and Rose and grandson, Chad; and granddaughters, Laurel and Melissa, also of Nanaimo; Gerald and Lynn and granddaughter, Kristy, of Tofield; one sister, Nola Ferguson of Tofield; one brother, Lloyd Cookson of Edmonton; and numerous nieces, nephews, and friends.

CARD OF THANKS

The families of Margaret Bruce would like to thank everyone for the cards, calls, flowers, and memorials. For their love and fellowship, we would like to thank these folks in Nanaimo and area. Medical staff, Naniamo Regional General; Cliff and Helen Hunter; Frank and Verna Bridges; Jo Magda and Tony; Jean Cook; Daphne Eytcheson; Lyle and Audrey Coverdale; Jim and Leona Bruce; Uncle Ed Ingram; Aunt Margaret Grossman; Mr. and Mrs. Sandy Robinson; Mr. and Mrs. Ray Dumont; Rev. Robert Gates; The Honorary Pallbearers; The Senior Choir and congregation of St. Andrew's United Church.

For every kindness and support we would like to thank these folks in the Tofield area. Cornie and Martha Dyck; Ed and Nola Ferguson; Tofield Legion; the pallbearers, Bruce Astley, Edmund Ferguson, Paul Kallal, Clifford Knudslien, George Lee, and Brian Soleski; Rev. Dan Newell; Jan Addison; Gordon Dyck; Aaron Poelticker; Arnold Weber; and the congregation of the Tofield United Church. We thank you all, most sincerely.

Lakeshore-McKenzie

by Ellen Eaton

On Monday of last week, Floyd and Grace Hubbard of Lavoy called on Grace's aunt, Ellen Eaton and took her to Edmonton to visit Grace's aunt and Ellen's sister, Mrs. Grace Hallett who is a resident in the Agnes McGregor Nursing Home.

On Tuesday evening of last week, the Tofield United Church held a service in the Senior Citizen's Lodge with the Lakeshore U.C.W. of Tofield donating new large print hymnals to the Lodge. They also served lunch after the service.

Nelson and Ren-Ai and children of Sherwood Park were weekend visitors at the home of Nelson's mother, Mrs. Mae Ferguson, helping Mae celebrate her birthday on Sunday.

Another long-time resident of the Lakeshore District has passed away following a lengthy illness. Mrs. Grace Phillips, wife of Neil Phillips, passed away on April 18th in the University Hospital in Edmonton. She leaves to mourn her loss, her husband Neil, their two daughters, Barbara and Sandra; grandchildren; and several cousins and other relatives. The funeral was held in the Tofield United Church with a large crowd of relatives and friends in attendance. Quite a number of relatives and teacher friends came from all over the province and also B.C.

On Sunday Marg Eaton and her girlfriend Lynn of Edmonton, were guests with Marg's parents, Leroy and Shirley Eaton and son Ron, at the Eaton farm. Later in the evening, they called on Marg's grandmother, Ellen Eaton. Also calling were Ellen's son, Leroy, Shirley and son.

On Monday morning, Ellen's grandson, Brian Eaton and his friend Ray Jenkins of Edmonton, called on her. Also calling for a short time following the funeral were Ivan and Annie Phillips of Edmonton and Annie's niece Marj Dafoe.

Eddie and Nola Ferguson were Monday evening callers at the home of Eddie's aunt, Mae Ferguson, to wish her a happy birthday.

Several ladies called on Mae Ferguson on Monday afternoon bringing with them the usual lunch to help Mae celebrate her birthday. Among those at the celebration were Mickey Niemetz, Della Brown, Katie Bungan, Barb and Sydney Gosgiein, Diane Picula, Mary Schroeder, Edna Jones and Isabel Rudacki. Her granddaughter, Wanda Weir, was also there on Monday.

Gymnasts compete

On Saturday, the Tofield Gym Club participated in a gym meet in Fort Saskatchewan, which saw clubs from Sherwood Park, Fort Saskatchewan and Holden participating. Tofield emerged winners in several categories.

The Wild Oat Solution:
New, improved Carbyne 2EC.
New, double strength Carbyne 2EC stops wild oats early, in the 2 leaf stage, before they start to steal yields in your wheat, barley or rapeseed. Carbyne 2EC's low cost and effectiveness in controlling wild oats gives you maximum yields at minimum cost. In comparison trials with competitive wild oat herbicides such as Mataven, Hoe-Grass, and Avenge, the yield increase with Carbyne combined with its low cost resulted in the highest net profit return per acre. Proven performance makes Carbyne 2EC your best value in wild oat control.

The case against user fees

User fees will be charged in Alberta hospitals beginning October 1. From that day on there will be a conflict between Albertans and the provincial government as to whether or not the sick should be directly financing health care.

It is interesting to note that MLAs have received more complaints about cigarette tax than about the proposed user fees. one could draw many conclusions from that, but an immediate conclusion is that there is an appalling lack of dialogue between the people and the provincial government, and the provincial government and federal government about the financing of health care.

Health care is underfunded. The governments maintain that the system is abused and that there is no money to continue funding the present type of system. The few members of the public who have voiced opposition to user fees state that the government has wasted funds and grants and the administration is not efficient.

The philosophy behind Canada's health care is that universal care should be provided on the same terms and conditions to all. In provinces such as Ontario and Alberta, coverage is provided to those with premium-paid insurance. This overall philosophy, which is supposedly the bulwark of the system, is barely what it was when first established and obviously changes are desparately needed.

Fully established in the mid-1960s, Canada's health care philosophy was not only supported by Canadians, but also by members of the medical profession. Doctors knew a health insurance would guarantee regular payment and would eliminate bad debts. As well, low-income Canadians would have access to health care.

Naturally, health insurance has benefited poor Canadians, and the poor used medical facilities more frequently than they did before health insurance was established.

But it doesn't follow that when user fees are implemented the abuse of the system will cease. It's logical to assume that when covered under an insurance program the poor will utilize health services, but presumptuous to assume that they are the abusers of the system.

Who is the abuser?

User fees were implemented in Saskatchewan between 1968 and 1971 and they did not deter people from seeking hospital care. The number of hospital admissions and the average length of a patient's stay did not decline when daily charges were in effect; nor did hospital use increase after the fees were removed, reported Robin Badgley and David Smith in the book User Charges For Health Services.

None of this is surprising, considering a person can only be admitted to hospital by a doctor. Saskatchewan's user charges did reduce the use of doctors' services, but only among low-income residents.

Also, it's reported that the only type of medical services that showed an increase after the introduction of direct charges was the complete examination. Doctors may have predicted user charges would decrease the number of patients seeking his services, and therefore his earnings.

However, at the same time, it seems unreasonable in today's economic climate to expect insured health services funded by Canadians only through taxes and the government should examine more thoroughly ways in which revenue can be increased.

An obvious way in this province would be to implement a mandatory seat-belt law. Also, extremely harsh measures should be taken against the drunken driver.

Such measures would be beneficial in two ways: government revenue would increase through fines, for obviously there would still be those insistant on breaking the law, and, more importantly, fatal accidents would decrease and thus so would the use of health services.

As well, the provincial government should monitor those in higher income brackets who are not paying Alberta Health Care Premiums. Health Care Minister Dave Russell says millions of dollars are lost each year because a percentage of Albertans do not pay their premiums - yet health care is still accessible, whether premiums are paid or not.

Homecare is another area in which funds could be saved. Homecare should be encouraged, considering this province has the highest rate of people in institutions.

Russell predicts that between $17.8 million and $32.6 million will be raised annually through user fees. No doubt there are Albertans who can afford to pay the $20 a day user fee, the $10 outpatient fee, the $10 admitience fee and the $10 emergency fee.

What about those who can't? Obviously the government has disgarded all social responsibility in making its decision to implement user fees.

One third of the population will be exempt from paying user fees. Those exempt will include people in a low income bracket, (individuals earning less than $3,000 and families less than $4,000), seniors, children under the age of six, and those with long term illnesses.

However, poor is an extremely relative term today. Will a family of six earning $15,000 annually having many financial commitments not be considered poor? What things will people deny themselves to afford healthcare?

Hospitals are limited in the ways the user fees may actually be used; a hospital may cover a deficit, fund bad debts or fund purchases of a one-time nature that do not result in ongoing operating expenses.

Maybe hospital Boards should also seek permission to use the user fees to cover the administration of this fee system, which will no doubt increase administration costs and also the number of unpaid bills.

Federal Health Minister Monique Bégin's plan to withhold $353 million in funds if user fees are implemented is questionable. In 1979 Bégin forced New Brunswick to abandon its plan to implement hospital user fees. However, in this case, Alberta and Ottawa are once again testing political strength. Withholding funds would only increase friction between the two, and push the possibility of any type of solution further into the political sphere.

By placing health care costs directly on the individual, the Alberta government is removing some of its own responsibility and thus the way is clear for costs to increase further: the main burden of increasing costs will be carried ultimately - economically and healthwise - by those who cannot afford to pay more.

4-H holds tour

by Lori Brown

Members of the Tofield 4-H Beef Club held their annual tour to see each others' calves, on April 23rd.

The tour began at the Marshall Elaniuk farm. At noon, members were treated to a hot meal at the home of Charles and Aileen Ray.

The tour ended at the Howard Brown farm where a practice judging was held.

Joe Brown gave a chipping demonstration.

All the members were present.

Highway clean-up will be held all day on Saturday, beginning at 9 a.m., at the Lindbrook corner.

The next meeting of the Tofield 4-H Beef Club will be on May 11th.

Correction

In the story 'Holden, Ryley not in Fire Proposal', certain facts were reported inaccurately.

It was reported that Holden and Ryley wouldn't be participating in the first phase of the revamped fire prevention and communications system being sought.

Beaver County Fire Chief Laurie Weatherhill said Monday that Holden and Ryley haven't been approached yet to see if they are willing to consider the proposal.

He said he was concerned that Ryley and Holden be considered in the present proposal so that they can, in the future, be able to take part if they wanted to.

It was also reported that Tofield and Viking had agreed to participate in the new proposal.

Weatherhill said they have only shown a willingness to look at the proposal to see if it's feasible to go ahead with it.

The Mercury apologizes for any inconveniences caused by these errors.

Hay Lakes district news

by Mrs. A. Arnston

The Hay Lakes Senior Citizens sponsored a bingo in their center last Friday evening. Prize winners were Gus Lochmen, Alex Maruzak, Ted Berkholtz, Thomas Pomeroy, Mrs. Carl Gelsema, Harriette Pomeroy (twice), Christine Webster, Les Webster (twice). The blackout bingo was won by Ann Douglas.

A lively time was had at the Hay Lakes School gymnasium on Sunday afternoon when 120 dancers from far and near gathered for a square dance jamboree. The event was sponsored by the Hay Lakes Hillbilly Swingers with music supplied by the Coulter Country Cousins orchestra. Visiting groups came from Olds, Didsbury, Ridgewood, Edmonton, Wetaskiwin, Sherwood Park, Camrose, Colchester and New Sarepta. During the afternoon Gail Winder, president of the Hay Lakes Swingers, voiced a welcome to the guests. On behalf of the Village, Councillor Ron Romychuk also voiced a welcome. A spoof greeting was delivered by a member of the Hay Lakes Club who was dressed in ragged clothing and introduced himself as the mayor of this little hillbilly town. Three prize draws were made and these were won by Mr. and Mrs. E. Jacobsen of Olds, Jock and Eva Blouin of the Edmonton Spinning Wheels Club, Gerard and Angele Boucher of the Edmonton Country Cousins. Following the afternoon of dancing a pot luck supper was served. This concludes the square dancing activities at Hay Lakes until the fall season.

The Hay Lakes and District Fish and Game Association held their annual supper and awards night in the Recreation Center on Saturday evening.

Approximately 80 people attended the event. Following the supper two colorful and interesting wildlife films were shown. Wanda Grahn and Marg Arnston acted as projectionists.

Walter Busenius, president of the Hay Lakes Association, acted as emcee for the evening. Trophy chairman Marvin Schultz made the trophy presentations as follows: Ladies trapshoot - Dana Grue, Men's trapshoot - Wally Schultz, Junior trapshoot - Ken Kadatz, predators - Russell Beattie, wildlife photography - Magnus Arnston, male deer - Wally Schultz, whitetail deer - Gerry Busenius, antelope - Bruce Busenius, moose - Albert Lechell, Jr., goose - George Kupka, duck - Vern Busenius. Prizes were also given to the winners of the recent curling bonspiel, the Bruce Busenius rink and the Jerry Busenius rink who were tied for first place with identical scores.

Walter Busenius reported that all 17 students had passed the exams of the hunter training course which was recentlys held at Hay Lakes. The certificates will be presented at the next Fish and Game outing which will be a trap shoot on May 15. Members of the Camrose Archery Club will also be present to give a demonstration of archery.

The Hay Lakes Municipal Library will hold their annual tea, bake sale, plant and shrub sale on May 14 in the Senior Citizens Center. Donations of baking and plants very much appreciated.

RYLEY SCHOOL

Preparation and organization is well underway for the graduation.

The graduation will be held on May 14th in the Community Hall.

There will be graduation exercises and a dance proceeding. Everyone is welcome to the exercises and the dance.

The banquet can be attended only through invitation. The theme this year is "Up Where We Belong".

The school year is almost over and Track and Field events come around at this time.

The county meet is planned for May 18th. The students have already begun to train and prepare for the meet and that will be held in Viking.

Tofield goes metric

Tofield area food stores are scheduled to convert their scales to weigh food in grams and kilograms during the second half of May.

A Metric Commission Canada spokesman says the conversion is part of the national changeover from Imperial units like pounds, ounces, yards, miles, gallons and degrees Fahrenheit to metres, kilometres, litres and degrees Celsius that began in 1970.

Shoppers have bought prepackaged food in metric units for several years, often without recognizing the change. But now, in the last stage of conversion to worldwide measurement, items of all kinds, items that are individually weighed in stores will also be purchased on a metric basis.

Items affected include meat, poultry, fish, cheese, fruit, vegetables, nuts and candy. To make this possible, scales in all local stores will be changed to metric during the conversion period in this area as part of the Canada-wide program.

The changeover began simultaneously in 21 areas across Canada in January, 1982 and is now covering the rest of the country progressively in the two-year period to the end of 1983.

From the start date of conversion in this area, grocery advertising will show prices in both metric and Imperial units. Under the provisions of the Weights and Measures regulations, advertising stating prices in both metric and Imperial units will be allowed to continue until the end of December. After this date, metric units will be used exclusively.

Metric Commission Canada has prepared an extensive public awareness program. As part of it, information pamphlets and posters will be available in the stores to help shoppers adapt to metric units.

Fair is a hit

by Ian Crockford

The first Beaver County Improvement Fair was considered a success by the public as well as the businesses involved, said Josie Aubrey of Aspen Textiles.

Aubrey estimated that approximately 400 people were in to tour the displays in the Legion Hall.

Originally between 16 and 18 businesses were to have a display at the fair. But, because of the short period of time each business had to get ready for the fair, some businesses just couldn't be ready in time, said Aubrey.

Aubrey said because of the success of this fair the businesses plan to hold another one next year. She said that they plan to give everyone involved several months ahead to get ready for it.

At the fair, every business had a table set up to show people what services were available to the community.

Aubrey said that most people commented on the professional way the fair was put together. Others commented that they hadn't been aware of the services available in their own community, said Aubrey.

Other displays at the fair included a display from the Home Economist featuring home improvements, a display from the public library featuring books available on home improvement and a display from Rural Crime Watch.

Door prizes were given out to the winners of the draw herein that were sitting at each business's display table.

The winners are:

- Dorothy Sucky, winner of a decorator rod from Aspen Textiles.
- Paula Bauer, winner of a carpet rake from County Cleaning.
- M. Nertin, winner of a glass planter from K & K Glass.
- Rose Kondelkan, winner of a Cuisinart from Hilda's Workshop.
- Alberta Watt, winner of fabric purchase from Prince Upholstery.
- Clarice Stephens, winner of carpet art from Tofield Floor Centre.
- Elizabeth Devesson, winner of a tool set from H. Cornelius and Sons.
- Sharon Nordahl, winner of a miniature greenhouse from Greatest Little Greenhouse.
- Floyd Irwin, winner of a paint and applicator set from Especially for You.

Holden holds graduation

by Alex Skowronski

Twenty-one students participated in graduation ceremonies at Holden High School on Saturday.

The evening began with a banquet in the Holden Community Hall and the graduating ceremony followed in the Beaver Regional Arts Centre.

Members of the 1983 graduating class included Lorne Calkins, Annette Chrystian, Kary Dewart, Blair Ewasiuk, Tina Komarnisky, Kim Kowalchuk, Michelle Kowalchuk, Lynn Kraus, Donna Laing, Keith Laube, Mikhael Lutz, Laura MacGregor, Wayne Marko, Sean McKibbin, Trey McKibbin.

Christine Micklich, Randy Pannak, Brenda Shyba, Darlene Steinwand, Annette Stuart and Marty West.

During the banquet, Mayor Nick Shkindel, on behalf of the village, extended congratulations to the members of the graduating class while the toast to Queen Elizabeth II was extended by Kim Kowalchuk and grace was offered by Rev. Sid Haugen.

Tributes to the Board of Education, parents, teachers and graduands were paid by Donna Laing, Laura MacGregor, Tina Komarnisky and Beatrice Frederick with replies coming from Victor Romaniuk, John MacGregor, Darlene Gallinger and Mikhael Lutz.

Derek Burden was the master of ceremonies for the graduation exercises.

Valedictorian was Christine Micklich while the guest speaker was MLA John Setiuk and Principal Oleh Shykora spoke briefly.

The ATA Local award for highest matriculation was presented to Christine Micklich and the Order of the Royal Purple for second highest marks went to Annette Stuart.

The general student award went to Darlene Steinwand and was presented by the Holden and District Agricultural Society. Holden and District Chamber of Commerce, Holden High School Students Union, National Farmers Union and the Holden Branch of the Royal Canadian Legion.

Brenda Shyba was the runner-up in this category and was presented with her award by the Bruce Agricultural Society.

The award to the student who contributed most to school spirit was given to Lynn Kraus and Christine Micklich and was presented by the BPO Elks and Holden High School Students Union.

Sean McKibbin was presented with a trophy for outstanding citizenship with the award being contributed by the Holden High School Students Council.

Karen Danecik and Jody Lutz were presented with trophies from the Mrs. Laura Savoie Estate, for their work in French.

Scrolls were presented by Oleh Shykora and the plaques were presented by Wayne Marko, president of the Holden High School Students Union.

On behalf of the County of Beaver, Victor Romaniuk presented a gift to the school, which was accepted by Annette Chrystian.

Dog catcher is retained

by Ken Kroetsch

Wanderlust Kennels Ltd. have been hired as the new dog catcher for the Town of Tofield, says Neil Brodie.

Wanderlust Kennels started last Monday and is doing a door to door check to ensure that dogs are licensed.

Random patrols will be made through the community to pick up stray dogs and dogs that aren't licensed, says Brodie.

Brodie says that he feels the new dog catcher should do a better job with their location close to Tofield.

Construction to start

by Ken Kroetsch

Tofield Town Council was told Monday night that construction on the new senior citizen's drop-in centre could start as early as June 1st.

Robert Scott, president of the Tofield Golden Club, told council they are taking bids on material, a supervisor for the construction, and for the subcontracting such as plumbing and heating.

Also applications are being taken for laborers and will soon be processed. Three men will be hired to work on the project.

The new senior citizen's drop-in centre will be built on to the old fire hall, along the west side and extending south toward the street.

This project has been three years in the planning and should be completed by this time next year.

The land and the fire hall will be leased from the Town of Tofield.

Clean-up held

by Ken Kroetsch

This year, as in past years, Holden School children were seen last Thursday picking up garbage around the community.

The arbor day clean-up day in Holden's participation in the national outdoors and litter week.

Kindergarten classes to grade nine classes, and special education classes took part in the clean-up.

Several garbage bags were given out by the government. The rest of the bags were supplied by the Village of Holden at a cost of $25.

Each part of the community was divided up, with a class assigned to each of the designated areas to pick up garbage.

Pitch in

No time should be lost in congratulating the thousands of citizens who joined forces in the highways litter clean-up program last Saturday.

From main highways to sideroads there were 4-H'ers, students, adults, leaders, all interested in helping set a good example and contribute to the program of cleaning up our roadsides.

Driving along the roads, it was like going from night into day in driving though an area not yet cleaned up by these willing workers, into one that had been scoured.

And the litter they found!

It's almost impossible to describe the range of material as they filled those black plastic garbage bags, generously donated by Shell Oil, who have sparkplugged this campaign for years.

One thing seems certain: the efforts they contributed will impress almost indelibly on those young minds the desirability of keeping our country-side clean by finding appropriate places to "Pitch In" rather than despolling their heritage by "Pitching it out". In fact, we'll bet they'll be less than tolerant of their friends and neighbors who are so inconsiderate in future. After all that hard work!

Agriculture is my business declares Leroy Fjordbotten

After months of movement toward comprehensive reform of the Crow Rate, the federal government is now pulling one of the most unconstructive about faces of our time

Rumours of past weeks have now become fact — the West, Alberta, is the loser in a political post-party contest fought in another part of Canada.

Blaming any one individual is difficult I think. Mr Pepin, the federal Minister of Transport, has fought long and hard in support of several principles we believe would be in Alberta's best interests

However, as strong an individual and Minister as Mr Pepin may be, even he could not continue to fend off the strong lobbies that were marshalled to prevent paying producers a proper share of the Crow Benefit

Two of the principles at stake are especially critical

One — distortion in the national agricultural economy past economic gain through political action does not remain and those gains be retained now or recognized in the future But that is happening, and it is not right

Two — looking out for the future that has really been ignored. Indeed, if you look closely at most arguments against proper Crow reform, you would think Western Canadian agriculture is a lost cause, that we're uncompetitive and unproductive

We aren't

Regardless, the federal government intends to increase rail transport rates. What we must seek is a solution that offers the farmer the best opportunity, now and in the future

The answers being offered are in many cases terribly shortsighted

After indications came to us that the federal government was considering unacceptable legislation to reform the Crow, we sent the following telex:

• • • •

May 2, 1983

TO: Honourable Jean Luc Pepin
Minister of Transport

Mr. Pepin.

We are greatly concerned with reports emanating from Ottawa suggesting the collapse of the Western Transportation Initiative According to those reports, you have been instructed to make major revisions to your February 8, 1982 position to the proposed legislation such that 100% of the Crow benefit would be paid to the railways

Should this be the case, that none of this benefit is paid directly to producers, Canada will lose the opportunity to make market responsive improvements to both the grain handling system and to the economic development potential in Western Canada. This is unfortunate in the extreme because this would have been a very major move by your administration of substantial benefit to Western Canada.

We in Alberta have a strong industry, with the potential to be stronger. However, the impact of changes mean:

1. The economic distortions which inhibit the development of the Western Canadian livestock and processing industries will continue to exist, and in all likelihood will be exaggerated.
2. Farmers will be unable to develop or to benefit directly from system efficiencies that could result from the commercial operation of a compensatory rate structure. The opportunity for innovations such as unit train movements and multiple car rates will be significantly delayed and inhibited.
3. Shippers will be unable to affect the development of the grain handling system through the exercise of free choice The opportunity to allow the market to create and maximize system efficiency at all levels will have been lost.
4. Farmers and grain companies will be subject to an increasing bureaucratic and regulatory burden Crises, rather than the market place, will continue to dictate the pace and location of private industry investment and affect systems operations.
5. Farmers will be unable to take advantage of domestic feed barley, canola, and crop diversification, production and market opportunities

Alberta was encouraged by the principles contained in your February 8, 1982 statement How can full payment to the railways adhere to these principles? More specifically, how will paying the railroads reduce economic distortions within the agricultural sector in Western Canada?

The result of this decision is that the Crow benefit is lost to farmers and diverted to the railways.

There is no evidence to support a belief that the revised approach will produce a rational, economic approach to the transportation problems facing Western Canada. It signals a return to the ad hoc, ex-post-facto comprehensive approach to a resolution of the statutory rate problem

As you are aware, Alberta strongly endorsed the development of a comprehensive solution to meet the principles you outlined. It is the federal government's responsibility to remove resource-based revenues in agriculture, transportation and economic development from Western Canada in a way that will provide the maximum opportunity for continued diversification and stability

If the reported changes are made, the federal government has ensured that the Crow Rate benefits have been lost, and lost any self-setting economic development benefits have been sacrificed

We strongly urge your government to reconsider this matter.

Bringing Canada together

Ottawa Office:
House of Commons
Ottawa, Ontario
March 2nd, 1983

Dear Sir:

The government of Canada recently got a full-page ad in the Montreal Gazette at a cost of about $4,500 celebrating its controversial policy on the Crowsnest Pass grain freight rates. "The Crow Goes Without a Flap", the ad boasts, and then went on to tell readers how the new policy will not favour westerners.

"Higher transportation costs", the ad trumpeted, "will prevent western pork and beef producers from becoming more competitive with their eastern counterparts in their traditional markets". Elsewhere, it implied not very subtly that western producers might in effect be penalized by "possible corrective measures if the program is detrimental to eastern farmers".

In western Canada, the Liberals are attempting to convince people that we will really benefit from the plan to double the Crow rate by 1985 and boost it fivefold the present rate by 1991. Government officials in Ottawa recently revealed that another $300,000 of taxpayer money will go into a further advertising campaign to sell the new policy.

It's a peculiar way to promote this new transportation policy, especially at a time when producers virtually everywhere in the land are struggling to feed their families in a period of sharply rising costs and dropping net incomes. Instead of trying to bring Canadians together, moreover, this Liberal government is even prepared to encourage resentment in Quebec in its attempt to push through a policy affecting western Canada.

Yours sincerely,
David Kilgour, M.P.
Edmonton Strathcona

Widows' pension forms available from province

Application forms for the new Alberta Widow's Pension will be available May 10th, Social Services and Community Health Minister, Dr. Neil Webber has announced.

Dr. Webber said benefits including the easier retroactive to May 1, 1983 for those applying for program before June 30th. The first cheques are expected to go out in late June.

The Alberta Widows' Pension was announced during the October provincial election campaign. Elsewhere, it implied not very subtly that western producers might in effect be penalized by "possible corrective measures if the program is detrimental to eastern farmers".

Patricia Young Says . . . . .

One of the odd things about our modern society is that while we may look admiringly upon the man who has secured himself to the point of being his "own man" we feel no compulsion about calling a favourite politican "our man!" The fact is, anyone who can be called "our man" be it by the Union, political party, profession, business establishment or group is obviously not his "own man!" — one who can be manipulated and relied upon to dance to their tune

The most pathetic creature on earth (particularly when he is a politician, office holder or moderator) is the one who fears any rejection — who tries to be all things to all men. Fearful of making a stand or saying, his "liberal" open mind reveals a spine of wet spaghetti, the convictions of a crab and leadership of a cream puff.

The idea of voluntary enslavement is, of course, repulsive. Yet the world abounds with men and women who are the slaves of popularity, fashion, the "in thing" or popular opinion. They would bow to "majority rule" even if the majority decided that the minority be hung from the nearest tree' Many years ago, Ralph Waldo Emerson said: "Nothing is at last sacred but the integrity of your own mind. Absolve you to yourself, and you shall have the suffrage of the world."

Elsewhere, we have the philosophical "to thine own self be true etc. . . "Our man" is invariably a colourful, charismatic glad-hander who never quite allows you to pin him down to anything.

Leo Tolstoy recognized this malady of the slippery conscience when he said: "When man in council put their mulled decision above reason and conscience, there being less which betray human beings."

Along the same lines, Charles Kettering said: "If you want to kill any idea in the world today, get a committee working on it!" In Today's world of committees, commissions, councils, studies and forums, it is all too easy for man to delegate the interior authority of conscience to the decision of the "majority"

Oddly enough, those who dare to be their own man are often hounded as "square" or "reactionary" for daring to uphold a principle, for pointing to an unpopular truth, for telling citizens that government will give you all the "free" services you desire — if you are prepared to pay for them! Today, the world is largely manipulated by way of a permissiveness on the part of "leaders" who seek to remain in power by way of non-decisions, non-commitment and minds as broad and devoid of decision that the combined Armed Forces could march through without disturbing a hair!

Palmer—Earling district news items

by Mrs. Jon Knudson

The Carvell Rebekah Lodge at Ryley had a good turnout Saturday afternoon for their 53rd Art Show at the Community Hall, when about 180 paintings were displayed from Ryley, Holden, Camrose, Innisfree, Vegreville, Edmonton, Vancouver, Haight, Hinton, Tofield, Deville and Hastings Lake.

Twenty nine pictures were from Ryley.

A hand painted picture donated by Anne Goodall, Ryley, was won by Harriet Reddy, drawing the lucky number was Mrs. Orbeck.

Refreshments were served by the members.

Friday the Irvin Pedersen's had their family and many other guests there for Irvin's birthday.

Going to Weyburn, Sask., May 7 to attend the wedding of their relatives, Barbara, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Loel Olsen of B.C., were her grandmother, Mrs. Alberta Bolding, Margaret Pederson and Mr. and Mrs. Willis Bolding.

The Lloyd Olsen family were Sunday guests at Camrose with the Walter Olsens among other guests.

Mr. and Leander Knudsen were Saturday visitors at Gunnar Carlsons.

Theo and Enid Wetland, Camrose and Greg and Janice Sharp, their daughter of Vancouver, were Friday guests at Ed Knudsons.

Harold and Irene Schacher have returned home after visiting various places in Saskatchewan. Enroute back they were overnight guests of Rev. and Mrs. A. Tyrseland, a former Pastor here.

Algot and Laura Rathbun, Camrose, were Friday business callers at Holden, enroute back they called at their daughters, Greta, the Ote's Phillips, near Ryley and the Joe Knudsons.

The Bob Beatties' spent Sunday with relatives at Sherwood Park.

Weekending with Allan Knutsen were Brian Dickson of Grimshaw and Joanne Erickson of Saskatchewan, of C.L.C., Camrose, they were enroute to Grimshaw.

The Don Olsen family were Sunday callers at Armena where they attended the confirmation services of Don's niece, Denise Skaret.

Sophia and Norman Tennet were visitors at the Henry Pederson's.

Kathleen Tennet has been busy canvassing north of Bawlf for the Cancer Fund.

Mrs. Helen Hovland of Delburne was a Camrose caller Wednesday and her mother Martha Reigren, returned with her for Mother's Day.

Visitors Sunday at Carl Staal's were his folks Peter and Gladys Staal. On Wednesday, Mrs. Gladys Staal and her sister Janet Barkley of Killowna, B.C. were visitors at the C. Staals.

Sunday guests at Leroy Forre's for Linda's homecoming from Australia were Mr. and Mrs. Eivold Aspenes, Mrs. Clara Forre, Ken and Marilyn Olson and family, Wilfred and Lois Aspenes, Ingvald Bruce, Martin and Grace Bruce, all of Camrose and Gustave Bruce, Edmonton.

Gymkhana is held

The Ketchemut Creek Family Horse Club held their first gymkhana this year on Sunday.

In spite of the windy weather, the turnout was very impressive.

Since it was Mother's Day, some of the moms were persuaded to ride.

There were hotdogs and other goodies at the concession booth.

The next gymkhana will be on June 13th and the club is inviting all senior citizens as their guests on that date.

Round Hill

by Evelyn Low

The Round Hill Women's Institute met at the home of Emma Sawthrope with 15 members present. Retta Thorson will be going to Olds Conference as a delegate from the Round Hill W.I. and Bette Young will be going with Retta. The conference will be May 31 to June 3. It was decided on having a clean-up day at the Round Hill Cemetery on May 17 and anyone with family, friends or relatives buried there we would like to have all the help we can get for this clean-up day, and also bring wieners and buns for a wiener roast after the clean-up. This will be between 6 and 7 p.m.

Irene Campbell read an article on agriculture and Doreen Haugen read the correspondence. Retta Thorson gave a reading on making out wills, etc., Alice Kashmerick won the raffle. The Hostess served lunch.

Thursday evening coffee and lunch guests with Irene Banack in Bawlf were Stanley and Annie Banack, Joe and Margaret Banack, Olga Banack, Evelyn Law and Alice Thomas.

Stewart and Gail Law and Chris and Albert Petryshun spent the weekend at Moose Lake where they went fishing but fishing was poor.

Mrs. Noreen Foss left Thursday evening by plane for Surrey, B.C. where she attended the wedding of Dennis Lamont, Noreen's brother. Mary Jane Orchestzie and Philip Orchestzie left Friday evening by plane to attend the wedding of Dennis Lamont, son of Julia and Ronald Lamont.

70TH BIRTHDAY

A large group of relatives and friends gathered at the home of Randy Banack, Saturday evening, to help him celebrate his 70th birthday. Olga Banack decorated the birthday cake.

"BEFORE I DUG THAT TRENCH IN THE BACKYARD I CALLED THE GAS COMPANY'S PIPE LOCATOR TEAM."

"Good thing I did, too. Because they were able to mark the location of the natural gas line that helped me avoid what could have been a serious accident. I just called 48 hours in advance, and the whole thing was free of charge! That's what I call service."

Powerline opens

The Powerline Baseball League will kick off a new season, next week.

The 1982 season will open on four fronts on Tuesday and follow with another four games next Thursday.

All eight teams will see action each regularly scheduled evening and all games will be played on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Tuesday's schedule will see Bawlf at home to Tofield, Holden is hosting the defending champions from Camrose, Round Hill will be at home to Viking and Ryley is hosting Armena.

One week from tomorrow (Thursday) will have Bawlf again at home, this time to Ryley.

Other games will see Holden hosting Armena while Tofield is at home to Round Hill and Camrose will play in Viking.

The regular schedule will continue until the end of June and depending on postponements, an extra week could be alloted to pick up needed games.

The top four teams will then advance to the playoffs while the other four squads will hang up their gloves except for tournament action.

Each team in the league will be hosting at least one tournament during the coming season, usually in conjunction with the local community's annual Sports Day.

Lars Rude is back as league president while Jack Lampitt is the secretary-treasurer-statistician. Both men are from Tofield.

Seeding has started

Seeding of the 1982 crop got underway in a small way in this area during the past week.

And that was followed by a strange mixture of weather conditions.

Over the past weekend, some areas were hit by up to four inches of snow, other regions were struck by hailstorms and heavy rains fell in some areas while some places got off reasonably free with only slight rainfall.

According to reports received from the Alberta Wheat Pool, farmers in the Tofield, Rosalind and New Norway areas did some wheat seeding.

Five percent of the proposed wheat acreage in rosalind has been seeded with three percent done in the Tofield area and two percent has been done around New Norway.

Wheat and canola acreage will be increased in the 1982 crop area in all areas while oats, barley and flax acreage will be reduced.

Rye acreage is expected to remain relatively unchanged.

The biggest increase will be in canola where farmers are expected to increase the numbers of acres growing this crop by twenty percent.

Production in wheat acreage will be increased by just over ten percent throughout the area.

Oats production is expected to drop by ten percent, barley production will be decreased by seventeen percent and flax acreage is expected to drop by twenty-five percent.

Arrangements have been made to receive weekly crop reports from the Alberta Wheat Pool.

Areas that will report regularly include Bawlf, Camrose, Daysland, Hay Lakes, Holden, New Norway, Rosalind, Round Hill, Ryley and Tofield.

The Wild Oat Solution:
New, improved Carbyne 2EC.
New double strength Carbyne 2EC stops wild oats early, in the 2 leaf stage, before they start to steal yields in your wheat, barley or rapeseed. Carbyne 2EC's low cost and effectiveness in controlling wild oats gives you maximum yields at minimum cost. In comparison trials with competitive wild oat herbicides such as Mataven, Hoe-Grass, and Avenge, the yield increase with Carbyne combined with its low cost resulted in the highest net profit return per acre. Proven performance makes Carbyne 2EC your best value in wild oat control.
Profit from early control of wild oats. Get new, double strength Carbyne 2EC – the wild oat solution for maximum yields at minimum costs.

Budget may assist farmers

The new federal budget will give farmers who are in financial difficulty some reprieve if they have paid taxes in any of the last three years, says Don Hilsenteger, a farm management economist with Alberta Agriculture.

The new budget announced on April 19 by Marc Lalonde proposes to spend more money on large capital projects, employment, housing, and to provide tax incentives to small businesses.

There are also some changes to personal taxes, such as increases in child tax credit and child care expenses. Mr. Hilsenteger says there are several changes in the budget which will affect farmers.

* Special Farm Financial Assistance

A further injection of $100 million to bring to $150 million the money allocated for the Farm Credit Corporation's program for farmers will assist those in financial distress.

* Investment Tax Credit (ITC)

For investment after April 19, 1982. The maximum ITC claim for one year will no longer be limited to $15,000. The ITC may be carried back for two years in 1983 and three years in 1984. As well, the ITC may be carried forward for seven years, starting in 1983 rather than the previous five-year limit. This will allow the farmer who has to reduce his 1983 federal tax payable to zero to carry-back eligible ITC against federal tax payable in 1982 or 1981. The result would be a tax refund for 1983.

Should a farmer still have ITC available after the carry-back, he could then make use of the new Refundable Investment Tax Credit. This scheme will allow a farmer who is unable to make use of ITC acquired between April 19, 1982 and May 1, 1986, to claim 40 percent of the remaining balance. Therefore a farmer who has a balance of $2,500 in his ITC pool after reducing his federal tax payable to zero would be able to claim a tax refund of $1,000 (40% of $2,500).

* Business Losses

Farmers will be allowed to carry-back losses in 1983 three years to 1980, and to carry forward losses for 10 years. This replaces the old rule of one-year carry-back and five-year carry-forward.

* Tax Incentives For Paying Salary To Spouse and Children

Employment expense deduction is to be increased to 35 per cent from three per cent of salary, income to a maximum of $500.

* Export Assistance

Farmers wishing to establish or improve export markets for their products may be eligible for assistance through a $30-million Export Market Development program, designed for small and medium sized businesses.

* Family Farm Rollover

Shares in a family farm holding company transferred after May 29, 1978 will qualify for the rollover.

In summarizing, Mr. Hilsenteger says that in order to benefit from this budget, a farmer will have to show a loss or low income in 1982 and/or purchase considerable new depreciable property after April 19, 1982.

This is not to suggest, Mr. Hilsenteger cautions, that farmers should rush out and buy unneeded equipment or that they juggle their income tax return to show a loss in 1982.

Rather, he says, farmers in financial difficulty will get some reprieve if they paid taxes in any of the last three years. Also those farmers who can afford to buy needed equipment will receive some tax incentives.

Hay Lakes

Mrs. Doris Holdsworth was among the guests attending the Camrose Lutheran College grade 12 graduation exercises held at 8:30 on April 30 for her niece, Jill Holdsworth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Holdsworth, was among the graduands. Angela Winder, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Con Winder, also graduated in the same class.

Activities commenced with a smorgasbord, followed by a graduation worship service led by campus chaplain Rev. J. Hannamaan. Then came the graduation exercises, the grad ties and the graduation ball.

The Hay Lakes and District Lions Club held a Ladies Appreciation Evening and Awards Night at the Camrose Legion on Friday evening. Chief Foresters acted as emcee. Following the dinner Chuck Gleason gave a presidential address and Carl Selin reported on the Club's activities and projects during the past year. The ladies were presented with coffee spoons and thanked for their support, encouragement and help throughout the year and for providing excellent meals for the Lions supper meeting. Presentations were also made to past officers and committee chairmen of the Hay Lakes Lions. The evening concluded with social dancing.

Gym club ends season

The Holden Gymnastic and Keep-fit Club just completed another very successful season with the final lessons of the spring session. Pre-beginner instructor, Peggy Brown was very pleased with the Monday evening 4-6 year-olds, who developed coordination learned basic gymnastic skills and had a lot of fun.

The spring session of ladies aerobics, instructed by Audrey Morello, saw 26 ladies getting in shape for spring. Another session will be going in the fall.

Progress was rapid in the gymnastic levels from Pre-red to Bronze reports instructor, Lydia Sabitz. Lydia was pleased during the spring session by Sherri Collison, Bruce, Neil MacGregor, Holden and Stacy Mackenzie, Viking.

The Holden Club was well represented by 18 gymnasts at the recent Fort Saskatchewan Meet. Club gymnasts placed in the top ten of every event entered.

Participating in the Mite section were: Cindy Grinde, Monica Ness, Robyn Schweitzer and Laurie Laube.

FABRIC SOFTENERS IN THE WASHER

Procter and Gamble has provided the consumer with an alternative to softener added in the rinse cycle or dryer. Bold 3 combines both detergent and fabric softener in one product. The fabric softener is contained in soluble pellets so there is no reaction with detergents. These pellets combine two components. The first provides a lubricating effect in the wash water. The second component is released by the heat of the dryer, imparting softening and anti-static properties.

Bold 3 may prove to be a welcome convenience to some. However, fabric softeners are not required for every washload. Another consideration is, if the fabric softening particles require heat to be activated, what happens to these particles when clothes are drip dried?

POST PROGRAMS

There is now a provincial organization called the Park Promoters, set up for the purpose of promoting park in our province. This group consists wholly of ladies who are involved in the industry and are interested in promoting their product.

District No. 5, which includes County of Beaver, as yet has no formal executive or representative.

If you wish to be part of this group and enhance the park industry in your area please contact: B.L. Goodwin, Box 278, Lamont, AB T0B 2R0, phone 895-7925.

Between the Covers

The last Preschool Story Hour series for this season will begin next Tuesday, May 17 at 10 a.m. This is a program for three to four year olds, consisting of good books read aloud, music, fingerplays and action songs, and more books. The cost is $1.50 per child, and the session will run for 5 weeks. Watch for information about summer programs at the library in future columns.

There is a new shipment of Large Print Books in the library, a part of our inter-library exchange of this type of book. Titles are available in mystery, western, romance, non-fiction and general fiction, and all are guaranteed to be a "good read".

On the new book table look for The Last Chronicles of Ballyfungus, a humourous novel about Ireland by Mary Manning. A paperback copy of the best seller When Bad Things Happen to Good People is also available. Another popular book is The Sky's the Limit by Dr. Wayne Dyer, a book about taking charge of your life, and becoming a "no-limit person".

On the children's table, The Paper Bag Princess by Robert Munsch offers a new twist to the old-fashioned fairy tale ending. Pre-teens will enjoy reading the magazine JAM: just about me, with articles on fashion, sports, hobbies, etc.

Don't forget, as you plan and plant your gardens, that the library has many informative books on this subject, from starting seeds, building greenhouses or coldframes, to companion planting and preserving your harvest.

Library hours are: Tuesday 1-8, Thursday 3-6 and 6-8, Friday and Saturday 10-12 and 1-5. Come in and check it out!

Show is held

On the afternoon of April 30, Cavell Rebekah Lodge held its twenty-first annual art show and tea in the Ryley Community Hall with a large crowd attending from many points.

One hundred and thirty oil paintings and sketches of all sizes and themes were on view, evidence of the wealth of talent in the area.

The paintings and sketches were brought in to be exhibited from Innisfree, Vegreville, Holden, Edmonton, Vancouver, Tofield, Camrose, Hastings Lake, Deville, Haight, Hinton and Ryley.

TGHA Flashes

The next meeting of the Tofield General Hospital Auxiliary (TGHA) will be held on Monday in the library in the Tofield School, starting at eight o'clock.

The auxiliary's garage sale on Saturday was very successful with all proceeds going to the new hospital fund.

Larger unsold items from the sale were donated to the Ryley Nest To Save Shop while remaining clothing was sent to the Salvation Army.

The TGHA tuck truck visits each patient in the hospital each Thursday. This service is provided with the hope of supplying each patient with a few personal things patients may require, plus a regular chance for visitations.

"Sam" is growing nicely [illegible] to the donation of [illegible] that are being received.

The "volunteer of the month" for April was Tannis Shaw Bailey for her on the spot help with the Farmer's Market.

On April 23rd, a sprig of pussywillow was given to each patient as a sign of spring and hope.

Ryley Pool news

If you read last week's Pool News, you'll recall that the next set of Red Cross lessons would be run after school holidays began.

Well - that's all changed - because of numerous requests from the Tofield area especially - we've decided to run another set of lessons before holidays. The lessons will be on Tuesdays and Thursdays for four weeks, starting May 31 and ending June 27. So if you didn't get your children into the last set of lessons, now's your chance.

Tofield residences contact Tackie Desmashere to register 662-3288. Please try to register as soon as possible.

Ryley, Holden residences - please call the Pool to register, again as soon as possible, 336-3433. Viking residences please contact Mrs. Bird to register - Viking [illegible] of 20 students before they will run a bus for the lessons. So if you're going to attend the lesson, try to register as soon as possible so they can book the bus.

We will be teaching all levels again.

We still have spaces left in [illegible] lessons. The lessons will run Tuesdays and Thursdays from 11 to 12 beginning May 17. Please register as soon as possible.

[illegible]

We are trying to generate enough enthusiasm to start a [illegible] this summer.

We have kept two hours a week (Monday and Wednesday) from 5:30 to 6:30 open in our schedule. Hopefully we will have enough people interested to get it going shortly. The swim club will be involved mostly with competitive pool sports, such as polo, racing, etc. If you are interested in joining please contact the pool for more details.

The coming Friday, May 13th, we will be holding a Mid-nite Swim.

It begins at 10 p.m. ending at midnight. We will be having bathing suit contests, so bring your wierdest bathing suit. Come and join us, we'll be having some games as well and the lights will be turned down.

Warren addresses Chamber

Full attendance was established at the May dinner meeting of the Holden and District Chamber of Commerce to hear guest speaker, Mel Warren, Director of Rural Development District No. 4.

Mr. Warren spoke on the status of Highway No. 616 paving and a new tourist-travel promotion which will [illegible] the Chamber of the Northeast Rebellion.

The theme of the promotion is "Travel 100 Years of Western History".

The main thrust will be encouraging tourists to take part in this historical celebration by travelling east from Edmonton on the "Aurora Way" and returning west on the "Battle Trail".

Chamber members voted in favor of participating in the promotion of "100 Years of Western History."

The community pot-luck supper held April 30th was termed a success by Co-ordinator Sharon Gill. Approximately 100 persons attended and enjoyed the abundance of food.

Mayor Nick Shibinski welcomed newcomers to the area, and encouraged them to join and take part in the community.

Membership has reached 33 businesses and individuals, an increase from last year.

In other agenda items, members viewed the new Village of Holden brochure. The Chamber was responsible for material and set-up with the printing sponsored by the Village of Holden and Rural Development District No. 4. The brochure will be distributed to Chamber Businesses, the Battle River Tourist Zone, Alberta Tourism and Small Business, Alberta Opportunity Company and the Federal Development Bank.

Chamber members ratified a motion from last year deleting funds to the Holden School Tennis Court Project and agreed to contact the Village of Holden regarding the purchase of Village pins to be [illegible] at functions where the Chamber is represented.

A report on the status of the Holden Health Unit Sub-office was given by Ken Sharpe, Chamber representative to the Public Health Board meeting held in Vegreville, April 28th.

Members voted in sponsor a "Petition of Support", to maintain the sub-office in Holden and increase the services offered from the Holden sub-office. The petition will be available for signing at the Royal Bank, Village of Holden, Lucky Dollar Foods, Beaver Motors, Thor Agencies, U.F.A. Bulk Sales, Jubilee Hairstyles, Jack's Esso Service, Wendy-Ann Fashions, Holden Frozen Food, Parts and Ranch and the Seniors Club.

Sign-up Day: are May 10-14 during regular business hours. The petition will be sent to the Vegreville Health Unit Board.

The 1984, 75th Anniversary-Homecoming Committee, which is spearheaded by the Chamber of Commerce, held it's organizational meeting on April 21st.

Twenty community groups represented by 37 persons attended and set-up the following committees: Fund-raising and Financial, Accommodation, Programs and Long-range planning, Promotion and Publicity.

The Village's 75th anniversary-homecoming will be combined with the Holden History Book unveiling. Tentative dates are August 4, 5, 6, 1984.

At the request of Village Council, the Chamber discussed the pros and cons of having Friday, June 10th or Saturday, June 11th declared as Farmers Day. Chamber [illegible] voted to support Farmers Day on June 10th.

Hay Lakes district news

by Mrs. A. Arneson

The Hay Lakes Ladies Fastball Team will be playing in the County of Camrose League this season. Their first game is scheduled for May 9 against the Camrose Jewdies. Tim Pyle is the coach for the Hay Lakes team.

The Hay Lakes Blue Knights Men's Fastball Team are preparing for another season in the South Edmonton Rural Fastball League. A work bee was held at the ball park grounds on Saturday and considerable work was done on preparing a second diamond including erecting a backstop. The Blue Knights are planning a Fastball Tournament for the first weekend in July.

The Hay Lakes School grade 6 class participated in a six team double-knock-out floor hockey tournament held at Edberg during the weekend. Teams from the City and County of Camrose took part in the action. Hay Lakes emerged with the gold medal following three straight wins. The team is coached by school teacher Dale Vilayt.

The County and City of Camrose schools' badminton singles play-offs were held at Hay Lakes on Tuesday. Tim Aspell won the senior boys singles and advanced to Zone play-offs held at Leduc on Saturday. He placed third in Leduc, however only the first two winners advance to the Provincials being held in Calgary.

The Kingman Lakers midget boys football team played an exhibition game at Spilstead on Friday evening and won the game with a 14-4 score. The team will be playing in the County of Camrose Men's Fastball League this season. Margaret Adams will act as manager for the Kinman Lakers team, with Wilfred Soch and Gordon Simonson serving as coaches.

Mrs. Bea Jacobson, along with three other leaders, held a Girl Guide campout at the Jacobson farm during the weekend. Nineteen Guides from Leduc attended the camp. Despite the cold weather, the girls were cozy in their tents at night and during the day were kept busy with [illegible] activities.

Con and Carol Tomasewski, supported by other members of the St. Theresa congregation, held a pancake and sausage breakfast at the Tomasewski residence from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m. on Sunday. This was followed by a church service led by Pastor Mikey Bergunson.

Barely a day goes by that you and I, the consumer, are not being informed about our need for better eating or dieting habits. We are continuously being bombarded with regard to over-consumption of fat and calories. We are continuously being informed about how this over-consumption is affecting us healthwise. This is why seafood is becoming increasingly important in kitchens across Canada.

WHY SEAFOOD?

CALORIES: Seafood products are low in calories while still providing adequate protein to meet the body's requirements. It is rich in other nutrients as well. Raw, edible, low fat fish and shellfish normally contain less than 100 calories in a 4 ounce serving. Keeping in mind that a 4-6 ounce serving of seafood is all that is required per serving compared to 10 - 12 ounces per serving of other protein product therefore ounce for ounce seafood offers a nutritious, low calorie, and healthy bargain that's hard to beat.

PROTEIN: The protein in our diet supplies the "building blocks" that are necessary to develop and repair body tissues. Fish protein provides nourishment to your body tissues because it contains a well-balanced mixture of essential amino acids and is an excellent source of high-quality protein. Fish protein is high in nutritive value. A 4 ounce serving of lean fish supplies about half the total amount of protein required by the body each day.

FATS: Seafood contains more polyunsaturated fats than saturated fats. There is evidence that the polyunsaturated fats found in fish do help reduce the blood cholesterol level in our bodies.

VITAMINS: Vitamin A functions as sparks that ignite numerous chemical reactions throughout the body. The vitamin content in seafood varies with the species. Some fish are an excellent source of protein and niacin, are also found in various fish and shellfish, especially oysters and clams.

This is where High Arctic comes in. Recognizing the need for quality seafood, High Arctic developed one of the most modern seafood marketing methods ever with a fleet of modern mobile seafood stores on wheels to serve smaller communities on a regularly scheduled basis. To assure its customers of its quality, High Arctic carries a money-back guarantee on its product. So for that deli or just an enjoyable meal, drop in to High Arche's mobile seafood market on our next visit to your community.

Three seek queen's crown

The South Cooking Lake Community League is sponsoring the Rodeo Queen contest for 1983.

Each contestant represents a local Lions Club in the area.

Each girl has been given an equal number of raffle tickets to sell. The ticket sales count for 30% of their points.

Each candidate modelled clothing at a fashion show on April 24th and gave a speech on themselves and their sponsoring club. This fashion show was enjoyed by 100 people in the South Cooking Lake Hall.

The contestants were judged on their personality and poise, 30% at this event.

The Rodeo Queen contestants will be judged on their horsemanship and rodeo knowledge on May 14th just prior to the crowning of the queen and the opening of the rodeo at the Fultonvale Grounds.

These girls have made public appearances at their sponsoring clubs as well as the South Cooking Lake Lions dance on April 16th. On May 7th, the reigning queen, Karen Woytipka, and the candidates will be presented at the pre-rodeo dance at South Cooking Lake Community Hall.

On May 14th at 10:30 a.m. the parade will pull out. If anyone wishes to enter please contact Han Nissen 922-4326 or [illegible].

The Rodeo Grounds will open at 11 a.m. so after the parade you can go directly to the Rodeo Grounds at Fultonvale, just west on Highway 14 from South Cooking Lake and watch for the signs. Following the rodeo you can kick up your heels at the beer gardens and dance in the Fultonvale Arena.

May 15th, drop down to the Rodeo Grounds for the pancake breakfast and don't forget to buy a ticket or two on the video raffle sponsored by the Community League. The rodeo will get underway at 2 p.m. for the final show.

Grass fires decline

by Ken Kroetsch

The potential danger of grass fires has declined in the last few weeks, says Laurie Weatherhill, county fire chief.

This is attributed to two reasons, he says.

The first reason is that grass and trees have started to green, making it harder for a fire to start.

The other reason is that people are becoming more conscious of the potential danger. Most people have heard of someone who has had a grass fire and are more careful, says Weatherhill.

Weatherhill says most bad grass fires are in the early spring, just before new grass comes in.

So far this spring there has been close to 20 grass fires that firefighters have responded to.

[illegible] worst causes of grass fires is burning barrels.

Fires can be caused by a burning barrel sitting in dead grass, or a barrel used without a screen.

Flying paper and exploding aerosol cans are the main culprits for starting a grass fire from a barrel without any screen.

Although grass fires are thought of as a nuisance, they can be just as dangerous as a structural fire, says Weatherhill.

Last year a firefighter was badly burned when he became trapped by fire.

Grass fires are usually fought with portable water-pump tanks, carried by firefighters.

Weatherhill says that every fire department in the area has two or three of these portable tanks.

Since the last fire report there has been three grass fires, one small building that burned to the ground north of town, and a call came to put out a fire along the railway tracks west of town.

The fire department this week, Tuesday and Wednesday, gave a tour of the firehall to kindergarten students from Tofield.

The children were shown all aspects of firefighting equipment and were given the opportunity to hold the firehose and spray across the parking lot.

Tofield firefighters for the past few weeks have been spending two or three nights a week preparing for the hose laying competition coming up in Sherwood Park.

Run completed

by Ken Kroetsch

Two Tofield grade four students have completed a 75-kilometre run called the Run to Universiade.

Darren Duchacher and Nia Roberts both completed the run during the first two weeks, says Brian Aubrey, Tofield School vice-president.

Students from grade four to grade twelve at Tofield School are encouraged to participate in the run, the distance from Tofield to the Universiade site in Edmonton, to achieve a ribbon for their efforts.

The students run seven laps around the school yard, approximately eight kilometers, to make up the 75 kilometres [illegible].

The Run to Universiade is Tofield's School's part in participation.

Seminar held

by Ken Kroetsch

Over 30 municipal administrators and assistant administrators met in Tofield last Friday for a one-day seminar.

The seminar was one of two held yearly to update administrators on current legislation affecting municipalities, development agreements, and other related material, said Lyle Wack, assistant administrator for Tofield.

Administrators from zone four, from Vermilion south to Moron and from Highway 2 to the Saskatchewan border, commented favorably on the topics discussed, said Wack.

The bi-annual meetings are put on by the local government [illegible] tion and members are required to attend the one-day [illegible].

Report from

Parliament Hill

by the Hon. Don Mazankowski

Don Mazankowski, M.P. (P.C. - Vegreville) has questioned whether the government will live up to the commitment to the private sector made in Finance Minister Lalonde's recent budget.

Speaking in the House during the budget debate, Mr. Mazankowski suggested that the budget was more an attempt at political recovery than economic recovery: "I think the Minister of Finance has used the right buzz words and said the right things. The questions that we must pose are does he really mean what he says, or is it merely a political exercise recognizing that there is now no other way to go since the government's intervention in the last three years has really killed the spirit of enterprise in the country."

Dubbing the Minister of Finance "the master intervenor", Mazankowski recalled Mr. Lalonde's National Energy Program which "literally destroyed the Canadian private sector associated with the oil industry, particularly the drilling and the supply and service sector."

"Turning now to the Prime Minister" continued Mazankowski, "in 1975 he said 'we can't rely on the free market system any more. We need rules even if they mean that you and I end up being called Communist or [illegible]'."

"This," said Mazankowski, "is evidence that the government does not have faith in the private sector." "On closer examination, it is clearly revealed that this is an interventionist budget, that it will rely very heavily on political decision making, that it will rely very heavily on the bureaucracy."

Mazankowski also expressed concern over the size of the deficit. "It is $31.3 billion this year and there is another $90.7 billion projected for the next three years. We must consider how we are going to pay for these horrendous deficits. I share the view expressed by the Leader of the Liberal Party in Ontario, who said 'Instead of building for the future we have been stealing from it. We are no longer redistributing wealth from the rich to the poor. We are transferring it from the next generation to our own'."

Calling this a "sad legacy" Mazankowski said the government must reduce its share of the economy and transfer those resources to the private sector so they can be used to create long-term productive employment and long-term productive wealth.

District news from Ryley

by Lena Rell

Ida and Stan spent an evening visiting with Margaret and Lyal Olstad.

Visiting the Elmer and Kay Andersons' of the Golden Manor over the weekend were the Henry Pedrusny's of Camrose, Lawrence Andersons' of Thorsby, Elsten Selberg of Edmonton, Robert Anderson and daughter Tephanie of Edmonton, [illegible], Lorne Anderson of Tofield. Other callers were Alona Reum, Kay Coombes and Sig Snortheim. Kay received phone calls for Mother's Day from Stanley Anderson and his sister, Doris of Calgary.

Last Thursday evening, about 36 relatives of Mrs. Barbara (Bender) Reber of Elkhart, Indiana met for a family gathering at the Salem Mennonite Fellowship Hall.

Second cousins present were Ezra and Lena Rell, Fred and Ada Histetler, Marvin and Edith Boettger, Joseph and Florence Voegtlin, Ruth Yoder, Melvin and Grace Lehman, Joe and Fern Roth, Martha Stiler, Leonard and Evelyn Stauffer, Norman and Evelyn Stauffer, Maynard and Erma Stauffer, Merlin and [illegible] Stauffer, Lyall [illegible] Anne [illegible], Willie and Lorraine Wideman, Harley and Fern Lehman, Orvin and Elsie Boettger and Verne Hart.

Mrs. Barbara Reber of Elkhart, Indiana and Mrs. Grace Brunner of Louisville, Ohio were guest speakers at the Mennonite Ladies retreat catered to by P.D.I. of Three Hills.

Douglas and Trish Hardy, northwest of Tofield, had the parents of Doug's sister and family of Ryley area and niece, Kerry Philip and family of Sherwood Park and grandparents of Ryley as guests for a Mother's Day dinner.

Mrs. Gwen Hohn was able to go home from hospital on Saturday and Elvera Rell was discharged on Mother's Day and is feeling much better. Ed Magnssen is a patient in Tofield Hospital.

The Legion Hall is coming along nicely.

Carol Jensen, daughter of Herman and Hilda Jensen, was flown to Saskatoon last weekend courtesy of The Western Producer. Jensen was recognized for achieving 100 creative writing publications in the newspaper. Her stay included a presentation, a tour of the Western Producer facilities, dinner and a 'Centre for investigative Journalism' seminar.

Holden news

by Anne Shavchook

Mr. and Mrs. Mel Haas are receiving congratulations on the birth of their fifth child, a daughter, Debra Karen Joyce, born on April 28th in Tofield General Hospital.

Three members of Holden Local Recreation Board attended a grants workshop at Vegreville. The workshop was on Project Co-Operation and Operation Assistance grants regarding grant requirements, eligible projects accounting for projects, budgets and all concerns regarding 1983 Project Cooperation and Operational Assistance grants. The workshop was conducted by Kent Hendricks, Regional Recreation Consultant, Anne Shavchook, councillor for recreation, found the workshop very beneficial.

Also attending were John Milton MacGregor and Karen [illegible].

WHAT DO YOU SAY TO A MAN WHO WANTS YOUR ELECTRICITY TO KEEP OFF HIS LAND?

First of all, you tell him that you understand his point of view.

Nobody likes transmission lines on his land.

But then you ask him how he expects other Albertans to receive electric service if every landowner had the right to keep transmission lines off his property.

We're sure that at this point, the landowner would begin to understand our point of view too.

TransAlta Utilities is bound to serve the public interest both by tradition and legislation, but this isn't as simple as it sounds.

The "Public Interest" is, in fact, the sum-total of many vested interests. The conflict between the interests of the landowner and those of all TransAlta customers is just one example.

Balancing the demands of all the different groups who depend on electricity would tax the wisdom of Solomon himself.

While we may not be able to please everybody all of the time, we do our best to be fair.

If you've got something to say about how we can best balance interests, why not drop us a line or give your local TransAlta office a call?

Ministik and district news

by Catherine Reddick

The annual spring bazaar and bake sale held at the Crafts Centre on April 30, was a huge success.

Surprise packages sold by Frank Dunham disappeared in a period of ten minutes.

Articles on the bake table were sold in little over 20 minutes by Olivine Sears and Edna Ferguson.

There was little left on the sewing table, which was taken care of by Bertha Lafleur and Eva Davenport.

Jean Ferguson was in charge of the guest book, also taking care of the names for a door prize of a box of homemade candy made and donated by Lillian Berreclieth.

The raffle which was a complete suitcase was taken care of by Joan Dunham, Glenn Ferguson and Doris Davenport.

The quilt and cheese were won by Olivine Sears, the sleeping bag by M. Shandrick of Edmonton and the candy door prize by Thelma Chalmers of Edmonton.

Lillian Berreclieth, Margaret Paterson, Jean Kleinschroth and Dolly Reddick were in charge of the tea tables.

May 4th was the annual "day out" for members of the Ladies Club. They dined at the Legion Hall in Sherwood Park.

Diane Franke, who plans to leave the district at a later date, was the club's guest and was presented with a corsage, pinned on by vice-president, Joyce Bowerman.

Some shopping was done and a tea was later enjoyed.

John and Pat Dyble and boys motored to Cranbrook, B.C. for four days where they visited with the Bob Dybles.

Although the weather is fairly cool this last week, farmers have begun their spring operations on the land, among them being Clifford Berreclieth, Bill Vandermeer and Joe Davenport.

Several people from the community once again enjoyed an evening's bowling on Saturday in Sherwood Park.

Susan R'Aland was a lucky winner of a little television set in a draw in the Town and Country Drug Store in Tofield.

Holden and district news

by Mrs. G.A. Taylor

Wallie in Tofield last Wednesday morning, Mrs. Edith Carlson and Mrs. G.H. Taylor called on Mrs. Agnes Phillips and Mrs. Annie Komarnisky in Tofield Hospital.

Miss Ethel Brown was a visitor Wednesday of last week with Mrs. Annie McGlashie, in Tofield.

Mrs. Annie Komarnisky has been a patient in Tofield Hospital for several days having treatment on a bad knee.

Mrs. Annie Mitchem and Mrs. Millie Corliss were Saturday afternoon visitors in Camrose.

Archie and Mildred Carlson, former Holden residents, of Chase, B.C., have been spending the past couple of weeks visiting with their son and family, Mr. and Mrs. Brian Carlson and two grandsons. They were also visitors with Anne and Pete Milinesko.

Mrs. Irene MacGregor was a visitor last Wednesday for the day in Tofield, having taste at the hospital.

Visitors last Wednesday evening with Mr. and Mrs. George Taylor were their granddaughter, Saylor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Taylor of Viking and her friend, Chrissie Otte.

Mrs. Agnes Phillips is home after spending the past three weeks in Tofield Hospital.

A former Holden resident for several years, Alvin Julius Thompson, passed away in Edmonton on April 30th at the age of 81 years. He, with his family, came to Canada, homesteading at Hay Lakes in 1909 and he later moved to Holden. He was married to Josephine, a sister of the late Mrs. John Haslam, she and her husband, John Haslam owning the Holden Hotel. He leaves to mourn his loss, his wife, Josephine; one foster daughter, Rita of Vancouver, B.C., six brothers, Nobel of McKay, Henry of Athabasca, Benny of New Sarepta, Rudy of Vernon, B.C., Marvel of Camrose and Phillip of Edmonton. He was predeceased by his mother and father, Nina and Martin; two sisters, Selma and Nellie; and one brother, Lloyd.

The funeral service was held on May 4th in the Prairie Lily Chapel of Connelly-McKinley with Peter Sharpe officiating and interment was in St. Joachim's Catholic Cemetery. While a resident here Alvin ran a cattle trucking/cream service.

On Saturday, Mrs. Ethel Brekstad, Mrs. Kathleen Haram, Mrs. Margaret Olson and Mrs. Dorothea Mathews attended the L.C.W. Convention held in Camrose Lutheran College in Camrose with 180 delegates in attendance. They were representing the Holden L.C.W. Also attending later in the day were Mrs. Irene Olson and Mrs. Helen Zwierschke.

Mrs. Clara Armstrong of Penticton, B.C. is visiting for several days with Mrs. Ethel Brekstad. Ethel entertained several of Clara's friends on Monday afternoon at a canasta party.

Saturday afternoon visitors with Mr. and Mrs. George Taylor were their son, Brian and grandsons, Ronald and Richard of St. Albert stopping off on their way to call on his brother and family, the Robert Taylors of Viking.

A member of a pioneer farming family of the Holden district, Mary Fjellstrom, passed away in Viking Hospital on Saturday at the age of 58 years, after a long illness. She had been a resident in the Kinsmen Nursing Home for the past few years, after suffering a stroke some time ago. She is survived by one son, Marvin of Holden and a sister, Alma of Camrose.

Nursing Home.

The funeral was held Tuesday afternoon in the Holden Lutheran Church.

Mrs. Edith Carlson is a patient in Tofield Hospital suffering with a severe attack of the 'flu.

Mrs. Helen Steryk left last Thursday for Irricana visiting with her son and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Kas Steryk, then driving with them to Butte, Montana, U.S.A. where Kas received his Bachelor of Science degree in Petroleum Engineering. Helen returned home Monday evening.

Mrs. Millie Corliss of Chase, B.C., visiting here, attended the meeting on Tuesday evening of Holden Lodge Royal Purple.

Winter again
This motorist probably thought winter was over. Snow and slush made driving almost impossible in parts of the province Monday.

4-H trips earned

Eight 4-Her's from this part of the province have earned the right to attend important sessions of different types during the coming year.

Provincial 4-H Selections were held in Olds nearly two weeks ago with 141 senior 4-H members from all over the province in attendance.

Delegates to the Selections earned the right to go to Olds on the basis of achievement in 4-H and community activities.

Lyanne Klats of Daysland will be attending the Montana State Congress under the sponsorship of Alberta Agriculture.

Miss Klats will be going to Montana on July 8th for a ten-day stay.

Helen Davidson of Alliance and Denise Stang of Rosalind will be spending a week in Ottawa next year (1984).

The duo will be going to Ottawa next April to attend a national 4-H citizenship seminar under the sponsorship of the Canadian 4-H Council.

Mark Milsing of Camrose RR3 will be going to the Northwest Territories.

Milsing earned the right to go to the Territories for a northern development tour which runs for two weeks in August. He is sponsored by Alberta Agriculture.

Dan Brown of Tofield, Debbie Henderson of Forestburg and Patty Sharp of Bashaw will be going to Manitoba.

The trio will be attending a Western Provincial Council in the Manitoba capitol for one week, early in August, under the sponsorship of Cargill Grain.

Bill Dietrich of Rosalind will get to go to British Columbia for a ten-day stay.

Dietrich will meet with top corporate management personnel for briefing sessions during his visit to Langley under Operation Enterprise which is sponsored by Nelson Lumber Company.

Shortly after the 4-H delegates arrived in Olds, eleven were selected for consideration for the for the Premier's Award.

Included among the elite group were Lyanne Klats of Daysland and Denise Stang of Rosalind.

The eventual winner was Delin Sheenan of Didsbury who, as a result, will attend a wide range of 4-H functions in Alberta during the coming year.

In total, sixty 4-H delegates were selected to attend international, national and interprovincial events during the next year.

Hay Lakes district news

by [illegible]

The Hay Lakes School Education Week Program was held on May 5 in conjunction with the official opening of the new addition to the school.

Grade 11 student, Wayne Ralston was master of ceremonies for the entertaining program which included songs, poems, choral speech, rhythm band and music on recorders and ukuleles.

Following the program the audience proceeded to the new spacious library where the official opening of the new addition to the school was held.

The Hay Lakes High School graduation exercises will be held in the school auditorium on June 4. There will be 16 graduates this year. The grad banquet and dance will be held in the Hay Lakes Recreation Center.

Born to Carole and Patrick Nolan on April 28 at the Tofield Hospital, a son, Michael Patrick. Weight 7 lbs. 1 oz. This is the first grandchild for Arthur and Helen Heinz. Helen is presently staying at the Nolan household and assisting with [illegible] and other duties in the home.

Garry Goebel is presently staying at the home [illegible] Allan and Hertha [illegible] is a nephew to Allan.

As a service project members of the Guides, Brownies, Cubs and Beavers took on the task of picking up litter in the Village of Hay Lakes. Members of the groups along with their leaders and some parents, spent Saturday afternoon scouring the village and accumulated several truck loads of litter.

The afternoon concluded with a wiener roast held at the sports grounds. Ice cream was supplied by the village.

The Cubs, Beavers, Guides and Brownies are combining their groups for a bottle and battery drive. The drive will be held May 14 commencing at 10 a.m.

The Hay Lakes Senior Citizens Club will hold their monthly card party this May 13 at 8 p.m. Everyone is welcome to attend.

The Hay Lakes Blues Ladies Fastball team was off to a good start in league play last week winning their games against Camrose Arcades and Phoenix.

The ladies fastball club is holding a five-team tournament at Hay Lakes on the weekend of May 28-29. The local Lions Club will operate a lunch booth on both days. A dance will be held in the Rec Center on Saturday evening.

Tickets for the June 11 barbecue and dance will go on sale at the Rec Center on May 21.

The Hay Lakes Blue Knights Men's Fastball team held an exhibition double-header at the local ball park on Sunday afternoon. Their opponents were the Strathcona Juniors. The Blue Knights won both games with scores of 9-2 and 4-3. Red Rest is coach and manager of the team this season.

The first league game for Hay Lakes will be on May 17 when they host Rolly View. For those interested the league schedule will be posted in a downtown location.

Library board members are preparing for their annual tea, bake sale [illegible] plant sale which will be held on May 14. Besides garden plants and house plants there will also be strawberry and raspberry plants as well as other shrubs. Coffee will be served at 9:30 a.m. with the sale going from 10:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

The Hay Lakes Fish and Games Association will hold a trapshoot on the afternoon of May 15 at which time Hunter Training certificates will be presented.

Funeral services for the late Alvin Thompson were held on May 4 at Connelly-McKinley Funeral [illegible] in Edmonton with Rev. Peter Sharpe officiating.

Alvin was the eldest child of the late Martin and Nina Thompson who homesteaded in the Hay Lakes district. He passed away in Edmonton on April 30 at the age of 83 years. Survivors include his wife Josephine and foster daughter, Rita; six brothers, Nobel, Henry, Benny, Rudy, Marvel and Phillip. He was predeceased by two sisters, Selma and Nellie and one brother, Lloyd.

Girls go touring

On April 30, the Tofield Guides and Brownies went on a tour of the Multicultural Centre in Stony Plain.

The girls viewed the kitchen where a full dinner is cooked daily; a video tape show on history of the area and centre; an art gallery displaying floral pictures and pottery, as well as an old log house where a room was set up with artifacts of the early days with everything from clothes and toys to furniture and kitchen utensils.

A snack was then provided followed by a visit to the Vicki Acheson acreage. The Brownies rode in the bus while the Guides hiked the last half mile in the rain.

The Brownies worked on their Outdoor Adventure Badge and did get some protection from the cold in the garage. The Guides stayed outside and cooked lunch on a campfire.

Ann Tiedemann received her hiker's badge.

Both groups got together at the end of the day for campfire and sing song before the bus ride home.

May 7 was cookie day and the girls canvassed the town.

USE OF WHOLE MILK IN SWINE DIETS

Several dairy producers have used up their quota for shipping fluid milk and are looking for alternative methods of marketing their product. Our regional swine specialist says one possibility is to feed it to pigs. Here's his explanation.

"Milk is an excellent hog feed and it is only its price that precludes greater utilization. It has an excellent amino acid balance and it is a good source of calcium and phosphorus. In addition it provides many of the B-complex vitamins such as riboflavin, niacin and thiamine. A breakdown of the nutrients supplied by cow's milk is below.

Unfortunately, milk is not perfect. It is extremely low in iron and is a poor source of vitamin D. Therefore, it is important that a vitamin-mineral premix be utilized when feeding milk.

Basically, five pounds of whole milk will supply the same amount of nutrients as one pound of complete feed. I have worked out a scheme for using whole milk based on the amount of liquid and dry feed a pig normally consumes. In order to get the most benefit from feeding milk, no additional protein supplement should be used. In addition, I have suggested twice the level of premix (5%) since less dry feed will be consumed.

Care should be taken when starting pigs on milk as they may overconsume due to the palatable nature of milk. In addition, it is probably worthwhile to allow the milk to reach room temperature before feeding.

Milk should also be fed consistently sweet or sour, because abrupt changes are apt to produce digestive disturbances. When a choice is available, fresh milk is recommended."

Nutritive Value of Whole Cow's Milk

Dry Matter (%)	12.80
Crude Protein (%)	3.90
Digestible Energy (kcal/kg)	[illegible]
Calcium (%)	0.12
Phosphorus (%)	0.09

Nominations sought

Alberta Agriculture Minister, LeRoy Fjordbotten, has announced that nominations are again being accepted for the Alberta Agriculture Hall of Fame. And the deadline for their acceptance is June 30.

"Recognition in the Alberta Agriculture Hall of Fame is the highest honor Alberta Agriculture can bestow upon an individual," says Mr. Fjordbotten.

Albertans who have made outstanding contributions to the development of agriculture in Alberta, in Canada or on the international scene, and who hold Canadian citizenship, are all eligible for nomination.

Service to the agricultural sector is the basic qualification necessary to be admitted to the hall of fame, and, in past years, a life of dedication to the betterment of agriculture has distinguished each of the people who were chosen. Nominees who have made an outstanding contribution in their specialty will be considered by the selection committee, regardless of whether they are professionals or volunteers.

Although the committee will give preference to people directly associated with agriculture, such as farming and ranching, they will also consider agricultural business people, professional agrologists and rural community workers. The committee is made up of farm men and women.

Nomination forms are designed to help nominators to present background information and supporting evidence to agricultural and rural development. They are available from Alberta Agriculture's district offices throughout the province and from the Alberta Agriculture Hall of Fame, Agricultural Building, 7000-113 Street, Edmonton, Alberta, T6H 5T6.

Since its establishment in 1951, the Alberta Agriculture Hall of Fame has honored 56 men and women for outstanding contributions to farming, ranching and the quality of life in rural Alberta. Their portraits and a description of their accomplishments can be seen at the Alberta Agriculture Hall of Fame display, located on the main floor of the Agriculture Building in Edmonton.

Men and women selected for the Alberta Agriculture Hall of Fame in 1983 will be honored at a banquet and ceremony in March of 1984.

Annexation is opposed

by Ken Kroetsch

County of Beaver councillors voted 6-3 against supporting the Village of Ryley in its bid for annexation of land north of the village, at its regular meeting last Thursday.

Those voting against supporting the village did so because of the proposed hazardous waste plant that the village is trying to get.

One councillor said it wasn't a question of supporting the hazardous waste plant, but one of whether or not to support Ryley in annexation.

However, because the land is proposed to be used for the waste plant, councillors opposing annexation felt the majority of people in their zones would be against having a hazardous waste plant within the boundaries of the county.

In a previous meeting, council had voted not to support Ryley. The Village of Ryley had asked council to reconsider its decision.

In a presentation to council at last Thursday's meeting, Mayor Andrako said that the proposed plant could mean greater employment for the area and could mean higher tax dollars for both the county and the village.

Andrukow said there could also be additional funds for the supplementary educational requisition.

Another possibility, Andrukow said, would be spin-off industries that could come in when the plant was built.

There is also a possibility, if the industry came in, that additional funds would be available from the Provincial Government for higher quality roads to the site.

The county had at one time proposed that the hazardous waste plant be built with the County of Beaver, but because of opposition, the idea was dropped.

The Village of Ryley decided it would be a benefit to the community and proposed that the hazardous waste plant be built within its jurisdiction.

Whether or not Ryley will be able to annex the land north of the village will be decided by the Local Authorities Board in Edmonton, sometime in the future.

Queens sell tickets

by Ken Kroetsch

With only a little over a week left until the first Tofield rodeo, queen contestants were at the Farmer's Market last Friday selling tickets and rodeo buttons.

Kelly Gill, Cyndie Rabby and Kim McKinney mingled with the crowd to promote the rodeo.

Two of the contestants, Kelly Gill and Lori Missal, have sold the six hundred tickets each contestant was given to sell.

Cindy Rabby has sold approximately 300 tickets; Kim McKinney has sold approximately 250 tickets; and Diane Harper has sold over 300 tickets.

Rodeo queen contestants are judged 40 per cent on ticket sales, 40 per cent on horsemanship and 20 per cent for congeniality.

The top scorer in all three events will be crowned the First Tofield Rodeo Queen.

The rodeo planned for May 28-29 will feature bareback and saddle bronc riding, steer wrestling, ranch bustin', ladies' and junior barrel racing, team roping and bull riding.

Another added attraction to the rodeo will be "Twister", an operator controlled mechanical bull.

In a pamphlet promoting the ball says "It's safe and fun for kids from six to 60."

Other events planned in conjunction with the rodeo are a beef roast, supper and dance, a beerfest and a breakfast planned for Sunday morning.

Holden Homecoming gets $1,000 grant

by Ken Kroetsch

Holden Village Council turned over a $1,000 provincial municipal anniversary recognition program grant to the Homecoming '84 committee at a meeting last Wednesday.

Homecoming '84 is planned for the long weekend in August and will celebrate Holden's 75 years of incorporation as a village.

The Chamber of Commerce, with Christine Mckay, Ken Sharp and Bill Dary as chairman, is spearheading the organization of the homecoming committee.

Committees have been set up for raising funds and finance; for accommodations; for long-range planning and programs; and for promotion and publicity.

Also in conjunction with Homecoming '84 will be a history book written about the area.

This book is being compiled by the Holden Historical Society.

Ryley graduation held

Twenty-two students were honored when graduation exercises for Ryley High School were held on Saturday.

The big day actually began at noon when formal graduation pictures were taken on the lawn of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Magneson.

Early in the evening, the banquet was served and was followed by the graduation exercises, with both events being held in the Ryley Community Hall.

Lonnie Lauber was the master of ceremonies at the banquet which was catered to by members of Cavell Rebekah Lodge.

Toasts to Queen Elizabeth II, graduates, parents, teachers and the community were proposed by Dennis Clarke, Pat Nolan, Ken Blanchette, Michelle Manderson and Deynne Gara with replies coming from Doug Wilde, Danny Manderson, Floyd Taylor and Mayor Larry Andrukow.

Andrukow then presented each graduate with lapel pins that showed the logo of the Village of Ryley.

Speaking briefly were Ken Podoborozny and Reeve George Knudsion.

Terry King, a teacher in Ryley for two years beginning in 1980, was the guest speaker at the graduation exercises.

Valedictorian was Doug Wilde.

Speaking briefly was Supervisor of Instruction for the County of Beaver, Don Kendrat.

Jim Clarke and Lonnie Lauber presented each member of the graduating class with their diplomas.

Doug Wilde received an award from the Alberta Teachers Association for having the highest marks while runner-up Ken Manderson received an award from the Ryley High School Students Union.

Athletic awards were presented to Michelle Hisey and Ken Manderson while the J.D. MacDonald Award for Citizenship was given to Willis Rasmussen and Kay Hunsperger.

On behalf of the County of Beaver, Don Kendrat presented the school with a painting by Leona Stumbo which was accepted by Doug Wilde.

Entertainment for the occasion was presented by Sherri Horning, Ethel Pepper, Chris Clarke, David McKoen, Lonnie Lauber and Michelle Hisey.

Ken Podoborozny, Kim Pooke, Darrell Pysik, Willis Rasmussen, Peggy Scaber, Doug Wilde, Carol Wong, Eric von Tettenborn, Sheldon Zeak, Steven Zeak and adult student, Agnes Hisey.

Assessor hired

by Ken Kroetsch

In the first part of July, the first County of Beaver assessor will start work.

Derek Link from Medicine Hat, previously employed with Alberta Municipal Affairs Department of Assessment for six years, will be dealing totally with assessment and its relationship to taxes, says George Knudsion, county reeve.

"I'm very pleased that council has seen fit to install this man in this position," says Knudsion.

Knudsion says that Link will act on liaison between council, administration and the ratepayer.

Link, working closely with administration and council, will have an office in the County Building so he can have direct contact with ratepayers.

Knudsion says that this "open house policy" will make it possible for people to come in and talk to the assessor personally. This should alleviate a lot of problems by having these problems taken care of at the assessor level, says Knudsion.

Knudsion says that in the past, outside assessors were hired to do the work.

Sunday shopping?

Alberta legislators are delighted, according to report, with a Bill introduced by one of their backbench members dealing with Sunday shopping. They'll be listening with a great deal of interest to hear what reaction it produces among members of the public, and if the vibes are good, it's probable they'll even give it the status of a cabinet-sponsored bill, so it's almost sure to become law.

Permitted under the proposed Act would be the selling of foodstuffs, drugs and pharmaceuticals, in stores under 4,500 square feet, retail businesses in tourist centers, and many other acts permitted under the Lord's Day Act in Alberta, including operation of gas stations, laundromats, nurseries, restaurants, and many others.

It provides stiff fines for other stores, mainly the larger ones, breaking either the Sunday ban, or eight other "general" holidays in Alberta. Very interestingly, permission for Sunday opening is provided for stores which have been entirely closed on the Saturday immediately before . . . such places, for instance, as those operated by Seventh Day Adventists, among others.

There, it seems, lies one of the great strengths, and possibly one of the great secrets of the bill. Many opponents of the Lord's Day Act suggest religious persecution if they are forced to close Sundays . . . this is only a tradition of some Christians, they say, and far from general.

As more and more of us come to have no belief, no opinion (they're not agnostics or even atheists) more and more take advantage of this argument supposedly permitting them to stay open seven days a week.

All that seems necessary is to insist that no store stay open more than six days a week . . . let them choose their own day. The Muslims may close Fridays, Christians Sundays, others might choose any day of the week, but their staffs would have at least one day off, while the public would be able to shop somewhere any day of the week.

One wonders where the Hon. Neil Crawford has been during all the controversy. Why has it been necessary for a back bencher to introduce the kind of legislation he should have had ready months ago? Why has he not himself taken action in the light of repeated, taunting, violations of provincial statute? Why has he waited to see if the public were behind him? Why did he say he would take action . . . as soon as anyone complained? Did he not think it was his Responsibility, his Role, his Obligation, to see that charges were laid when so many violations, so many flagrant violations, so many taunting violations were thrown in the face of existing legislation? Did he not think that present legislation would stand up? Does he not feel he should be a leader, not just a reactor?

Give Mr. Purdy's bill just half a chance and see how far the general public is behind it. Maybe that way Mr. Crawford could find a bit of the starch he seems to need.

Patricia Young Says . . . . . .

Some people collect old coins, stamps or matchbox covers. I collect items from the North American communist press. After all, how else would I have known that back in March of 1982, Canada's communists (then the Labour-Progressive Party), outlined their goals for Canada as including: The granting of the franchise to eighteen year olds, a new Canadian flag, withdrawal from NATO, co-existence with communism, revision of the Criminal Code and controlled disarmament. That most of these goals have been accomplished or are being discussed is not surprising.

Remember the highly organized, well publicized anti-war protest marches that followed close on the ban-the-bomb propaganda? The Worker of December 12th, 1967 gives front page coverage to an early New York "peace" demonstration. "Police Brutality" was a prominent charge and the twenty citizens who protested the anti-U.S. placards and burning of the Stars and Stripes were labelled "hoodlums!" You'll find the communist publications berating the United Nations for not permitting a delegation of the North Vietnamese "Bluestian front" to put their case before the Security Council.

Lyndon Johnson, then President of the U.S.A., is attacked along with the U.S. Medical Association! Felix Green gets the hero's treatment, as do the De Soto Clubs, Bernard Shaw and Doctor Spock!

Would you believe that the Communist Worker spelled out a Treason's Bill of Rights as far back as 1917? By December 24th, 1967, Greece and West Germany were coming under fire by the communist Press and the German National Democratic Party was labelled "neo-Fascist!"

By December 17th, 1967, AFL-CIS president George Meany was being labelled McCarthyite for daring to say that the "peace" movement harassing the nation, was engineered in Hanoi! Mohely Carmichael was lauded as a hero on his return from a trip in North Viet Nam and China. The value of Black Power to the communist movement was analyzed. A December 10th, 1967 issue of The Worker makes the draft dodger a hero. The Guardian, a New York Marxist publication, spells out an identical line - police brutality, liberation fronts, Fascist America and the glories of Cuba.

Not so strangely, an examination of Canada's two communist weeklies, The Tribune (Eastern Canada) and the Pacific Tribune have carried almost identical material and charges, including praise for the Women's Liberation Front, Red (Indian) Power and support for the Quebec terrorists who brought about the recalling of Canada's War Measures Act a few years ago. Unfortunately, only a few reasonable items of concern is such publications. It might serve the public better if they were carefully posted outside City Hall so that citizens might know what their home grown communists had in mind for them. In which case they might not be so willing to open their purses for questionable causes or support "Fronts" designed to destroy their established institutions and democratic form of government.

Panic stations

When he spoke to the Calgary Chamber of Commerce, April 25th, the Minister of Transport, Mr. Pepin, managed to disappoint agricultural organizations to campaign for his Crow package last it be lost. A combination of vested interests with agricultural backgrounds have responded emotionally. As we go to press, we hear of a meeting in Edmonton on May 3rd designed to sound the alarm. It is being followed by a press conference with selected invitations in Calgary on May 3rd and Regina on the same day.

The message is shrill indeed. It warns of disaster and despair, the death of cattle feeding, pork processing, and whatever. The groups which organized and are attending these meetings make an interesting list. The Alberta meetings include not only the Alberta Cattle Commission, but the Alberta Pork Producers Marketing Board and its packer, Fletchers. Others are the Alberta Feed Grain Users Association, The Alberta Feed Industries Association, Lakeside Packers, Burns Foods and Gainers. Finally the Prairie Farm Commodity Coalition which spearheaded the campaign through Gilson for Crow change is involved.

All this activity is in response to a leak or rumour from Ottawa that the Minister has given in to pressure from Quebec Members of Parliament, and intends to modify his bill so that government subsidy will all be to the railroads, rather than half and half to the railroads and producers. Alberta Wheat Pool has not been privileged to receive this kind of information and has not been present at meetings of the Liberal caucus or least entertained in the Minister's or Deputy's office in order to be given the news. As this is written, we have still dependable information.

We are advised that the National Farmers Union puts sufficient credence on the reports to applaud the rumoured change in the Act. The April 30th statement by its president, Wayne Easter, declared that the whole package relies on deception and half truth. Other commentaire that the increased freight charges in the Pepin package will put many farmers out of business before 1985.

We at the 'Budget' believe that few important achievements are required.

a) The dismdvantage which western feed grain users are experiencing should be alleviated, while

b) maintaining the health of Canada's grain export program.

c) reducing the fears of Quebec based spokesmen, and

d) proceeding with increasing the capacity of Canada's railroads, especially those handling west.

It may very well be that the cooler heads in western agriculture should now ask the federal government to postpone the entire process for 12 months. It is just possible that the solution to the West's problem can still be developed in the West for the process could be freed of the intrigue and procrastination which are characterized by the procedure in recent months.

Past Time Pastimes

The Cypress Hills Massacre: Part Two, The Aftermath

The events outlined last week had a profound influence on Canadian history. This was not the only act of violence that had occurred in Western Canada; it was, however, the worst. That the massacre of Canadian Indians was done by a group of Americans on Canadian territory precipitated the problem of Western Canada: the Canadian Government had no law enforcement agency in the vast Northwest Territories. Adding to this problem was the threat of American intervention in the Territories if the Canadian Government could not protect the lives and property of American citizens.

News of the massacre spread in the area of southern Alberta and Montana. The wolf hunters were warmly welcomed when they returned to Fort Benton, williams' liver stained horses but with a 'victory' over the Indians. By early June, both the American and Canadian Governments were alerted of the massacre. The American Government investigated the circumstances of the massacre and then forwarded the report to the Canadian Government. Meanwhile, Prime Minister John A. Macdonald was attacked in Parliament over the general lawlessness in Western Canada. In order to rectify this problem, an Order-in-Council was signed on August 30, 1874 that established the North West Mounted Police.

Recruiting began immediately. Although the Mounted Police would not reach Western Canada until the summer of 1874, they began to train men, gather supplies, and break horses. By 1875, the Mounted Police had brought law and order to Western Canada. The numerous whiskey traders had either fled Southern Alberta or had been arrested by the Police. To the Indians, spared the evils of the whiskey trade, the Mounted Police were friends and heroes, sent by the 'Great White Mother', Queen Victoria.

The Mounted Police tried to bring the wolf hunters to justice. Despite the cooperation of the American Government, an extradition attempt failed because of insufficient evidence. Three men involved in the massacre were arrested in Winnipeg and stood trial for their crimes. However, many witnesses could not be found or changed their story, resulting in a not guilty verdict. After this decision, the Canadian Government ended their attempt to prosecute the accused wolf hunters.

Although justice was never served, law and order came to Western Canada. Relations between whites and Indians remained friendly. With the exception of the Cypress Hills Massacre, Western Canadian Indians were spared many of the violence and injustices suffered by American Indians.

Gifts will be purchased for the children who are receiving their First Communion. Cultural Convenor read an account of Our Lady of the Prairies, and a poem. Spiritual Convenor led the recitation.

Next meeting will be held on June 13 at the home of Mrs. Stanley Banack. The hostess prize was won by Mrs. William Banack.

Medically Speaking

by Dr Bob Yeoni

Last week I told you about the man who underwent "desperation" surgery at age 62 and looked on all by enjoying many more healthy years before passing away at 65.

I had looked after him for 20 years; he was one of my first patients. During this time he had moved from a large house to a smaller one and then, at age 80 when the gardening became too much, to a condominium. It was there that I went to talk to his wife after he died.

Three days previously, when I admitted him to hospital, I knew that he was about to die. Most physicians develope an ability to recognize a patient who is terminal, even if the patient is conscious and able to converse. Laboratory tests and such merely confirm the impression.

Mr. X, as I have called him, was like the wonderful mechanics they. When he collapsed in their parts stopped functioning at the same time. Fortunately, this was obvious to the specialist and myself, and heroic treatment was reported as both useless and inappropriate.

I must admit that I expected that his wife would accept the college that death at 65 does not represent a failure of medical science. Initially she could not; the loss was too great and too recent. She felt guilty that she had not called the doctor sooner. She was upset that she had left him, very ill, but diable, 15 minutes before the end. She was angry with physicians, hospitals and the world in general.

She was depressed and even discussed suicide. I had, of course, encountered all these reactions many times before, and I was beginning to question my apparent inability to "manage the anguish of her bereavement. But first, she needs a little time.

Dance concert is hit

by Pam Rowland

An estimated 300 people were at the Community Hall to be entertained by the fifth annual dance concert entitled Showtime A La Carte That's Entertainment last Sunday, said Elaine Warkentin, Tofield Dance School president.

There was only standing room left as the ten dance classes, from 3 years-old to 14 years-old, and a group from Sherwood Park, took part in the two-hour concert.

During half-time of the concert, awards were presented.

The Nellie Young Memorial Trophy for the most improved dancer went to Deanna Brown for ballet; Rebecca Anderson for Jazz; and Karen Hubbard and Elizabeth McKoon tied for tap dancing.

Receiving three-year pins were Irma Webb, Sandra Porisky, April Maurer, Sheri Robinson, Rami Hastings, Grace McKeen, Elizabeth McKoon, Bernadette Zeitel and Shauna Mae Ogonski.

Receiving five-year pins were Candy Macdonald, Paula Macdonald, Carrie Warkentin, Kim Hardy, Deanna Brown, Ann Tiedemann, Karen Hubbard, Kathy Aubrey, Stacey Fleck, Melanie Young and Penny Wood.

Dance instructors Alison Senstar and Debbie Steele were given gifts from the school.

Warkentin said after the concert that the comments she received from people were very favorable. She said that this year's concert was bigger than last year's.

The School of Dance starts in September and runs through to May of each year. The first part of the year is used in learning new dance steps and preparing for exams.

After Christmas, students and instructors start preparing for the concert. A dance committee decides the costumes the dancers will wear, then inform parents who make up the costumes for their children.

Other performances planned for the year include dancing at the Arena on July 1 and dancing at the Farmer's Market on July 6, said Warkentin.

Shoot is set

by Ken Kroetsch

The Tofield Gun Club will be holding its annual black powder shoot this Saturday and Sunday at the shooting range, one half-mile west and two miles north of Tofield.

This weekend also celebrates the 25th anniversary of the Tofield Gun Club, says Allan Warner, Tofield Gun Club secretary.

All past members of the club and all black powder shooters who have taken part in the black powder shoot in Tofield have been invited to take part in this two-day event.

Warner says that quite a few people come in costumes of early years and even a few bring tepees to stay in for the weekend.

"There's nothing else in sports like it," says Warner.

Saturday would be the best day for spectators to see the shoot, says Warner. On Saturday they use breakable targets, making it easier to see than a paper target at one hundred yards.

There is no charge for spectators, who are welcome to come out to the range and see what it's all about, says Warner.

Holden seeks new school

by Ken Kroetsch

Any plans for major construction or a new school for Holden are in the School Board's long-range plans, a delegate for the Future of Holden's School Committee was told at a School Board meeting last week.

This came in answer to a brief submitted to the School Board on December 7 of last year.

The brief was a presentation of points and information gathered from a survey of parents of school children and of junior and senior high school students.

School Board chairman, Bjordis Armitage, said the School Board had nothing planned in this area for the next two years and that it was a long-term priority.

When asked by Bobbie Schweitzer, delegate for the committee, if there were any school boundaries to ensure a school's population, Fred Rienholt, School Board superintendent, said there was no policy at this time concerning this area.

He said school bus routes set this policy now.

In an interview after the meeting, Schweitzer said parents and students in Holden want the school fully operational, with increased programs.

They also want a new school, which she said has been long overdue.

She said that the people in Holden feel they've paid school taxes for years, supporting building in other areas. Now, they feel it's Holden's turn.

Schweitzer said a lot of things submitted in the brief have been implemented, but things that weren't, were put into long-range planning.

"Our hope now is that the long range planning committee will be set up and work started."

Schweitzer said it would be unrealistic to expect the School Board to start work immediately, but she said that something definite should be done now for steps to be taken in the future

"The bottom line is that the committee and parents don't believe it's a good philosophy to provide minimum education, but we should be striving for growth and increased programs," said Schweitzer.

Since October of last year, committee members have attended all of the School Board meetings.

Schweitzer said the committee has always strived to work with the trustees and that trustees have been receptive.

Day remains

Holden Village Council decided to leave Farmer's Day on a Friday as it has been in the past.

Consideration had been given to the Agricultural Society's request that the civic holiday be changed to a Saturday, instead.

Council had asked the Chamber of Commerce for their input on the matter, and the Chamber had supported a Friday closing.

In discussion during the meeting, council felt that traditionally this holiday had always been on this day so, they voted to leave it as it has been in the past.

Introducing the New

Alberta Widows' Pension Program

If you are a widow or widower aged 55 to 65, you may qualify for financial, housing and health care benefits.

The Alberta Widows' Pension Program is a new program specifically designed to assist widows and widowers who are aged 55 to 65 and who are of limited income. This unique program provides financial, housing and health care benefits similar to those received by Alberta senior citizens.

You may be eligible.

To be eligible for the benefits of this program you must be a widow or widower, 55 years of age or older, but under 65, and a resident of Alberta. Your eligibility is also determined by your income.

The benefits of this program.

Similar to existing programs for senior citizens there are three areas of benefits under the Widows' Pension Program.

Financial:

Individuals with no income will receive benefits similar to those received by Alberta senior citizens under the Alberta Assured Income Plan and Federal income security programs. The program will also supplement incomes of eligible widows and widowers so that they will receive a total income similar to the income they would receive if they were 65 years of age.

Health Care:

Persons eligible for this program will receive premium-free Alberta Health Care Insurance and Blue Cross coverage. Blue Cross provides 80% of the cost of prescriptions and ambulance charges. Extended health benefits are also provided which cover part of the costs of optical, dental, hearing and other medical needs.

Housing:

The Widows' Pension Program is also intended to assist widows and widowers who own their own homes, and those who rent, to meet their expenses. The Property Tax Reduction or Renters' Assistance is available to recipients of the Widows' Pension. Recipients may also be eligible for the Senior Citizens' Home Improvement Grant and the Senior Citizens' Home Heating Protection Program. You will need to apply for these programs separately.

The Alberta Widows' Pension Program is effective May 1, 1983. Application forms and brochures are available at Treasury Branches and Provincial Buildings throughout the province, or from:

District news from Ryley

by Lena Ball

Janice Bednarski of Sherwood Park celebrated her birthday out on the farm with relatives from Holden and Ryley.

Ruby and Pete Hunka of Tofield and daughter, Eileen and husband Bob Seymour and Troy of Edmonton were afternoon guests at Ida and Stanley's and Gerald and Lucie Owen of Camrose were guests of Stanley's on Sunday.

The Ryley 4-H Clothing Club Busy Beavers are looking forward to their achievement day which will be held on May 28th at 7:30 p.m. in the Legion Hall.

On May 11, Donald Carry passed away in Camrose at the age of 69 years.

He is survived by his parents, Harold and Mary Carry (formerly of the Ryley area); one brother; four sisters; six sons; two daughters; and eight grandchildren.

Funeral service was held on Friday at the Burgar Memorial Chapel with Rev. Dan Van Alstine officiating. Cremation followed.

Mrs. Elida Heisler and daughters of Viking and Grandma Heisler visited Elida's mother on Sunday.

On May 12, 45 relatives and friends gathered at Johnny Fish's home to help Johnny celebrate his 75th birthday. Clara Knack decorated a birthday cake for the occasion.

Wayne and Darlene Showalter of Sherwood Park have a new daughter, on May 16. Proud grandparents are Leo and Ellen Lesser.

The Ryley girls "14 years and under" were beaten by the Holden girls on Monday evening.

Mrs. Clara Bodner is back home at Sheata after spending three weeks in Poland. Clara and her friend really enjoyed themselves. They went over to attend a wedding and Clara had made a wedding cake to take along which is quite different from the cakes made there.

A nice time was held at Elvera Reil's on May 13th to help her celebrate her birthday. Ruth Jacobson made a cake. Emma Bruha, Martha McClellan and brother-in-law and wife were there.

BETWEEN THE COVERS

On the new book shelf this week are at least two books to give you a chuckle. Peter's People and Their Marvelous Ideas by Dr. Laurence J. Peter, is a collection of satirical biographies of such persons as Mark Twain, Sigmund Freud and Johnny Carson. A chapter on "laws" such as the famous Murphy's Law and the Peter Principle is also included.

The Complete Fun Book by Art Moger is filled with one-liners, jokes and quotes, all punderfully funny.

Another chapter in the history of the Canadian frontier is covered in Patrick A. Dunae's book Gentlemen Emigrants, which looks at a particular class of immigrants to this country around the turn of the century, and their impact on our society.

In a series of Canadian Cities, Eric Nicol looks at Vancouver, writing in this easy style about the history and background of this beautiful city, right up to the present. Many personal and interesting anecdotes make this book much more than just a chronicle of events.

Somewhat more exciting is a profusely illustrated book on Stuntmen and Daredevils by Ann Kramer. Stunts with vehicles, falls and dives, stunts with animals, and movie techniques are all included.

The preschool Story Hour continues under the experienced direction of Elizabeth McLachlan and Carol Wideman on Tuesday mornings at 10 a.m. for three and four year olds. Regular Library hours are: Tuesday 1-8, Thursday 3-8 and 6-8; Friday and Saturday 10-12 and 1-5.

TGHA flashes

The Tofield Hospital Auxiliary held its regular monthly meeting on Monday

It has been decided the TGHA fund will be used for furnishing, the tuck shop, volunteer room, and all patios in the new Tofield Hospital.

TGHA is sponsoring the Tofield Heritage Day in early August.

Tuesday was the Tofield Hospital's appreciation day. A banquet of home baked goods, filled by the TGHA, was delivered as a "thank-you" for the efforts and services of the entire staff, for patient care and treatment.

The TGHA will have a booth open from 11:30 a.m. - 4 p.m. at the rodeo in Tofield. There will be iced tea, lemonade, and Kubess on a bus available.

Note to all members that the TGHA meeting time has now been changed from 8 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. on the third Monday of the month.

Ryley Fair set

The date for the Ryley Agricultural Fair has been set for August 11.

As has been the practice in the last few years, organizers will again be using the "finish system of judging whereby all items are judged against a standard and are given a rating and a ribbon.

Fair booklets will be printed within the next couple of weeks and they will be available for distribution about the middle of June.

The Community Hall will once again be open for those businesses and groups who wish to exhibit commercial displays while the curling rink will be the scene of public entries.

ADC lends $204 million

J. Harold Hanna, chairman and managing director of Agricultural Development Corporation, has announced the corporation's lending results for the fiscal year ending March 31.

Direct farm lending for the year amounted to 1,605 loans and $204 million compared with 1,580 loans and $220 million in the previous year. Included in those totals are 1,197 loans to beginning farmers for $170 million, which is down from 1,396 loans and $188.5 million in 1981-82. Loans to developing and established farmers were up slightly at 320 loans for $34 million compared with 308 loans and $31.5 million in the previous year.

Guaranteed loans to farmers under the Alberta Farm Development Loan Program (AFDLA) were also up substantially in 1982-83. A total of 2,576 loans were approved for $90 million compared with 1,540 loans and $64 million in the previous year.

Agriculture's lending in 1982-83 included 39 direct loans for $5 million compared with 37 loans and $12 million the previous year. A total of 21 guaranteed agribusiness loans were approved for $39.5 million compared with 30 loans and $14 million in 1981-82. In addition, 21 extensions in guaranteed operating loans were approved for $3.5 million.

Mr. Hanna said that although the majority of ADC's financing continued to be provided to beginning farmers, there was a general increase in the number of loans approved for farm restructuring. However, overall, the current economic conditions resulted in a modest reduction in direct lending. In addition, bank financing became a more attractive option to many farmers because of the sharp decrease in interest rates. As a result, the guaranteed Alberta Farm Development Loan program increased substantially, particularly during the second half of the fiscal year.

In keeping with ADC's objective of helping family farms establish and maintain self-sufficiency, various ADC lending and incentive programs were altered during the year. These revisions included maintaining ADC's direct farm loan interest rate at 12 per cent when other mortgage rates were generally higher; increasing the amount of loan eligibility for incentives under the Range and Soil Improvement Program and extending the purposes to which these incentives could be applied; revising the Beginning Farmer Program so that incentives are payable on the date of the loan payment to improve cash flow; and allowing increased off-farm employment for beginning and developing farmers for no more than a period of time to help them achieve self-sufficiency.

During the coming years, ADC will continue to adapt its lending programs to the changing agricultural needs of Alberta's farmers," said Mr. Hanna.

ADC's lending programs are funded through the sale of debentures to the Alberta Heritage Savings Trust Fund.

CEILING FANS
On top of their charm, ceiling fans are an effective way to stir up a breeze, making a warm fool warmer or cooler depending upon circumstances.

A fan will even out room temperatures and this could well produce energy savings. Running costs are low and maintenance minimal, making your round operation feasible. It is recommended an electrician be called in to have the fan installed unless you are an experienced handy person.

In comparison tests reported by the February 1983 edition of the Canadian Consumer, fans with wooden blades were found to move a lower volume of air during operation than metal blades. A fan with variable speed control can be used to "churn up a storm" during the heat of the afternoon and stir up a gentle breeze in the evening. Consumer Reports recommends that a minimum speed of about 90 revolutions per minute or less would satisfy those of us who enjoy a tranquil environment.

For safe clearance, the ceiling should be at least eight feet high, so the blades will be at least seven feet from the floor. Take special care in areas of the house where you might raise your arms while getting dressed or where you might playfully raise a child overhead. Also watch for curtains that could get entangled in the blades.

No one can guarantee that ceiling fans will reduce heating and cooling costs. However, they effectively circulate the air, making temperatures more even and possibly making the atmosphere more comfortable. Before you decide, consider that installation costs can double the price of your fan and that low ceilings are not the best locations for safe operation.

ENERGY EFFICIENT HOUSING

Thanks to the energy problems encountered a few years ago, plus wanting to get back to nature, some very innovative people have discovered some very interesting housing designs. These new dwellings work well towards conserving our natural resources, saving us money on our heating requirements, and use a natural source of energy available to us all - the sun.

One of these designs that is beginning to become popular is the passive solar-heated home. Ideally, this type of dwelling should be situated on a south slope allowing as much of the south part of the house as possible to be exposed to the sun. The length of the house should be along its east-west axis, with most of the windows to the south and none at all to the north. The northern part of the house should be sheltered from the wind, either by the hill or by a shelterbelt of trees. Although solar heating would be the house's primary source of energy, there are other factors to be taken into consideration such as insulation and making the house as airtight as possible.

An idea that is capturing the imagination of many is that of the attached solar greenhouse. For the best use of solar energy, an attached greenhouse would be located on the south side of the house. Not only would it provide a place for green and growing things, but it also would provide a source of energy for heating the house. In a non-attached greenhouse, most of the excess heat is allowed to escape; in an attached greenhouse the excess heat is vented to the house. It is possible in this climate that plants could be kept growing from February through November, supplying a source of fresh vegetables and beautifying the house with plants and flowers.

Another idea towards saving more energy is the possibility of retrofitting an older or existing home. (This term refers to refitting or resubstating.) In this technique, siding is usually stripped from the house, especially if it is to be reused. A vapor barrier is then added to the outside of the sheathing and all joints, windows, and door castings must be properly sealed. Stripping and insulation are installed, followed by building paper and siding. Careful attention needs to be paid to proper sealing and insulation of the house's interior, as well. This should work towards a much warmer house, plus saving a great deal of energy. Then, if one would like to install a solar collector wall alongside the south wall, one would be doing even more towards conserving energy.

These approaches to a new way of life are both innovative and exciting. Houses, in many cases, are a lifetime investment, and so should be made as energy-efficient as possible. What better way then to use solar energy as a home's prime heating source? Of course, in this cold climate, one may have to add a back-up heater such as a woodburning stove, but that's a new topic!

Some excellent sources for building your own energy-efficient home are: a booklet "Energy Efficient Housing - A Prairie Approach", available from Alberta Energy and Natural Resources, Energy Conservation Branch; a book - The Passive Solar Energy Book by Edward Mazria; and a magazine - The Mother Earth News, Shelter Special.

4-H plans Day

by Lori Brown

Members of the Tofield 4-H Beef Club met last Wednesday evening in the Arts and Crafts room.

Carcase night will be on May 30th at 7 p.m. in the Arena. Any interested persons are welcome to attend.

Achievement Day is not for June 6th. Weighing of calves will be at 10 a.m., showing of calves at 12:30 p.m. followed by the heifer show and then the sale at 3 p.m. There will be an animal for weight guessing.

The banquet will be held in the Legion Hall at 7:30 p.m. Guest speaker will be Don Kendrick, on the Boy Scouts' trip to Australia.

Members decided to once again work in the old-timer's hockey booth on July 1st.

Members also decided to decorate a float for July 1st and possibly combine with the Crafts and Laughs 4-H Club. Mrs. Elendt and Mrs. V. Brown will be in charge of the floats.

Members decided to purchase an electric cattle clipper for all to use.

Cathy Brown and Paul Laarhuis were elected to attend 4-H Club Week to be held in Camrose in August.

Daniel Brown gave a report on 4-H Selections which he had attended at Olds recently.

Sixty young people were awarded trips and Daniel will be going to Manitoba this summer.

Record books are to be turned into Mrs. Grace Schacher by June 15th.

A wind-up party will be held June 20th at the Tim Wood farm.

Lakeshore-McKenzie news items

by Ellen Kelso

Correction on item in May 5th edition in my column regarding birthday party held May 2nd.

The birthday party was held at the home of Mrs. Helen Jensen instead of the home of Mrs. Mae Ferguson and was in honor of both Helen's and Mae's birthdays which fall a few days apart. Mae's granddaughter Wanda Weir was at Mae's home later instead of at the party as reported. Your reporter is sorry for the mistake.

Carl and Mavis Jacobsen returned home on May 2nd after spending two weeks with their daughter and son-in-law, Dennis and Chris and children in Toronto, Ontario.

Sunday visitors at the home of Carl and Mavis Jacobsen were their daughter, Karen and Jim Kaiser, and Carl's mother, Mrs. Martha Jacobsen, all of Edmonton.

Mother's Day visitors at the home of Isabel and Rod Radecki and son David were the other members of their family, Donald and Kathy Radecki and son Michael of Calgary, Sharon and Morgan Symon and Heather Radecki, all of Edmonton, Isabel's brother Ross Kyle of Sherwood Park and Isabel's and Ross's mother, Mrs. Donald Kyle of Tofield, also a cousin of their father, Mrs. Peggy Howe of London, England, who has been visiting Mrs. Kyle in Tofield for a short time and the other members of the Kyle family around Tofield and Mr. Kyle in Edmonton.

Mrs. Annie Frenichuk of Ryley was a Saturday visitor with Ellen Kelso in Tofield.

Mother's Day visitors at the home of Vera Reams in Tofield were her cousin, Clarence Phillips and Mrs. Bertha Moore of Edmonton. Ellen also had a phone call from her daughter, Rita and granddaughter, Sherry from Ancaster, Ont. She also received a plant from Leroy and Shirley and gifts from Rachel and Tim Ross and girls.

Donna and Frank Edwards and daughter Judy of Whitecourt arrived Saturday morning and spent until Sunday evening at the home of Donna's mother, Mae Ferguson. Also there for the week was her son, Nelson and Ron-Al Ferguson and children of Sherwood Park. On Sunday, Mae's daughter, Loretta Weir and her daughter, Mrs. Loretta Weir were Camrose visitors on Monday. Later, her granddaughter, Wanda Weir and John Berlan of Tofield were visitors on the farm for the day.

Seeding underway

Seeding of the 1983 crop is expected to be general throughout the area this week, according to the Alberta Wheat Pool.

Although seeding operations actually got underway in some areas during the first week of the month, delays then followed because of poor weather conditions that included rain, hail and snow.

To this point in time, most of the seeding has involved wheat although a start has been made with canola, barley and flax.

The heat program has been made in the New Norway area where farmers have already seeded sixty percent of the projected wheat acreage, along with about ten percent of intended canola and a start has been made with flax.

Farmers around Holden have seeded about sixty percent of the wheat crop.

About one-quarter of intended wheat acreage has been seeded in the Tofield area and a start has been made with canola and barley.

Seeding of wheat has been started in Vermilion and Bawlf areas.

Reports from other areas have not been received by presstime.

Overall in the areas reporting, seeding of about five percent of intended crop acres have now been completed.

The Cavell Rebekha Lodge is canvassing for the Cancer Fund, delayed because their books were late in coming. Canvassers in Ryley are Mrs. Bea Vikstrom, Lucille Knudsden, Carie Mitzera, and Anna Kongsrud. Ryley south are Bertha Winsnes, Kay Hillerud, Ryley north are Ethel Pepper, Evelyn Lyons and Harriet Raddy.

Mr. and Mrs. Forest Nichols, Calgary, and Mrs. Fern Loungway of Cromfield were visitors with the George Nelis.

The Grade five students at Ryley went to Edmonton on a tour to the Edmonton Journal and Museum.

On Thursday Mildred Stensrud and her father, Jorgen Davick, left by plane to Whitehorse to attend the graduation exercises of their resistive, Robert Dobson.

Bertha Winsnes, Ryley, was a Tuesday visitor at Martha Johnson's.

Recent guests at Arthur Kvale's were her folks, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Throndson, Camrose and Emily Kvale.

Mother's Day was a big day for Dale and Colleen Stensrud when their infant son, Brent Dale was baptized at Ryley Lutheran Church by Rev. Bid Haugen. Sponsors were Ron and Vanda Stefurs.

Following the services the following were dinner guests at the Dale Stensrud home, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Stensrud, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Johnson, Holden, Jorgen Davick, Brian and Jeanette Johnson, Dagny Jeines, Ron and Vanda Stefurs, Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Skaga, Rev. and Mrs. Sid Haugen and Joanne, Mr. and Mrs. Garry Stensrud, Kevin, Shelly and Michelle, Dan and Lola Wagner, Darcy and Tracy. Later in the day Mr. and Mrs. Kevin Jeines and children were also guests.

Gwen Campbell was a Friday visitor with Ruth Chappell and Emma Knudson.

The Zion L.C.W. met Wednesday in Camrose with Alice Larson and Sharon Rossberg leading the Bible study.

Several locally enjoyed the 37th annual Barbershop Harmony Night Saturday night at Camrose. Taking part from her were Lloyd Olson and his son Tristan. The conductor was M. Gilbertson.

Others enjoyed the 40 singers at Camrose Mennonite Church May 9 from the Canadian Mennonite Bible College of Winnipeg directed by George Wiebe. The singers were chosen from a student body of 130.

Stan Chappell, Calgary, assisted Vern Ream this past week with field work.

Sunday callers at Ruth Chappell's were Mrs. Janet Hallowachuk, Vern Ream's and Stan Chappell of Calgary.

Around the town

Last Wednesday night, Tofield firemen responded to a grass and bush fire adjacent to the refuse pit.

People should be aware that there is a by-law concerning burning within the town limits.

Last Thursday night, firemen responded to a fire where a vehicle had become stuck, overheated, and started a grass fire. The vehicle was completely burned, as well as 30 acres of land.

Four ladies of the ACW attended the funeral of Archdeacon Vincent Cole, held in Holy Trinity Church in Edmonton last Friday.

Myrtle Nerland, Mrs. G. Caspin, Pat Glover and Mrs. Prueberry made the trip to Edmonton to pay their last respects.

Rev. Cole served for many years in the Tofield area. He is remembered and respected as pastor of the Tofield Legion and for his work with the Boy Scouts.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Penner were surprised Sunday as friends and family gathered to celebrate the couple's 50th wedding anniversary. An open house was held at the home of the couple's son and daughter-in-law, Bob and Kathy Palmer, of Sherwood Park.

Many friends and relatives attended including Palma's mother and Jim and Myrtle Thorsley, a couple who had attended the Penner's wedding 40 years ago.

Holden and district news

by Mrs. H.M. Taylor

Mrs. Ann Scherger, Mrs. Grace Appleby, Mrs. Nellie Kaluzny and Mrs. Kate Nichols went to Red Deer last Saturday attending the R.C.C.W.I. convention.

Mrs. Kate Nichol's brother, Jack from Grande Prairie, has been a patient in the University Hospital for a few days, after having a heart attack.

Mrs. Edith Carlson returned home last Friday afternoon after being a patient in Tofield Hospital for a week with the flu.

Mr. and Mrs. Alan Tiedemann and family of Edmonton were visiting with their family, Helen and Jim Zwiarschke on the weekend. Robert, who had been spending a few days in Edmonton with his brothers, also returned home.

Mrs. Sherawara, a resident at the Holden Senior Citizen Lodge has been a patient for a couple of weeks in Tofield Hospital.

Mrs. Marjorie Campbell of Ledue with her brother, Bill Campbell of Toronto, who had been spending a few days with his sister and husband and visiting with his mother, Mrs. Campbell in the Nursing Home at Ledue, were visitors on Wednesday of last week in Holden and called on friends here. Marjorie also called on Mrs. Edith Carlson in Tofield Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Archie Corliss returned home to Chase, B.C. last Thursday after visiting with their family, Mr. and Mrs. Brian Corliss and grandsons and several friends around Holden, for the past two weeks.

Holden Lodge Order of the Royal Purple held their regular monthly meeting on May 10th with H.R.I. Mary Semotiuk in the chair. A letter from Holden School advised that Annette Stuart was eligible to receive the 1983 O.O.R.P. scholarship award. A report of the recently held cancer campaign was given by H.R.I. Semotiuk, a total of $697 had been collected. A committee to convene the Brownie, Guide and mother banquet on May 13 was appointed. It was also decided to entertain senior citizens at their Drop-In Centre on Royal Purple Day, June 1st, and to visit the Senior Citizen Lodge on June 8th.

P.H.R.I. Corliss of Chase, B.C. who attended the meeting, and Lady Eleanor Cammell were presented with their 15-year pins. Members were reminded that the special meeting to install officers for the 1983-84 term would be held on May 25th with Dist. Dep. Lady Northey attending. At the close of the meeting lunch was served, with hostesses being Ladies Mary Gardecki and Olive Gair.

Sherman Farre of Camrose was a visitor in Holden last week calling on several friends. Sherman started working for the Royal Bank in Holden many years ago and had held many prominent positions with them in Canada and South America before retiring some years ago, making his home in Camrose.

The funeral of Mrs. Vera Scott of Daysland Creek, a member of one of the Holden district pioneer families, the Clarks, who farmed for many years east of Holden, coming to Canada from Sioux Valley, U.S. in 1902, was held on April 27th at Dawson Creek. She attended one of the small rural schools in the district and at Holden. She also taught school before her marriage in 1934 and was an active member of Holden United Church. She married Maxwell Scott in 1934, farming first at Artland, Sask., then moved to the Peace River country in 1938 and then to the Bayiree district in 1951. She was predeceased by her husband in 1976, a son, Lloyd in 1942. She leaves three sons, Cecil and Donald of Dawson Creek and Douglas at Bay Tree; one brother, Victor Clark of Winnipeg; one sister, June Clark of Dawson Creek; 11 grandchildren; and 10 great-grandchildren.

Many old friends, neighbours and former Holdenites attended the funeral of Mary Fjellstrom on May 10th in Holden Lutheran Church to pay their last respects to this pioneer lady. Mary Caroline Fjellstrom passed away on May 7th in Viking Hospital at the age of 96 years, after a lingering illness.

She, with her parents, came to Holden district from the U.S. around 1902, from Minnesota. She lived on the farm until several years ago, then owing to health problems, she moved into Holden to live with her son, Melvin and later owing to her health, she had been a resident of the Viking Nursing Home in past few years. The service was held in Holden Lutheran Church with Rev. Sid Hagen of Ryley officiating and interment was in the Holden Cemetery. She is survived by one son, Melvin of Holden; one sister, Alma of Camrose; nieces and nephews. Pallbearers were Art Olson, Darwin San, Robert Potts, Marvin Giebelhaus, Kenneth Sorgen and Lawrence Harum.

Former Holdenites attending the funeral of Mary Fjellstrom on May 10th were Ken and Hildru Sorgen, Mrs. Sergina Sizer, Arthur Olson, Laura and Algot Hutholm of Camrose, Mrs. Lillie McLeod and Mrs. Albert Schaur of Edmonton.

Holden Lodge Order of the Royal Purple have planned to entertain senior citizens of Holden at their Drop-In Centre at a social afternoon to observe Royal Purple Day on the first Wednesday in June.

Mrs. Nellie Kaluzny and Mrs. Kate Nichols attended the service and evening banquet of the Ryley C.W.L. held in Ryley on Tuesday evening of last week.

Mrs. Ragnhild Hagerud, a member of a pioneer family of Holden, the Burnstads, passed away on Friday at the age of 88 years in Bethany Auxiliary Hospital in Camrose where she had been for the past eight years. The family emigrated to the U.S. in 1902 from Norway and after homesteading for 10 years at Smith, settled in the Holden District in about 1913. She was an active member of the Holden Lutheran Church and the L.C.W. until leaving Holden owing to health problems. She leaves to mourn her passing, nieces and nephews.

She was predeceased by her husband, Gerhard; five brothers; and three sisters.

The funeral service held Monday afternoon in Holden Lutheran Church with Rev. Sid Hagen and Rev. Herbert Nelson officiating and interment was in Holden Cemetery.

Pallbearers were Ronald Burnstad, Norris Burnstad, Garnet Burnstad, Pierre Burnstad, John Burnstad and Lyle Grosland.

Laura and Algot Hutholm, Sherman Farre and Arthur Olson of Camrose, former Holdenites, were in Holden on Monday afternoon to attend the funeral of Mrs. Ragnhild Hagerud.

Hay Lakes district news

by Mrs. A. Amston

At an afternoon ceremony held on April 23 at St. Johns Lutheran Church in New Sarepta, JoAnn Trumpener and Darcy Galenza were united in marriage. Pastor Wenzel officiated. JoAnn is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Trumpener of New Sarepta and Darcy is the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Galenza of Hay Lakes.

She was attended by her sister Patti Nessler as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Sheila Galenza, Michelle Galenza and Melody Schlender. The groom was attended by his brothers Brian and Rick Galenza, Terry Sych and Ken Metzker.

Eugene Galenza and Mike Trumpner were the ushers. Clarence Newman sang two selections.

Following the service a reception and dance was held in Camrose. Glenn Harke acted as master of ceremonies for the evening.

Coming from a distance to attend the event were the bride's cousins, Helga and Jos Maff of Brooklyn, New York.

Following a honeymoon in Banff the newlyweds took up residence in the village of Hay Lakes.

The Hay Lakes Home and School barbeque hamburger sale, held on May 12 during the noon hour for all students at Hay Lakes School, was well received. The success of the project was due to the volunteer help from parents who also provided the gas barbeques. Proceeds will be used to purchase plaques for the 16 1982-83 graduates of Hay Lakes School.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Hansen have returned from an 18-day vacation spent visiting with relatives at Minneapolis and Washington, D.C.

Mrs. Tillie Sych was one of five delegates from the Alberta Federation of the Homes and School Association attending the Role of the Teacher in the Future Conference held in Edmonton May 13-14. The conference was sponsored by the Alberta Teacher's Association and included guest speakers and group sessions discussing the trends for the roll of the teacher in the future (2000 A.D.).

Mrs. Lil Grams has returned from a two-week vacation, spent visiting relatives in Winnipeg, Toronto, Peterborough and other points in Ontario. Lil was accompanied by her sister Gladys of Summerland, B.C. and her mother, Mrs. Bohler of High Prairie.

Due to the support and generous donations of local resident s the tea and sale sponsored by the Hay Lakes Library Board on May 14 proved to be most successful. Neil Johnson was the lucky winner in the plant draw and Lynn Leicht won a jar of honey.

The Alberta Junior Citizen of the Year Awards

As adults, we sometimes take for granted that young people will follow in our footsteps But, when they exceed those expectations, it shouldn't go unrewarded.

The Junior Citizen Awards are one way you can show your respect and appreciation. In the past 22 years, more than 200 young Albertans and 25 groups have been honoured for leadership, outstanding achievement, or for overcoming special challenges. They've all been very special people.

If you'd like to say thanks to an exceptional youth in your community, someone between the ages of six and eighteen, clip the coupon and send it to the editor of this newspaper Also, you may nominate two or more youths in the group category

by Mrs. A. Arneson

Mr. and Mrs. John Groeller accompanied their daughter, Mrs. Dorothy Branson, on a water trip to Pincher Creek where they spent the weekend at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Kelly Barten. Mr. and Mrs. Groeller had come to see their first great-grandchild, Lacey May Barten, who was born on May 4, 1983.

A number of residents from Hay Lakes and Armena attended the Norwegian Independence Day celebrations held at the Viking Cultural Center in Camrose on Sunday afternoon. The event commenced with a parade to the flagpole led by Hans Espe playing the accordian. Then the flag was raised and the national anthem was sung. Indoors, Ed Marken spoke on the Independence of Norway. He also served as master of ceremonies for the program and kept the audience amused with his numerous jokes. Mrs. Marken played the piano for a sing-song led by Alice Larson.

The Ronning Lodge Drill Team entertained with Drills and Norwegian dances to music provided by Mrs. Marken. The three children of Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Lien also played a musical number.

The afternoon concluded with a smorgasbord lunch featuring rommegrot.

Lucky winner of the draw for a Norwegian wall hanging was Rolfe Lamin of Swan Hills.

Winner selected

The Beaverhill Hockey League has named a winner.

The league operates a Bonanza Club and recently made the draw for the month of May.

The winner of $500 was Glenda Williams of Tofield.

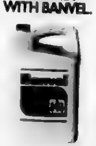
GET HEMP-NETTLE AND CHICKWEED TOO!

Add Banvel to your mix and supercharge it. Get those hard-to-kill weeds like Canada thistle, cow cockle, hemp-nettle, and wild buckwheat, weeds that 2,4-D or MCPA alone don't even touch. Banvel added to your mix acts like a supercharger. Mixed with 2,4-D, MCPA, Sencor or Lexone, Banvel delivers effective control of Tartary buckwheat, corn spurry, pigweed and many others.

SUPERCHARGE YOUR MIX WITH BANVEL.



Spray weeds early, when they are in the seedling stage. Early control of weeds means greater yields at harvest time. Banvel in your mix means you'll get the real tough ones too. If you don't mix with Banvel, you've still got weeds.

WEED OF THE MONTH

Periodically during the spring and summer we will be giving you some information on common weeds in the area. ALL weeds are serious, but certain ones pose a greater threat to agricultural production than others. Concern about these weeds is justified.

Scentless Chamomile, better known as mayweed, is such a concern. First introduced as a garden flower, this plant was able to thrive in the central and northern regions of Alberta. It mainly inhabits waste areas along roadsides, and fence lines, but is now spreading into hay fields, pastures and cropland providing competition and reducing crop yields.

Mayweed is very adaptable and capable of behaving as an annual, biennial or winter annual. It can be easily distinguished by its white, daisy-like flowers and its finely divided fern-like leaves. The flowers are solitary at the ends of smooth, erect or semi-erect branches and measure 2 to 3.5 cm in diameter. Flowering can occur from June through October.

When not subjected to competition, the plants are capable of growing up to 1 m in height and are very bushy. The seeds are rectangular in shape and have prominent wing-like ribs which are paler in color than the kernel. The root system tends to be extensive and fibrous but does not run or creep.

Mayweed is a prolific producer, able to produce up to 300,000 seeds per plant. These seeds can remain dormant in undisturbed soil for extended periods of time before germinating. It is spread mainly by seed because they are small and light, and easily carried by wind and water. Because of large seed production and through the process of natural selection, scentless chamomile is able to produce degenerate forms which adapt readily and grow vigorously in any new environment. Once established, it spreads rapidly into adjacent cropland and pastures causing crop yield reduction and providing competition for soil nutrients, moisture and light.

CONTROL

(a) Cultural

The most effective control is early control, which is done in the first year of growth. Control measures should focus on preventing seed production since this is the main source of spread. Get rid of the first plants. The basic concept of cultural control after a population is noticed is to encourage seeds to germinate and then to uproot and destroy the seedlings. Shallow cultivation will encourage seed germination and growth and vigorous cultivation will result in the uprooting and removal of soil particles from the root system of existing seedlings and mature plants. (Any tillage method that successfully removes the soil particles from the root ball is recommended, because it causes the plant to die from dehydration.)

Cultivation after harvest destroys fall germinated winter annuals and buries any seeds that otherwise might be spread by runoff, wind or drifting snow. Burying the seed also encourages spring germination.

Preventative measures should be taken to discourage mayweed from becoming established. Before purchasing seed or hay, check that it is free of this weed. Do not weaken crops by overgrazing, as this decreased resistance makes the areas susceptible to infestation.

(b) Chemical

For the most up-to-date details of chemical control of mayweed in specific crops see, "Guide to Weed Control in Alberta - Part I - Chemical", which is available from your District Extension Office.

Armena sets tourney

. . . Powerline opens

The first baseball tournament of the season has been scheduled and hockey interfered with the opening of the Powerline Baseball League.

Armena will be hosting a six-team tournament on Sunday with all entries being from the Powerline.

The 1983 league season was supposed to open yesterday (Tuesday) evening on four fronts but, with the NHL finals in progress, at least one game was postponed until the next evening.

Armena was to have played in Ryley on Tuesday but, the game was delayed for one day and at presstime, it was not known if the other teams would follow this lead.

In addition to the host team, others entered in Armena's tournament are Bardo, Camrose, Round Hill, Ryley and Viking.

The first game will go at ten o'clock and will put Viking against Round Hill while a noon contest will have Bardo facing Armena and a two o'clock match has Ryley against Camrose.

Semi-final action has been scheduled for four o'clock and the tournament's championship game will go at six o'clock.

In addition to the game in Ryley, other opening night matches were slated for Holden, Bardo and Round Hill.

Action on Thursday evening will see Bardo at home to Ryley, Holden is hosting Armena, Round Hill will be in Tofield and Camrose travels to Viking.

Games this coming Tuesday evening will see Armena hosting Viking, Camrose is at home to Bardo, Round Hill will be at home to Ryley and Tofield is hosting Holden.

Games scheduled for one week from Thursday will have Bardo playing in Armena, Camrose is at home to Round Hill, Tofield plays in Ryley and Holden goes over to Viking.

The regular schedule will end on June 30th unless there are important postponed games to be played.

When the regular schedule has been completed, four teams will advance to semi-final action while the other four will hang up their spikes, except for tournament play.

It is expected that all teams will be hosting tournaments before the baseball season comes to an end with most tournaments being held in conjunction with community Sports Days.

Travelling light

Plexiglass "pipes" can be used for lighting in office buildings, replacing electrical wires, says a research associate with the University of British Columbia physics department.

Lorne Whitehead has invented a system that uses rectangular tubes filled with plexiglass prisms that reflect light from electric bulbs or from any other source, without emitting heat. The tubes can 'pipe' light into a room from an outside source.

The "light pipes" will be used in the Insurance Corporation of British Columbia building under construction in North Vancouver, says Whitehead, whose invention won a prize for innovation at a U.S. lighting competition last August.

The new devices would be useful for buildings with high ceilings where lightbulbs are difficult to reach, or in areas where there is a need for close-up lighting without excess heat, such as in operating rooms.

They could also be installed in rooms containing high explosives or in other areas where wiring is unsafe because of the danger of sparks.

Trailer regulations

A degree of confusion has arisen concerning small livestock trailers used by many farmers to pull behind a half-ton truck. According to Alberta law, these trailers require a break-away switch which will lock the brakes if the trailer becomes disconnected from the towing vehicle.

This has been a part of the Highway Traffic Act for several years and has been enforced on a number of occasions recently. Those who use such trailers should possibly check with traffic enforcement officers about requirements. A breakaway kit is said to be available which [illegible] be installed by [illegible] operator.

Gas threatens garage

by Ken Kroetsch

The building known as Pete's Garage in Tofield was torn down on Sunday after it was considered an explosive situation by the Fire Prevention Branch from Edmonton, said Mel Brodie, Tofield town administrator.

The Fire Prevention Branch was called in to investigate the garage after strong gasoline fumes were reported to be coming up from under the floor boards of the building.

The fumes are thought to have come from a leak in either the lines or the gasoline storage tanks on the premises. The gasoline then leaked under the building, creating strong fumes, said Brodie.

The building was closed and cordoned off because of the potential fire hazard caused by the fumes.

The County of Strathcona fire chief came down Friday to use foam equipment to spray foam under the building to control the fumes and to eliminate the chance of an explosion, said Brodie.

On Saturday, all of the equipment and possessions were removed from the building to an adjacent building to the west of the present structure.

On Sunday, a contractor was brought in to tear the garage down. The Tofield Fire Department was on hand and ready to handle any emergencies that might arise.

The storage tanks and lines are also to be removed later this week.

Even after the tanks have been removed, the problem can be far from over.

The problem is that gasoline could have seeped through the ground and spread under other buildings in the area or, there is a possibility that the gasoline could seep into the sewer system, said Brodie.

People from Alberta Environment will be out later this week to test the area, to see if this has happened.

The building torn down was owned by Tuss Properties Ltd. and leased by Peter Onishio.

Shoot is held

by Ken Kroetsch

The weather was good for the Tofield Gun Club's black powder shoot last weekend, despite foreboding rain clouds, said John Warner, Tofield Gun Club secretary.

44 shooters turned out for the two-day event, with 120 people attending the barbeque.

Shooters came from all over, some from B.C., some from Saskatchewan, as well as shooters from Alberta.

The primitive aggregate winner was Gordie Warner of Victoria, B.C.

The grand champion of the shoot was Michael Bott of Edmonton.

The black powder shoot celebrated the 50th anniversary of the Tofield Gun Club.

The two-day event was held on the shooting range, one half-mile west of Tofield and two miles north.

Skating Club members were on hand to run the concession booth on the location for shooters and spectators.

4-H day planned

by Lori Brown

Tofield 4-H Beef Club Achievement Day will be held on June 5th at the Arena.

Weighing of calves will be at 10 a.m. The steer show will take place at 12:30 p.m. followed by the showing of heifers.

Judge for the day will be Joe Kalisz of Thorhild.

The sale of the calves will be held at 3 p.m., followed by the beef carcass sale.

Banquet and presentation of awards will be held in the Legion Hall at 7:30 p.m.

Guest speaker will be Mr. Kondrat, speaking on the Boy Scouts' trip to Australia.

Everyone is invited to attend the entire day.

Rodeo is set to go

by Ken Kroetsch

The first annual Tofield Saddle Bustier Rodeo will go this weekend at the Sports Grounds, with all the preparations for the rodeo having been completed, said Glenn Jones, rodeo committee chairman.

Jones said he expects a large turnout of entries, although he hasn't received the exact number yet.

He said he based this on the Cooking Lake rodeo which had a large number of entries at their rodeo.

The rodeo will start at 1 p.m. with the competition and with the opening of the beer gardens.

The rodeo will feature bareback and saddle bronc riding, steer wrestling, ranch bustin for five year olds and under, team roping, ladies' barrel racing, calf roping, junior steer riding, junior barrel racing and bull riding.

Trophy buckles and $100 prize money for each rodeo event is sponsored by local businesses and companies.

The final amount of prize money awarded to the top six cowboys in each event is determined by the number of entries in the rodeo. The more entries in the event, the higher the prize money.

The amount of money won in the Tofield rodeo is kept track of by the Lakeland Rodeo Association. Then, the top ten money winners will be eligible to enter the Finals Rodeo in October, in Camrose.

At 4:30 p.m. the Tofield Lions will be having a beef barbecue.

At 9 p.m. the band Clearwater will be playing for a dance in the Community Hall.

Sunday morning at 9:30 a.m., the Tofield Legion will be holding a pancake breakfast. The breakfast will go until around 11:30 a.m.

At 1 p.m. on Sunday the crowning of the first Tofield Saddlebustier Rodeo Queen will take place.

Rodeo queen contestants are judged 40 per cent on ticket sales, 40 per cent on horsemanship and 20 per cent on congeniality.

The top scorer in all three areas will be crowned as the Rodeo Queen.

The Tofield queen contestants are Kelly Gill, sponsored by the Beaverhill Light Horse Association; Dianne Harper, sponsored by the Ketchemaul Gymkana Club; Lori Mlsna, sponsored by Wade's Training stable; Cyndie Rabbis and Kim McKinney, sponsored by the New Sarepta Gymkana Club.

Local businessmen plan to get in the spirit of the rodeo by dressing up in western styles during the rodeo.

Businessmen have also sponsored money for prizes in the rodeo.

Torn down
Pete's Garage on main street in Tofield was torn down last Sunday after the Fire Prevention Branch from Edmonton condemned the building because of a seeping gas line under the building. Where this building stood is now an empty lot.

Students will change schools

by Ken Kroetsch

County of Beaver vocational students will be bused to Vegreville Composite High School in September instead of W.P. Wagner in Edmonton, said Don Kondrat, supervisor of instruction for the County of Beaver.

The change in school was due to budgetary restraints by the County of Beaver School Board.

It could mean an estimated $30,000 a year savings, said Kondrat.

The W.P. Wagner route will be terminated, but parents with children presently enrolled at W.P. Wagner can apply to the School Board for support if they wish to leave their child in the Edmonton school.

The Board will continue to pay the non-residents tuition fee and will either pay a maintenance allowance of $47.35 a day, or $232.50 a month, or will pay a transportation allowance of 8.37 a kilometre, to a maximum of $6.80 a day.

Parents of children affected will be notified by mail of the change, said Kondrat.

Presently there are eighteen students from Holden, Ryley, and Tofield enrolled in a vocational program, said Kondrat.

Vocational students are referred to the program by the classroom teacher. A committee deliberates on the student concerned and if it is thought that it would be in the child's best interest to attend vocational school, parents are advised to enroll the child in the vocational program.

Video games don't cause delinquency

by Lawrence Pozer

Video arcades do not significantly contribute to delinquent behaviour in school children, says a report by a York University sociologist.

Dr. Dennis P. Ellis says his study of 288 school children living near Toronto shows that many delinquent children play video games, but their delinquency is usually caused by inadequate parental control.

He also said he found little evidence that video games contribute significantly to drug use or poor grades or that children spend much of their lunch money on the games.

The results were based on responses to interviews and questionnaires given to boys and girls in two schools with predominantly working-class populations. The students, who were not aware of the purpose of the study, were asked how many hours a week they normally spend in various leisure activities, including video games.

The questionnaires and interviews were also used to measure the students' level of delinquency, by asking such questions as "Do you usually finish your homework?" or "Have you cheated in class?"

The answers indicated that students who visit arcades are more likely than others to be delinquent, but that video games enthusiasts are less likely to be delinquent if they are subject to strong parental control.

The study found that delinquency was a much more serious problem for students whose parents let them visit arcades after 10 p.m. - a good indicator of weak parental control, says Ellis, because it is technically illegal in Ontario for children under 18 to be outside the home after 10 p.m. without adult supervision.

Far less delinquency was noted for children who visited arcades frequently, but were not allowed outside after 10 p.m.

Even though video game fans are slightly more delinquent than abstainers, this appears to have no impact on academic performance.

"Children who do poorly in school are no more likely than the better students to engage in delinquent activity," says Ellis, whose data also showed that "children who visit arcades do no better nor worse at school than children who do not."

Ellis also says that video game playing is not addictive. Only 9.3 per cent of the children surveyed reported spending more than four hours a week in an arcade, while the average child spends about 10 hours watching television and five hours reading for every hour spent playing video games.

Three percent of the children reported spending their lunch money on video games. Fourteen percent said they were approached in an arcade by drug dealers, although this was reported mainly by students who visited arcades after the 10 p.m. curfew.

Ellis recommends that parents exercise greater control in preventing their children from leaving home after 10 p.m. He also recommends that arcades be permitted to post no-loitering signs and that they would be more subject to bylaws and regulations.

He also recommends that the minority of video arcade owners who admit children after 10 p.m. and allow drug trafficking should "clean up their act". He says they could create a more wholesome atmosphere if they installed games that would attract parents and girls, two groups seldom seen in the more disreputable arcades.

Travel observations that hit home

By W. Roger Warth

Perhaps, just perhaps, we are our own worst enemies. How else to describe Canadians' penchant for visiting other nations, while tourism operators and their employers in our own country are facing such difficult times? It's a paradox, but the facts are relatively simple.

Last year, Canadians took more than five billion of their dollars out of the country to travel and support tourism operators in other nations. What's more, about $3.2-billion of the total bill was spent in the United States.

Naturally, there are some good reasons for the spending. The winter weather in Florida, Arizona and California, for example, is certainly warmer than it is in St. John's, Chicoutimi, Thunder Bay and Cold Lake. But that's a crass we have to bear, even condoning the sun-seekers who drift south to recharge their batteries.

Nevertheless, we're now entering the sunny season when Canadians can get the ready-made warmth in their own country. So, there's little reason for them to take their money south of the border. Still, many persist in making the trek. There are good reasons why they should change their ways.

Canada's campgrounds, trailer parks, cabins, lodges, motels, hotels and tourist facilities, for instance, are at least the equal of those in the U.S., and travellers don't have to worry about losing money on currency exchange rates. (Don't forget, at exchange rate is more than 20 percent, and that cash is lost money.)

Then there are the funny little items that people tend to forget when they add up the cost of a trip. We sometimes don't compute, for example, that the use of Canadian roads is generally free, while travel on those south of the border costs nickles, dimes or dollars.

But there is more than out-of-pocket costs involved in the choice between vacationing in Canada or the U.S. As it stands, it is a crucial matter of jobs, and in which country they will be available.

With 1.6 million or more of us unemployed, Canadians badly need the jobs that can be provided if we vacation in our own country. In addition, they we the kinds of jobs that really count.

Many of them are filled by students, who may not be able to attend sessions in the raf if they don't earn some cash. Others belong to the young unemployed, who haven't had the opportunity to show their skills, even on a short-term basis.

So perhaps Canadians should have second thoughts about relaxing for a week or two at a U.S., rather than a Canadian, resort this summer.

By spending the cash in Canada, you won't have to feel guilty about depriving Canadians of jobs.

What's more, your spouse or children might actually appreciate seeing a greater part of their own country. It's a point worth considering.

Not to be trusted

So Robert Kaplan doesn't believe Members of Parliament can be trusted not to blab all they know.

Minister of Justice in the Trudeau cabinet, Mr. Kaplan is defending the concept of not allowing Members of Parliament to control in any way the new intelligence and security force he is proposing to take such matters out of the hands of the RCMP. Instead, he would name a group of highly trustworthy and also experienced former Parliamentarians to act as an overseeing committee.

Such sterling examples as Alastair Gillespie and Bryce Mackasey come immediately to mind.

The job of a Member is to talk, declares Mr. Kaplan, to tell what he knows which may be in the interests of his constituency . . . or of the nation.

But he forgets that some members, Cabinet members, take an oath of secrecy not to reveal matters which are discussed by Cabinet. It seems to have posed few problems. Is there any reason why such an oath might not be taken by members of an All-Party committee, one charged with the running and overseeing of a super-security force?

There are many reasons why we might be concerned with a number of Members of Parliament controlling such a force, but we would still feel infinitely more comfortable with people we elect, however much we may disagree with their viewpoint, than we would with people who are appointed from the inside, and who grow with the system, and who, in the final analysis are answerable to almost no-one.

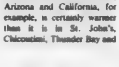
It is too easy to remember the way the FBI grew beyond effective government control under the late J. Edgar Hoover, no matter how well-intentioned his program. It is too easy to remember the frightful inroads of the McCarthy witchhunt, all in the name of protecting the United States from Communism. It is too easy to remember that our own vaunted RCMP, left in a vacuum when forthright direction did not come from government, reacted to what they supposed were innendoes of direction, but were kept in a situation where the federal minister was scrupulously protected from knowing what they were doing. It is too easy to remember how many travesties are being charged against the American CIA, reaching far beyond the purpose for which it was created, including covert action, infiltration, and even political machinations extending so far as murder.

Mr. Kaplan may well be right not to trust Members of Parliament . . . he is on far better terms with them than we are. We still believe in the doctrine of elected people being responsible to the people who elected them. And ultimately being held responsible. It may be slow, even clumsy. It may be inefficient. It may be frustrating. And even wasteful of resources.

But we submit it is still democracy.

And outside the church we cannot think of a better system yet devised by man for the government of man.

Patricia Young Says . . . . .



One of the sad things about society is it's short memory. With wages and prices chasing one another like a dog chasing its tail, no-one seems to give a thought to the depression which inevitably follows inflation. The trouble is, there aren't enough people around to remind us how it was. Like somebody else's war "over there" the depression of the thirties appears as far removed as the Charleston and bootleg booze. It won't hold any surprises for the tough old timer who hopped freight cars from coast to coast looking for a job - who remembers the breadlines and the old people hunting for food in restaurant garbage cans.

As we listen bleakly to the news of dust covered farms, there won't be much use for that electric carving knife, bar-b-q and electric can opener. Those two cars in the garage and mil boat will only be worth their sale value (if anyone should want them.) But there will always be horseshoes - a great classless, costless pastime. Should we run short of horseshoes, we might even rust them from one of the Arab countries at a time we become.

Novies may come back - after we've pawned the TV sets. Remember the Marx Brothers' Garbo and Shirley Temple? Remember Ruby Keeler, Jeanette McDonald and Gable? How we warmed our bleak hearts at the make believe hearth of the movie kingdom. Even the songs were optimistic - Keep Your Sunny Side Up and Sleepy Valley. Ballets of seasonal hockey tickets and leisurely weekends at the race track, we had lots of miniature golf, which offered the solace of the nickel glass of beer. To be sure, most of our miniature golf courses have disappeared - but we might well set them up again on our car-less parking lots.

Remember those cosy Fireside Chats conducted by President Roosevelt? When we got the Prime Minister back in the county, we might be subjected to his promise to wrestle the Depression to the ground as he assures us that we "have nothing to fear but fear itself!" While the socialist governments gobble up bankrupt properties and industries, so the free enterprise will wonder out loud why he is held back in his efforts.

The trouble is, while the script will be much the same; while men of spirit will pull through as before; affluence will likely breed greed all over again. In essence, man does not heed the lessons of history and isn't likely to.

BETWEEN THE COVERS

A number of donations have been received by the Library recently, other than the usual (and appreciated) paperbacks. Memorial donations of five and ten dollars have been received to purchase books in memory of Mrs. Grace Phillips, and the book by Walter Lord, The Miracle of Dunkirk has been given in memory of Archdeacon Vincent Cole, a former rector of the Holy Trinity Anglican Church here in Tofield.

A gift of $75.00 for the purchase of specific books has been gratefully received from the United Church in Tofield. The books acquired with this gift are two excellent Bible commentaries: Understanding the Old Testament, third edition, and Understanding the New Testament, fourth edition. Also, the second volume in the biography of United Church missionary and doctor, Dr. "Bob" McClure, joins the first volume on the library shelves. Thank you to all those people involved in these donations, improving your Library collection. Each book will have a special donation plate inserted in it and the names of the donors will be added to our memorial book.

Other new books this week include two novels, The Hangman, by Douglas Scott, about treachery, intrigue and mystery, set in Italy during and after World War II; and The Black Cockade, the first in a series of Victor Suthren.

Ann Morrow's new biography of Queen Elizabeth II, fully illustrated and very up-to-date, will be of interest to many readers. And finally, a new edition of an old favourite, The Wind in the Willows, will provide real pleasure to families, or enjoyment of the illustrations for younger readers.

Don't forget that there is a book depository in the outer wall of the Library for return of books when the Library is closed. The open hours are: Tuesday 1-8, Thursday 3-8 and 6-8, Friday and Saturday 10-12 and 1-6.

Lefties' births not quite right

by Lawrence Baxter

Three British Columbia psychologists say that people who have suffered from certain complications during birth are more likely than others to prefer using their left hand, left foot, left eye or left ear.

A questionnaire of 1,320 Vancouver men and women of college age, whose mothers reported that their children had had birth complications, found that most of the respondents showed an overall preference for their left side.

The researchers, Stanley Coren of the University of British Columbia, Alan Searleman of St. Lawrence University of Victoria, also found that the connection between birth problems and left preference exists for both males and females, although the connection is stronger for males.

The study, described in the Canadian Journal of Psychology, began with a questionnaire mailed to approximately 4,000 families. The women were given a list of 8 common birth complications (Caesarean delivery, premature births, etc.) they were asked which of these, if any, occurred during the births of their children.

The mothers reported 1,320 children who had had at least one of these birth problems. A second questionnaire, to determine left-right preference, was then sent to these 1,320 people. The subjects' left-right preferences were determined by their written responses to 13 standard questions, including:

- With which hand would you throw a ball to hit a target?
- If you wanted to pick up a pebble with your toes, which would you use?
- Which eye would you use to peer through a keyhole?
- Into which ear would you place the earphone of the transistor radio?

The subjects were then categorized by birth complication and their left-right preference scores in each category were added together and averaged.

Results showed that subjects who had experienced prolonged labour preferred, on the whole, to use their left hand, left foot, left eye and left ear. The same was true for those who had had a breech delivery or low birth weight, or who were members of a multiple birth (twins, triplets, etc.).

Premature birth was shown to contribute to preference for the left hand, foot and eye, but not the ear. Subjects who had had breathing difficulties at birth did not display significant left preference; nor did those who had been born by Caesarean delivery.

Significant left-sidedness was found in 59 per cent of the males, but in only 72 per cent of the females.

In a telephone interview Dr. Coren said he is reluctant to speculate on how birth problems cause left preference, but he said left-sidedness may stem from disruptions in the nervous system caused by birth difficulties.

The authors of the study, which was funded in part by the Natural Sciences and Engineering Research Council, said they could not check the accuracy of the mothers' reports. But, they said, the mothers' questionnaire was an improvement over previous studies on left-right preference, which asked subjects to report on what they knew about their own birth difficulties.

Speed limits change

The nighttime speed differential and truck speed differential will be removed from most primary highway systems in Alberta, effective May 16th.

Marvin Moore, Minister of Transportation, made this announcement last week.

"The objective of this change is to reduce the potential for congestion on our highways," Mr. Moore said, "and thereby increase safety of the motoring public."

After May 16th, speed limits on primary highways will be the same for both trucks and cars at 100 km/h and the limits will not vary from daytime to nighttime.

There will be two exceptions to this change however.

Highway No. 2, between Calgary and Edmonton, and highways No. 1 between Calgary and Banff National Park will retain speed limit differentials.

Daytime speed limit for cars on these sections of highways No. 1 and No. 2 will be 110 km/h, with a reduction to 100 km/h at night. The speed limit for all trucks on highways No. 2 and No. 1 will be 100 km/h. regardless of the time of day.

Mr. Moore explained that this is because of the high speed limit for cars, and the fact that both highways are twinned, thereby diminishing congestion.

Mr. Moore pointed out that traffic safety studies show that modern vehicles on good highways can safely travel at night at the same rate of speed as permitted during the daytime, as long as the speed limit is reasonable.

Dist. Agriculturist

BARBARA BENNETT

Agriculture

In the past few years, we have received many inquiries regarding promotions of many chemical products that are supposed to be "the answer" to many agricultural problems ranging from persistant sloughs to high fertilizer bills. Some products may be registered for use, either in Canada or the United States, some probably are not, or ever will be.

Total investigation of these products is suggested and if you must try it, please try the smallest amount possible. In government tests, many of these products have shown no benefit or if a benefit was shown, you can bet that you would have obtained the same benefit with conventional means for a fraction of the cost. The best advice that can be given is to check with our office and remember the phrase "Buyer Beware".

The following article was written by D.W. McAndrew at the CDA Research Station at Swift Current.

Are There Mistakes in Agriculture?

Producers faced with the high costs of inputs are taking a serious look at methods of cutting costs. Some producers are considering trying products that claim to be "the answer" to high fertilizer costs. Results from research conducted at the Swift Current Research have shown no apparent benefits from the use of such "miracle products."

Agrispon, marketed by J.J Agri-Products of Dillsburg, Pennsylvania is one such product that makes claims of increased yield with reduced or eliminated nitrogen fertilization. This product is not presently licensed for sale in Canada, nor for that matter is it registered for sale in the State of Pennsylvania. The lack of licensing is due to the absence of verifiable evidence that Agrispon has any beneficial effects on plant growth. Many verifiable experiments have been conducted in recent years which indicate an absence of benefit from the use of products like, and including, Agrispon.

Research on Agrispon is currently in progress by Drs. Demars, Biederbeck and McAndrew at the Swift Current Research Station and by Dr. Rennie at the Lethbridge Research Station of Agriculture Canada. The purpose of this research is to determine if, under the prevailing conditions of the Prairie Provinces, any benefits can be gained by the use of Agrispon. To date this research has not found any benefit from using Agrispon. For example, in emergence tests and growth chamber studies by Dr. Demars no beneficial effects of Agrispon have been observed on emergence, tillering or vigour. This is particularly important for some prairie farmers, since as of February 1 a total of 184 individual import permits had been granted to farmers for on-farm use of Agrispon.

Researchers of agricultural production are continually looking for methods of increasing farm profitability. We have yet to find any miracles. Sound management utilizing practices that have been thoroughly researched, such as soil testing, appropriate use of recommended rates of fertilizers, timely weed control, and use of high quality seed stock are some of the most direct routes to farm profit.

Graduation planned

by Ken Krootash

Nearly all plans for Tofield High School's graduation have been made, said Christine Watt, graduation committee chairman.

The only plans that the graduation committee have to work on yet is one of transportation to and from the party, said Watt.

Graduation in Tofield will start at 10 a.m. on June 3 with a church service. In the afternoon, pictures will be taken followed by the graduation banquet.

Following the banquet will be the graduation exercises followed by the graduation dance.

After that, students will be able to choose between either a dry party or a wet party, said Watt.

For both parties, food will be purchased with part of the $500 provided by AADAC for the safe-grad program.

Tofield High School is one of nine schools within AADAC's Edmonton jurisdiction being sponsored for a safe grad.

Each school was informed by letter from AADAC that money was available to a maximum of $1000 to sponsor a safe-grad program in the school.

The RCMP and the Tofield Hospital will be notified of the locations of both parties in case of any problems that might arise, said Watt.

Saturday morning, after the parties, there is a breakfast planned for the graduating students.

PUBLIC NOTICE TO PROPRIETARY ELECTORS OF THE VILLAGE OF HOLDEN, PROVINCE OF ALBERTA

SECTION 324 – THE MUNICIPAL GOVERNMENT ACT

TAKE NOTICE that the Council of the Village of Holden in the Province of Alberta, has given first reading to Money By-law No 3-1983 which will, upon final passage and approval, authorize the proper officers of the said Village to borrow monies by way of debenture issue to pay for the cost of the following municipal purpose, namely construction of a sewage treatment facility and related improvements to the retention pond course outside the limits of the said municipality.

The estimated total cost of the aforesaid project amounts to $652,449.00 After deducting from this cost the amount of $562,451.00 to be received by way of the following grants & contributions

1. Alberta Municipal Water Supply and Sewage Treatment Program. $471,104.10
2. By-law No. 3-1981 $13,340.00

the net amount to be borrowed on the credit and security of the municipality at large by the issue of debentures is $100,000.00 The debentures are to be repayable to the bearer in twenty five (25) equal consecutive annual instalments of combined principal and interest, the interest not to exceed a rate of more than twenty five percentum (25%) per annum.

NOW THEREFORE NOTICE is hereby given by the Council of the Village of Holden that, unless a poll of the proprietary electors is demanded, as provided for by the terms of Section 324 of the By-law and submit it to the Local Authorities Board for final approval and certification that a vote of the proprietary electors therein is not required

OF WHICH ALL persons interested are hereby notified and they are required to govern them accordingly.

Dated at the Village of Holden in the Province of Alberta this 19 Day of May, A.D 1983

Medical research creates careers

The old saying "How ya gunna keep down the boys on the farm" has always referred to more than boys and farms. For generations, Albertans in smaller centres have accepted the fact that many of their children head for cities. The brightest and best move even further afield in search of excitement and new opportunities.

In 1983 that's not the case for young scientists looking for careers in medical research. They no longer have to move to McGill or Harvard, in fact the opposite is true. Esteemed scientists from around the world are coming to Alberta where the action is. They are joining members of the Alberta Heritage Foundation for Medical Research (AHFMR), a bold venture which is no less than an investment in a special "brain industry".

The Foundation was established by an act of parliament in 1979 which set aside $300 million in a trust fund to establish and support a long-term medical research program based in Alberta. Since then, the Foundation has contributed $20 million directly to the scientific community and during this year the annual budget will average $30-35 million dollars.

These funds are being used to build a team of qualified researchers in Alberta. The AHFMR has supported scientists already in the province, recruited distinguished scientists from all over the world, and funded the training of young people with studentships and post-graduate fellowships – 169 young people, to be exact.

For example, the Foundation contributed $2.3 million dollars to finance the formation of a nuclear magnetic resonance (NMR) research team which is investigating cancerous tumors at The University of Alberta and the Cross Cancer Institute. NMR is a new way of imaging the body which gives much more information than conventional X-rays. With NMR the tissue aspects to be able to observe how a tumor grows. Because NMR can be used to detect factors like the levels of certain chemicals in the body, it is a tool which can reveal much about many disease states without surgical intervention or the use of X-rays.

The Foundation recruited leading NMR physicist Dr. Peter Allen from the University of Nottingham, principle investigator. Dr. Allen says the Foundation offered more opportunity to continue his research than Nottingham or, for that matter, anywhere else, because in most centres funds are being cut back. Dr. Donald Boisvert, Associate Surgical Research Professor at The University of Alberta is the other principle NMR investigator. A native of Cold Lake and Alberta scientist who is excited about the opportunity to do forefront international research. Boisvert says, "NMR has the potential to revolutionize diagnostic medicine".

Another research unit, the Cell Regulation Unit at The University of Calgary also illustrates how young Albertans are becoming part of a dynamic research community. The Cell Regulation Unit is headed by Dr. Jerry Wang, a world renown scientist from the University of Winnipeg. Dr. Wang has pioneered research on a protein called calmodulin which is important in all body processes including the cardiovascular and nervous system. Dr. Wang says it wasn't just the solid funding which attracted him to Alberta. "I want to associate with young people because they can think much livelier, vital and more aggressive," he says.

Wang was also influenced by his respect for Dr. George Drummond, Killam Memorial Professor in the Department of Biochemistry at The University of Calgary. Originally a native of Camrose, Drummond is Chairman of the cell regulation group. Heritage Scholar, Dr. David Severson, Assistant Professor in the Faculty of Medicine also joins the team as a very promising medical researcher and he, too is a "small town product" (Tofield).

Drs. Drummond and Severson are able to become part of a world-class team without leaving the "home" university and Dr. Wang's status is already attracting other promising scientists from the United States and elsewhere.

The Foundation supports many individual researchers as well as major teams. There are projects in genetics, biochemistry, physiology, pharmacology, immunology, and many others. For example, native Calgarian Dr. David Mathesons is a pediatrician researching the question, "How do some so-called natural killer cells attack cells infected with viruses". Dr. Diane Taylor at The University of Alberta is a medical microbiologist researching antibiotic resistance.

Every summer over 100 students are introduced to the mysteries of the research lab through the AHFMR program. Some of these students have only completed their first year or two of university courses. The summer work experience helps these see possibilities for a research career while they earn funds to continue their studies.

Some of the research relates to specific disorders such as Dr. Mrinal Dasgupstas' work with multiple sclerosis patients, but much of the research funded is very basic. It is research like the work of Dr. Wang's group which seeks to discover how the healthy body works. Eventually this knowledge will explain how diseases occur and suggest methods for control and prevention. Because the products are often basic and general, the impact of the Foundation upon health care may not be felt directly for some years. There are unlikely to be any instant "miracle cures". Though some work like the NMR investigations have a very important influence on clinical practice in the next year or so, most results will be longer term.

That's partly what makes the AHFMR so unique among similar funding agencies and attractive to the very best scientists. In the past many researchers have not gained momentum when their funding has been cut off. With the Foundation, major awards assure five years secure funding (other applicants have been rigidly screened by experts in the same field). Because applications are based on the interest from the individual $300 million endowment fund, the Foundation is at arm's length from the government. This means it may operate more independently of the usual political and economic changes.

This long-term nature of research makes the existence of the Foundation all the more remarkable. When the government established the Foundation, the message was clear: "We believe in the potential of science to give us a higher quality of life and good health is basic to the quality of life. We believe in the power of creative, well-trained minds. We believe in our young people, the emerging scientists."

Dr. Lionel McLeod, President of the Foundation and himself a "small-town boy" from Wainwright, Alberta, has a good sense of what this means. As former Dean of Medicine at The University of Calgary, he has spent many years training young people and watching them either move out of the province for more opportunities or turn away from a research career. Dr. McLeod emphasizes, "Alberta now has, before it a unique opportunity - the opportunity to attract to Alberta the very best medical research minds for the purpose of training and educating Alberta's brightest and most energetic young people. The result should be the highest quality medical research centre Canada has seen for years and creates capable of training their own with the best in our part of the world."

The Wild Oat Solution:

New, improved Carbyne 2EC.

New double strength Carbyne 2EC stops wild oats early, in the 2 leaf stage, before they start to steal yields in your wheat, barley or rapeseed. Carbyne 2EC's low cost and effectiveness in controlling wild oats gives you maximum yields at minimum cost. In companson trials with competitive wild oat herbicides such as Mataven, Hoe-Grass, and Avenge, the yield increase with Carbyne combined with its low cost resulted in the highest net profit return per acre. Proven performance makes Carbyne 2EC your best value in wild oat control.

How To Pick The Canadian In The Crowd

How do you pick the Canadian in the crowd at the produce counter? Label readers catch the world 'CANADA' on the grade name of processed products. But at the produce counter you'll need some different clues.

Green grapes aren't Canadian. Hold out for our fresh blue grapes in September. Green Granny Smith apples aren't Canadian either, in fact if it is a completely green fresh-eating apple it probably isn't Canadian. So remember, for grapes think blue and for apples think red or yellow. If fruit is your passion, the Canadian fruits that line the shelves of the produce, frozen and canned food departments in the stores are full of flavor and goodness.

Frozen lamb is usually brought to you by countries south of the equator. Why eat frozen when there is delicious fresh Canadian lamb available from local farmers?

Keep your eye out for Canadian tomato paste; it's new and made from our own homegrown ripe tomatoes. Carrots with green tops in the winter aren't Canadian. Pick the fresh carrots in the bags right beside their southern cousins on the produce shelf.

What else isn't Canadian? Well besides citrus and tropical fruits that just can't be grown in Canada, the increasingly popular kiwi fruit isn't 'one of us' either. There is hope for Canadian kiwis, however. An experimental program aimed at growing kiwi on Vancouver Island looks promising.

Aside from a few exceptions Canada produces most fruits, vegetables and meat. Why should we pick the Canadian in the crowd on the food shelf? Goods grown in Canada represent Canadian jobs, investments and pride.

No rest for the depressed

by Hugh Westrup

Sleep disturbances among patients may give doctors new clues in diagnosing mental illnesses, according to a team of researchers from Kingston Psychiatric Hospital.

They also suggest that depriving patients of sleep, combined with other treatments, may help to ease depression.

Dr Alistair MacLean, a psychologist at Queen's University and Kingston Psychiatric Hospital, and his colleagues studied a group of patients who were either hospitalized or incapable of work for several months due to depression. "The seriously depressed patient shows no joy or pleasure in life and is incapable of functioning at anything," says Dr MacLean.

Mental health practioners have long known that seriously depressed patients sleep restlessly, and that some suffer from hypersomnia - too much sleep. Now, research has revealed that depressives also show a disturbance in REM (Rapid Eye Movement) sleep. Most dreaming occurs during REM periods (so called because the eyes appear to move as if the person is watching something.)

Dr. MacLean says that people normally begin REM sleep 70 minutes after they doze off, but depressed patients start REMing much earlier. "Some begin as soon as they fall asleep," he says.

Also, depressives show a change in the pattern of sleep movement activity that normally occurs only in old people. "It resembles a premature aging effect," he says.

Dr MacLean says that when the depressed patient recovers from his illness, his sleep patterns return to normal.

Dr. MacLean and his colleagues, Psychologist Steve Southmayd and Psychiatrist P.J. Lefaucheur, have also tested sleep deprivation on depressed patients. One, who was kept awake for an entire night, showed a remarkable recovery from her depression in the morning.

"But as soon as these patients go back to sleep, for even 15 minutes, they revert to their former depressed condition," says Dr MacLean.

"It's impossible to sustain this kind of treatment because everyone has to go to sleep at some point," he says. "But we hope we may be able to combine sleep deprivation with some other form of treatment."

Sleep deprivation does appear to be a useful diagnostic tool, however. Often doctors have difficulty deciding whether patients, particularly the elderly, are depressed or suffering from brain damage.

Dr. MacLean and colleagues chose a group of old people, all of whom appeared depressed, and kept each one awake over night.

"Some of the old people recovered from their symptoms, which indicated that they were probably depressed," he says. "The ones who didn't recover we were more inclined to believe were suffering from senility".

The doctors have also used sleep recording techniques for diagnosis, in those cases where the patient may be suffering from temporary anxiety rather than serious depression. "Once again it's sometimes difficult to tell between the two conditions," says Dr. MacLean. "But if we find that the patient has disturbed REM sleep then that might tip the diagnosis in favour of depression rather than anxiety."

Medically Speaking

by Dr Bob Young

"Endo" is a Greek prefix meaning "within", and when it is coupled with the ancient word for uterus we have endometrium, the lining of the womb.

The endometrial tissue is very specialized and is important in the reproductive process. Its appearance varies on the daily basis throughout the menstrual cycle, and a pathologist is able to tell whether a cycle is normal or not by examining a specimen of endometrium with a microscope.

One of the diseases affecting the endometrium is called endometriosis. In this condition cells that belong in the uterus have escaped or otherwise been transported to the pelvis, outside the uterus. Some dectory believe loose cells are discharged into the abdomen through the fallopian tubes.

The result is the development of patches of endometrial tissue through the pelvis. These may be various sizes and are usually multiple. Being the same tissue that lines the uterus, the patches wax and wane as the women's hormone levels vary during her monthly cycle. Symptoms of the condition may vary accordingly.

There are two main consequences of the disease. Infertility is present in about one-third of patients with endometriosis, and the disease is found in about 15 per cent of infertile women, a significant number.

Of more acute concern are the symptoms. Usually, but not only, seen in women of 30 to 40 who have not had children, the complaints include pain, usually in the pelvis or back, constant or nasty at period time, which gets worse as the years go by. Abnormal bleeding is also common, probably because the plaques are plastered on the ovaries.

A pelvic examination may demonstrate the tender nodules. The diagnosis is confirmed by examining the pelvis with a laparoscope, an instrument through which small affected areas may be removed.

Treatment depends upon the extent of the disease and the patient's reproductive goals.

A woman desiring children will be treated conservatively, if possible, knowing more extensive surgery may be required later. Severe disease in an older women usually requires a hysterectomy and considerable pelvic dissection if a cure is sought. Sometimes hormonal therapy helps, but it is slow and unpredictable.

Lakeshore-McKenzie news items

by Ellen Estes

The Lakeshore U.C.W. met at the home of Mrs. Isabel Rudnicki May 18th with 13 members and guests present. After the usual opening reading and roll call, business matters were discussed. The Letchworth U.C.W. have invited our U.C.W. to join them with our next meeting in the Tofield United Church basement on June 21st. After the meeting was closed a lunch was served by the hostess, Isabel Rudnicki and her helpers.

Mrs. Elsie Lehman of Redbern arrived on Saturday to spend a few days with her sister, Edna and Arnold Jones of the McKenzie District.

Mrs. Joan Sing of Aldergrove, B.C. arrived on May 19th to spend a few days visiting at the home of her sister, Mrs. Judy Flock in the McKenzie District.

Ellen Estes accompanied her son, Leroy and Shirley Estes on (what was to have been a camping trip) Saturday to North Buck Lake where Ellen's father son, Walter and Evelyn of Fort McMurray, were there with their camper and other members of their family and some of their friends who had their tents set up but, the weathermen didn't co-operate with the campers.

When we arrived the light rain showers turned into a cold stormy day with high winds, a thunder storm with some hail. We returned home Saturday night. Walter and family were to stay 10 days.

Mrs. Mae Ferguson went to Holborne on Saturday to attend the Appleton's and Mae's daughter and son-in-law, Doris and Howard Brown and family were there also. They returned home Sunday night, bringing home a few trophies.

Weekend visitors at the home of Mrs. Mae Ferguson were her son, Nelson and Nan. Al Ferguson and two sons of Sherwood Park.

On Tuesday of last week, several senior citizens went to Edmonton for a day out.

Holden and district news

by Mrs. G.H. Taylor

Debbie Sass of Kelowna, B.C. was a guest at her grandparents, Mr and Mrs John Umrysh, after attending the graduation of Annette Chrystian.

The Holden Royal Purple Lodge, at their May meeting, made a donation of $100 to the Holden Chamber of Commerce committee towards the "Homecoming '84 Committee Program. H.R.L. Mary Semotiuk attended the meeting as a delegate for the Lodge.

Robert Tiedemann left Friday afternoon for their lake cottage, with his brothers and families, the David Tiedemanns and Alan Tiedemanns, also going along to open their cottage for the summer season.

Cheryl Chetney of Edmonton was down last week for a couple of days with her family, Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Grosland. Ron and Cheryl and children, who have been residing in Edmonton for the past few years, have sold their home there and are moving back to Holden and will be residing in the Shyba house on 50th Avenue for the time being. Ron is going into the dairy business on his father's farm.

Allan and Helen Warwa and grandchild of Edmonton spent the holiday weekend in Holden, also with the Alvin Chemic family.

Norman and Helen Gorrie of Osoyoos, B.C. arrived on the weekend and visited with his mother, Mrs. Kate Nichols, for several days.

Monday visitors with Mrs. George Taylor were their son and family, Brian and Dineka Taylor and grandchildren of St. Albert, all going out in the late afternoon to Viking and were guests with Robert and Merle Taylor and daughter, Saylor

The Bill Harasymchuks of Edmonton and the Walter Harasymchuks were Sunday evening visitors with their mother, Mrs. N. Harasymchuk.

Holden Lodge Order of the Royal Purple held a special meeting on Wednesday with District Deputy Lady Evelyn Northey of Red Deer installing the officers for the 1983-84 term.

Ernst Taylor, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Brian Taylor of St. Albert who is home for the summer holiday from college at Grand Rapids, Mich., U.S.A., visited with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. George Taylor.

At the May meeting of Holden L.C.W., the Bible study was done by Rev. Sid Haugen, with President Ethel Brekstad in charge of the business meeting. Mrs. Dorothea Mathews gave a report of the convention they had attended on May 7th in Camrose. Mrs. Kathleen Hurum read the devotions. Lunch hostess was Mrs. Ethel Brekstad.

Holden Lodge Order of the Royal Purple will be entertaining senior citizens in the Drop-In Centre on June 1st at 2 p.m. This day is observed by every Royal Purple Lodge across Canada by doing an act of kindness or service to an organization or an individual.

Mae and Bruce Budd were Monday visitors with a sister-in-law patient in an Edmonton hospital, and then drove to Leduc to visit with Mrs. Beth Campbell in Extendicare Nursing Home.

Saturday visitors with Mr. and Mrs. Budd were their daughter, Linda and husband, Ken and children of St. Albert.

Mrs. Elizabeth Keith is a patient in the Royal Alexandra Hospital in Edmonton, after having a fall and hurting her hip.

Area farmers need a week for seeding

One week of good weather is required in order to complete seeding operations for the 1983 crop.

Farmers are reporting that the ground is too cold and as a result, the germination process is slow and there are reports that, in some areas, reseeding may have to be done.

According to reports received from the Alberta Wheat Pool, nearly thirty percent of all crops have been seeded, as of late last week.

Wheat is receiving priority over eighty percent of all intended acreage has now been seeded.

There's a long way to go with other crops and only twenty-two percent of canola has been planted with barley at seventeen percent, oats is eleven percent seeded and a start with rye and flax is yet to be made.

Holden area farmers have gotten off to the best start as they have reached the halfway mark in seeding of intended acreage.

Ninety percent of intended wheat acreage has been seeded along with forty percent of canola and barley and thirty percent of oats.

Farmers around Ryley are a step behind with seeding nearing the forty percent mark.

Seventy percent of wheat has been seeded. Canola seeding is about one-half done and one-quarter of the intended barley crop has been planted.

In the New Norway region, farmers are approaching thirty percent completion of intended acreage.

Only five percent of wheat is still to be seeded. One-quarter of oats has been seeded along with nearly twenty percent in canola and barley and a start with rye and flax is yet to be made.

Farmers in the Bawlf and Daysland regions have reached the one-quarter mark.

Bawlf farmers have seeded eighty-five percent of all wheat acreage along with ten percent of canola and a start has been made with barley.

Around Daysland, seventy percent of wheat has been seeded along with ten percent of canola, barley and oats.

Seventeen percent of all crops around Rosalind have been seeded with wheat at the three-quarter mark with a start having been made with canola and barley.

PART I

Wallpapering is not Canada's favourite indoor sport. Many of us would gladly pass up the opportunity to browse through the hundreds of wallcovering books available, offering thousands of design alternatives. More than a few would forego the change to cut, match, paste, smooth and apply the sheets of material, often in cramped quarters and on uneven surfaces. But, undeniably, wallpaper offers a great variety of attractive designs and effects, and eventually most people try their hands at this form of decorating. For them, this guide offers basic information on the industry's terminology.

For instance, take the term "wallpaper" itself. Manufacturers now refer to their products as "wall coverings" rather than wallpaper, because many types no longer use paper, employing vinyl, metallic foil or fabrics instead.

The roll is the standard unit of measure in the wallpaper industry. Roll widths may vary from 18 inches to 28 inches, but each roll covers about 36 square feet. It also is possible to purchase rolls in a double size (about 72 square feet) and occasionally a triple roll (about 108 square feet).

Manufacturers introduced prepasted wallcoverings to make work simpler for the home handyman. Like postage stamps, the covering is backed with an adhesive that is activated when dipped in water. Not all wallcoverings are prepasted, however. Some heavier papers such as fabric-backed vinyls need the extra strength that a separate glue can offer. In these cases, an adhesive is pasted to the wall or the covering before hanging.

There are three basic types of adhesives available, and it is important to use the glue recommended by the manufacturer. Wheat paste is the standard adhesive used for wallpaper. However, the glue cannot dry properly behind the surface that does not breathe, such as vinyl. Heavier vinyls and foils should be glued with a vinyl adhesive. This glue is designed to dry without air and is available in premixed or powder form. If the paper you want to hang is subject to staining, such as a flock, a white cellulose paste could be used.

Wallcoverings can be removed in three ways; with a wallpaper steamer, with warm water and vinegar or with a commercially prepared wallcovering remover mixed with water. Most wallcoverings are "strippable" or "dry-strippable". Strippable coverings separate into two layers when removed; the top layer peels off, while the paper backing stays on the wall. The backing is removed with warm water and vinegar. Dry-strippable wall coverings come off the wall in one piece, but the adhesive remains on the wall and must be removed with warm, soapy water.

Before applying wall covering over latex paint, you should apply wallpaper size to the walls. This will prevent the paste from being absorbed into the wall. Strippable wallpaper should not be applied over latex paint unless the wall is sized first.

Next week we will discuss the different types of wallcovering available.

By Robert Pittman, Alberta Consumer and Corporate Affairs, 2nd Floor, Provincial Building, 4920-51st Street, Red Deer, Alta. T4N 6K8.

Tofield tops meet

Tofield emerged with top honours when the county high school track and field championship meet was held in Viking last Tuesday.

Athletes from Tofield amassed a total of 214 points to edge out the other three schools. Viking was close with 205 points, Ryley had 156 and Holden picked up 140 points.

The top competitors in each event earned the right to advance to the area meet which was held in Daysland on Thursday and from that meet, winners advanced to the zone meet which was held yesterday (Wednesday) in Leduc.

The top two in each event at Leduc will travel to Lloydminster on June 4th for the regional meet and from there, winners will go to the provincial finals in Calgary on June 11th.

Results from the meet in Viking were not available.

Ryley athletes who earned the right to go to Leduc included Lonnie Lauber, Eileen Hisey, Michelle Hisey, Randal Munkedal, Ken Mandernam, Eric Von Tettenborn, Darryl Holowachuk and Wade Arbon.

Holden athletes who went to Leduc are Karen Danczik, Lana Gibson, Marilyn Ludwig, Connie Tkaczyk, Betty Danilak, Gord Motkoski, Michael Lutz, Troy McKibbin, Kelly Story, Michelle Kowalchuk and Sharon Schmidt.

A list of Tofield athletes was not available.

Men and women talk differently

Society's roles for men and women are reflected in their conversational styles, says a University of Western Ontario language philosopher.

Faculty of Education professor Maryann Ayim, after analyzing all the available research on male-female language patterns, says that conversationally women are "bandaids" and men are "wet sponges".

When a man and a woman talk, says Prof. Ayim, the woman is more likely to express interest, encourage the conversation, and ask leading questions or insert supportive comments. The man, on the other hand, often pays little attention to what the woman says, or will arbitrarily change the topic to suit him.

Though there are individual exceptions to this pattern, Prof. Ayuim says it is widespread and dovetails neatly with the steretypical male and female roles in our society.

Men generally have been encouraged to be dominant, aggressive, and unemotional, she says. Women have been trained to be supportive, gentle, emotional, and to let men take the lead.

However, says Prof. Ayim, men's apparent conversational dominance may be partly illusory. Women, because they listen better, learn more and often store up information which can become a source of power in future encounters.

Around the town

Mrs. Edith Bailey and granddaughter, Louise Undin, travelled to Halifax recently to attend the graduation of Ralph and Helen Bailey's daughter, Janet, who is now a dental surgeon after graduating from Dalhousie University. While in Nova Scotia, the ladies were taken on tours of the area.

Debbie Sass of Kelowna, B.C. was a guest with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John Umrysh, after she attended Annette Chrystian's graduation.

Marty West is assisting at a Holden business as part of a school project.

Thieves caught

by Ken Kroetsch

Two men were caught in the act of breaking and entering the Tofield Gun Club building, by members of the Tofield Gun Club last Saturday, said an RCMP constable.

At 11 p.m. the RCMP responded to a call at the Tofield Gun Club.

Two culprits were caught inside the building by club members, attempting to remove ammunition.

Mike Melvin Mazur of Edmonton and Bruce Richard Wilson, also of Edmonton, were charged with break and enter.

TGHA Flashes

At the last meeting, the volunteer of the month was announced as Evelyne Stauffer.

The surprise package was won by Muriel Shaw.

It has been decided that all memorials dedicated to the T.H.A. shall be used to purchase paintings for the new hospital, done by local artists.

All memorials may be sent to the Tofield Hospital Auxiliary, c/o Dickson Bank in Lacy Anderson, Tofield, Alberta, T0B 4J0.

Petition seeks Unit's retention

by Ken Kroetsch

A Chamber of Commerce delegation from Holden presented the director of the Vegreville Health Unit, Molly Cunningham, with a petition with 680 names supporting the health unit's remaining in Holden.

Ron Mulick said the petition is one of support, not of protest.

The petition, said Mulick, was well received by Cunningham, who was impressed by the method in which names were gathered.

Instead of soliciting names door to door, petitions were put into various businesses and in the Village Office.

"If anyone was concerned about it they could go and sign it; if they weren't interested, they didn't have to," said Mulick.

The petition was circulated after the Vegreville Health Unit announced that a feasibility study would be done to determine whether or not to shut the office after the present office location was sold by the County of Beaver School Board.

Mulick said the issue isn't just a concern to Holden, but to other places that have sub-offices.

If the office is moved from Holden, the Health Unit will still continue services in the area such as home care, new born and immunization.

With no other medical facilities in Holden, Mulick said it is a positive attribute to the community to have the sub-office in Holden.

"BEFORE I DUG THAT TRENCH IN THE BACKYARD I CALLED THE GAS COMPANY'S PIPE LOCATOR TEAM."

"Good thing I did, too. Because they were able to mark the location of the natural gas line that helped me avoid what could have been a serious accident. I just called 48 hours in advance, and the whole thing was free of charge! That's what I call service."

Ryley district news

by Lena Bell

A bridal shower was held on Sunday in the United Church kitchen in honor of bride-elect, Carol Jensen. A good crowd attended and many gifts were presented to the future bride on behalf of the community and friends.

Carol Nakinechuy, who is a bridesmaid, Mary McKay, Hilda Jensen and Miss Knudsen were seated at the table with Carol. Carol thanked everyone for the afternoon and gifts.

The Ryley girls 14 and under beat Tofield last Tuesday evening.

It should have read Howard and Mary Curry's son, Donald who passed away.

Hilda Jensen's sister, Edna Phillips of Cambridge, Maryland is visiting her and family for three weeks. She arrived in time for her niece; Carol's shower and will also attend the wedding on June 4.

Stanley Hinks has been busy mowing and cleaning up the Ryley Cemetery.

Ella Weigum's daughter, Shirley and children, are visiting her from B.C.

The Ryley 4-H Clothing Club are looking forward to their Achievement Day which will be held on Monday at 7:30 p.m. in the Ryley Legion Hall.

Any ads, future dates, subscriptions? Phone 663-3773 by 9 Tuesday mornings.

Clarence Ramier, who had been an 'Old Testament Bible School Teacher', was a guest speaker at the Holden Mennonite Church on Sunday.

Court report

Ervine Powder and Bryan Schroeder were both sentenced to 40 days in detention for break, enter and theft, in Tofield Provincial Court on May 12.

George Anhill was fined $500 and had a six-month suspension on his driver's license for driving while having over .08 alcohol in his blood stream.

Bernard Lerwux was fined $400 and got a six-month suspension on his driver's license for driving while over .08.

Powerline opens

A new season in the Powerline Baseball League is now underway.

Games were played on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings of last week.

Two games were played on Tuesday, a postponed game was played on Wednesday and four games had been slated for Thursday.

A game between Tofield and Bardo was postponed and will be played at a later date.

Games played on Thursday, along with contests scheduled for yesterday (Tuesday), will be reported next week.

A tournament was held on the weekend in Armena but, because of the Monday holiday, results weren't available before an earlier than usual sport deadline.

Games tomorrow (Thursday) evening will see Armena at home to Bardo, Camrose is hosting Round Hill, Ryley will host Tofield and Holden goes over to Viking.

On Tuesday evening, Round Hill will host Armena, Camrose is at home to Tofield, Holden is hosting Bardo and Ryley will have Viking as the visiting opposition.

Games scheduled for one week from tomorrow (Thursday) will have Tofield hosting Armena, Camrose will be at home to Ryley, Bardo hosts Viking and Holden will host Round Hill.

Viking got the new season off on the right foot when they went to Round hill and outslugged the host team [illegible].

Camrose blasted Holden 24-0 but, according to [illegible] information, the Tuesday contest was also Holden's first practice session of the season.

In a close game in Ryley, Armena struck for four runs in the sixth inning to stop the home team 6-4.

Former Ryley resident Ralph Berke went the distance as he scattered five hits to get credit for the victory while Elston Solberg, in relief, was charged with the loss.

Protein in beans

A new variety of bean may take its place alongside the soybean as one of man's most useful plants.

Its scientific name is psophocarpus tetragonolobus, but it is more familiarly known as the 'winged bean'.

It was discovered by U.S. scientists in 1974, but natives of New Guinea and southeast Asia have been eating the winged bean for many centuries. Little did they dream, however, that their winged bean had the many virtues which research now attributes to it.

The winged bean is a tropical plant and has seed pods a foot long. It is a hard brown bean rich in oil and protein, and in that respect, resembles the soybean, which at one time was thought of as rather insignificant. The bean has a fleshy root which can be eaten like a potato. The leaves can be used for salads, and the purple flowers of the bean, if boiled in coconut milk, taste a bit like mushrooms.

Scientists emphasize that the winged bean is a member of the legume family, and that bacteria living in its root nodules can convert nitrogen from the air to soluble nitrogen compounds in the soil.

In the developing countries anything that gives promise of providing nourishment for their protein-deficient population, is eagerly analyzed by scientists.

Such foods are looked upon as potential substitutes for animal meat, and therefore as cheap but valuable sources of protein for millions of people living in poverty

While the winged bean is the latest plant to fire the interest of agricultural researchers, there are others, too, which give promise of helping relieve the world's food needs.

One of them is a reedy grass - echinochloa which grows wild in the arid regions of Australia. It needs only one flooding to germinate (and no water additionally until harvest), and gives promise for use as a food forage plant.

There is also the cocoyam, a tuber rich in vitamins and minerals. It shoots and leaves resemble spinach and are highly nutritious, it has been found in West Africa.

One other plant with great possibility is the jessinia palm, found in Amazon lowlands in South America. Its fruit contains a valuable oil comparable to the expensive olive oil. It may be utilized in the future in the manufacture of soap and cosmetics.

Topping all of these at the present however, is the 'winged bean', and so promising is its future that the National Academy of Sciences has issued a small book about it as a potential new food crop, reports Grain and Feed Journals.

Hay Lakes district news

The Hay Lakes Blues are holding a five-team ladies fastball tournament this weekend May 28-29. Teams entered are from Ryley, Bremner, Edmonton, Kingman and Hay Lakes. The first game will be played at 9 a.m. on May 28. A dance will be held on Saturday evening.

The Hay Lakes Blue Knights senior men's fastball team commenced league play last week with a win against Rolly View 3-0 and a loss to Camrose Windsor 4-3. The Blue Knights have been scheduled to play their first six games at home and will host Fultonvale and Beaumont this week.

The Hay Lakes Senior Citizen's Club is sponsoring a bingo in their centre this Friday evening at 8 p.m. Everyone is welcome to attend.

The Hay Lakes and District Recreation Association are holding their regular monthly meeting on May 30, 8 p.m. in the Recreation Center.

The former Hay Lakes Garage recently re-opened after being closed for several years. It will now be known as the CR Auto Service and is being operated by Randy Berfelo.

Sunday, May 29 will be Confirmation Day with Holy Communion at Our Savior Lutheran Church in Hay Lakes. Pastor D. Wenzel will be in charge of the service.

Pastor Paul Pfohl and his bride will arrive from the U.S.A. on June 11 to take over duties at Our Savior Church. The Church has been without a regular pastor since August, 1982. During that time Pastor Dennis Wenzel of New Sarepta has served as vice-pastor and guest pastors have delivered the service each Sunday.

Horace and Emily Louden opened their new venture Miquelon Funland on Sunday afternoon, May 22. Located adjacent to the highway near Miquelon Provincial Park, funland provides pony rides, go carts, petting farm, slides, fantasy mini golf, hay rides and a lunch concession. Chuckles the clown was on hand to amuse the children and give out balloons. The amusement park will be open on weekends until July 1 and then daily for the summer months. The Louden's project has given employment to many local students.

Mrs. Norene Pyle of Dunnville, Ont., is presently visiting with her son and daughter-in-law Tim and Debbie Pyle. This has been her first opportunity to see her new grandson, Casey Pyle.

Magnus Arnston and Mr. and Mrs. Don Arnston were overnight guests at the Russell Hudson home in High River on Saturday, returning home on Sunday night.

Mrs. Mildred McGonigle of Toronto spent the past week visiting with her son Len and family. During her stay they motored to Banff and B.C.

IN MEMORIAM

ZOWTUK – Mary, in loving memory of my wife our mother and baba, who passed away May 26, 1979
God must have had a reason
For taking you away.
During the springtime season
In this lovely month May.
We will always remember your radiance
When flowers would first appear
And your glorious happiness
At this time of year
God grant you eternal rest and peace
—Bill, children and grandchildren 38p-5096

Rabby is queen

by Ken Kroetsch

Cyndie Rabby of Tofield was crowned the first Tofield Rodeo Queen last Sunday during intermission of the rodeo.

Rabby 22, was sponsored by the Hastings Lake Light Horse Club.

Rabby was presented with a tiara, which she keeps until she relinquishes it at next year's rodeo.

She was also given flowers, a buckle, a saddle pad and a gift certificate.

Rabby will go on to represent Tofield in the Lakeland Finals Queen Contest held in October.

First runner-up in all round score and personality was Lori Missal, sponsored by Wade's Training Stable.

Kim McKinney was given the congeniality award, voted by the contestants as to who they thought was the best person to work with and who had the friendliest smile.

Kelly Gill was awarded the best all round girl who was a pleasure to work with, voted by the people working on the contest.

Diane Harper was voted as the best girl who presented herself while judging the school posters and at the Farmer's Market. She received the top score on behavior and conduct.

All of the rodeo queen contestants received flowers, a buckle and a gift certificate.

The queen contestants were judged 40 per cent on ticket sales, 40 per cent on horsemanship and 20 per cent on congeniality.

All of the queen contestants tickets were sold. The winner of the ticket contest was Eugene Murphy of Fortstock, winning a cash prize of $[illegible].

Sharon Telford was the chairperson for the queen contest.

Judges for congeniality were Sharon Strang, Edith Wiebe, and Agnes Rose. The judge for horsemanship was Kay McLean of DeWinton.

Health Unit stays

by Ken Kroetsch

The Vegreville Health Unit has finished its feasibility study and the decision of the board is to leave the Health Unit sub-office in Holden, said Molly Cunningham, Vegreville Health Unit Director.

"It's the Board's intention to maintain an office in Holden and to aquire office accommodation in Tofield," said Cunningham.

Cunningham said that the Health Unit is now actively seeking accommodations for these services in both communities.

The decision came after a feasibility study was launched after the sale of a teacherage, where the Health Unit sub-office had been located.

The Village of Holden seeking to show that there was support for the sub-office in Holden circulated a petition around the community seeking signatures.

Petitions were put into various businesses and the village office making the petition accessible to those wishing to sign.

Four hundred and five names were gathered showing support for the sub-office staying.

The petition was presented to Cunningham last week.

Tofield needs landfill

by Ken Kroetsch

The Town of Tofield has sent a letter to the County of Beaver advising the county that by fall, the Town's landfill site will be full.

In a meeting of council last week, council decided to inquire of the county as to whether the regional landfill site would be going ahead in the near future.

If it wasn't, then the Town of Tofield would have to look at different alternatives for its dumping of garbage.

At the moment, the Town of Tofield is looking around the area for a temporary landfill site, said Lyle Wack, assistant administrator.

To do this the town has to find a site and then seek approval for the site from Alberta Environment and from the Alberta Health Board.

If this route proves unfeasible, said Wack, then other municipalities will have to be contacted to make arrangements to have garbage dumped in their landfill sites.

A regional landfill site is presently being looked at by the County of Beaver.

The Department of Health and the Department of Environment are looking at different locations, but to date the county hasn't received any report on a location, said Garth Bancroft, County of Beaver secretary-treasurer.

In other council business it was decided to give $500 of the $3,120 Public Transportation Grant, to the senior citizens group to offset rental costs of the recreation bus.

The rest of the grant is to be put in to reserve to be used for improvements as the need arises.

The Public Transportation Grant is a grant to a municipality to upgrade public transportation for the disabled, the handicapped or the senior citizens.

This money can be used for curb drops, railings, service of unloading and loading areas for the handicapped or disabled, or for transportation for these people.

Another part of business discussed at the meeting was the fencing of the cemetery.

The cemetery will be fenced with a four-foot fence of page wire around its perimetre.

An outside contractor will be hired to supply and install the fence. The fencing will be completed sometime this summer.

Rodeo drew crowds

by Ken Kroetsch

The first annual Tofield Sodbuster Rodeo did well over last weekend, said Glen Jones, Rodeo Chairman.

"I feel it was a real success," said Jones. "There was a good crowd out to everything."

The sun shone both days of the rodeo and approximately 1,500 people per day went through the gates.

Top winners in the rodeo were Don Hood of Edmonton for high point cowboy; Dale Pollock of Pierceland, Sask., in the bareback competition; Marvin Kleinbert of Winterburn and Doug Williams of Stoney Plains in team roping; Ron Dubinski of Ardrossan in steer wrestling; Tracy Hood of Edmonton in ladies' barrel racing; Tracy Crawford of Wetaskiwin in junior barrel racing, Keith Gower of Edmonton in saddle bronc riding; Glen Whitlock of Elk Point in junior steer riding; Wayne Boisjoli of Calgary in calf roping; Lyle Potts of Vilna in bull riding; and Conway Rosco of Elk Point in mutton busting.

There were 245 entries in the two-day rodeo, with a purse total of $8,500 offered.

The rodeo dance held Saturday night was a sell-out.

The beef barbeque, pit barbequed by the Lions Club of Tofield, was well attended, said John Zintel, vice-president of the club.

Although he didn't know the exact number, he estimated it to be over 800 plates that were served.

Zintel said comments on the barbeque were favorable.

The pancake breakfast held Sunday morning served over 300 people, not including children six and under who got in free, said Eddie Ferguson, vice-president of the Tofield Legion.

Ferguson said they made a little over $300 on the breakfast.

"The Legion was tickled by the turnout; things went pretty smooth," he said.

At intermission during the rodeo, Cyndie Rabbie of Tofield was crowned the first Tofield Rodeo Queen. Lori Missal was named as first runner-up in the contest.

One for the road

A belt for the road is just what the doctor ordered, it appears.

Not the alcoholic variety, but the seatbelt kind.

Dr. Walter Buck, who has been the MLA for Clover Bar, just north of us, for many years, has requested the Legislature to accept an amendment to the Highway Traffic Act which would make it an offence for a vehicle to venture onto a provincial highway without everyone in it being firmly belted in. Everyone over the age of sixteen, that is.

The driver would be responsible under Dr. Buck's proposal, for every person in the vehicle being belted in, while a passenger over sixteen would also be guilty if not belted in.

Henry Kroeger, sitting on the government side as Minister of Highways, couldn't persuade his colleagues to support the same kind of legislation, so it's highly unlikely Dr. Buck will make any headway with his proposal.

Dr. Buck has always been known as a most sincere MLA, which is one of the major reasons he continues to represent people in Clover Bar, despite the fact he is Social Credit and has no access to the Lougheed caucus. Despite that, he may have more influence on that same caucus than many a Conservative.

Apart from all this, we think Dr. Buck (like Mr. Kroeger) is on the wrong track.

We don't think it's the business of government to legislate people into preserving, or extending, their lives. Surely that's their own responsibility. We can agree that possibly the rest of us should not have to pay the dreadful hospital bills occasioned by people who ignore the safety of seat belts. We can even agree belts are not one hundred percent effective. We would join Dr. Buck and Mr. Kroeger, however, in pointing out they're one heckuva lot safer, on average, than the alternative. We would also agree they are ignored only by fools and by daredevils. (By contrast, real daredevils, race drivers, stuntmen, and the like, buckle the minute they enter a vehicle.)

But we don't agree that the government should legislate against our right to be foolish on a personal level, any more than it bans liquor, or cigarettes, or over-eating, or burning the candle at both ends, or any other of the ways in which we shorten the number of days we may enjoy.

When the government becomes this all-important in our lives, surely it's only a short step until they tell us what we should wear, what we must eat, where we must work, even whether we must work. Unhappily, we're already closer to that dreary state than most of us would want to acknowledge.

Park laws enforced

Reducing liquor offenses and rowdy behaviour are top priorities for the rangers who manage Alberta's 82 provincial parks.

The Victoria Day weekend opened the park season which traditionally brings the year's biggest crowds to the parks.

While these high numbers of visitors come some people who break park regulations and prevent others from enjoying the parks.

"Parks are designed for the peaceful enjoyment of Alberta's outdoors. Our rangers and other park staff won't tolerate the by a thoughtless minority disrupting the safety and enjoyment of the majority," says D.R. Fjelsrudvich, Assistant Deputy Minister of Parks' Operations and Recreation in Alberta Recreation and Parks.

"Our rangers pride themselves on being good hosts. But, you can't be a good host to the majority of your guests, if you turn a blind eye to the few trouble makers."

To alert the public to the park and liquor regulations, Alberta Recreation and Parks has produced a brochure on park regulations that is available at all provincial parks and recreation areas.

Under current regulations, campers are allowed to drink liquor in moderation in their own campsite. However, liquor can not be consumed in picnic beach, boating or trail areas of provincial parks or recreational areas. Liquor is also prohibited in parks that do not have overnight camping.

Park rangers are authorized to issue tickets, to confiscate liquor and to make arrests.

"We don't like to resort to these avenues," says Kalinovich. "That's why we're trying to keep enforcement to a minimum by making people aware of the regulations. We are also asking the public to co-operate in making everyone's stay in a park enjoyable."

This is the fourth year of the Parkwatch Program, jointly sponsored by the Department and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. The Check Stop Program, one component of Parkwatch, will again be used on a random basis.

As in past years, park visitors are encouraged to check with Travel Alberta's Know-Before-You-Go service for up-to-date information on park and road conditions, campground vacancies etc. In Edmonton, call 427-4321. From other points in Alberta, call 1-800-252-8881, toll-free.

Patricia Young Says . . . . .

Pity the poor woman who has to go on a periodic diet - especially when she has to feed a husband and family. My problem is purely economic. When my jeans refuse to zip, I know it's time to hide the potatoes, freeze the ice cream and dust off the bathroom scales.

Today, after years of the Battle of the Bulge, I can follow my doctor's diet without feeling like Orphan Annie chained to the Emperor's stove. All it takes is psychology. That insane learning how to kid yourself that you really don't miss that Peach Melba at all. After all, you can still colour your cottage cheese orange and dream a little. My surest weapon is to hamper myself with the best china, lace tablecloth and even candles. You can always drop a green olive into your wineglass of water!

To be sure one might occasionally feel tempted to eat the eggshells and cottage cheese carton. But one can always slice the celery and carrots matchstick thin to increase their appearance of being more at least. The enemy of the dieter? Those mean old bathroom scales. Use them daily and they'll tear back a fragment of a half a pound and send you back to the hamburgers. But a once a week peek finds them reluctantly rewarding you with a few pounds.

My Protein Psychology? Don't broadcast that you're going on a diet. Nothing will tempt the neighbours around faster with tempting recipes, sample pies and invitations to dinner. Aunt Nellie will suddenly decide to send you a batch of your favourite Calhaazi Calorie Crunch! Husbands will tease and the children will ask why you don't bake one of those chocolate cakes you were once famous for.

The basic psychology of dieting - male and female - is to simply DO IT - quietly and without fanfare, fanaticism or self pity. Do it with good humour, determination and without cheating. To be sure, the odd candy bar, wedge of cheesecake or baked potato isn't going to be a matter of life and death. In fact, the only person you're really cheating is yourself - making it necessary to extend the diet to a longer period of time.

Eventually comes that glorious day when the scale grudgingly announces the poundage you have set for yourself. You celebrate! Mildly. But beware. From then on in, count calories, practice moderation and don't ever allow the pounds to creep back in. While you may not have to settle for total abstinence like the alcoholic, you'll be wise to sample the super deluxe dreamwhip pie rather than serving yourself a wedge!

A postal shaft for small papers

By W. Roger Worth

Canada Post President Edmund Wilson and his fellow executives should be ashamed of themselves. The reason: Canada Post has made the brash decision to openly participate in competition with the nation's smaller newspapers, acting as a catalyst for local merchants to put together throwaway advertising flyers to be delivered by the posties along with other junk mail.

Canada Post believes it can earn money on the scheme. There's little wonder! Here we have highly paid postal employees promoting advertising ventures that compete directly with other media in the real business world.

Yet Warren's employees are directly subsidized by government to the tune of $400 to $500-million per year. Consumers and businesses pay 32 cents to have a first class letter delivered (compared with 25 cents in the United States) and Canada Post's monopoly on the mail continues.

What's worse, it's the smallest papers that will be hardest hit. They will lose some of the cash spent by local merchants to purchase advertising in the flyers. And that's why Warren, a big city boy who earns well over $150,000 per year, should be ashamed.

He simply doesn't understand the nature of smaller newspapers, the people who run them and the integral role they play in the community. Like the church, the Legion and the civic centre, the community paper is part and parcel of a town's identity, providing life and vitality, as well as being a medium for individual give and take on important issues affecting the area.

Community newspapers also play a large role in local activities, not only dispensing information, but spearheading everything from minor hockey tournaments to the latest voluntary fund raising effort.

Closing the paper is akin to closing the school. A very real loss would be felt by local residents.

Canada Post's Warren should also consider the people who run the nation's smaller newspapers when he attempts to grab their revenue by using government-subsidized staff. For many of the editors and publishers, the paper is more a labour of love than a money-making venture. In fact, some publishers might feel lucky to earn the $23,000 per year paid to letter carriers.

Canada Post also has a potential conflict in this situation. The organization has the capacity to slow down mailing of weekly newspapers, while speeding up handling of the competing advertising flyers.

It should be noted that, in most cases, local postmasters (or postmistresses) are simply following orders when they get involved in the scheme.

So what to do?

Warren should immediately issue a pointed statement indicating his employees will no longer participate in such ventures. Local merchants should pass up the opportunity to advertise in the flyers. And subscribers who feel strongly about the issue should have a chat with their local member of Parliament, pointing out the unfairness of the situation.

A final note: Michael Warren wasn't available when representatives of the Canadian Community Newspaper Association met with post office executives to complain about the issue. He should be ashamed.

Keggers are unbeaten

Holden Keggers are the only undefeated team remaining in the Highway 14 Men's Football League.

Keggers have rallied to six successive victories to hold a two-point lead over the Holden Merchants, a team with one loss.

Tofield holds down sole possession of third place while Lindbrook and Round Hill are deadlocked in fourth spot.

Games yesterday (Wednesday) were played in Holden, Ryley, Tofield and Spitzend.

Friday's games will see Lindbrook hosting the Merchants, Kinsella hosts Spitzend, Keggers travel to Round Hill, Bruce is at home to Tofield and the Ravies host Ryley.

Games next Wednesday (June 8) will see Kinsella at home to Ryley, Bruce hosts Round Hill, Merchants host Tofield, Ravies are in Lindbrook and Keggers play in Spitzend.

Games slated for June 16th will see Ravies at home to Spitzend, Ryley hosts Round Hill, Lindbrook is at home to Tofield, Merchants are hosting Bruce and Keggers travel to Kinsella.

In last week's action, Keggers stretched their unbeaten streak to six games when they outslugged Bruce 13-8 and dumped the Ravies 11-4.

Merchants remained in contention for the pennant with two wins after they doubled Ryley 10-5 and then whipped Round Hill 9-8.

Tofield lost its first game of the schedule when they were upended 6-5 by Round Hill and then battled to a 6-6 stalemate with Ryley.

Lindbrook was the only other team to pick up two victories when they walloped Spitzend 13-4 and then trounced Kinsella 18-1.

In the only other game that was reported, Ravies edged Kinsella 11-9.

A game between Bruce and Spitzend was either postponed or the result was not reported to CFCW.

League opens

The regular schedule in the Highway 14 Ladies Softball League get underway this week.

Games were played on Monday and yesterday (Wednesday).

Games this coming Monday will see Spitzend at home to Tofield Triumphs, Viking hosts Holden, Tofield Triggers are at home to Shorewood-ettes and Chickadees and Blue Jays will tangle in Ryley.

Games next Wednesday have Triumphs in Viking, Chickadees at home to Spitzend, Triggers are hosting the Blue Jays and Shorewood-ettes are at home to Holden.

Each team in the league will play eight games in the regular schedule which ends later this month.

The top four teams will then advance to the playoffs.

The Mercury will cover this league if the league statistician will telephone results to Ed Clinton at 672-4421 (Camrose) each Tuesday afternoon.

USC - HELPING CANADIANS HELP

A USC contributor wrote to the agency's Founding Director, Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova, recently, "It is our privilege to help you in helping us raise our sights beyond ourselves." Since the USC was founded in 1946, Canadians have responded to Dr. Hitschmanova's appeals for the destitute the hungry and the ill, first in war-torn Europe and later in the emerging nations of the Third world. This year the agency hopes to raise $4,775,000 in support of over 200 self-help and development projects in Asia and Africa. Headquarters are at 56 Sparks Street, Ottawa, K1P 5B1.

Holden and district news

by Mrs. D.R. Taylor

Residents of Holden and District are reminded that June 20th has been designated as Holden Cemetery clean-up day. If it should rain it will be held on the following Wednesday. Please bring hoes, rakes, clippers, etc. and lunch. Coffee will be provided.

Holden residents, Myrtle and Albert Schauer of Edmonton, are proud grandparents of their first son, Scott and Linda Schauer are receiving congratulations on the arrival of their first son, Scott Randall Alexander, born May 19th in the Royal Alexandra Hospital.

Mrs. Bertha Chetney has her daughter, Helen and friend, Ray from Vancouver, B.C., visiting with her.

Holden Lodge Order of the Royal Purple held a special meeting last Wednesday at which the officers for the term 1983-84 were installed by District Deputy Evelyn Hartley of Red Deer. Assistant Installing Officer was P.R.R.L. Hanson; Installing Assistant Secretary P.S.R.L. Rita Hill; Assist. Installing Chaplain Lady Evans all of Viking Lodge also attending was P.D.D. Lady Vivian Gaves of Viking. Also assisting in the ceremony was a Patrol Team from Holden R.P.O. Elks - Bros. Lyle Grosland, John Semotiuk, Ben Lutz and Matt Hedrick with Bro. Earl Hardy Assistant Installing pianist. Officers installed were H.R.L. Mary Semotiuk; Associate Royal Lady Anne Scherr of Mec; Royal Lady Nellie Kshenyj; Lecturing Lady Ethel Brekstad; Secretary Irene Taylor; Treasurer, Anne Milunsky; 3 Yr. Trustee Kate Nichols; Chaplain, Eleanor Ogonoski; Trustees, Bertha Hanz; Inner Guard, Helen Szczy; Outer Guard, Jean Hellrich; Pianist, Olive Cook.

District Deputy L. Northey presented Pianist Lady Good with the 3rd Amethyst to her Pianist Jewel and H.R.L. Semotiuk with a 2nd Bar to her P.H.R.L.'s Jewel. On behalf of the Lodge H.R.L. Semotiuk presented a gift of a Lodge Fanny Pins in appreciation. Lodge closed and a social hour with the visitors was enjoyed with lunch hostessed being Ladies Nellie Kshenyj and Eleanor Ogonoski.

While visiting here with his mother, Mrs. Kate Nichols, Norman Gorrie also called on his aunt, Mrs. Frances Hamm.

Mrs. N. Hawaynchuk is a patient in St. Mary's Hospital in Camrose after an automobile accident last Saturday afternoon when she had a fall and dislocated her shoulder. Her son, Walter, took her to hospital.

The Holden Friendship Group held their monthly meeting last Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Edith Carlson who was also in charge of devotions. Mary Taylor gave the financial report. Correspondence was received from a former resident, Mrs. Bessy Buchanan, Miss Saddie McLeod of Hong Kong; and a card from Mrs. Edith Carlson for the get-well card sent to her when in hospital. A card was signed by all there, to be sent to a former member of the group, Mrs. Betty Keith, a patient in the Royal Alexandra Hospital in Edmonton. The meeting closed with the benediction after which a lunch and social hour was enjoyed.

Mrs. Kate Nichols with her son, Norman and wife, Helen Gorrie were Wednesday visitors in Edmonton.

Norman and Helen Gorrie of Oyama, B.C., who have been visiting with his mother, Mrs. Kate Nichols since the holiday weekend, left on their trip home early Thursday morning.

Mrs. Grace Appleby spent a few days last week at the home of her son, Douglas and family at Viking, looking after the children while work was being done on their new home.

Mrs. Angela Chudiak is now residing in Northview Manor.

Surprise callers last Sunday afternoon with Mrs. Kate Nichols were the former Mary Thieme and her grandaughter and the former Wilma Fleming of Edmonton.

The Thieme and Fleming families were long-time residents of Holden, John Thieme being care-taker at Holden School for many years and Bill Fleming was manager of the Royal Bank.

Frank Nalesnik of Perryvale, a brother of Mrs. Alice Haveland, passed away at the age of 67 years. He is survived by his wife, Carolyn; four daughters, Mrs. Eva McChasky of Perryvale, Mrs. Gail Seasons of Fort McMurray, Mrs. Valerie Tarrent of Edmonton and Mrs. Brenda Carruthers of Perryvale; 11 grandchildren; one brother, Bill of Perryvale; three sisters, Mrs. Emily Calcena of Edmonton, Mrs. Steve (Katie) Adamkewicz of Calmlea and Mrs. Alice Haveland of Holden.

Prayer services were held on Sunday in St. Gabriel's Catholic Church with the funeral being held there on Monday and interment was in the New Pine Creek Cemetery in Athabasca.

Forage to be limited

If you farm north of Red Deer, the chances are you will be short of pasture this summer and short of forage next winter.

Ken Weisenburger, who is head of the nutrition section of Alberta Agriculture's beef cattle and sheep branch, says that many pastures north of Red Deer did not receive enough moisture last winter to enough rain this spring to stimulate the early growth of perennial grasses.

Since most of their growth occurs during May and June, a shortage of soil moisture in the spring will reduce the amount of forage they produce even if mid-summer moisture is adequate.

So what can you do? First, Mr. Weisenburger recommends making a preliminary estimation of your pasture and hay production for this season. If you think you will be short of either pasture or hay or both, you may want to:

" Consider continuing your beef cows on a portion of your total pasture until about the middle of June. By giving the remainder of the pasture an additional month to grow, you can markedly increase the amount of forage it will produce this season."

Mr. Weisenburger points out that it will be necessary to continue feeding cows that are confined to a small area of the pasture. He says "As a general rule, they should receive about the same amount of feed as they were receiving during the winter feeding period. And he recommends substituting grain for some of the hay that was being fed before the cows went on pasture, because, in most cases, it will be cheaper than feeding hay.

However, he does not recommend feeding a liquid protein supplement because spring forage contains more than enough protein for cows. It is energy that is lacking when pasture is short, and this requirement can best be met by feeding some grain.

Mr. Weisenburger stressed that the breeding herd should be given priority from the point of view of feed when pasture is short. "If its breeding performance is improved through a lack of nutrition, the result", he says, "will be lower and later calves next spring".

" Fertilize your tame pasture if you receive a good rain mid-summer. You can double the yield of tame grass pastures and tame land hay by fertilizing them when moisture conditions are adequate.

" Clean your grass hay land if you must use some hay for pasture this season. Wherever possible, leave the legume forage for hay because it provides a better second cut than the grasses.

" Consider planting a cereal this spring for use as silage or greenfeed if you think you will be short of forage next winter.

And consider planting a cereal crop in mid-summer if you think you are going to be short of pasture in the late summer and/or fall. These crops provide an excellent source of late season forage.

BRANDS-TOLLEFSON

At an afternoon ceremony held at Our Savior Lutheran Church on May 14, Laurel Marie Kraemer and Timothy Ward Tollefson pledged marriage vows. Pastor Michael Bergman officiated. Laurel is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Kraemer of Hay Lakes and Tim is the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Tollefson of Camrose.

The bride was attended by Janice Semeniuc as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Carol Hein, Pamela Tollefson and Noreen Miller. Kristie Kraemer was the flower girl and Dennis Tollefson was the ring bearer. Attending the groom was Leroy Heck as best man. Terry Volsky, Robin Semeniuc and Dale Tollefson were groomsmen. The guests were ushered in by Darren Kraemer and Terry Hevelson.

Wendy Moore was the soloist and she was accompanied on the guitar by her brother, Donald Kraemer. Dana Grue served as organist.

Following the service a reception and dance was held in the Hay Lakes Recreation Center. The head table was centered with a three tiered wedding cake which had been decorated by Wendy Moore in the bridal party colors of mauve and white.

Terry Volsky, brother-in-law to the groom, acted as master of ceremonies. The toast to the bride was given by Walter Semeniuc.

MARK 25TH ANNIVERSARY

Lewis and Carol Stevens left Wednesday for Victoria, B.C. where they will observe their Silver wedding anniversary. The trip was a gift from their children.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Ron Bratrud at St. Mary's Hospital May 18, a son weighing 7 lbs. Another grandchild for Hilda Logan, Camrose, and Clifford and Ruth Bratrud.

Clean-up day was held at Zion and Bindloss on Thursday May 26. The ladies cleaned the churches and the men cutting the lawn.

Mrs. Star Vornbrock, Julie and Lisa and Ryan, Camrose, were Friday visitors at the Art Kaiser's, Ryley.

Sunday visitors at the Leonard Pearce home were Robert and Martha Johnson and Joe and Emma Kondzielski. The latter were also Wednesday visitors at Palma Paulson's and Beverly Hansby.

Bursary offered

by Ken Rostash

The Tofield Lioness Club will be offering a $500 post-secondary scholarship to an approved applicant this year, said Edith Wiebe, a member of the Lioness Club.

The scholarship is the first time the Lioness Club has awarded it. The club hopes to continue this on a year-to-year basis, said Wiebe.

The conditions for the scholarship are based on the need of the applicant, the scholastic ability, the importance of the program entered, approved commitment, location of the course and community involvement.

Applications for the scholarship are being taken by Edith Wiebe, care of Kathi Masters, box 390, Tofield.

Marks of the students should accompany the application said Wiebe.

The deadline for the scholarship is the end of August.

The scholarship will be awarded during the Tofield School awards night.

Ryley Pool news

by Red Kroetsch

Red Cross lessons began last week, registration was good.

Registration for adult lessons was very good.

The County grade 6's are well into their water safety programs.

The Tofield Recreation Department has decided to run a test for Red Cross lessons the first two weeks of July and the first two weeks of August.

Registration for summer lessons will begin in the middle of June - contact the Pool for more information.

The Ryley Swimming Pool will be holding a Red Cross "In Service" for instructors Level I. To take the course you should have your green level in Red Cross swimming or be a fairly good swimmer. The course will be held July 8, 9, 10 and 15, 16, 17. It will amount to about 40 hours - which includes 10 hours of practice teaching. Please register as soon as possible.

The pool is in desperate need of life jackets, bleach bottles (gallon size). Donations for such equipment would be much appreciated, also volunteer pool staff. If interested, please call and ask for Red.

If you're thinking about renting the pool, be sure book early for the holidays, rental spaces are beginning to fill up.

Court report

Richard Cambell was found guilty of three charges of break, enter and theft. He was given a suspended sentence and 18 months probation.

Brent Charpentier was found guilty of possession of stolen property and theft under $200. He received eight days' detention, to be served intermittently.

T.G.H.A. Flashes

The T.G.H.A. played a part in helping at the rodeo with their concession booth this past weekend.

On Sunday, the May tray favours created by Ann Geter and Grace Larson were present on the tray of the hospital patients. Thanks also goes to Opal McGinitie for her Mother's Day tray favours.

June 4th is 4-H Day in Tofield. The menu concession will be run by the T.G.H.A. this year, with fresh homemade pie, coffee and ice cream novelties. The concession will run from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

A special thanks from the T.G.H.A. goes to you who have dropped off so many items at our drop box in Owl Drug Mart. Our needs for pantry items and baby food jars are now satisfied. Item will soon be ready.

Triumphs win

by Ken Kroetsch

Tofield Triumphs took first prize in the Holden Ladies Early Bird Tournament last Saturday.

Winning its first game against the Sherwood Park Chickadees, Triumphs moved on to win over the Viking Comets.

In the final game, Triumphs beat Ryley Chickadees 4-2.

The Ryley Chickadees took second place in the A Event.

In the B Event, the Sherwood Park Chickadees took first place over Holden, 29-14.

The Holden team placed second in the B Event.

There were eight teams entered in the competition with each team guaranteed two games.

Two teams undefeated

Two teams are undefeated in the Powerline Baseball League.

Armena and Camrose have each rolled to five consecutive victories after the first two weeks of play.

Ryley is only a step off the pace having posted four wins in five starts. After that, the race for fourth place is close between the other five teams.

Games today (Thursday) will be played in Berdo, Holden, Tofield and Camrose.

Tuesday's games will mark the half-way point in the regular schedule and will see Berdo at home to Round Hill, Ryley is hosting Holden, Tofield travels to Viking and Camrose plays in Armena.

Next Thursday's contests will have Berdo at home to Camrose, Holden will host Tofield, Ryley plays in Armena and Round Hill goes to Viking.

Armena picked up three more wins when they hammered Viking 17-2, edged Berdo 7-6 and whipped Round Hill 7-1.

Camrose posted three easy victories when they walloped Berdo 17-2, trounced Round Hill 19-1 and dumped Tofield 8-1.

Ryley remained in contention for the league pennant with three wins after they swamped Round Hill 17-14, whipped Tofield 13-5 and edged Viking 6-5.

Viking's loss was came when they slapped Holden 10-5.

Tofield and Holden each recorded their first wins of the season when Tofield stopped Holden 7-3 and then Holden's first victory came in a narrow 7-6 decision over Berdo.

The regular schedule is to be completed by the end of this month (June).

After that, the top four teams in the standings will advance to the semi-final playoffs.

At this point in the season, not only are all teams still in the running for playoff berths, none have been eliminated from contending for first place.

Ryley graduation held

A very special occasion was shared by all who attended the Ryley High graduation festivities, held on May 14. The graduating class, along with their parents went to the Ryley Community Hall, where the banquet and exercises were held.

The grads and their guests were welcomed by Lonnie Lauber, chairman for the banquet. Everyone then joined together in singing "O Canada", accompanied by Mrs. Sherri Hornig, the pianist for the evening. Joseph Voegtlin asked the blessing, all enjoyed the banquet prepared by the Ryley Cavell Ladies.

The graduates were introduced by Lonnie Lauber. This was followed by toasts to the Queen, graduates, parents, staff, the community and the Board of Education.

The exercises commenced with the processional of the graduates, while the theme song "Up Where We Belong" was played by Mrs. Hornig. A welcome was extended by Mrs. Ethel Pepper, Master of Ceremonies for the occasion. Mr. Voegtlin then came forward to make the invocation. This was followed by some humorous insights and anecdotes from the lives of the graduates by Chris Clarke and David McKeon. Lonnie Lauber and Michelle Hisey, accompanied by Mrs. Hornig, presented their rendition of the theme song.

Terry King, guest speaker for the evening, addressed the graduates, wishing them well and giving a few kind words of advice. Doug Wilde, who was valedictorian, gave a short speech, thanking the many who had a part in educating himself and his classmates. Don Kondrat, Supervisor of Education for the County of Beaver, followed with brief comments to the Grads and then Mr. Clarke and Lonnie Lauber presented the diplomas and pins.

The Academic Awards for 1982-83 were presented by Floyd Taylor. The highest standing in grade 12 award was presented to Doug Wilde, with Ken Manderson receiving the award for the second highest standing. The J.D. MacDonald Award was shared by Willis Reist and Ken Manderson.

Michelle Hisey and Ken Manderson were then presented with the Senior High Athletic Award. After the presentation of awards, George Knudsilen, presented to the school, a painting by Leona Stumbo, in honor of this year's graduating class.

The evening ended with an address by Mr. Clarke, principal of Ryley School. A dance was held later in the evening, with the "Morning After" providing the music.

HORN FLY CONTROL

Dollars spent on horn fly control can result in a return in livestock weight gain.

This is the preliminary finding of research being done by Hugh Philip, livestock entomologist with the Alberta Environmental Centre in Vegreville.

Ear tags treated with insecticide will provide good control of horn flies on cattle over the summer, he says. The key is to attach the tags before the cattle are turned out to pasture.

Horn flies overwinter in pastures, emerging in late May or early June to feed on the blood of the cattle. A horn fly infestation is unmistakable. "You'll notice flies about half the size of houseflies on the backs of the cattle, especially bulls," Mr. Philips says.

Ear tags to control horn flies are sold under the brand names Ectrol and Delnatic. They are equally effective if applied according to the instructions on the label. The cost of the tags ranges between $2.50 and $3.50 per animal. Calves do not have to be treated because horn flies do not attack them. Some producers may be reluctant to tag their bulls; it is not strictly necessary, according to Mr. Philip, as long as the rest of the herd is treated.

Mr. Philip urges producers to follow the directions that come with the ear tags, and wear gloves when handling them. The tags are not suitable for use as identification tags, and must be removed before the cattle are shipped for slaughter. Ectrol tags may be stored in a plastic bag in a cool place for use next year.

BETWEEN THE COVERS

On the new book shelf this week, you may find a biography of Canadian poet Pauline Johnson by Betty Keller. Pauline, is written after much research and portrays the real woman, not the much-romanticized Indian Princess of her time. Another biography is Anne Boleyn, by Norah Lofts. Those who enjoy this author's writings will find an interesting story here, of Henry VIII's second wife.

A more modern approach to royalty is found in the book by Michele Brown, The Royal Animals, a fully-illustrated and engaging look at pets of the Royal family over many years.

For readers who like their crime fiction to be true-to-life, try the Memoirs of a Great Canadian Detective, by John Wilson Murray. And fans of Gerald Durrell's humorous books about his animal collecting expeditions will find The Mockery Bird, to their taste. This book is however, a novel set on an imaginary island in the Pacific.

A number of newly donated paperbacks are on the shelf as well, including Joshua's People, The Ultimate Game, The Fury and the Passions, and High Crimes. For younger readers, or Science Fiction fans, a collection of Starliners, a documentary of commercial spacetravel in 2280 AD may prove interesting.

Remember, you can return books through the book depository if the library is closed. The regular open hours are: Tuesday 1-5, Thursday 3-5 and 6-9, Friday and Saturday 10-12 and 1-4.

Hay Lakes district news

Mrs. A. Arnston

A long time resident of Hay Lakes, Arthur Schaffrick passed away in St. Mary's Hospital in Camrose on May 29, 1983 at the age of 63 years. He leaves his wife, Nora; one son, Dwayne of the Hay Lakes District; four daughters, Elaine Dittmer of Innisfail, Bennie Reimer of Hay Lakes, Joyce Carty of Edmonton and June Saits of Camrose; seven grandchildren; four brothers and five sisters.

Funeral services were held at Our Savior Lutheran Church in Hay Lakes on May 28 with Pastor L. Schoepp officiating. Honorary pallbearers were Ralph Hickey and Edmund Fisher. Active pallbearers were Leo Kroll, Irvin Borkholz, Bill Maddox, John Lager, Leo Kail and Art Roth. Interment was at Our Savior's Cemetery.

Art came to Hay Lakes on March 19, 1957 and continued to live her up until the time of his passing. He served in the Canadian Armed Forces from 1940 to 1945 and spent several years of duty overseas. In 1946 he began his trucking business which he operated in the Hay Lakes area until ill health forced him to retire in August, 1981.

CONFIRMATION SERVICES

Lisa Dawn Adamson-Leicht was confirmed during the service held at Our Savior Lutheran Church on May 29. Pastor Dennis Wenzel of New Sarepta officiated with Allan Hein as representative of Our Savior for the Rite of Confirmation.

Lisa is the daughter of Lawrence and Faye Leicht. Following the service a dinner and social afternoon was held at the Lawrence Leicht home to honor Lisa. Among the guests attending were Lisa's sponsors, Jim and Sharon Mullan of Wainwright, maternal grandmother Mildred Wardley of Alix, paternal grandparents Mr. and Mrs. Herb Leicht, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Leicht and family of Wetaskiwin, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Leicht and family, Tara and William Thear, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Wardley and son Colin of Edmonton, Mr. and Mrs. Dave Holmberg and Tyler of Rosalind, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Adamson of Camrose, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Graham of Westlock, Mr. and Mrs. John Hanson and family and Lisa's sister, Lori Leicht.

Following the services at Our Savior Church Pastor Wenzel conducted a confirmation service at Wilhelmina Lutheran Church where Derry Nathan Anderson was the confirmand. Eddie Holdsworth acted as representative for the rite of confirmation.

Derry was honored at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Anderson, with a dinner, social afternoon and supper. Guests attending were Derry's sponsors, Reynold and Adella Nordlin, Rev. and Mrs. Wenzel and family, Derry's sister Muriel Smolarchuk and family of Edmonton, brothers Dwayne and family of Sherwood Park, Elwin of Bighnife Provincial Park and Ross at home; Willie Schoenknecht, Irene and Ewald Schoenknecht of Camrose, Mr and Mrs. Ryan Nordin and family, Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Holtzer and son Colin.

Three Hay Lakes High School students broke existing records of the Camrose County-City track and field meet. Elmer Mallos broke the record for intermediate girls 80 metre hurdles, Grant Toker for junior boys 110 metre hurdles and Kelvin Buban for senior boys 110 metre hurdles. They, along with Annette Eckert and Basil Sych, qualified for the Zone Meet held at Ledue last Wednesday. At the Zone meet Grant Toker and Kelvin Buban qualified for the Northern Alberta Track and Field meet to be held at Lloydminster on June 4.

Hay Lakes district news

Mrs. A. Arnston

Final preparations are being made this week for the graduation of 16 high school students which will be held on June 4. Activities will commence with a banquet at the Hay Lakes Recreation Center. The exercises will be held in the school auditorium at 8 p.m., followed by a dance in the Recreation Center.

The Hay Lakes and District Fish and Game Association will hold their regular trap shoot on June 5 at 7:30 p.m. The hunter training certificates have arrived and will be distributed at that time.

Gordon Zacht of Hope, B.C. is presently visiting his parents, Henry and Elsie Zacht. On Sunday the Zachts motored to Drayton Valley to visit with Fred and Helen Skipper. They also visited other friends along the route.

Presently patients at St. Mary's Hospital in Camrose are Mrs. Mary Lisbeck, Mrs. Frieda Herzog, Mrs. Hilda Meisner and Leo Bernhardt.

Walter Bumstead, Gladys Beerhepper and Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Parsons travelled to the Kananaskis Provincial Park on Sunday to view the site for the 18th World Jamboree of the Boy Scouts and Venturers.

The regular meeting of the Wildrose District Council will be held on June 6, 8 p.m. at the Scout Hall in Camrose.

This Saturday will be the last chance to buy tickets on the steer being raffled off by the Wildrose History Book Committee. The steer will be on display during the Camrose Jaywalkers Jamboree and the draw will be made at the Central Booth on June 4 at 5:30 p.m.

The Hay Lakes Senior Citizens Club held a cash bingo in their center on Friday evening. Prize winners were Mrs. Evelyn Petersen twice, Mrs. Olga Hickey three times, Norman Welsh, Elsie Zacht, Richard Pearson and Anne Appell. Alex Marcenuk was the winner of the blackout bingo.

Mr. and Mrs. Allan Slang were recent visitors to Hay Lakes. Allan retired from the Alberta Wheat Pool in February, 1983 and they have been spending a relaxing time travelling and visiting.

Marley and Phyllis Eide of Sexsmith were recent visitors at the home of Mrs. Bertha Lysnag and Lyle. They had come to attend the funeral of Phyllis's uncle, George Lysnag.

Mrs. Bertha Lysnag and Lyle and Mr. and Mrs. William Rost were among the guests spending a social afternoon at the home of Mrs. Clara Fisher in Edmonton.

Beaching secondary school in Lesotho, Southern Africa, is far more costly a dream due to the high cost of education. During the current year, UBC Canada will make a dream come true for 100 students in Lesotho by providing $375 scholarships covering tuition, examinations, books, supplies, uniforms and transportation. UBC headquarters are located at 56 Sparks Street, Ottawa, K1P 5B1.

After all their bragging the Liberals eat Crow

by Don Braid
in the Edmonton Journal

For a while there, the Liberals actually won some credit in parts of Western Canada for promising to drag the ancient Crowsnest Pass freight rate into the 20th century.

No longer. They have abandoned their sensible original proposals because of pressure from Quebec MPs, who didn't hesitate to lower the boom on western farmers.

It was an abrupt and surprising turnaround, even for a government that always keeps one eye firmly on its power base and the other on the next election.

The Liberals had promised that half the $651 million annual Crow subsidy would go to the railways, and half to western grain farmers.

But at the last minute they reneged on their pledge by deciding to give the whole subsidy to the railways.

This had nothing to do with sound economics, but plenty to do with the hostility of the big prairie wheat pools and Quebec farmers.

The pools would have lost their monopoly of grain shipping, and Quebec livestock producers would have faced real competition from the West.

In effect, the subsidy would have allowed western farmers to exercise real freedom of choice in transportation for the first time.

They could have used the money to ship their grain by truck or train, or sell it to the local livestock feeder at a profit.

Very quickly, such decisions would have led to modernization of the transport system and growth of livestock feeding in the West.

But without the payments the farmers are again forced to rely on the railways, because they can only get the subsidy by shipping the grain by rail to export points.

This is bad enough for the farmers, who are fated forever to ship their grain for others to process, but it means disaster for the western livestock industry.

If the ranchers want feed grain they will be forced to pay the going rate plus the full amount of the subsidy (about $32 per tonne) because grain farmers would be crazy to sell for less.

While they have trouble buying any grain at all, their Quebec counterparts will continue to benefit from cut-rate prices.

The Quebecers will get the full Crow subsidy for grain they buy at Thunder Bay, as well as federal and provincial subsidies that cut the cost of all feeds at the farm gate.

The threat of a similar benefit for western competitors was enough to send Quebec MPs scurrying into caucus with warnings of doom.

Several bisted broadly that if the government insisted on paying the benefit to western farmers, they would vote against the Crow package.

Thus the Liberals faced the sobering prospect of being defeated in the Commons, with the help of their own members.

So the Quebecers won — but they had plenty of help from the big prairie wheat pools.

These mammoth groups, among the largest corporations in Canada, were determined to keep the monopoly on grain-handling for the elevators and the railways.

Led by the Saskatchewan Pool, the three provincial groups put intense pressure on Transport Minister Jean-Luc Pepin and the provincial governments.

The Saskatchewan Tories knuckled under to the pools, vowing in newspaper ads to fight the proposed changes to the last gasp.

Ultimately, the prairie opposition allowed the Liberals to appease their Quebec MPs while insisting that the real hostility came from the West.

The saddest casualty of this sordid business is Pepin, who many observers feel was genuinely determined to change the Crow for the better, only to be stabbed in the back by his own caucus.

"He was absolutely sincere," says Chris Mills, manager of the Alberta Cattle Commission. "He has been utterly confounded by all this. I'm quite sure he would have resigned if the prime minister hadn't persuaded him to stay on."

Indeed, the unfortunate minister looks like the goat of the whole business.

Only days before he was forced to back down, his department payed $360,000 to distribute a flyer that promised to ensure the subsidy between the farmers and the railways.

With bravado that now are ma sadly ironic, Pepin insisted that only the Liberals could make impartial decisions about the Crow because they have nothing to lose in the West.

They certainly don't — and after this slippery performance, they won't for many years to come.

Province and feds team for Lacombe field day

Alberta Agriculture's Fields Crop Branch and Agriculture Canada's Lacombe Research Station will combine forces August 11th for a joint field day.

Tours of both federal and provincial research plots will run 1 to 6:30 p.m. Visitors will see the latest in variety development and disease control in barley, oats, spring wheat, winter wheat, spring triticale, and winter triticale. Lacombe scientists working in this area are Dr. Martin Kaufmann and Dr. Lu Peining of Agriculture Canada; and Dr. Jim Helm and Dr. Don Salmon of Alberta Agriculture.

Weed control and agronomic research in spring and winter cereals is conducted by Dr. Ashley O'Sullivan and Dr. Claude Caldwell and Dr. K. K. Hindle of Agriculture Canada, and Mr. Felix Mederick of Alberta Agriculture.

Development and evaluation of perennial and annual forage crops is conducted by Dr. Vern Baron and Dr. Bill Berkenkamp of Agriculture Canada; and Mr. Felix Mederick of Alberta Agriculture.

For more information contact: Bill Whitbeck, Alberta Agriculture, 782-6641; Richard Boughton, Agriculture Canada, 782-3316.

Ferry Point gets grant

The Ferry Point Historical Society was presented with a community grant last week.

The presentation of the $1,000 grant was made at the regular monthly meeting of the Battle River Tourist Association which was held in Dunsdale.

The cheque was presented by BRTA vice-president Joyce Harrison and was accepted by Kenneth Weld of Meeting Creek, president of the society.

The money will be used to pay for the development of a picnic site on SR 855 at the Battle River which officially opened about one month ago.

Prior to the start of Thursday's meeting, all BRTA delegates were taken on a tour of the lamp museum and at the meeting, were welcomed by Dunsdale's Mayor, Eric Bjarth.

A proposed 1984 budget amounting to $137,000 was presented for consideration by Robert Rattan of Provost.

Members were advised that a Senior Citizens Tourism Program Grant for operating tourist information centers had been approved.

The grant amounts to $7,872 and will be used to operate centers in Bashaw, Sedgewick, Castor, Consort and Stettler.

Elaine Alexander of Camrose reported that all souvenir items had been sold and more had been ordered and these items should be available shortly.

It was agreed that Brent Ritchie of Calgary should be invited to attend a special meeting to speak on a proposal submitted by the Travel Industry Association of Alberta on "identifying priorities for tourism development in Alberta."

The next BRTA meeting has been scheduled for Chauvin on June 16th.

Medically Speaking

by Dr Bob Young

Flexor retinaculum has always struck me as being a good solid medical term. Like gubernaculum and infundibulum, key words in a somewhat ribald medical school song (ask your doctor!), it has that certain authoritarian medical Latin ring to it.

The flexor retinaculum is a strong ligament that crosses the wrist just above the hand. Beneath it are the small bones of the wrist, and between the two are several nerve and blood vessels that enter the hand from the arm.

If the ligament was not there, these structures would pop out when we flexed our hand forward.

The eight wrist bones are called carpal bones. The passage through which the nerves and blood vessels enter the hand is called the carpal tunnel. Sometimes it becomes narrowed, causing symptoms termed the carpal tunnel syndrome. Numbness, tingling, and pain are the common complaints, and they are due to the median nerve being trapped in too small a space.

This is the commonest nerve entrapment, and is seen more frequently in women, perhaps because the ladies have slimmer wrists. Although it may be caused by arthritis of the wrist, fluid retention, a wrist fracture or soft tissue swelling, usually no cause is apparent.

In many instances both hands are involved. The dominant hand is usually affected first, with the other showing the same symptoms a few months to a year or two later. Occasionally the problem occurs even after surgery.

The patient's story usually suggests the diagnosis. It is confirmed by nerve conduction studies — measurement of the time it takes for an electric current to traverse the median nerve. If the nerve is constricted by a tight carpal tunnel, conduction is slower.

Treatment is surgical. Our friend the flexor retinaculum is divided and modified to provide more room in the tunnel. The operation is not a major one but requires care to insure that important structures are not damaged. Usually it is performed by a plastic surgeon although most surgeons have the necessary skill. The success rate is high, and all that remains is a short scar on the wrist.

Medically Speaking is published with the cooperation of this newspaper and the Alberta Medical Association.

New tunnel stirs up storm

By Lawrence Brown

The University of Western Ontario, already a leader in wind tunnel research, has announced plans for a new wind tunnel that will help research the effect of winds on offshore oil rigs, tall buildings, suspension bridges, radio telescopes and space vehicles awaiting launch.

The $3.5-million tunnel, which will include a wavemaker for studying the interaction between wind and waves, will be a greatly improved version of Western's current 17-year-old wind tunnel, which was used to help design Toronto's CN Tower.

The tunnel will contain a 3.3 metre fan that blows air at scale models of structures so that instruments can record data on how the wind and structures affect one another.

It then records information on wind behaviour with sensor devices that detect the presence of helium or other marker gases released in small amounts into the windstream.

By observing the behaviour of the gases the scientists can measure the turbulence and speed fluctuations of the winds, determine the amount of force and pressure that is exerted on different structures and observe how the structures affect the winds' behaviour.

The tunnel can create wind speeds ranging from 11 to 30 kilometres an hour, but it simulates even higher speeds for real structures because of the smaller scale of the model.

The winds are often strong enough to cause the models to vibrate rapidly. An excessive vibration may indicate that some structures are unsafe.

In the older tunnel, tests of offshore or nearshore structures were unsatisfactory. Researchers had no way to include the influence of waves which affect, and are affected by, wind behaviour. This drawback will be overcome by the new tunnel, which will house a 54-metre-long channel with a large paddle to create experimental waves.

Researchers know little about how waves affect wind; hence it is difficult to design off-shore structures resistant to extreme weather conditions, says wind tunnel director Dr Alan Davenport. The water channel should help yield important information for off-shore technology, he says.

The new tunnel will also have the advantage of containing two sections or mini-tunnels (its predecessor contains just one tunnel). These are a narrow tunnel for high-speed tests and a wider tunnel that can be used to simulate wind behaviour in the countryside. Dr. Davenport says the wide section could be used for studying how air pollutants disperse or for predicting the information of sand dunes in deserts.

Such a study could be beneficial to countries like Saudi Arabia where sand dunes often bury houses and other buildings.

But this research will not be possible until the new tunnel is completed in early 1984. In the meantime, experiments will continue in the old tunnel, which was recently used by the Exxon company to test the effects of winds on their semi-submersible rigs. Scientists studied the winds' interaction with oil rig models scaled down to 120th the size of a typical rig.

The model had a deck 40 centimetres square and replicas of drilling derricks, production equipment and a derrick tower.

The experiments were valuable to the oil industry because they indicated that companies may be building structures more resistant to winds than is necessary.

Measurements showed that much of the drilling equipment of the rig reduces the force of winds, a fact that has been ignored by designers.

The University has received almost $1 million for wind tunnel construction from the Natural Sciences and Engineering Research Council, as well as a $300,000 grant from Ontario's Board of Industrial Leadership and Development (BILD).

Slessor heads Cargill

Bob Slessor, marketing manager for Cargill Limited's Feed Division in Winnipeg, has been appointed Director of Operations at Cargill Nutrena's Feed Mill in Camrose.

A native of Edmonton, Mr. Slessor obtained a Bachelor of Science Degree in Agriculture and a Masters Degree from the University of British Columbia. Prior to joining Cargill, he was employed for 6 years with the British Columbia Artificial Insemination Centre. He has also had experience in the management of a purebred cow calf operation.

Mr. Slessor first joined Cargill three years ago as nutritionist. A year later, he took the position of marketing manager for the Nutrena Feeds Division.

As Director of Operations for Camrose, Mr. Slessor is responsible for the general management of the feed plant and its merchandising services.

Mr. Slessor and his family now reside in Camrose.

Director of Operations since Cargill opened its local plant, Henry Senko, has been transferred to a similar post in Lethbridge.

Gardeners meet

The Tofield Garden Club held their May meeting at the home of Theone and Glenn Jones.

After the minutes and financial report were given and adopted the Prairie Garden magazines were given out.

A letter offering a new book on gardening was read and it was decided to get one for the library. A pruning saw is to be purchased. A letter was read telling the names of this year's Fair judges. Fair lists were given out.

The float for July 1st was discussed, the theme to be "Canada Days".

Theone Jones had received the Glads and Dahlias and these were given out. She then showed slides on prairie flowers tame and wild.

A lunch was served by Isabel Lee and Gladys Johnson.

The June meeting will be at the home of Irma Francis when she will give ideas about rose gardening.

Tree planting

The second and fourth troops of the Wildrose Scouting District planted trees recently at the Camrose Aquatic Centre to commemorate the 75th anniversary of scouting in Canada. A 75th anniversary celebration of the scouting movement will be held in Camrose June 10, 11 and 12 when scouts, cubs and other scouting groups will participate in a camporee at the Fairgrounds and other activities. An official tree planting and time capsule will be buried that weekend. The time capsule will be revealed in 25 years during the 100th anniversary. The trees were donated by Reed's Gardens and the plot at the Aquatic Centre was donated by the City of Camrose.

Reunion set

May 19th, 1983

Dear Editor:

Your readers who were members of the Alberta Service Corps (a summer volunteer project of the late '60's and early '70's) will be interested to know that the reunion is happening for sure on June 17, 18, and 19th, in Joussard on the shores of Lesser Slave Lake.

We are asking Corps members to come to the North Country Fair for the weekend. Corps members will camp (frontier style/no electricity) in a special area beside the fair site and will hold a potluck/barbeque on Saturday.

All Service Corps Volunteers are invited to this exciting festival - reunion weekend that is held in a beautiful setting. We hope to see you all there.

If you want further information contact: Val Buckler, Box 61, Faust, AB. T0G 0X0 (355-3657).

Yours sincerely,
Paul Lemicha

TALKING BOOKS HAVE OUTSPOKEN PAGES

How can the visually impaired "skip" through the pages of a "talking book" (recorded on tape)? Andre Van Schyndel has found out, and made possible talking cookbooks, dictionaries, and encyclopedias.

Van Schyndel, a graduate physics student at University of British Columbia, has invented a "voice indexer". It records page numbers, index entries, etc. on tape so that they can be heard if the tape is played on fast forward or rewind, but not at normal playing speed.

The device records the entries at very slow speeds. They become audible if the tape is played ver quickly - but at normal speed they are too low in pitch for human ears to hear.

Readers recording talking books push a button to activate the indexer, and read the page number into the microphone. A computer coding mechanism in the indexer codes the number onto the tape - at slow speed. The information, just like other material, appears on any copies of the tapes as well.

Jaywalkers set

Jaywalking will be legal in Camrose on Friday and Saturday.

In the downtown business area!

The 28th annual edition of Jaywalkers Jamboree goes this coming weekend with more than 20,000 visitors expected to visit the Rose City, looking for bargains and entertainment.

The downtown business core will be closed to vehicular traffic so that businesses and organizations may erect booths on Main Street.

CFCW will again hold its popular world chicken racing championship which starts on Friday and concludes with a winner being declared on Saturday. Between races, musical entertainment will be provided by Wheatstone.

Another popular visual attraction is the dunk tank where prominent citizens and members of the competitive swim club sit on perches and the public gets a chance to see to it that they're "all wet".

Jaywalkers Jamboree is an annual event conducted by the Camrose Chamber of Commerce with this year's committee being headed by Bernie Bauer.

The chamber will operate a booth at the intersection of 50 Avenue and 50 Street where tickets for the Jaywalkers Jackpot will be available. This year's Jackpot prizes include steaks and a gas barbeque.

Rides and games of chance will be offered by a Vancouver firm and will operate until eleven o'clock on Friday night.

A fireworks display on Friday night is expected to draw a large crowd to Jubilee Park, after dusk.

A wide variety of musical entertainment will be offered at different locations in the downtown area.

Tradition will be followed on Friday morning when Jaywalkers will kick off with a huge pancake breakfast that will be served from 7-10 a.m.

The main attraction of Jaywalkers Jamboree will be the bargains and discounts offered by city businesses who usually go all out for this annual event.

Shortly after five o'clock on Saturday, the chamber's booth will become a popular place as the draws for Jaywalkers Jackpot and many other raffles will be made and another year of Jaywalkers Jamboree will officially end at six o'clock.

Program aids home repair

People who are planning to repair or improve their homes would be wise to consider taking advantage of the federal Residential Rehabilitation Assistance Program (RRAP), says Doug Barlund of Alberta Agriculture's farm business management branch.

Although basically designed to assist low income families to improve and repair their homes, the program has some features that could appeal to others. These are its relatively low interest rates compared with most consumer rates, the fact that the interest rates are fixed and the fact that the only security needed for one of these loans is a promissory note.

To qualify for a RRAP loan the person must own and live in his house, which may be situated either on land which he owns or on land which he rents. However, it must be located in a designated urban area, or in a rural area (small town or village) with a population of less than 2,500 people (check with your local municipality, local Canadian Mortgage and Housing Corporation (CMHC) office or the Metis Association of Alberta). And the house must be in need of repairs in at least one of the following areas: its structural soundness, its electrical, heating or plumbing systems or its fire safety standards. Although these areas are given priority under the program, there are a number of others, such as insulation and heating cost reduction methods, that could qualify as well.

Assistance under RRAP is provided in the form of a loan which can be repaid at a fixed interest rate over a period of up to 20 years. And CMHC's interest rate, which is at present 13 per cent, applies to all RRAP loans. Funds for the program are provided by the federal government through CMHC.

The maximum loan that is available under RRAP is $16,000 and $6,000 of this amount may not have to be repaid, depending upon the adjusted family income of the applicant. An "adjusted family income" is determined by taking the annual income from all sources, except the Family Allowance, and deducting $300 for each dependent child and an additional $1,000 if both parents are working or if the faqily is a single-parent family.

An applicant with an "adjusted family income" of $13,600 or less would be eligible for the maximum loan forgiveness of $6,000. This forgiveness will be reduced by $1,000 for every $2,000 increase in the "adjusted family income". The maximum "adjusted family income" if more than $23,600 was applied for a RRAP loan, but they are not eligible for forgiveness.

A person who qualifies for a maximum loan forgiveness of $6,000 must continue to live in the house for five years to "earn" the total forgiveness. This is because RRAP loans are reduced by $83.33 per month or by $1,000 a year as long as the person is living in the house.

Anyone who would like more information on RRAP loans should contact their local municipal office or their nearest CMHC office - in Edmonton, telephone 423-3631 or Red Deer, telephone 343-6677.

Collected collisions

If you've ever had a car accident and then tried to describe it in as few words as possible for the insurance forms, you'll appreciate the following descriptions as they appeared in the Toronto Sun:

"An invisible car came out of nowhere, struck my vehicle, and vanished."

"I was on the way to the doctor with rear-end trouble when my universal joint gave way causing me to have an accident."

"The pedestrian had no idea which direction to go, so I ran over him."

"I collided with a stationary truck coming the other way."

"I pulled away from the side of the road, glanced at my mother-in-law, and headed over the embankment."

"I had been shopping for plants and was on my way home. As I reached an intersection, a hedge sprang up, obscuring my vision."

"The other car collided with mine without giving warning of its intentions."

"I had been driving my car for 40 years when I fell asleep at the wheel and had an accident."

"I thought my window was down, but I found out it was up when I put my hand through it."

"My car was legally parked as it backed into the other vehicle."

"In my attempt to kill a fly, I drove into a telephone pole."

WCTU convention held

The sixty-ninth convention of the Alberta Women's Christian Temperance Union was held in Medicine Hat recently.

The theme for this year's convention was "Pressing on in '83" and the sessions were led by the Provincial President, Mrs. J. Neufeld of Lacombe.

During the morning session, resolutions were discussed and debated; one of which was that with the alarming increase of highway accidents, stiffer sentences should be imposed upon impaired drivers.

The afternoon session was comprised of Information seminars led by four provincial superintendents, Edna Eby of Sundre, Betty Olsen of Three Hills, Ruth Strum of Camrose and Bella Kirk of Three Hills.

Youth Night on Wednesday evening opened with a processional.

Mrs. Marie Gakeroff carried the Camrose banner which had been made by Emma Brooks of the local union. Several musical and vocal numbers were given by youth groups from Medicine Hat.

Guest speaker, G. Colledge, from Radio C.J.C.Y. gave a challenging message on "Family Life - marriage and divorce".

Election of officers resulted as follows:

Honorary President, Alma Nelson, Edmonton; President, Tracy Neufeld, Lacombe; 1st Vice Pres., Astrid Holte, Camrose; 2nd Vice Pres., Iona Eby, Calgary; Recording Sec., Dorothy Shantz, Calgary; Corres. Sec., Ivy Fretwell, Coaldale; Treas., Pauline Westergard, Three Hills; Youth Camp Co-Ordinator, LaVona Broen, Camrose and youth director.

Memorial service in the afternoon was led by Mrs. Betty Olsen of Three Hills. Mrs. Hilda Brown of Camrose participated in the service commemorating the memory of departed members from the local union.

Miss Frances Ost from Medicine Hat, was the guest speaker for the afternoon.

Dr. Elmer Theissen, philosophy teacher at the Medicine Hat College was the guest speaker at the closing banquet.

Ryley wins

Armena hosted a very successful baseball tournament on the Victoria Day weekend.

Reasonably good crowds were in attendance, the concession did an excellent business and the home team got to the semi-finals before being eliminated.

Organizers were so pleased with the results, the May holiday weekend tournament is now likely to become an annual affair.

Armena has a second tournament planned for later this season.

Round Hill opened the tournament with a close 9-8 decision over Viking with Swanson getting credit for the win.

The second game was another close match-up with Ryley surprising Camrose 7-6 with Oslund gaining the win while Peterson was tagged with the loss. Ewart of the winners belted a home run.

The host team made its debut in the third game and were successful with an easy 7-2 triumph over Bardo with Olson going the distance for the win.

Armena and Round Hill tangled in the semi-finals with Round Hill blasting the home team 15-4.

Swanson picked up his second win of the tournament while Bowal was charged with the loss.

Ryley whipped Round Hill 9-2 in the championship game with Solberg getting the win while Lindstrand took the loss.

FIBRE WEEK

Fibre Week is a series of seminars held at Olds College for interested people to acquire authentic and up to date techniques in fibre art. Qualified instructors will present practical ideas in different subject areas. Courses being offered this year include advanced basketry, clothing with flair, designing applique quilts, and leather construction and spinning.

The courses run July 3-6 and accommodation and meals are available at the college. For more information or a registration form, contact this office.

ACHIEVEMENT DAYS

A year of hard work for 4-H'ers is winding up and achievement days are not far off. By supporting these young people and the leaders, we let them know their time and effort has been well spent.

The Ryley Sewing Club has it's regular mtg on May 20 at 7:30 p.m. in Viking, the Sewing Club is planning a fashion show, June 5 at 7:30 p.m.

Red Cross swim and safe are: June 6 in Viking and Tofield and June 8 in Ryley and Holden. Lastly, the Tofield Crafts Club will have their projects on display at the June Farmer's Market. Watch for their projects!

FARMER'S MARKETS

What better way to support your community than going to your local Farmer's Market. Both Tofield and Viking hold markets regularly where you'll find bedding plants, fresh fruits and vegetables and lots of good company. Stop by every Thursday, 3 p.m. at the Viking Community Hall and the second Friday of each month, 2 p.m. at the Community Hall in Tofield. See you there!

GET HEMP-NETTLE AND CHICKWEED TOO!

Add Banvel to your mix and supercharge it. Get those hard-to-kill weeds like Canada thistle, cow cockle, hemp-nettle, and wild buckwheat, weeds that 2,4-D or MCPA alone don't even touch. Banvel added to your mix acts like a supercharger. Mixed with 2,4-D, MCPA, Sencor or Lexone, Banvel delivers effective control of Tartary buckwheat, corn spurry, pigweed and many others.

SUPERCHARGE YOUR MIX WITH BANVEL.

Spray weeds early, when they are in the seedling stage. Early control of weeds means greater yields at harvest time. Banvel in your mix means you'll get the real tough ones too. If you don't mix with Banvel, you've still got weeds.

Ministik and district news

Those who knew her were saddened to hear of the passing of Katie Williams on April 7, in Edmonton.

Catherine Ripplinger was born on November 24, 1913, in Kendall, Sask.

As a young girl, she came with her parents to Edmonton, where she took her schooling. At an early age, she went to work as a waitress.

On July 1, 1936 she was united in marriage to Francis Williams, son of two pioneer families, Herbert Williams and Irene Haley.

She lived in Ministik until the passing of her husband on January 30, 1966.

Later, with her two daughters, Carol and Cathy, she moved to Edmonton where she resided until 1962, when she moved to Fort Nelson, B.C., where she managed the Fort Nelson Hotel Coffee Shop.

Failing eye sight brought her back to Edmonton in the spring of 1976 where she had a cornea transplant. She returned to Fort Nelson as soon as her eye had healed.

In 1978, she had a transplant on her other eye and then remained in South Edmonton, near her daughter Carol.

She returned each year to visit her many Fort Nelson and area friends.

She is survived by her two daughters, Carol Lukas of South Edmonton and Cathy Schamber of Radway; seven grandchildren; one great-grandchild. two brothers, John Ripplinger and Alen Ripplinger; two sisters, Annie Hall of Saskatchewan and Rose Elliott of Fort Sask., as well as other relatives.

Funeral services were held from St. Francis of Assissi Church in Tofield on April 12th.

Interment was in Tofield Cemetery.

Despite a cool spring, farmers of the area are winding down their seeding operations. Now a good rain would be welcome.

Barbara Ferguson has been a patient in Tofield Hospital with a kidney ailment.

Hector Hamilton of Fort Macleod and his son, Jack Hamilton of Calgary, were recent visitors with Jean and Russell Rowland.

[illegible]

The flea market held at the Community Hall on May 7th, proved to be quite a successful event. Thirty tables held displays of crafts as well as white elephants. Bake tables were also seen. Homemade pie was served from the kitchen, along with hot dogs, coffee and soup.

Joyce Bowerman was convener and was assisted by ladies of the Community League in the kitchen and at the league tables.

Olivine Sears was winner of one of the bird houses. Door prizes were drawn for every hour making the afternoon a most interesting one for all there.

The annual picnic will be in June, with Margaret Paterson being convener.

An auction sale is to be held at the Hall Grounds in July and there will be more on this event as time goes along.

Jean Kleinschroth is at present in Tofield Hospital.

Your correspondent spent a week in Biggar, Sask., with cousins, George and Margaret Harris.

The May meeting of the Ladies Club was held at the hall on Wednesday. Final plans were made for the annual Strawberry Tea, to be held at the hall on June 4th from 2-4 p.m.

Jean Ferguson will convene the event as she has done on 25 previous teas, a record, we are sure.

There will be a raffle of a large cedar planter and a hanging basket of plants.

Lunch hostesses were Sarah Kleinschroth and Jean Ferguson.

Betty Williams enjoyed a May birthday.

Several members of the Crafts Centre and the Thursday group were hosts on Thursday morning to the County of Strathcona Advisory Board.

Several important issues were discussed.

The ladies served coffee and lunch.

Farmers need rain

Seeding operations should be completed this week, according to reports received from the Alberta Wheat Pool.

Wheat seeding is almost completed with about seventy percent of barley, canola and oats planted and about one-quarter of flax has been seeded.

With seeding just about completed, farmers will turn their eyes toward the sky in hope that a good rainfall is forthcoming.

In many areas, farmers are reporting that the soil is powdery because of a lack of moisture which is desperately needed for good crop growth.

Since the first of May, most regions are reporting tht they have received less than ten millimetres of rain and most of that came down before seeding got underway.

Despite the high temperatures that were recorded during the past week, frost was reported in scattered areas around Hay Lakes on a couple of nights.

Wheat seeding has been completed in the New Norway region with about fifteen percent to go on all other crops.

Bawlf farmers have completed seeding of wheat acreage, have about ten percent to go with canola, fifteen percent with barley and are three-quarters done with oats.

Seeding of wheat is also done in the Tofield region. Twenty percent of barley and canola is still to be seeded with oats having [illegible] quarters mark.

About five percent of wheat is still to be seeded around Camrose with oats and barley at the three-quarter mark and about sixty percent of canola has been planted. A start has been made with flax.

Farmers around Hay Lakes still have five percent to go with wheat and are three-quarters done with canola while sixty percent of oats and barley has been seeded.

In the Round Hill area, wheat seeding has been completed and other seeding to be done [illegible] from five to fifteen percent.

Rosalind area farmers have completed seeding of intended wheat acreage and are about one-half done with all other crops.

Reports from Holden and Ryley had not been received at presstime.

LIVESTOCK

Alberta's Major Renewable Resource

GOING GOING GONE

Prime Minister Trudeau has said that western livestock producers lost out in Bill C-155, the Crow Legislation presently before Parliament, because they couldn't deliver the votes he wants and "they didn't shout loud enough."

Bill C-155 provides an annual subsidy of $651.6 million to be paid exclusively and directly to the railways.

Bill C-155, at the present time, allows a subsidy to be paid only on grain destined for the export market. This legislation effectively reduces the 'freedom of choice' that farmers might have enjoyed and certainly discourages economic diversification.

Bill C-155 drastically curtails availability of feed grains for domestic consumption and it ensures that Alberta grain prices will be artifically increased by $35.00 per tonne by 1990.

Bill C-155 forces the western livestock producer to pay:

1) fair market value for the grain PLUS
2) the level of the subsidy paid to the railway.
   This forces livestock producers who must make use of the domestic market to compete with and match the government subsidy.

Bill C-155 will cause a drastic reduction in livestock feeding in Alberta. As well as slashing farm incomes the Bill puts thousands of jobs in the livestock sector (veterinary, pharmaceutical, feed grain/supplements, farm machinery, meat packers, marketing agencies, publishing firms, trucking firms, etc.) – in jeopardy.

Bill C-155 will cost by 1990:

1) Alberta cow/calf operators $50 million plus the loss of the Alberta market for feeder cattle. Cow/calf operators will lose the $22 per head cost of shipping to export markets.
2) Alberta Feedlot Operators – $320 million
3) Alberta's Economy – $1.5 billion in lost economic activity.

Bill C-155 will force the Alberta government, if it wishes to save the Alberta livestock industry, into a position of establishing costly offsetting programmes.

Feel like shouting?

Hospital is named

by Ken Knudsen

The new Tofield hospital has been named and new x-ray equipment has been ordered as plans move along for the new complex.

The name chosen for the new complex is the Tofield Health Centre, said Donald Reth, hospital administrator.

One reason for calling the new complex the Tofield Health Centre, said Reth, was as new people moving into the community would be able to find the centre's phone number under the town's name.

Another reason given for this name, said Reth, was because the new centre will not only house the hospital, but the auxiliary hospital and the nursing home as well.

The new primary x-ray equipment, as well as accessories, has been ordered from Picker International Canada, said Reth.

A portable x-ray has also been ordered from General Electric Medical Systems.

The total cost of the x-ray equipment is around $300,000, said Reth.

This new equipment includes fluroscopy equipment, used for stomach x-rays, and a Tomographic x-ray, a sweeping x-ray used to x-ray layers of the body.

The present radiologist from Edmonton will continue to do the work after the new centre is done.

Drawings for the new complex are expected to be completed in two weeks, said Reth.

From the architect, the drawing will be reviewed by the Department of Hospitals and Medical Care, after which, if everything meets approval, the hospital will go to tender, said Reth.

By the end of August or the middle of September, construction is expected to start.

The architect estimates the Tofield Health Centre will be completed and in use by May of 1985, said Reth.

The new centre will be built in the Belvedre area, the east side of Tofield and is estimated to cost $30,000, said Reth said this is well within the budgeted amount.

The new centre will house 50 beds; 40 for acute care; 30 for nursing home patients; and 30 beds for auxiliary patients.

Scouts plan 75th

It's countdown time for the 75th anniversary celebrations of the Wildrose District Boy Scouts.

The Wildrose Beavers, Cubs, Scouts and Venturers will be joined by Brownies and Girl Guides of the area to celebrate the 75th year of scouting in Canada.

The celebrations will commence on June 10 with registrations being taken at the north gate of the Camrose Fairgrounds.

On June 11th, all groups attending will have breakfast and assemble for opening ceremonies being held at the fairgrounds at 9:00 a.m.

Then, they will break off and reassemble on the CNR property west of the Safeway parking lot and will get out their banners, flents etc., and parade down Main Street to the fairgrounds.

Following a break for lunch, the group will be involved in a service project for the City of Camrose. At 3:00 p.m., they will be involved in Scouting activities for each section, breaking for supper at 5:30 p.m. Then, free time and various activities go until 9:00 p.m. At that time, a gigantic bonfire will be lit in front of the grandstand and a singsong held. The public is invited to attend this event.

On Sunday at 7:00 a.m., all groups will go to the Aquatic Center for a swim. This will be followed by a family breakfast catered to by the Camrose Fire Dept.

A tree planting ceremony will then take place in front of the Aquatic Center. There will also be a ceremony for planting a time capsule.

The Scouts will hold a church service and celebrations will then be over. Guest speakers and dignitaries will be present from the City and County of Camrose, Alberta Provincial Government and Regional Administrative of Scouting.

Comedy set

by Ken Knudsen

The Tofield Drama Club will be doing a comedy this year instead of the usual musical as in past years, said Linda Watson, drama club director.

Junior and senior high school students will be putting on a horror comedy called Clumsy Custard, or Ice Cream Cone Review, on June 6-7 at the school gymnasium.

The two-night performances will start at 7 p.m. and will have lots of audience participation during the performance, said Watson.

Tickets for the performance will be on sale at the Tofield School or, at the door.

Athletes dominate track local athletes broke seven records when area schools met top honours during zone track & school track and field championships which were held in Leduc last week. Fourteen records were taken during the day-long ritual and exactly one-half of these marks were established by athletes from this region.

Gwen Milne of Camrose set two marks for intermediate girls when she broke records in 800 and 1500 metre runs.

Cheryl Salsbuh was the other Camrosian to set a new record when she topped the 400 metre run for intermediate girls.

Steve Getsone of Bearff broke the record in junior boys' javelin while Jim Brown of New Norway set a new mark in intermediate boys' 400 metres.

Randall Bankhead of Ryley broke the junior boys' 800 metre record while Dan Talbot of Beaubow broke the mark in the 400 metre run in the same category.

Camrose Composite was an easy winner in the 3A schools with 113 points, outdistancing Leduc and Wetaskiwin.

Sedgewick won a close race in 2A schools with 130 points with the runner-up being Hughenden and Falun.

Beaubow dominated in the A schools' category with 104 points, trailed by Ryley and Bruton.

Cheryl Salsbuh of Camrose was the aggregate points winner for intermediate girls with Dan Talbot of Beaubow winning top honors for senior boys.

The winners in each competition will advance to the regional championship which is to be held in Lloydminster on Saturday.

Winners in the regional competition will advance to the provincial finals to be held in Calgary on June 11th.

Following are the top three in the different competitions, for athletes from this area.

EVER FEEL LIKE IT'S YOU AGAINST THE WORLD?

When you look at your car and it seems to be physically trying apart before your very eyes?

When you are sitting at the corner getting ready to make a turn and someone comes up from behind and slams into the rear-end of your car?

Whatever the reason that your car is not looking its best — we can fix it. Come in and talk to us. Our estimates are free.

IN MEMORIAM

SENIUK— In loving memory of our mother grandmother great grandmother who passed away June 6 1981
A face that is haunting us ever
A voice we are longing to hear
A smile we'll remember forever
While we try to forget every fear
A sad but sweet remembrance
A memory fond and true
And a token of affection dear
And a heartache mother for you –Sons daughters & grand children 39p 5621

AUCH— In loving memory of our dear wife and mother who left us May 27 1980
No longer in our lives to share
But in our hearts you're always there
–The Auch family 39p-4128

LAARHUIS, Corry— A memory of a lovely wife, mother and grand mother who passed away May 22 1978
We lost a mother with a heart of gold,
Who meant more to us than wealth untold
Without farewell she fell asleep
Leaving cherished memories for us to keep
For what it meant to lose you,
No one will ever know
To those who have a mother,
Please cherish her with care,
You'll never know the heartache
Till you see her empty chair
God grant her eternal rest and peace –Loved, remembered and missed by Joe children and families
39c 5146

STECYK— William In loving memory of husband, father and grandfather who passed away June 3 1978
God please take a message
To our loved one up above
Tell him how we miss him,
And give him all our love
Our family chain is broken
And nothing is the same,
But as God calls us one by one
The chain will link again
–Remembered always and sadly missed by wife Helen, children and grandchildren 39c-5623

Tofield High has 50 graduates

by Dale Beacham

On Friday, Tofield High School held graduation ceremonies to honor the fifty graduands of 1983.

Ceremonies began at 10 a.m. with an inter-denominational service in the Gospel Church.

Jim Siler then brought greetings and introduced the guest speaker, Ted McKellar, professor at Mt. Carmel and an Elder at Wycliff Chapel.

The graduation ceremony continued with a banquet in the Tofield Community Center. The grads, their parents and invited guests enjoyed the banquet dinner provided by the Tofield Legion Ladies.

Master of Ceremonies for the dinner was Mrs. Anne Taylor, counsellor at Tofield School.

After dinner, Mrs. Anne Taylor acknowledged the guests seated at the head table. Those guests were Mrs. Hjordis Armitage, Chairman of the Board of Education, and her husband, Bill; Al Pollock, Principal of Tofield School and his wife, Joyce; Arnold Swift, county councillor and his wife, Joyce; Dr. W.H. Freebury, Mayor of Tofield and his wife, Dorothea; Dr. Neil Gannon and his wife, Cecile; Fred Reinholt, Superintendent of Schools fr the County of Beaver and his wife, Edna; John Warner, county councillor and his wife, Irene; and Floyd Taylor.

A toast to the queen was given by Mrs. Anne Taylor, followed by a toast to the graduands presented by Nan Collins. Amanda Collins, Mr. Collins' daughter, replied to his toast.

Christy Watt proposed a toast to the parents with a reply coming from Fritz Van Der Kley.

Nico Van Der Kley then proposed a toast to Tofield School and its staff with Ted Whyte replying.

Next, Mayor Freebury, brought greetings from the town of Tofield and its council. He congratulated the grads, teachers and parents for their efforts, hoping that every one of the grads would be successful in the future.

Greetings from the Superintendent's Office were then expressed by Fred Reinholt, Superintendent of Schools.

John Warner, County of Beaver councillor and school board member, then brought congratulations from the Board of Education. As a parting gift to the grads on behalf of the Board, he presented Chris Lazarius, president of the Tofield Students' Union, with a cheque to pay for a composite picture of the 1983 graduating class.

Following the banquet and ceremony at the Community Hall, graduands, parents, teachers and friends gathered

Sports Day set

by Ken Kroetsch

Sports Day in Ryley on June 18, will be a lot more than the traditional sports day of the past, said the secretary of the sports day committee, Doug Kapegreco.

Sponsored by the Ryley Curling Association, the sports day will include something for every member of the family.

"This will give us a better turnout than in previous years," said Kapegreco.

Besides the usual sports day attraction of baseball, there will be kids' races, pony rides, toy rides, gymkhana, a beer festival and a music festival.

The outdoor music festival will feature three bands, Country Road Express, Morning After and Believer. One band is country, another bluegrass and the other is rock and roll.

This will appeal to a greater variety of listeners, said Kapegreco.

A pancake breakfast from 7-9 a.m. will start the day off. The pancake breakfast is being sponsored by Ryley businessmen.

After the breakfast, will follow the parade at 10:30 a.m. One attraction of the parade is Darth Vader of Star Wars.

Following the parade will be the day's events, followed by the Ag. Society's beef dinner at 5 p.m.

The whole Sports Day will finish with a sports day dance at 9 p.m.

Test holes

Alberta Environment people were out on Monday to drill further test holes around the area known as Pete's Garage to do further tests on gasoline deposits under the ground

Gas is on the move

by Ken Kroetsch

Gasoline from the ruptured tanks of lines of Pete's Garage appears to have moved, said Neil Brodie, Tofield town administrator.

In a test hole toward 32 Ave., south of the storage tank location, heavy gasoline deposits were found by Alberta Environment, said Brodie

He estimated the amount of gasoline to water found in the test hole was about 50 percent water to 50 per cent gasoline

Brodie said this suggests that there is a pool of gasoline under this area and that it appears to be moving towards 32 Ave.

Other test holes in the area showed reasonable amounts of gasoline deposit.

People from Alberta Environment were back out Monday to drill further test holes around the test hole along 32 Ave. to determine the size of the pool and to see whether or not the pool is moving.

They will be back within one week to further monitor the situation

A total of 16 test holes have been drilled around the area, eight to 20 feet deep, to monitor the situation.

Possible excavation of the site will depend on the decision of Alberta Environment after the testing is done, said Brodie.

The building known as Pete's Garage was torn down after strong gasoline fumes were reported to be coming up through the floor.

It was considered an explosive situation by Alberta Environment and the building was condemned

The gasoline fumes were thought to have come from a leak in the gasoline storage tanks or, the lines to the pumps.

After the building was torn down, the pumps removed, and the storage tanks drained, Alberta Environment people came down and drilled test holes to evaluate the problem.

Drop-In set to go

The Tofield Golden Club has signed a contract with AKU Construction for the drop-in centre

Work is scheduled to start early in June

Any donation, large or small will be very much appreciated.

Raffle tickets may be obtained from any member of the Golden Club, for half a beef.

The draw for the beef will be made on June 25, at the bus being held in the Legion Hall.

"I think I found the trouble, dear."

Shipping grain

Farmers are once again facing tough times because grainworkers at the West Coast terminals, those in Vancouver and Prince Rupert, are demanding wage increases of more than 5 percent, the figure suggested by the government at Ottawa a year ago, and one which the terminal operators agreed to reach only reluctantly.

The terminal operators have finally reached an offer of 75 cents an hour, which is equal to five percent, but the union wants $1.30, or almost nine percent. Meantime, the poor farmer . . . for whom prices are going down . . . is caught in the middle once again.

It seems farmers in the Lloydminster area face a classic irony . . . that of the workers at a local oilseed processing plant beseeching them to step up deliveries of rapeseed in order to protect the jobs of a number of workers at the same time workers at the West Coast are threatening to halt deliveries of countless farmers who depend on these deliveries for their income.

At the same time, it's hard to reconcile figures which don't seem to reconcile. Only this week, Eric Harris, as spokesman for the B.C. Terminal Elevator Operators Association reported that the 75 cents per hour increase in wages proposed by his body would result in the average grainworker earning $15.58 per hour in 1983 . . . "over $40,000 per year in total compensation."

Now $15.58 per hour in these parts is a mighty hefty wage. We don't know what it compares with in Alberta, but it's a good deal better than the average millwright, for instance, and we venture to guess it's not nearly so complex as a millwright's trade. But $40,000 is something else . . . it almost seems designed to build pressure against the union, without rationale. We can't conceive the labor conditions these men must work through to earn that, but we honestly don't believe many of them put in enough overtime to make $40,000 out of $15.58. That's 2,600 hours of straight time every year!

To our way of thinking, based on a 40 hour week (and even that we find hard to imagine in B.C.) it would mean an average of . . . at least . . . six and a quarter hours of overtime every week of the year.

If that isn't the kind of hours they put in, then where does the $40,000 come from? And who is fooling whom?

Telling us how to think

Few farmer readers of the 'Budget' take the Calgary Herald or the Edmonton Journal. Therefore, most readers will not have seen a four color, four page supplement stuck in the Saturday edition of these and other papers. While the insert is not described as an advertisement and it does not actually say "paid for by the government of Canada", we believe it was.

Why did our government feel the need to persuade urban Canadians about the government's position on the Crow Rate? Why was it necessary to tell Montrealers, Torontonians, Winnipegers and those in Vancouver for example that, "the new rate structure benefits all Canadians"? Is the government afraid that farmers will persuade city dwellers that such statements are untrue or half true?

We hear that the weekend promotion cost taxpayers about $350,000, not counting production costs. The leaflet sent by Ottawa to all western grain farmers last week cost less, we estimate about $10,000. That leaflet, entitled Western Transportation Initiative was sent by Transport Canada. It proclaims the government's plan It certainly does not provide for response to the arguments put forth

Our question here at the 'Budget' is, why does our government think it can decide what the people want, decide what is good for the people and assume that the people should be guided by government? We thought democracy was supposed to work differently from that. Isn't there something somewhere about government for the people, by the people?

Alberta Service Corps reunion

May 19th, 1983

Dear Sir:

Members of the Alberta Service Corps (a summer volunteer project of the late '60's and early '70's) will be interested to know the Reunion is happening for sure on June 17, 18, and 19th, in Joussard on the shores of Lesser Slave Lake.

We are asking Corps members to come to the North Country Fair and pay the $25.00 admission for the weekend (a pass that is your ticket to live music, drama, puppets, crafts and food booths). Corps members will camp (frontier style/no electricity) in a special area beside the fair site and will hold a potluck/barbeque Saturday at supper time.

All Service Corps Volunteers are invited to this exciting festival in a beautiful setting.

Alexandra School reunion

May 13, 1983

Dear Sir:

We would like to invite all former students and teachers of the Alexandra School, 922 9th Avenue South East, Calgary, Alberta to a School Reunion this summer on August 6th. The School, one of the earliest public schools in Calgary, was opened in 1888 and closed in 1963. The building is now a Community facility run by the Alexandra Centre Society, for the benefit of the communities of Inglewood and Ramsay.

If anyone wishes to find out more about the Reunion, or could give us any information, pictures or special memories of the School, would they please write to 922 9th Avenue South East, Calgary, Alberta T2G 0S4 or telephone [illegible].

Penny Yeo
President,
Alexandra Centre Society

Dressing your child in layers of clothing will help him or her to keep warm and safe in cold weather because the warm air trapped by the layers provides excellent insulation. Red Cross Youth reminds you to make sure that the [illegible] layer of clothing is wind-resistant - a fuzzy pile coat may be cute, but the wind may blow right through it, dangerously lowering your child's body temperature.

Medically Speaking

by Dr. Bob Young

Malignant – the word itself has become ominous. The thought is softened sometimes by substituting terms such as tumour, neoplasm, new growth, mass, or even lump. Only the word cancer matches malignant in portent.

Occasionally a case of malignant disease overwhelms the physician as well as the patient. Often enough the patient is a person who has been uncommonly well in the past, feels ill for a short time, and is found, after a brief investigation, to have cancer. Moreover, the patient looks sicker each time he is seen although the visits may be only a few days apart.

A degree of helplessness prevails in the face of rampaging malignancy. The physician feels like a high school hockey team playing the Edmonton Oilers: he can undertake a few gestures but he knows that the outcome is inevitable and will likely be quick.

Some cancers are untreatable from the start, not necessarily because they are too large but because they are tumultuous in their spread and are composed of cell types against which we have neither defence nor treatment.

The patient is devastated. His or her body wastes away like an ice cube in hot soup. There is nausea, discomfort or pain, lethargy and weakness, and ever-increasing anxiety. Anger frequently follows.

There are few greater tests of the doctor-patient relationship. The physician must confess the true state of affairs early and inform the patient that nothing can be done to alter the outcome.

The alternative, providing treatment that is known to be useless, is soon recognized as a sham by the patient. The doctor is then no longer trusted and loses the chance to provide palliative care

The patient needs caring support, relief of symptoms, and hospital or other placement. The family also needs support and occasionally dissuasion from seeking expensive and useless quack "cures".

It is perhaps fortunate that the illness caused by devastating malignancies is usually soon over. The body is ravaged like a landscape hit by an earthquake or tornado, quickly and totally.

The family wonders why medical science could offer so little. The physician is again reminded that there is still much to learn.

Medically Speaking is published with the cooperation of this newspaper and the Alberta Medical Association.

Patricia Young Says . . . . . .

Like motherhood and apple pie, most people support freedom. Unfortunately, few people understand what the word really means. The anarchist might see it as the absence of all law; the socialist sees it as a Big Brother State control. Both communists and Fascists have believed that only they have real freedom - and by heck citizens are going to be "free" their way - like it or not!

Put simply, in a democratic land, freedom is a combination of freedoms to and freedoms from. But rather than compiling a hundred and one books on the countless million things we are free to do, we confine ourselves to listing those things we may not do, as agreed upon by our lawmakers. At the [illegible] freedom does not stand alone as a law unto itself! Rather, it is conditioned by a sense of community responsibility and obedience to both social and moral principles Thus, the free man is both free and constrained. His freedom must be disciplined inasmuch that it is responsible and encroaches upon no other man's freedom.

While such words as "duty" are sometimes viewed scornfully by the bleeding heart liberal, we can only maintain the freedoms we still enjoy by maintaining a sense of duty on all levels of society. This not only means a duty to uphold the law, but a duty to do for ourselves what we can and should do for ourselves. It means doing one's job with the responsibility and dignity of a day's work for a day's pay.

By the same token, duty and responsibility cannot be legislated by any political philosophy since both constitute that intangible human dignity that enables a man to hold his head high knowing that he has made a fair contribution and robbed no man in the name of a phoney "equality".

Duty does not mean organizing society as a "human resource" the way a farmer breeds his cattle. It does not mean the self interest that lets the rest of the world go to hell in a basket. Rather, duty and responsibility within the concept of freedom we enjoy, means concern and involvement, compassion and awareness without the hammer-hitting arrogance of either professional or amateur do-gooders whose compassion too often turns to hostility when confronted with an attitude of: "Thanks, but I'd sooner make my own mistakes!"

In the final analysis, all men must be free to hope and aspire. To "secure" them against their will is to give them the "freedom" of a jail! Hence, our only hope of preserving what we call freedom, is to approach the word from the angle of duty and responsibility. If we don't, we can only wind up enjoying the narrow, soul-destroying "freedoms" of a State dictatorship or the freedom of ants at work in an anthill!

Keggers absorb loss

Holden Keggers absorbed their first loss last week and as a result, there are no unbeaten teams in the Highway 14 Men's Fastball League.

Despite the loss, Keggers remain in sole possession of first place while Tofield replaced Holden Merchants in the runner-up position.

Kinsella picked up its first victory of the season and as a result, moved out of the league basement.

Yesterday's (Wednesday) games were played in Kinsella, Bruce, Holden, Lindbrook and Spilstead and will be reported next week.

Games on Friday will see Bevies at home to Spilstead, Ryley is hosting Round Hill, Lindbrook will host Tofield, Merchants are hosting Bruce and the Keggers travel to Kinsella.

Next Wednesday's action will see the Merchants go to Spilstead, Round Hill will host Bevies, Tofield is at home to Kinsella, Ryley plays in Bruce and the Keggers are hosting Lindbrook.

Tofield was the only team to manage two victories in last week's action with the two wins moving the team into second place, only one point behind the Keggers.

Tofield edged the Keggers 3-2 in a pitching duel and then went on to whip Bruce 9-4.

Keggers rebounded from their loss to Tofield to hold on to first place after they doubled Round Hill by a 6-3 count.

Merchants fall to third spot despite a win by an 11-4 score over Lindbrook.

In other games that were played, Bruce edged Bevies 11-9, Lindbrook whipped Ryley 6-2, Kinsella stopped Spilstead 7-3 and Bevies trounced Ryley 10-1.

Merchants were to have hosted Kinsella while Round Hill played in Spilstead last Wednesday with results not forwarded to CFCW.

Earlier, results of a game between Bruce and Spilstead had not been received by the radio station.

The Mercury would appreciate receiving these results or, rescheduled dates if the games were postponed.

Holden and district news

by Mrs. O.R. Taylor

The Holden Historical Book Committee wishes to remind anyone who has not yet ordered a book to do so as soon as possible. The number of books printed will be based on the number of orders received. The part payment of $20 is needed to cover printing costs as they arise.

On June 1st, Holden Lodge Order of the Royal Purple entertained senior citizens at the Drop-In Centre when about 30 attended the social afternoon. Several games of bingo were played with prizes given to the winner of each game, then all enjoyed a lunch served by the ladies. On behalf of the senior citizens, Mrs. Pearl Allen offered a vote of thanks to the ladies for the pleasant afternoon.

Ron and Cheryl Chetney and sons have now moved into the Sylm house on 50th Avenue and are getting settled. Ron is starting up in the dairy milk business.

Helen and Jim Zwierschke were to Hardisty on Saturday where they were attending the wedding reception of a brother of Helen's.

Mrs. Helen Stecyk was in Edmonton on Saturday attending a wedding and visited over the weekend with her family.

Joe Ogrodick of the Haight District is a patient in Tofield Hospital. Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Budd were visitors with him Sunday stopping in on their way to Edmonton.

A former Holden resident, Miss Ida Nerd of the Ryley District, passed away suddenly in hospital over the weekend, after a short illness. The late Mr. and Mrs. Nerd and Ida resided in the [illegible] west in Mrs. Kate Nichols for several years.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Budd were visitors in Edmonton the past Sunday, visiting with family.

Arthur MacDougall of Spirit River, husband of the former Connie Barlow, passed away recently in hospital after a serious illness. Connie and her husband were often visitors with her aunt, Mrs. Beth Campbell, when she resided here. The Barlow family were a pioneer farming family of the southwest Holden District.

Mr. and Mrs. Nick Haybidz are delighted in the birth of a granddaughter, Nicole Marie, born on May 28th to their daughter, Pat and husband, Randy MacDonald.

Guides has busy month

Tofield Girl Guides and Brownies have had a very active month of May, and many events are still upcoming for the summer months.

On May 11 and 12 the two groups met to participate in garbage pick-up down Main Street.

May 18, during Alberta Fitness week, each girl invited a friend to join with them in various exercises and games instructed by Miss Twerdoff as well as the leaders.

On May 19, the Guides and Brownies invited their Father's on a fishing trip to Dodd's Lake.

A Mother-Daughter banquet was held on May 26 at the United Church. Guests at the supper included Sylvia Wetland, Alice Rapp and Peggy Leslie, commissioners, who were on hand to present awards and badges.

Robin Carter was enrolled as a Brownie.

Guides receiving their all-around cords included Sandra Porisky, Ann Tiedemann, Renae Agrey and Yvonne Van Der Kley.

Two other guests Edna Dach and Carol Bersf, presented a film.

On May 23, several girls travelled to Vegreville with Guides and Brownies from Ryley and Holden to meet Mrs Currah who is the National Commissioner of Guiding in Canada. Souvenirs from Mrs Currah were given to the girls. The day included crafts and games with the Woodsmoke area girls serving hot dogs and ice cream.

On June 1, the Guides and Brownies planted flowers at the Senior Citizens Lodge.

On June 8 there was a wind-up picnic at Yvonne Brown's farm and on Friday the girls will attend the Farmer's Market Youth days.

Cavalcade held

The Battle River Tourist Association's annual cavalcade will go into the record books as a complete success.

The full quota of seventy recreation vehicles and approximately two hundred people participated in the event.

The vehicles gathered in Camrose on May 28th and then left on a two-day tour of the Battle River Zone's western area.

This year's tour included stops in Wetaskiwin, Ma-Me-O Beach, Pipestone, Buck Lake, Leduc and Millet.

This was the eighth year in a row that the cavalcade was held and participants have already expressed interest in the 1984 plans.

This year's cavalcade committee was chaired by John Gust of Bashaw, assisted by Bryce Woodrow of Castor and BRTA Manager, Sylvia Clemens of Camrose.

Programs for the mentally handicapped may have to be discontinued if additional funding is not found.

That was the message delivered to the Camrose and District Support Services Board at a recent regular monthly meeting.

A letter from the Camrose and District Association informed the board that if additional funding was not found, some features of the program would have to be discontinued at the end of this year and the letter went on to seek financial assistance.

Board Members decided to invite Phyllis Beebe of the association to attend the next meeting to elaborate on the request. It is expected that Mrs. Beebe will be in attendance next Wednesday when the Board holds its June session.

Roger King of the Camrose Canada Employment Centre attended the meeting to provide information about the employment situation, job creation programs, and related topics as applied to the City of Camrose, County of Camrose and the County of Flagstaff.

Other routine matters were handled at the May meeting.

Farmers need rain

Rain is becoming an urgent need in many areas for crops, gardens and lawns.

While rain did fall on the east weekend, it was not very heavy in most regions and many areas received their rainfall was minimum.

At least four areas, Tofield, Ryley, Hay Lakes and Holden, have reported ten (or less) millimetres of rain since the first of May.

The need for a good rainfall in those locations is the most urgent although other regions are also in need of moisture in order for the crops to grow properly, according to reports received from the Alberta Wheat Pool.

The first damage of the '83 season has been reported in the Hay Lakes area where flea beetles have been into the canola plants and the dry weather has caused crops to come up unevenly.

Crop reports are forwarded to The Canadian on Thursday of each week and the latest reports indicated that all seeding operations should have been completed before the weekend was over.

Camrose area farmers reported that less than one percent of all crops were yet to be seeded.

Wheat seeding had been completed around Sherif and Holden with only five percent of all other crops to be done.

Seeding of wheat and flax had been done in the Rosalind area with only ten percent of other crops still to be seeded.

In the Hay Lakes region, wheat was done. Five percent of barley was still to be seeded along with ten percent of oats and canola.

Daysland farmers report that ten percent of oats, barley and canola were still to be seeded with wheat having been completed.

Wheat had all been seeded around Tofield with the amount to do in other crops ranging from five to fifteen percent.

Ryley area farmers had seeded all proposed wheat crops and were eight percent done with canola and had reached the three-quarter mark with oats and barley.

Reports from Round Hill and New Norway had not been received by presstime.

Camp planned

A unique camp for youngsters will be operating in Central Alberta this coming summer.

The camp is for boys and girls between eight and fourteen years who are interested in hiking, trail riding and caring for horses.

Dubois Valley Camp is located about twenty-eight kilometres northeast of Gadsby and is run by Carl and John Connon.

Children may attend for either one or two-week sessions which are held throughout July and August.

Camp participants will learn how to care for their own horses and tack, go on trail rides, be involved in hiking, games and camp fires and all activities are supervised by reliable counsellors.

More information may be obtained by contacting Mr. and Mrs. John Connon, Box 15, Gadsby or by calling either 574-3941 or 874-2115.

in the Tofield School gymnasium, which was decorated by the Grade 11 students in shades of blue, and white and silver. Behind the stage was a large backdrop depicting this year's theme, "Looking For Space".

Master of Ceremonies for the formal graduation exercises, Ted Whyte, welcomed the guests and introduced the arrival of the graduates. Following the processional, the graduands and guests participating in the singing of "O Canada" accompanied by pianist Terry Rempel.

Carl Hansel then provided the invocation.

Ted Whyte introduced Pat Hallonquist for the Valedictory Address.

The guests speaker was Dr. Neil Gannon who reflected on this particular graduating class stating that the last time he saw this group was when they were in grade 6. Had Dr. Gannon and his family remained in Tofield, his daughter Elayne would have graduated with this group.

In reply to Dr Gannon's remarks, Anke Jensen thanked him for his remembrances and best wishes, and presented him with a gold-plated pen for his efforts on behalf of the grads.

Next, Stephen Donnan and Chris Laarhuis presented the "Last Will and Testament". This document had been prepared by Stephen Donnan, Chris Laarhuis, Carol Kallal, and Cathy Wood.

Mr Pollock, in his principal's remarks praised the graduands for their hard work in the past years which resulted in obtaining their diplomas.

During an intermission, "The Grand March," coached by Ron Taylor and led by Shauna Cargill and Leonard Kemar, took place.

A highlight of the evening was the [illegible] when Christy Watt and Blair Neufeld had been selected by their fellow classmates as "students of the year". These two students had been judged by their peers as having contributed the most to the "class of '83" during the past three years.

The list of 1983 graduands of Tofield School are David Barreich, Barbara Borton, Kim Brodie, David Brown, Shaune Cargill, Norma Chambers, Amanda Collins, Stephen Donnan, Brent Eglauer, Lorraine Erickson, Duncan Fairbrother, Jeff Fisher, Allan Flack, Michelle Flack, Agnes Gagne, Richard Gordon, Patrick Hallonquist, Cindy Hansen, David Huebert, Myron Hurlburt, Anke Jensen, Carol Kallal, Rick Kortzman, Christine Laarhuis, Clinton Laidlaw, Charlene Lauber, Deanna Malycio, Warren McKenzie, Allan Miskew, Ernest Nachtigal, Blair Neufeld, Sandra Nichol, Kelly Paull, Cheryl Peters, Sabina Popp, Kevin Ray, Elaine Reger, Cindy Rusk, Sheila Roth, Brian Sorken, Karen Spaniarski, Nico Van Der Kley, Calvin VanderLeest, Lorna Voltner, Christy Watt, Mary Lee Weski, David Williams, Trudy Williams, Cheryl Wittenberg and Cathy Wood.

Ryley district news

James McKay and Carol Jensen were united in marriage on Saturday in the Ryley United Church. Carol entered the church escorted by her father, Herman Jensen. She looked radiant in a lovely long white dress and beautiful bouquet of yellow carnations.

The bridesmaids were Carol Nekdanechy and Elaine Sherin from Alticane, Sask. The best men were James' brother Russel of B.C and Rick Bratrud. Rev. Dan Newell performed the ceremony and Inez Reil was the organist.

A supper was held in the Community Hall, prepared by Jame's mother, Mary McKay. Kevin Booth of New Sarepta was emcee.

Brother-in-law of groom, Randy Babin of Seattle, Wash. and friends from B.C. also attended the wedding.

The bride and groom left for a holiday to Victoria, B.C.

Eric and Linda Jensen of Prince Albert, Sask., visited with the folks over the weekend and attended the wedding of Eric's sister, Carol and James McKay.

The annual clean-up day at the Ryley Cemetery will be held on June 13 at 1 p.m.

Joe Ogrodnick has been a patient in the Tofield Hospital for a number of days.

Ida Nord passed away in an Edmonton hospital on Saturday afternoon. She had been in Ryley visiting friends on Monday and seemed well and had picked up her prize she won at Strelchuk's store on Saturday.

Visiting with Elmer Anderson in Tofield Hospital and Kathleen in Ryley were Henry and Laura Podruzny and boys of Camrose, grandson Colin Anderson, wife and family of Red Deer and other callers were nephew and niece of Kathleen's, Andy and Tammy.

Feeders Day is planned

"Double Muscling in Cattle" is the title of one of 10 research subjects that will be discussed at this year's Feeder's Day, scheduled to take place at the University of Alberta's ranch at Kinsella on June 17.

In this presentation, Dr. Roy Berg, who will become dean of the Faculty of Agriculture and Forestry in July of this year, will compare the meat yield and the carcass composition of double-muscled cattle with those of normal cattle. Double muscling is an inherited characteristic which produces animals that yield a great deal more red meat than normal cattle.

In his other presentation, Dr. Berg will update the performance results and the progress in selection that has been achieved with the two lines of beef cattle that have been developed at Kinsella by combining breeds into synthetic populations. Results will be compared with a control group.

Those who attend Feeder's Day will see these and the double-muscled cattle during a tour of the ranch.

Dr. Tarjei Tennessen's topic will be "The Behavior of Bulls - Is There Anything To Worry About?" Research carried out at the University of Alberta and elsewhere has shown that there are some advantages to raising bulls for beef as opposed to raising steers. And Dr. Tennessen will deal with such things as whether bulls show more aggressive and sexual behavior than steers; how they respond to handling and transportation; and the precautions that must be taken when marketing them.

Dr. Gary Mathison will talk about "Feed Additives and Growth Promotants for Beef Cattle". He will cover Ralgro, Synovex, Compudose, Rumen- [illegible].

Dr. M. Makarechian's presentation is entitled "Studies on Reproduction in Beef Cattle at Kinsella" He will outline the research that has been done to date on the reproduction of both male and female cattle. And he will present preliminary results on relationships that have been found to exist between scrotal circumference, libido score and the natural service fertility of bulls; the effect of mating systems on conception rates; and the effect that the presence of a teaser bull has on the reproductive performance of heifers bred to calve at two years of age.

Dr. [illegible] Christopherson's topic will be "Winter Shelter for Cattle". He will talk about the effect that winter weather has on the feed requirements of cattle and the benefits that can be expected from different types of shelter.

Dr. John Kennelly will discuss "Maximizing Profit from Milk Production". He will outline some of the important factors that are involved in maximizing the profitability of a dairy enterprise when a decrease in the demand for milk and milk products results in smaller quotas.

Dr. Willem Sauer's presentation, entitled "An Evaluation of Feedstuffs for Horses", will cover some aspects of the University of Alberta's recent studies on horse feeds. At the present time horse feed recommendations are usually based on extrapolated data that are designed for cattle, sheep and even pigs.

Dr. Robert Hudson's presentation is entitled "Wapiti (Elk) on Farms - Turning a [illegible]". He will trace the seasonal cycle of these animals, explore marketing opportunities and recommend practical range and management systems. The Alberta government is showing an interest in permitting commercial game ranching and farming, and the wapiti appears to be well suited to such an endeavour because of its productivity and the very high demand it enjoys.

Dr. Arthur Bailey will discuss "Brush Control on Rangelands - New Developments". He will review the progress that has been made in the development of new procedures, and he will emphasize the potential of prescribed burning for ranges and pasture lands in Alberta.

"Safe grad" held

Everything went as planned for the Tofield "safe-grad" program.

"It worked out quite well," said Christy Watt, graduation [illegible].

As part of the safe-grad program there was a service Saturday morning for the graduates and their parents. Watt said that a lot of parents and graduates attended the service.

After the graduation ceremonies and the graduation dance, students had a choice of either a dry party or a [illegible].

Funds for the parties was sponsored by AADAC for a safe-grad program. Tofield School received $500 cash from AADAC.

At the dry party, held in the Gospel Church gym, there was food and film for the people attending this party.

Both parties went all night followed by a breakfast in the morning, said Watt.

The Tofield graduation was one of nine sponsored by AADAC to promote a safe-grad program.

Triumphs lead league

Tofield Triumphs are in sole possession of first place in the Highway 14 Ladies Fastball League.

Tofield's lead is a slim one as they have only a two-point edge over the Viking entry.

Triumphs are unbeaten after nine games with eight wins and a tie. At the opposite end of the ladder, Holden has only a tie in nine outings and are still looking for their first win of the season.

Games yesterday (Wednesday) were played in Viking, Ryley, Tofield and Shaw and will be reported next week.

Monday's contests will see Ryley Blue-Jays at home to Holden, Spilstead hosts Tofield Triggers, Ryley Chickadees play in Viking and Sherwpoo-ettes play in Tofield against the Triumphs.

Games next Wednesday will see Triumphs at home to Chickadees, Holden will host the Triggers, Blue-Jays are hosting Spilstead and Sherwpoo-ettes will be at home to Viking.

It was reported last week that each team in the league would play an eight-game schedule.

The first page of the schedule was not forwarded to The Mercury, accounting for this mistake.

Each team will play fourteen games in the schedule which is slated to end on June 22nd with the top four teams then advancing to the playoffs.

Triumphs picked up two more wins last week when they trounced Blue-Jays 18-1 and then defeated Spilstead.

Viking also picked up two wins by outslugging Triggers 20-13 before earning a decision over Holden.

In other games played, Chickadees stopped Sherwpoo-ettes 20-12, Spilstead outslugged Holden 23-17 while Triggers beat Sherwpoo-ettes and Blue-Jays stopped the Chickadees.

Chicken wins

A Tofield chicken named Chance won his owners a trip to Las Vegas, plus $300 in spending money and saved himself from the stew pot in the CFCW annual chicken race.

Arden Delisle and Ed Portman called their Plymouth Rock rooster Chance because this was his last chance to make something of himself or go into the stew pot.

Chance won his first race Friday at 3 p.m. against five other chickens.

He won against three other chickens again Saturday morning to go on to the finals.

In the final race in the afternoon, Chance walked three-quarters of the way to the finish line, flew up on the track fence and walked the length of the fence to win the race.

Chance was later treated to champagne at the Alice Hotel by his owners.

His owners are planning to find a warm home for the winter for Chance so he can race again next year.

Couple are honoured

Francis and Violet Olsen celebrated their golden wedding anniversary in the Elks Hall in Stony Plain recently.

The guests were greeted by grandsons, Mark and David. Daughter-in-law Virginia was in charge of the guest book. All the arrangements were made by sons, Allan and Dwayne with help from their wives, Virginia and Lillian.

The traditional bride's table was centered with a three-tiered wedding cake baked and decorated by Claire St. Jean. Seated with the honored couple were Elmer Davis, best man of 50 years ago and wife, Gladys (who replaced the late Sybil Helmer), Garnet and Ella May Burnstad.

Garnet Burnstad, long-time friend of the family, was master of ceremonies for this occasion. He welcomed the 160 guests and introduced Rev. Ebertt who brought greetings from the United Church and said grace before a supper was served by ladies from his congregation.

Dave Frunchak brought greetings from all their friends at Andrew and mentioned the many awards that Francis had received while manager of the NADP creamery. In 1967, he won the championship award for the best butter in Canada, so this honor really put the little town on the map.

Kathleen Christie reminisced about the good old days and all the fun they had at the farm at Holden.

Carol Rurka spoke on behalf of the Olsen families.

Allan spoke on behalf of the family.

Elmer Davis introduced all members of their family. Then he proposed a toast to the honoured couple to which both responded.

Telegrams were received from Peter Lougheed; Lieutenant Governor F. Lynch Staunton; Prime Minister Trudeau; Right Honorable Joe Clark; M.P. Erik Nielsen; Gov. General Ed Shreyer; Mayor of Stony Plain, Herb Kotscherawski; and friends Peter and Rose Hucalak from Queensland, Australia and personal congratulations from M.L.A. William Purdy.

Dancing and visiting were followed by a midnight lunch.

The parents of Francis Olsen, the late Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Olsen, were pioneer farmers in the North Holden District, coming here in the very early 1900's, and farmed for many years until retiring owing to poor health and then [illegible]. Francis, after his marriage, was also employed for some years at the [illegible] NADP Creamery until being transferred.

One team undefeated

... in Powerline

Camrose has taken over sole possession of first place in the Powerline Baseball League.

The Camrose team has gone undefeated in seven straight games to take a slim lead over runner-up Armena.

When games were played on Tuesday evening, it marked the half-way point in the regular schedule which ends on June 28th.

Ryley holds down third place with Viking presently in possession of the final playoff berth, followed closely by Tofield with Holden, Round Hill and Bardo all tied in sixth place.

Games on Thursday will be played in Bardo, Holden, Viking and Armena.

Tuesday's contests will see Ryley at home to Bardo, Tofield will host Viking, Holden travels to Armena while Camrose is in Round Hill.

Games next Thursday (June 16) will see Tofield at home to Bardo, Ryley is hosting Round Hill, Holden travels to Camrose and Viking will be at home to Armena.

Camrose extended its unbeaten streak to seven games when they dumped Ryley 10-6 and whipped previously unbeaten Armena by a 16-2 count.

Camrose was the only team to pick up two wins in the past week as the best any other team could do was a split.

Armena remained in second place by doubling Tofield 16-8.

Ryley rebounded from its loss to Camrose to stop Holden 9-6 to retain possession of third place.

Viking held on to the final playoff berth by winning a 17-14 slugfest with Bardo.

Tofield picked up an important 4-3 decision over Viking and Bardo edged Round Hill 15-13 for its first win of the season.

A game between Holden and Round Hill had to be postponed when Round Hill was unable to field a team.

Between the Covers

On the new book table this week, you will find a biography of a lady much in the news today, Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher. Madam Prime Minister by Allan J. Mayer provides an interesting insight into this intelligent and determined woman.

Two novels, The Hanged Man by Douglas Scott, and The Dean's December by Saul Bellow, will appeal to fiction readers, as will a number of new paperbacks.

A book described as "A Future History" by General Sir John Hackett is entitled The Third World War; August 1985. This is described as an outstanding book, serious, readable and fascinating and is well illustrated with both photos and maps.

Another new and colerful book is one called A Year In The Life Of The Royal Family. A brief account of the activities of each member of the family is accompanied by numerous pictures, covering the period between June 1981 and August 1982, including the Royal Wedding, and the birth of the new Prince.

On the children's table, a set of four books about a young bear called Harriet, will provide read-aloud or read-alone pleasure for many. Children are sure to recognize their own feelings and experiences in such stories as Harriet's Recital, Harriet and Walt, Harriet's Hallowe'en, and Harriet and the Roller Coaster, all by Nancy Carlson.

For older readers, another book of Ronald Dahl joins the collection, The BFG. Many young readers enjoy this author's grisly sense of humour, and way with words, and the Library has a good selection of his works.

The Librarian will be away on holidays during the last two weeks of June, but the hours will remain the same, as Mrs. Joan Bell will be taking over as assistant during this time. Library hours are: Tuesday 1-5, Thursday 3-5 and 6-8, Friday and Saturday 10-12 and 1-5 except closed on statutory holidays. Watch for extended summer hours beginning July 5.

The Pleasure Horse Association will hold its regular monthly meeting on June 13th, at 8 p.m. in the hall.

The Ladies' Club will meet at Helen's, on June 16th, at 1 p.m. Included will be a discussion about a date change for future monthly meetings.

Also on June 16th at 8 p.m., the Community Association will meet at the hall, to discuss the details regarding the annual family picnic to be held in early August.

Because of the successful flea market, the Community Association is considering making it an annual event.

Back by popular request will be a second weekend of classes in this series, Bird Recognition, taught by Peter Demulder, on June 25th, from 9 a.m. - 4 p.m. and on June 26th, from 1-4 p.m. As registration is limited, please call Irene, 662-2848, as soon as possible.

Joyce Lindberg, this year's playschool leader, reports that its final function, a wiener roast, will be held on June 14th, at the hall.

Registration for fall playschool classes will take place in September on a "first come, first serve basis", however the future of the playschool will be in question if volunteer personnel, to share leadership duties are not found. Those interested, please call Joyce, 662-3486.

Volunteers are starting to assemble the outdoor playground; phase one being the construction of a large sandbox. The North Miquelon Recreational Association gave a $100 donation to the Playschool which will be used for further playground development.

VALERIE WALKER, 27 PASSES

Mrs. Don Campbell received word of the death of her niece Valerie Walker (nee Risvold), 27 years, at Parksville, B.C. Daughter of Irving and Alice Risvold of Parksville, B.C. She leaves to mourn her loss her husband Ray Walker and a one-year-old daughter Ashley, two sisters and one brother.

EDWIN ODIN AKER, 71, PASSES

Edwin (known as Ed) Aker was born at Bawlf May 13, 1912 to parents Mr. and Mrs. Ole Aker. He was baptized in the Lutheran Church and was a member of the Skudesness congregation.

In 1942 he enlisted in the Army. When he was discharged he returned to farming. He was a member of the Bawlf Legion No. 232 where he held a life membership. He was a member of the Camrose Masonic Lodge No. 37.

Ed passed away May 26 at St. Mary's Hospital at the age of 71 years.

He leaves to mourn his loss, three sisters, Mrs. Clara Dalen of Kindersley, Sask., Alice and Edna Aker, Bawlf; one nephew, Carl Dalen, Bawlf; one niece Evelyn Urichuk, Calgary; one aunt, Annie Aker; and one uncle, Hans Aker both of Camrose and many friends. Predeceased by his parents and two brothers, Joe in 1967 and Ray in 1981.

Funeral services were largely attended May 28 at Skudesness Church with Rev. Lee Woolery and Rev. A. Ingebergasson officiating. The Bawlf Legion performed at graveside, last post by Stuart Bailey of Camrose. The Skudesness Ladies sang a Camrose hymn.

Interment in the church family plot.

Honorary pallbearers were Chester Forre, Archie Brown, Sam Olsen, Allan Hilland, Victor Blades, Ingvald Bruce, Richard Vassberg and Joe Knudson.

Active pallbearers were Harold Hillaby, Robert Wilcox, Cliff Pepper, Clint Omoth, Martin Olsen and Orville McClure.

The Skudesness L.C.W. and the Bawlf Auxiliary Ladies served lunch in the Church basement following the interment. Refreshments were also served for the family, friends, relatives and pallbearers at the Aker's later. Burgar Funeral Home was in charge of all arrangements.

Pauline Pederson graduated as a dental assistant at N.A.I.T. Edmonton on Friday noon. In the class were 67 girls. Going up for the special occasion were her parents, Bent and Margaret Pederson and her Granny Alberta Bolding, Camrose.

The Forre's received word of the death of their cousin Mrs. Milton Hassel (nee Lou Forre) 70 years on May 29, at Edmonds, Wash. Funeral June 2 at Omaha, Nebr. She leaves her husband, two daughters Jane and Diane and four sisters and two brothers.

Harold and Irene Schacher spent the week at Bonnyville, a local caller from White Rock, B.C. was Olaf Bruce.

SPRAYER SENSE - GETTING THE MOST

While many farmers are winding up their seeding operations, others are finished and as the crops begin to emerge, thoughts turn toward weeds and spraying. With today's high cost of herbicides, maximum performance lies in the accuracy of application and sprayer calibration is the pre-requisite.

Three main areas affect the total output of a sprayer and these are pressure, nozzles and speed. Without going into all the details, I just want to mention a few items that sometimes receive very little attention

1) Pressure readings at the guage and at the last nozzle on the boom can be very different. There is usually a good reason for that difference.

2) Worn nozzles will put out more than they are designed to. Calibration cups, available from suppliers, D.A.'s or Ag Fieldmen can help to check those nozzles.

3) Improper boom height can cause either excessive drift or streaking in a field

4) Tractor speedometers are seldom an accurate measure of ground speed. Slippage and tire sizing can create quite a difference between the actual ground speed and what the speedometer shows.

These are but a few of the many factors that affect the accuracy of application and consequently herbicide performance. Your D.A. or Agricultural Fieldman can help you in calibrating your sprayer properly. All they require is a call from you.

Oh yes. One more point and a very important one. Many municipalities have set up pesticide container disposal sites. Please find out where they are and use them. Throwing these pails into ditches, ravines and duggouts is a total disrespect for the environment that feeds us. At a time when agricultural chemicals are under severe criticism, lets make sure that container disposal is not a reason for complaint by the critics.

Students win awards

by Ken Kroetsch

Two Tofield Christian-school students returned from Denton, Texas where they were in academic competition with other Accelerated Christian Education (ACE) students, said Ann Bennett, school administrator.

Susan Nelson and Cindy Ferguson were accompanied to Texas by Grace Bennett, an instructor at the school.

In Texas, Ferguson qualified as one of the top six, out of 200,000 students from all over Canada and the United States, for the Over 100 Paces Award. This is one of the highest awards given out by ACE, said Bennett.

Ferguson's academic average for the award was 96 per cent.

A pace is a package of ACE material. A student is required to do 60 of these a year. Ferguson completed 123 in the last year.

To qualify to go to Texas, students of ACE schools in Alberta, some from B.C., had to place in first or second place at the competition in Edmonton.

Nelson placed first in woodworking, second in dolls, second in pastels, second in pottery, third in baking and third in sketching at the competition in Edmonton.

The Christian-school is in its fourth year of operation in Tofield, said Bennett.

She said the school is a ministry of the Baptist Church, but is not a Baptist school.

Students from all religions are represented at the school. There are presently 20 students enrolled at the school at this time.

The school has academic studies from grade 1 to grade 12, teaching, along with the normal academic subjects, Christian character and Godly living.

The school has a very high academic standing, said Bennett.

A student must have an 80 per cent average to progress to the next grade.

She said that most students have grades in the mid-nineties.

The School receives no funds from the government, but relies on church funding and tuition to operate.

Children enrolled in the school are children whose parents who have heard about the school and have made applications to have their children attend.

The Alberta Junior Citizen of the Year Awards

As adults, we sometimes take for granted that young people will follow in our footsteps. But, when they exceed those expectations, it shouldn't go unrewarded

The Junior Citizen Awards are one way you can show your respect and appreciation. In the past 22 years more than 200 young Albertans and 25 groups have been honoured for leadership, outstanding achievement or for overcoming special challenges. They've all been very special people

If you'd like to say thanks to an exceptional youth in your community, someone between the ages of six and eighteen, clip the coupon and send it to the editor of this newspaper. Also you may nominate two or more youths in the group category

Athletes earn berths

. . . in provincials

Seventeen athletes from this area have earned the right to compete on the provincial high school track and field championships.

The championship meet will be staged in Calgary on Saturday.

The seventeen area competitors earned the right to go to Calgary when they finished high in the standings during the Northern Alberta regional competition which was held in Lloydminster on Saturday.

Bashaw will be sending six competitors while Camrose has four; New Norway has three, Holden will send two; and the others will come from Sedgewick and Forestburg.

Four of the competitors will be entered in two events. They are Don Talbot and Derrick Talbot of Bashaw, Denise Hagen of Sedgewick and Cheryl Salabuh of Camrose.

Lana Gibson of Willingdon is the only junior girl to advance to the provincials when she was second in the discus

In intermediate girls, Salabuh will compete in two events along with Hagen of Sedgewick while Doreen Hay and Barb Lofstrand of Bashaw will also compete

Salabuh will be entered in 200 and 400 metre runs (winner in 400 meter can't make the trip) while Hagen is also in the 200 and is on a relay team along with Lofstrand, and Hay is entered in the discus.

Debbie Stang of Camrose, Susan Loshny of Bashaw and Annette Lindholm of New Norway are members of the seniors girls' relay team

Todd Olsen and Chris Lindholm of New Norway will compete in junior boys' high jump; Barri Walsh of Camrose is in the javelin and Daniel Letendre of Bashaw is in the discus.

Michael Lutz of Holden is entered in the intermediate boys' 200 metre race while Len Sawatsky of Camrose is in the 1500 metre run.

Don Talbot of Bashaw will compete in the 200 and 400 metre races; Derrick Semchuk of Bashaw is entered in the long jump and triple jump; and Richie Kumar of Forestburg is entered in the triple jump.

First aid drill

Tofield Fire Department members and some hospital staff took part in a St. John's Ambulance course last week. John Bauman, course co-ordinator said that because of hazardous situations firemen find themselves in, that first aid is something every progressive Fire department should have Eight-five per cent of the Tofield Fire Department now have trained in first aid The majority of firemen have also received training CPR, said Bauman. —Photo by Kroetsch

Tourney set

The cry of "play ball" will ring often in Holden on Saturday.

Holden Blue-Jays are hosting their annual ball tournament on the Recreation Grounds.

To get everyone in the proper frame of mind, the village's business community will be serving a free breakfast at the Sports Grounds, beginning at 7:30 p.m.

Action in the tournament will commence at ten o'clock and continue all day until champions are declared.

A total of twelve teams will be involved in the day-long event, six in baseball and six will be playing football.

Fresh air usually whets one's appetite and the Holden and District Agricultural Society are prepared to remedy this problem.

A giant barbeque supper will be served in the Holden Complex, starting at five o'clock and going until 7:30 p.m.

To bring the day to a close, there will be a dance in the Complex.

Caterpillars heavy

Residents of both central and northern Alberta can look forward to another season of forest tent caterpillars, according to Dr. Ulf Soehngen who bases his prediction on a report released by the Northern Forest Research Institute of Environment Canada in Edmonton.

Dr. Soehngen is an entomologist with the Alberta Horticultural Research Centre in Brooks.

A survey of egg bands, carried out by the Northern Forest Research Institute last October, showed that there would be moderate to heavy infestations of tent caterpillars from Red Deer north to Fort McMurray and north of Peace River if hatching conditions were favorable and there was no unexpected increase in diseases or parasites.

However, Dr. Soehngen says that only 43 per cent of the locations sampled last fall are likely to experience severe defoliation compared to 68 last year. He feels that this decline in the number of severe infestations could also mean a decline in the overall problem.

For people who are wondering whether they should try to control forest tent caterpillars on individual trees in their yards or gardens, Dr. Soehngen says "Control measures are indicated if a tree 3 m or less in height contains one egg band or 'mat' of caterpillars.

Bigger trees of trees that have a trunk diameter of 7 cm or more, control measures should only be initiated if there are 7 or more egg bands per tree."

The following chemicals may be used.

"Carbaryl WP, Diazinon EC, "Malathion EC, " Registered for use on fruit trees.

People in heavily infested areas might consider pooling their resources and hiring an aerial applicator to spray the area because ground chemical applications are difficult when there are a number of trees involved.

Hearing set

Environment Council of Alberta public hearings which may have an important influence on the future uses of Alberta's agricultural lands will be held in Camrose on November 3rd.

A special "pre-hearing" information meeting is being held by the Environment Council in Camrose on Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Norsemen Motor Inn.

This meeting is intended to introduce the background information it has assembled, and to assist the public in its preparations for the public hearings. The film "Tomorrow's Bread" will be shown.

The government has asked the ECA to prepare a report on maintaining and expanding the agricultural land base in this province. The report is to be presented to the government sometime next year. Presentations from the public received by the ECA at these public hearings will be utilized in the writing of its final report.

The five-man panel for these hearings is chaired by Charles Stewart of Wainwright.

Playground planned

by Ian Knutson

A creative playground, called The Hideaway, for the children of Holden, will soon be a reality.

Excavation on the $15,000 playground will start on June 15, said Bobbie Schreiber, publicity chairman for the Creative Playground Committee.

Money for the project will come from two sources, said Schreiber.

The Village of Holden has approved one of the Government of Alberta Major Culture Recreation Grant in the amount of $7,500 to be used for the playground.

The Creative Playground Committee will be raising the other $7,500 through donations of cash, construction equipment, materials and volunteer help.

The Committee will be holding a fund-raising drive soon to ask community members, businesses, and service groups to participate or donate to the project, said Schreiber.

Hot dog sales at the Holden School has cleared $200, after expenses, to be donated to the playground.

Parents and committee members have donated their time for six of these hot dog sales.

The new playground will include a fire mountain, suspension bridge, slide unit, a triple swing, a monkey swing, a tire pyramid, a tire trail, hot hammock, hot-wet basin, hill tunnels and an amphitheatre.

The playground will be constructed at the northwest entrance to the Holden School.

This will make it possible for school children to make use of the equipment during school hours, said Schreiber.

Permission to build the playground at the Holden School has been given by the County of Beaver Board of Trustees, said Schreiber.

Schreiber said the new equipment will provide greater versatility for the children, which will be more creative and stimulating for the children.

The ongoing maintenance for the new playground will be taken care of by the Holden Kindergarten Association.

CAUTION WITH KEROSENE HEATERS
Following manufacturer's operating instructions in the letter is essential for safe operation of these heaters.
Laurie Weatherill, County Fire Chief, stresses three reasons for safe operation. First, make sure the unit you buy is ULC approved and carries the Underwriters Laboratory of Canada tests for flame emission, stability of the units and the effectiveness of the automatic shut off. Look for the ULC sticker before buying any heater.
Secondly, be sure it use fuel specifically intended for kerosene heaters. Don't assume the kerosene bought at a bulk dealers is safe to use. Often, the Type K kerosene needed is available in small quantities at a hardware. Using any other fuel could cause fumes, or even a fire.
The last thing to consider, for safe operation, is adequate ventilation. Because these heaters do not use fine vents or chimneys, an outdoor supply of fresh air must be available. Look for instructions on the size of fresh air opening needed for your unit.
Remember, a kerosene heater is an open flame. Never leave children unsupervised in a room with a kerosene heater operating.

Seniors start centre

by Ken Kroetsch

The official sod turning ceremonies for the new senior citizens' drop-in centre in Tofield took place on Monday.

On hand to turn over the first sod was Tofield Mayor, Dr. W.H. Freebury.

Also on hand for the ceremonies was Town Administrator, Neil Brodie and Legion President, Meeves Colman.

Master of Ceremonies for the occasion was Tofield Councillor, Leon Westerhill.

Members of the Tofield Golden Club executive and of the building committee were also on hand for the ceremony.

Freebury, saying a few words to those gathered, said that the town was pleased that the senior citizens were getting their own building.

Construction for the senior citizens drop-in centre started shortly after the ceremonies.

The construction has been tendered to AKU Construction.

Completion date for the estimated $71,573 project is September 15 of this year.

This is the initial contract cost, with some additional expenses for finishing.

Money for the project has come from different grants, that have either been received or promised.

The new senior citizens drop-in centre will include the old fire hall and a new section to be built on to the west side of the fire hall, extending toward the street.

The land and firehall will be leased from the Town of Tofield.

Holden tax rate set

by Ken Kroetsch

The 1983 mill rate for the Village of Holden was approved at council's monthly meeting last week.

The residential mill rate is set at 20.39, up from 18.45 last year. The increase is 1.94 mills, or 3.25 per cent.

The commercial mill rate is set at 21.62, up from 20.12 last year. The increase is 1.34 mills, or a 3.41 per cent.

The difference between the commercial mill rate and the residential mill rate is that the school foundation requisition isn't levied against residential property.

The increase in the mill rate was largely due to increases in equipment and requisitions, said Christine MacKay, Village of Holden Administrator.

In other council business, a motion was passed to

Mercury wins

The publication has been awarded a "Blue Ribbon" by the Canadian Community Newspaper Association.

Each year, members of the CCNA hold competitions for newspapers, with categories determined by circulation.

In its class, The Mercury finished among the top one-third of newspapers entered from all across the country and as a result, was awarded a blue ribbon.

The symbolic blue ribbon will be proudly displayed in the paper's masthead on the front page.

The category in which The Mercury was a contender was won by the Hay River (NWT) Hub with the runners-up being the Grande Cache Mountaineer and the Mayerthorpe Freelancer.

The Mercury, Grande Cache and Mayerthorpe were the only Alberta weeklies to be singled out for attention in this circulation category.

Cadets are inspected

Officers and Cadets of RCSCC Ken Peddemoore held their annual inspection in Holden recently.

Reviewing Officer was Lt. Cdr. Schofield, a member of the Primary Reserve of the Canadian Armed Forces with HMCS Nonsuch in Edmonton.

The Sea Cadet Corps based at Holden, is comprised of thirty-two boys and girls, aged 13 to 18, from Ryley and Holden and the surrounding areas.

As in past years, the Sea Cadet Band from RCSCC Cayuga in Wainwright was also in attendance, under the direction of Capt. W. Mitchell and Capt. G. Archibald.

The inspection party was comprised of Lt. Cdr. Schofield; Capt. L. Ketlen CPO Grimshaw; S. Lindorf, President, Northern Alberta Navy League; W. Williams, President, Ryley Legion; E. Golembeski, President, Holden/Ryley Navy League; and Capt. D. Cooper, Commanding Officer of the Corps.

Immediately following the inspection which took place at Holden School, the cadets paraded to the Community Hall where displays of various parts of the training program had been prepared.

A program of awards followed, during which cadets were honored and received promotions.

Receiving the Northern Alberta Navy League Award from Mr. Lindorf was CPO2 Ken Ludwig; Commanding Officer's Award for proficiency from Capt. D.S. Cooper was CPO2 Ken Peddemoore.

Best All Round Male Cadet was received by CPO2 Kim Kowalchuk; Best All Round Female Cadet was PO2 Marilyn Ludwig; Most Enthusiastic Male Cadet was L/C Patrick Tardif Jr., Most Enthusiastic Female Cadet was L/C Penny Golembeski; Best New Female Entry was awarded to A/C Annie Mendick.

Receiving their crossed rifles for range abilities were CPO2 Ken Peddemoore and CPO2 Ken Ludwig.

A special award, for willingness, sincerity and helpfulness was presented to A/C Douglas Mendick.

Promoted to PO1 were Donna Laing and Michelle Kowalchuk. Receiving promotions to PO2 were Barney Gora, Danny Strukel and Marilyn Ludwig.

Receiving Perfect Attendance Awards were CPO1 Michelle Kowalchuk, L/C Laurie Kowalchuk; PO2 Marilyn Ludwig, L/C Lawrence Gora, L/C Douglas Mendick, A/C Annie Mendick, A/C Troy Zewtiuk, L/C Irvin Albrecht and A/C Ron Golembeski.

A certificate of appreciation for services rendered was presented by O/Cdt. Pat Heaney of 241 Squadron in Mundare to CPO1 Ken Peddemoore for assisting with instruction of survival techniques.

Twenty cadets of all ranks were presented with certificates and crests for passing the Alberta Hunter Training and Conservation Course which had been instructed by CPO1 Ken Peddemoore, Ray Bullard and Les Kowalchuk.

Receiving promotions to Leading Cadet were Irvin Albrecht, Penny Chemiz, Carmen von Tetzbenzen, Laurie Kowalchuk, Patrick Tardif Jr. and Douglas Mendick.

Promoted to Able Cadet were Troy Zeniuk, Gloria Maloney, Annie Mendick, Kim Bignell, Vicky Wincelera, Lorie Haas, Fiance Lechner, Sherri Johnson, Todd Pitt, and Ron Golembeski.

Following the awards ceremony, lunch was served.

The Sea Cadets plan to take part in the Ryley Sports Day parade.

Selling wheat

Selling wheat is one thing. Being able to deliver it to the purchaser once sold seems to be another.

The Canadian Wheat Board can be congratulated on its announcing last Wednesday the sale of more than two million tonnes of Canadian wheat, most of it from the West, to China. Not only that, but the sale is to be for cash, and in Canadian dollars. Better terms could hardly be imagined.

The sale represents from fifty to sixty percent of one year's portion of a three year agreement between the two countries which started almost a year ago.

But Palliser Wheat Growers President Ron Simpson, among many others, points out that farmers may be at the mercy of a confrontation between West Coast grain workers and terminal operators. They seem to be only hours away from a strike, one which conceivably could go on for some time.

"Currently, it is Western grain farmers who lose when these confrontations arise," declares Simpson. "They should not bear the costs for losses which are not in their control . . . Our Board feels strongly (the Government) should assess third party liability damages upon the Terminal Operators and the . . . Union, should work stoppages occur."

Mr. Simpson's points seem to be well taken. Both Prime Minister Trudeau and Transport Minister Jean Luc Pepin are intent on expanding the capacity of the railways to carry the grains to port, a consortium of several major elevator interests, plus the Province of Alberta, is actively increasing handling and shipping facilities at Prince Rupert.

But the whole thing could come to nothing if it has to be funnelled through a tiny bottleneck, a dispute between workers and operators.

Mr. Simpson is by no means the only one who believes his statement" "(Farmers) cannot afford to be held for ransom every time there is a dispute at the West Coast. Our livelihood depends on smooth exports . . . both the workers and the the terminal operators know it."

He's right. Whether we solve the Crow problem this year is not so important as getting the right solution. Whether we double track the rails is not the only way to attack the problem. For instance, more use might be made of prairie labor by developing inland cleaning of grain, and developing automated terminals similar to the Roberts Bank Coal Terminal. There are other ways, too.

But solutions have to be found before these breakdowns ruin the Prairie farmers, and take a good deal of Eastern industry along with them. Many people are too young to remember that John L. Lewis lost the entire war for the coal miners half a century ago when his battle plan lost sight of reality. People switched to other fuels.

Times don't change.In exactly the same way, if the terminals can't be used for shipping grains, buyers and sellers will find ways to work around them. Western farmers, particularly, must be feeling that day can't come too soon.

Less prison, say pastors

Three United Church ministers involved in the Canadian justice system say people who commit crimes against property should not be put into prison, reports Joanne Fairhart-Healden in the June issue of The United Church Observer.

David McCord, Arch McCurdy and Mert Paterson agree that property offenders should be given alternative sentences such as community work or repayment. Paterson sees prisons as a "last resort to be used to protect society" from truly violent people like British Columbia mass murderer Clifford Olson.

Canadians over-estimate the number of violent crimes in our society says Fairhart-Healden. A Gallup poll showed that 73.9 per cent of respondents believed 30 to 100 per cent of crimes involves violence towards people. The actual figure is eight per cent. The rest are property crimes such as burglary or robbery.

The three ministers say there is a severe need for rehabilitation of people who have committed crimes; a few programs are already available.

In Kitchener, Ont., a project organized by Community Justice Initiatives holds face to face meetings with victims and offenders, usually involving property crimes, after the offender has been on trial and before sentence is finalized. Each has a say and they agree on a term of community service of repayment. Co-ordinator Norm Warren ways it's risky and time-consuming to bring together victim and offender "but it's exciting because you do see change."

A group from Northlea United Church, Toronto, give ongoing emotional support to ex-convicts. Such support, says McCurdy, can keep a person from returning to prison. Also in Toronto, Jake Friesen is part of a Quaker group that is working to abolish prisons. He says they want to establish caring communities that will work with offenders.

Dear Sir,

In case anyone happened to read the "Around the town" article in last week's Mercury, I would like to explain just why Ann, Cathy, Maureen and Karen walked to Ryley.

You chopped my submitted item so that it made no sense.

I don't know why you bothered to put it into print.

Their walk as a TOPS (Take Off Pounds Sensibly) group was made to emphasize the importance of exercise and physical fitness in their weight reduction program. The 19 kilometer hike burned off about 2000 calories.

Moral Imperative

Dear Sir:

I am pleased to see the premier's public condemnation of racism with particular reference to the odious Keegstra affair and hope that the measure to be taken will be of positive benefit to the education system of Alberta and to all citizens.

Unfortunately the lack of direct public response to Mr. Stiles is unacceptable. The so-called apology in the Legislature was cautious to a fault and we are left with the obvious inference that this Conservative government respective still holds view that are repugnant. I appreciate the fact that he is a democratically elected representative and that there is freedom of speech in this country but there is also, I believe a moral imperative to speak out and censure inflammatory views of this type which are offensive to so many citizens.

As long as he sits uncensured and without condemnation as a member of the government party I believe there is a moral stain on the government.

SAUDI'S BACK IN SADDLE BY END OF '84

Alberta Liberal Leader Nick Taylor in a speech to the Professional Group of Calgary predicted that "the world oil supply would be in balance by the end of this year and the Saudi's would be in full control of oil pricing before the end of 1984."

Taylor says this means that international oil prices should be around $40.00 per barrel by the end of 1984 compared to today's $28.00 and "will gently escalate at the inflation rate after $45.00."

The Alberta Liberal Leader claims the Alberta economy should have little trouble weathering the downturn in prices unless Lougheed panics and tries to move to world prices rather than "made in Canada prices".

"A stable 'made in Canada' price will attract and hold investment and will give us the steady growth we need to reach self-sufficiency. The real danger is that the Lougheed government will go back to their old policy of putting all their eggs in the petroproducts basket, ignoring agriculture and the high tech prime industries."

Rights of crooks have surpassed innocent

Ron Lott's notebook
in The Quesnel Cariboo Observer

Judge F.S. Perry, faced with evidence that some local citizens, whatever their ilk, were resorting to "frontier style" justice by exacting retribution when injured, without recourse to law, said that behavior will not be tolerated.

He is right, of course. The breakdown of law and order is the first sign of the deterioration in a society. The rot in the roots, if you will, of a way of life.

What is strange is that it should be left to the public to address the problem, rather than the justice system where the rot really begins.

Sending a man to prison for life, only to release him after seven or eight years is hardly evidence that the justice system is providing penalties proportionate with the crimes.

Nobody believes any more than a judge who sends a man to prison for life is seriously considering the possibility that the criminal will remain there more than a few short years.

What value is there in sentencing a man to a year in jail, then turning him back into society after eight months unchanged, untrained, undisciplined by the penal system and more often that not, unrepentant.

Penitentiaries were supposed to bring about penitence. That's how they got their names. The criminal, confined, restricted in social contact, given marginal diets and only a Bible for reading material, was supposed to repent his sins and emerge a changed man.

Now we have the federal government moving to close off the avenue to parole, heralded just a decade ago as the most progressive, forward-looking change ever brought to the system for the care and feeding of society's screw-ups.

It is past time that legislation making parole mandatory was dumped.

Rather than giving the jailed criminal an incentive to improve himself and his social skills, parole has become the property of the criminal and society can't deny him freedom, no matter how badly he had jerked the system around while incarcerated.

Burn down the jail, kill a guard, escape, take a hostage, beat other prisoners, rape them, maim them, murder them, it doesn't matter. Parole dates can be counted off the wall calendar with far more certainty than a farmer can count on spring weather.

Made aware that the justice system does not produce justice, the average Canadian is left with the uncomfortable feeling that killers, rapists, sexual deviates and robbers have been given a special licence to continue their depredations.

Somewhere in this permissive society a wrong turn has been taken. Prisoner and criminal have all their rights protected. What about the public?

That, in the mind of most Canadians, is where the breakdown of law and order has been most evident. In the justice system, lawyers are provided free gratis and for nothing to the criminal, while the victim has to pay for legal help.

Everything is done to protect the life and health of the criminal. He is flown home to visit his family, given compassionate leaves, work releases, weekend passes for recreation and relaxation, while his victims are still trying to pick up the shattered pieces of their lives.

So when one of our citizens sees a rapist, or a murderer, or a thief who has injured, demeaned and damaged someone close to them out on the street within weeks of sentencing, they are angered and given any provocation, incline ed to take the 'law' into their own hands.

Judge Perry is rightly concerned that ordinary people are turning to vigilante tactics, to frontier justice. He and others seated on the bench in the justice system had better examine their role in the matter.

Justice must not only be done, it must be seen to be done, a rather famous quote puts the case.

So when a grossly repugnant mass murderer and sexual deviate like Clifford Olson is flown home on pretext for a visit with is wife and child, after having milked the justice system for 90,000 bloody dollars, the parents and families of his victims are enraged.

His very presence in their community is a reminder to them that in a few years he will be out again among them. He has been paroled before. Under surveillance by the defenders of the law, Olson raped and murdered again and again.

When finally caught, did he pay for his crimes? No. Society paid.

Then this vicious, unprincipled pervert is flown back by private plane to safety in Ontario.

That kind of 'justice' brings out the vigilante.

In Quesnel two men walked into a home, brutally and viciously beat a man unconscious before the eyes of his seven-year-old son, then robbed the home. Is 18 months in jail justice?

Judge Perry thinks so. If others don't, what happens next?

Plans for the annual community picnic are nearing completion with Margaret Paterson as convenor. It takes place on Saturday with a potluck dinner at noon. Races and games will start soon after the meal is over. A refreshment booth will be on the grounds all afternoon at the local school where the event is held.

In the evening a western dance will be held at the hall.

Barbara Herricks had a visit from her cousin, Mary Jean Griffin of Los Angeles, California, for a week.

The Ladies Club [illegible] strawberry tea was attended by patrons from all over the country, as well as from Tofield and Edmonton. Jean and Bessie Ferguson welcomed each patron at the door. Margaret Paterson and Sarah Kleinschroth were in charge of the bake table. Barbara Herricks, with Marie Whitig, Sherry Whitig and Crystal Dahlrider as her helpers, looked after the tea tables.

Joyce Bowerman and Lil Leach took care of the kitchen duties. Gladys Beasley and Daily Roddick were in charge of the strawberry shortcake and Betty Williams took care of the raffle.

Verdun Sears was winner of the large cedar planter as first prize and Francis Ferguson of Edmonton was the hanging basket winner.

Proceeds from the raffle will go towards sending a handicapped child to camp Ile Ile Ile.

The June Ladies Club meeting was set back to June 28th.

Verdun and Olivine Sears returned from Mission, B.C. on Wednesday evening after being away a week. They visited with Verdun's brother, Jos Sears, who is not well.

Thorsen Ragler spent four days at Dalsnand with the Nugget Trailer Club, of which she is a member.

Parents of pupils of Ministik School will be happy to know their children will be able to take grade six there this next term. This is due to several pupils attending St. Luke's Catholic School at South Cooking Lake and the fact there will only be ten new pupils to start grade one.

Anorexia Nervosa

Anorexia nervosa is a disease only that is receiving a lot of attention in the present but has also been reported in the literature since at least the 19th Century. There is general agreement that prevalence has risen dramatically in Western Nations in the last twenty years and the incidence rate is now estimated to be as high as 1 : 200 females in the high risk group, that age being 15-18 years.

The group of symptoms traditionally considered specific to this disease includes: loss of appetite, constipation, loss of weight, increased activity, cessation of menstrual periods, lower pulse rate and indifference of the person to his own physical deterioration. Anorexia is much more common in females than males; 89% as to 11%. The age of onset is often about 13½, generally accepted as occuring between puberty and first half of the thirties but usually between 17 and 18.

It has been frequently noted that the onset of anorexia has followed a period of obesity or near obesity and dieting began as a response to this but continued uncontrolled well beyond its usefulness. Not only is weight loss in excess of what is necessary for good health but the person often develops a rigidly structured exercise program as well as to burn off calories. The anorexic patient has a distorted body image and often perceives his emaciated body as being fat!! A cardinal sign of danger is when dieting with the supposed intent of becoming more attractive and respect does not lead to better relationships but instead results in social withdrawal and personal isolation.

Anorexia nervosa varies from a single episode to a life long chronic condition.

It is a condition with severe physical ramifactions including death and affects the psychological well-being of the patient as well as the family members.

In a culture in which [illegible] diets and weight consciousness are so prevalent, it is easy to understand why teenage girls want to become or stay thin. It is harder for us to understand why some of these young woman become so emaciated that they may die.

Treatment current appears with family therapy and the outlook for anorexia is brightening. The use of family therapy supported by behavior therapy as needed, [illegible] treatment, knee and is practical on an outpatient basis.

Because of the need of family therapy and family support of this "closet" disease, an interest has been expressed to form a local support group in Camrose with professional support and advice. An information meeting will be held Thursday, March 24th at 7:30 p.m. at the Health Unit in the Conference Room. All interested people including professional and anorexia victims or families of anorexia are encouraged to attend this information meeting. For further information call 672-7586 or the Health Unit 672-3161.

Two races continue

With time running out, there are still two exciting races going in the Powerline Baseball League.

Three teams are battling it out for the pennant and the other five are engaged in a bitter fight for the final playoff berth.

Camrose is currently in sole possession of first place but, are only two points ahead of Ryley and Armena.

Tofield and Viking are deadlocked in fourth place and the final playoff position with both teams a mere two points ahead of Holden, Bardo and Round Hill.

The regular schedule is to be completed by the end of this month and will be followed by playoffs.

Although the fight really is for first and fourth places, only Bardo, Holden and Round Hill are not still in the running for first place as both Tofield and Viking still have an outside chance.

Games this evening (Thursday) will be played in Tofield, Ryley, Viking and Camrose.

Tuesday's contests will see Bardo at home to Armena, Holden will host Ryley, Tofield travels to Round Hill and Viking plays in Camrose.

One week from today (Thursday) will have Tofield at home to Camrose, Bardo will host Holden, Ryley goes over to Viking and Round Hill travels to Armena.

The biggest upset of the season took place last week when Bardo erupted for three runs in the bottom of the final inning to edge Camrose 7-6 for the latter's first loss of the season.

Camrose rebounded from that loss to wallop Round Hill 17-4 to regain sole possession of top spot.

Ryley moved up into a tie for second place when they decided Armena 10-5 and then stopped Bardo 9-5.

Tofield grabbed a share of the final playoff berth by outslugging Viking 14-10 after losing 9-1 to Holden.

In other games played, [illegible] Hill handed Viking 10-2 and Armena whipped Holden 7-5.

authorize the engineer to proceed with putting the construction of the new sewage lagoon to tender.

After all the tenders are in, council will decide who will be awarded the contract. After this, a declaration of tender will be sent to the Local Authorities Board for approval.

Construction date for the project hasn't been set.

In other business, it was moved that a public notice be placed in the paper informing village residents of the village's intent to put in curbs, gutters and sidewalks along 51 Avenue, between 48 Street and 50 Street.

The special assessment for this project is $1.85 per front foot.

Song Fest held

Choirs from Calgary, Coaldale, Didsbury, Rosemary and Edmonton joined the Tofield choir at an Alberta Mennonite Youth Organization (AMYO) Song Fest last Saturday and Sunday.

The two-day event was hosted by the Tofield Mennonite Church and held in the Tofield Arena, starting with a coffee house on Friday evening.

While the mass choir practiced on Saturday the Arena was open with a display of handicrafts and demonstrations of weaving, cake decorating and flower arranging.

The evening included a film of Mennonite history, and their migration from Russia. Also was a program of music and drama, concluding with a wiener roast.

The Sunday morning service was largely a singing worship with the theme "rejoice". In the afternoon, a large audience enjoyed the Mass Choir.

Men's league has race

There's an extremely tight race on for the lead in the Highway 14 Men's Fastball League.

Holden Merchants currently hold that position but, are only two points ahead of Holden Keggers and Lindbrook.

Only four points separate the top six teams in the standings which makes for two exciting races in that the pennant is at stake and there's a tight battle for the four playoff berths.

Not one of the ten teams have been eliminated from playoff contention with just over three weeks to go in the regular schedule although Ryley, Spilstead and Kinsella can no longer win the pennant.

Games yesterday (Wednesday) were played in Spilstead, Round Hill, Tofield, Bruce and Holden and will be reported next week.

Earlier in the season, it had been reported that Keggers had edged Merchants 3-2. that game had been protested by the Merchants and the final two innings are to be replayed when the teams meet on Friday.

Other games on Friday will see Revies at home to Tofield, Kinsella hosts Bruce, Spilstead is at home to Ryley and Lindbrook will host Round Hill.

Next Wednesday's games will see Kinsella at home to the Revies, Keggers host Bruce, Ryley will host the Merchants, Lindbrook will be at home to Spilstead and Tofield is hosting Round Hill.

The regular schedule is due to be completed on July 8th and will be followed by playoffs.

Missing results from earlier playing dates have now been received by The Mercury so that standings should now be up to date.

The league leading Merchants swamped Tofield 9-2 and then had their undefeated record snapped when they were shocked 4-2 by Bruce.

After being surprised 3-1 by Spilstead (first victory), Keggers rebounded to trounce Kinsella 14-2 to remain in pennant contention.

Lindbrook moved into a share of second place by picking up two wins when they edged Revies 5-3 before stopping Tofield 7-4.

After being doubled 8-4 by Bruce, Round Hill came back to post an easy 8-1 win over Ryley.

In the other two games that were played, Ryley outslugged Kinsella 19-9 while the Revies posted a 13-7 decision over Spilstead.

Holden and district news

by Mrs. Bill Taylor

Visitors last week with Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Carlson were her sister and husband, Meta and Tom Armstrong of Penticton, B.C. They had been attending the graduation of a granddaughter and then were planning on visiting with relatives in Edmonton, Sherwood Park and Southern Alberta before returning home.

Joe Grestyszyn has been a patient for several days in Tofield Hospital. Joe is now a resident in the Holden Senior Citizens Lodge.

Robert Tiedemann spent the weekend at his lake cottage.

Holden Cemetery clean-up day is being held Monday. If it should rain, it will be on the Wednesday. Please bring rakes, shears and other tools and your lunch. Coffee will be provided.

The annual reunion of the Burnstad family was held on June 5th at Elk Island Park when about sixty members gathered together for the annual event, from Camrose, Tofield, Holden, Ryley and Edmonton. From Holden were Mrs. Irene Olson and her family, Tom, Linda, Eric and Ryan Sabroid.

Mrs. Frances Hanson is a patient in Daysland Hospital and is not too well. On Saturday afternoon, her niece, Mrs. Ethel Brekstad and Melvin Fjellstrom visited her.

Mrs. Annie Komarnisky has been a patient for several days in Tofield Hospital.

Mrs. Olive Good has been spending a few days with her husband, Ernie, at Slave Lake.

Several members of Holden Lodge Order of the Royal Purple visited at the Senior Citizens Lodge last Tuesday afternoon. Children of the Holden Kindergarten were also there and entertained the residents with a short program of their action songs. The Royal Purple Ladies had also taken along a birthday cake for the June birthday celebrant, Mrs. Emily Leskoski, which was served with afternoon coffee and the children enjoyed cookies and juice.

Albert Johnson was visiting with Mrs. Frances Hanson on Sunday afternoon in Daysland Hospital, going along with Claire Anderson.

A number of residents of Holden and District took advantage of Farmers' Day holiday weekend to go to various lakes for some fishing.

Jerome Stefaniszyn is having a new house built on 51st Avenue, next to the Helfrich home.

On June 9th, the Holden L.C.W. held their regular monthly meeting with Mrs. Ethel Brekstad in charge of the Bible study, held before the business meeting. Mrs. Brekstad presided over the meeting. Mrs. Vernice Granlund read the worship meditation. The meeting closed and hostess Mrs. Kathleen Harum served a lunch

VILLAGE OF HOLDEN

PUBLIC NOTICE

INTENTION TO CONSTRUCT A LOCAL IMPROVEMENT

PURSUANT to the provisions of Section 157 of the Municipal Taxation Act, R.S.A., 1980, Public Notice is hereby given that the Council of the Village of Holden intends to undertake the construction of monolithic curb, gutter and sidewalk as a local improvement. The estimated cost of the aforementioned local improvement is $40,967.00, repayable over a period of twenty (20) years at a rate of interest not exceeding 25 per centum (25%) per annum and to charge.

(a) the lands abutting that portion of the street or place wherein the local improvement is made at a uniform rate of $1.61 cents per front foot of frontage over the said period of 20 years

All costs in excess of the aforementioned special assessment will be borne by the Village of Holden at large

The location of the proposed local improvement is as follows:

1. Properties to be assessed:—

On	From	To	Footage
(a) South side of 51 Avenue	50 Street	49 Street
Block 15	Lot 1-3 pt. 4		130 ft.
Block 15	Lots 20 to 26		350 ft.
			480 ft.

Town explains spending

by Sue Greatrex

Along with this year's tax notices, the Town of Tofield will be sending an insert showing how the tax dollars are spent in the area.

The insert "How your tax dollars are spent" was approved by council at its regular meeting last Monday.

The insert shows that less than 50 per cent of the tax dollars are controlled by the municipality. The exact amount is 48.3 per cent of all tax dollars collected.

"If your taxes are $1000, then the town has control over only $483," said Lyle Wack assistant administrator.

The other 51.7 per cent is controlled by the Provincial Planning - 1.1 per cent, County of Beaver No. 9 Board of Education - 33 per cent, Hospital Board - 1.5 per cent, Provincial School Foundation - 10.6 per cent, and the Beaver Foundation (senior citizens lodges) - 5.9 per cent.

The municipal portion of the taxes has increased by 6.2 per cent from last year, while the portion paid to other agencies has increased 17.6 per cent over last year.

This results in an average increase of 10 per cent, according to the insert.

The tax notices will be mailed out on July 4 and are due on or before September 2.

In other council business, four tenders were received with quotations for the proposed fire communication equipment.

A committee consisting of the Town of Tofield, the Town of Viking, the County of Beaver and their respective fire chiefs will meet later this week to decide the issue.

In other business, council accepted the resignation of town assistant administrator, Lyle Wack.

Wack has tendered his resignation for July 1. Wack will be leaving to fill the position of assistant administrator for the M.D. of Starland, 10 miles north of Drumheller.

No decision concerning the filling of the vacant position has been made at this time by council.

Playground work begins June 25th

Plans for the new creative playground at Holden School are progressing rapidly.

Construction day has been set for Saturday, June 25th, 9 a.m. The entire playground will be built on June 25th by teams of volunteer parents and interested persons.

Anyone who would like to take part in this community project may contact Charlie Mathews at 688-3753 or Carol [illegible].

New playground structures will include a tire mountain, suspension bridge, triple swing, tire pyramid, monkey swing, tire wall, tire hammock, culvert tunnels, hill play area and tunnels and an amphitheatre. The playground will be constructed at the northwest entrance to the school and open for use during and after school hours as well as weekend and holidays. Ongoing maintenance of the park will be undertaken by the Holden Kindergarten Association.

A major fund-raising drive is underway requesting community members, business and service groups to participate by donating cash, equipment, labor or [illegible].

The Village of Holden has approved use of the Provincial Major Recreation-Culture Grant of $7,500.00 to be used for construction. The committee must match the grant.

Fund raising undertaken by the committee, operating concessions for service groups and Hot Dog Days at the School, has netted $1,500. Anyone who would like to make a cash donation may do so by sending a cheque to: Holden Creative Playground Committee, c/o Box 310, Holden.

Original members

These Tofield grade nine students were original members of the class that started in Grade One. Last Wednesday the Tofield School had a salute to Grade Nine. See related story for names of the original students.

Interclub show held

by Ken Kroetsch

The grand champion from the 4-H interclub show in Ryley was a three-quarter Simmental named Red Eye.

The championship steer was entered by Kent Grinde of Holden.

Red Eye was also the highest gain animal for both the Ryley and Holden clubs, putting on 3.5 pounds a day. The calf started at 590 and finished at 1290 pounds.

Darren Bratrud of Ryley had reserve championship in the interclub show.

In the Holden club, in the steer class, Kent Grinde with Red Eye had the grand champion, while Kelly Ann Story had reserve champion.

In the Ryley steer class, Darren Bratrud had grand champion, while Charlotte Munkedal had reserve champion.

In the heifer class in Holden, Kelly Ann Story had grand champion, while Michael Lutz had reserve champion.

In the heifer class in Ryley, Shelly Bratrud had grand champion while Terrie Rosso had reserve champion.

At the banquet later that evening, awards were given out to the members of the two 4-H clubs.

For grooming and showmanship for the Holden club in the steer class, Lana Gibson; for showmanship in the steer class, Jodie Lutz; for grooming and showmanship in the heifer class, Kelly Ann Story.

In the Ryley club, Darren Bratrud was given first place for grooming and Scott Bratrud was given second place.

Shelly Bratrud was given first place for showmanship and Charlotte Munkedal was given second place.

Best gain for the Ryley club was a tie between Charlotte Munkedal and Keith Fletcher.

The consistency award was given to Patrick Henderson.

Both grooming and showmanship in the heifer class went to Shelly Bratrud.

An award for efficiency went to Charlotte Munkedal.

Ruth Munkedal was presented with a plaque in appreciation for doing the Ryley club's books.

Lyle Bratrud was presented with a plaque by the 4-H council for 15 years of work with 4-H.

Record books for Ryley will be judged later on and a prize awarded for the best book by the Royal Bank in Ryley

Medically Speaking

by Dr. Bob Young

"Your medicine, sir. Would you prefer to spend 19 cents or $35 a day for it?"

Not that you will have much say in the matter, if you are the patient, but the difference in cost can affect the hospital budget.

The figures quoted above are for equal doses of the same drug. The lower price applies if the drug is given tablet form, by mouth. If it is given intravenously, it costs 175 times as much.

Although the drug in question has few uses and is not a "best seller", a moderately large hospital spent over $20,000 on this drug alone in 1982.

Hospital pharmacies are increasingly reminding physicians about the costs of the drugs being used. Doctors in general are blissfully ignorant of the price of the medications they prescribe, especially in the hospital setting. This may be a good thing; treatment should not be compromised on the basis of cost, at least in most instances.

There are many cases in which alternative treatments are available which are equally effective and less expensive. There are also opportunities to change from intravenous to oral medication a day or two earlier, saving, in the above example, $35 per day.

Pharmacy departments in hospitals are performing a service when they keep the medical staff informed about drug costs. The decision to change or not rests with the physician, whose clinical judgement is the final arbiter.

Problems can arise if the choice of drugs stocked in hospital pharmacies lacks medical input. Most hospitals recognize this and assign the task to a therapeutics committee. The days of the definite "closed end" hospital drug formulary, revised only every few years, have passed. New drugs appear every few weeks and doctors must have prompt access to those that represent an advance in treatment.

Newness, and even a high price, does not guarantee that a drug is better than a cheap old standby. A balance must be struck and the bulletins provided to physicians in many hospitals help at this.

The ceremony recognized the original class members who had attended Tofield School from grade one as well as the other grade nine students.

Honor roll students were also recognized during the ceremony.

Making the honor roll were Jennifer Neville with a 90 per cent average; Arwood Eglesser with an 86 per cent average; Margy Kallal with an 83 per cent average; and Dianne Harper with an 80 per cent average.

Donovon Aubrey was given an award for perfect attendance.

The Lutheran Ladies' Award was given to Trudy Rude and Armand Eglesser.

Other classmates who joined the class at a later date are Willie Baker, John Bruce, Teresa Burtis, Kevin Clouston, Colleen Cummings, Preston Cunningham, Susan Danielson, Trudy Drader, Tracy Fedorak, Roxanne Hammer, Diane Harper, Dianne Larie, Kaydene Lepine, Michael Maurer, Jodie Melnychuk, Jennifer Neville, Gary Pinder, Susan Pinder, Andrea Rosin, Stephen Sutherland, Tammy Squaniroli, Tracy Thompson, Maureen Ulrich, Douglas Workentin and Michael Wren.

A last will and testament was presented by Andrea Rosin and Trudy Rude with help from other class members.

The president's report was given by Armand Eglesser.

Lettering on the certificates was done by G. Thomson.

After the ceremonies, a dance was held in the gymnasium for the students.

Ryley district news

by Lena Bell

Alice Glencross of Victoria, B.C. has been visiting in Tofield and Ryley with her friends.

Elmer Anderson was transferred from the Tofield Hospital to the University Hospital in Edmonton.

A lovely afternoon was spent at the Herman Jensen home, while the bride and groom, Carol and James McKay, opened their wedding gifts. Carol Nekirnewicky was in charge of the gift book and Joanne Knudson also helped with the gifts. A lunch was served to the guests.

Elida Heisler and daughter's of Viking visited in Ryley on Sunday.

Gerald and Lucie Owen and Keith and Roland Owen were district visitors on Sunday.

CORRECTION

Supper for James and Carol McKay wedding was prepared by the United Church Women and the beautiful wedding cake was decorated and made by Mary McKay.

Kevin Booth of New Sarepta, the emcee, introduced the bride and groom, bridesmaids, best men, mother Mary McKay, Clara Vergette, Carol's parents, Herman and Hilda Jensen, Edna Phillips of Cambridge, Maryland, Exra and Lena Hall.

The couple left for Victoria, B.C. on their honeymoon.

Funeral services was held in the Ryley Bethel Lutheran Church on June 8, for Ida Marie Nord of Ryley who passed away in the University Hospital in Edmonton on June 4, at 57 years. Ida was predeceased by her mother, Agnes, in 1982 and her father, Edgard in 1974.

She will be remembered by her sisters, Mrs. George (Audrey) Knudsen and Mrs. Joe (Doris) Ogrodnick of Ryley; brother, Morley Nord of Ottawa; as well as her nieces and nephews.

Rev. Tim Johnson officiated. Interment followed in Ryley Cemetery. Pallbearers were Rod, Jeff, Barry and Morley Knudsen, Bryce Matega and Len Brady. Tofield Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

Dear Editor:

I am deeply concerned about the stand that has been taken in the courts regarding Sunday commercialism.

I feel that, since this is a matter that affects almost every home in this country, the decision should NOT be left to one judge who could be very prejudiced! It should not even be left to just several people who also could be very prejudiced.

What this particular judge has not seemed to consider in the most recent instance is that those who are opposed to Sunday commercialism on a large scale are not against families who choose, as a family, to work Sunday.

What they do oppose, I feel, is the discrimination against people who do wish to maintain one uniform day a week in Canada as a "Family Day", a day set aside that is special and different from the usual hectic schedule of the work-a-day week, a day to rest, recoup and revamp, a day to be with and enjoy family and friends.

I feel that health authorities should be consulted regarding the need to maintain such a tradition.

Do we not require this in order to cut down on stress and strain?

I believe further that Family Councillors' advice should be sought.

Would not the deprivation of one day a week to be together contribute further to family breakdown?

You may think, "no one HAS to work Sunday". Perhaps not, but if Sunday becomes a day in which commercialized commercialism was allowed, many would be forced to work even against their wishes or less than job. (I realize that there will always be the necessity of some people working Sunday to cover emergencies but, this is still very much the minority).

While many of us are not against a multi-cultural society, this does not surely mean that we have to lose all our identity as a nation. If we lose Sunday as our one uniform day of rest we could also lose Christmas Day, Good Friday and Thanksgiving for the same reason as the judge based his decision on.

We can bend so far in trying to accommodate everyone that we have a situation like "The Miller, His Son and Their Donkey". (I trust some know that story).

If I were to take up residence in another country would I be right in expecting that country to change all its traditions to suit my particular religion? I feel that those who are using the excuse that Sunday closure discriminates against certain religions are not doing this as objectively as they could be by using it as an excuse to try to justify their Sunday commercialism. I would appreciate a return day of rest in another country where it was Sunday or not and I believe that those of religions who came to our country would for the most part, appreciate it here too as long as they were allowed as a family to work on Sunday if they chose. Our day of rest in Canada has become to be Sunday and it would be impossible to change that in mid stream with any uniformity, even if the people of this country wanted it.

I feel that the main hindrance in having Sunday closure maintained is that it is referred to as "The Lord's Day Act" by law when so many people do not consider it that anymore. (Even personally I do). I feel it should continue to be a special day of rest and relaxation, etc. as originally created, but under a different name.

I appeal to Canadian citizens who care about keeping Sunday as a special day with very limited commercialism to speak out and not stand by while our rights are taken away by inches. Write your MP or M.P., your Premier, Attorney General and the Prime Minister, also Consumer Affairs.

A good criteria to go by if you are in doubt as to your stand on unrestricted Sunday opening is "Would I want to have to work Sunday?" or "Would I want my spouse (girlfriend, boyfriend) to have to work Sunday?"

Put our energy management coaches on your team!

It's surprising how many of our customers could benefit from the more efficient management of the electrical energy they use.

Three recent energy use audits carried out by TransAlta Energy Management are typical examples.

The first one was for a proposed Recreational Complex. We found that a saving of as much as $2,350 a year could be achieved by substituting high pressure sodium lights for the original system.

In another facility, we discovered that use of a booster heater for flood water heating in the ice surface could save about $995 a season.

In yet a third audit, we found that an arena could save about $680 a year by utilizing waste heat from their compressor to melt ice shavings from the ice cleaning machine.

Maybe we could help you manage your energy use more economically. For information, call or write TransAlta Utilities Energy Management, Box 1900, Calgary, Alberta T2P 2M1. Phone 257-7794.

As part of your community, we're concerned about energy costs. By using energy wisely, there are benefits for us all.

Cargill names new reps

Cargill Nutrena Feeds has announced the appointments of David Gibson as dairy specialist and Brian Vercaigne as marketing representatives at Cargill Nutrena's Feed Mill in Camrose.

A graduate of the University of British Columbia, Gibson obtained a Bachelor of Science Degree in Agriculture in 1980, specializing in animal science.

His thesis work was directed towards dairy cattle nutrition, for which he received the Hoffman-La Roche Prize in Animal Nutrition.

Gibson joins Cargill from the Fraser Valley of British Columbia where he acquired extensive farming and feed industry experience in the dairy sector. He has also farmed in New Zealand and Denmark as part of an International Exchange program.

As a dairy specialist, Gibson will be working with dairy producers throughout the Camrose area and will reside in Camrose.

A native of Souris, Manitoba, Vercaigne graduated from Red River Community College with a marketing diploma.

He has extensive experience in crops, feedlots, and farrow-to-finish and feeder pig operations. Vercaigne has had eight years experience in both sales and production aspects of the feed industry. He managed his own feed business until this year.

As marketing representative, Mr. Vercaigne will be servicing the Red Deer, Lacombe, Ponoka and Wetaskiwin area and will live in Camrose.

CLC awaits naming of important Board

The degree status of Camrose Lutheran College now rests on the shoulders of thirteen, as yet unnamed, persons.

The thirteen people will make up a Private Colleges Accreditation Board.

One of the first duties of such a board will be to determine if CLC shall attain degree granting status and submit such a recommendation to the Minister of Advanced Education.

The Board will be led by a chairman who is to be appointed by the Minister.

Four members shall be academic staff members at provincial universities and they are to be nominated by the Universities Co-ordinating Council.

Another four members shall be academic staff members from private colleges that have affiliation with a university and are to be nominated by the chief executive officers of the private colleges.

The other four members of the thirteen-person board shall be from the general public.

Although he/she will not have any voting rights, all meetings of the Private Colleges Accreditation Board will be attended by an employee from the department administered by the Minister of Advanced Education.

All appointments will be for three-year terms and members are eligible to hold office for a second three-year term but after that, are not able to be reappointed.

One of the first duties that the Board must determine is to see if the course of studies leading to a degree has met with required standards and if so, will forward a recommendation to the Minister that degree-granting status be awarded.

The Board's duties will not end once CLC has acquired degree-granting status.

The Board will establish policies which will allow it to evaluate, on a periodic basis, programs of study at CLC to see to it that such programs retain the required standards and to review and approve the academic credentials of the teaching staff.

The Board will also inspect, at intervals, the facilities of the college and insure that the required financial support is available.

IDA MARIE NORD

Miss Ida Marie Nord, 57, was born at Ryley Sept. 4, 1925 and died suddenly at the University Hospital, Edmonton, June 4, 1983.

Ida was predeceased by her mother Agnes in 1982 and by her father Edgard, March, 1974.

She will be lovingly remembered by her two sisters Mrs. George (Audrey) Knudslien and Mrs. Joe (Darla) Ogrodnick, Ryley, her brother, Morley Nord of Ottawa and many nieces, nephews and friends.

Funeral services conducted June 8 at Ryley Beitbul Lutheran Church, with Rev. Tim Johnson of Viking officiating. Interment at family plot at Ryley Cemetery. Pallbearers were Rod, Jeff, Barry and Morley Knudslien, Bryce Matoga and Les Brady. Tofield Funeral Home Ltd. in charge of all arrangements.

The Ryley L.C.W. ladies served lunch following the interment.

Richard Friesen and Menno Kornelsen each had the talents the other needed. Together, with Menno's sales experience and Richard's technical background, they knew they could succeed making a new type of storage bin for wheat and fertilizers.

But, their partnership lacked one vital ingredient. The financial backing to get a company off the ground. Because neither Richard nor Menno had managed a business before, conventional lenders had to turn them down. That's where the Alberta Opportunity Company came in.

Today, after three years in business, Wheatland Bins in Lethbridge is thriving. With farmers across the Prairies in Canada and the U.S. buying their product, Richard and Menno are planning for the future.

If you have a sound business idea, but you're unable to obtain financing through regular sources, call or visit your nearest AOC office and ask for our brochure, Financing Alberta Business.

Your Questions - Our Answers

The D.A.'s office is a prime example of a "question-answer" facility. We receive a steady stream of questions from farmers, and hopefully provide a flow of answers. The inquiries are important. We can provide the information people need, and keep ourselves in tune with what the concerns are.

Since some questions are asked frequently, I thought there may be many people interested in the answers. Here are some recent questions.

A grain farmer is applying for a loan through the bank to purchase some equipment. The loans officer is asking for a cash flow statement. What expenses are included in this statement?

- The cash outflow statement includes: all cropping expenses (cost of fertilizer, chemical, seed, seed cleaning, hail and crop insurance), equipment repairs, maintenance, fuel, oil, vehicle insurance and license, any custom charges, hired labour, cash rent and taxes, utilities, building repairs and insurance, interest payments on operating loans, land taxes.

What assistance is available for digging wells and dugouts?

- The Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Administration (PFRA) provides technical and financial assistance to bonafide farmers. PFRA will pay up to one-third of the costs of installing a dugout or well which meets the specified requirements. Application can be made to PRA through our office or by calling directly to Vegreville, 632-2919.

How can I get rid of quackgrass (couch grass) in my garden, lawn and "who-knows-where-else"?!!

- As everyone knows quackgrass is a tough one. And sometimes there isn't a miracle answer. Depending on where it is and what type of cropping system you're following, the control or suppression can vary. If it's in a garden area that can be left to cultivation, continuous cultivation can suppress it. When the plants are two inches tall or less, work the patch. Continue working each time the plants reach that stage. Shredding the roots encourages new bud growth. Each time the plant is allowed to grow, it uses some of its food reserves. Eventually the plants will die.

Chemicals can also be used. However, the only chemicals that will control quackgrass also kill other plants. Roundup or Amitrol can be patch sprayed. Where quackgrass is growing among other plants, paint Roundup directly on the leaves. Treat the chemical with respect - wear gloves and avoid spilling. When a lawn is heavily infested with quackgrass, it is very difficult to recommend a control.

Is there anything I can treat my dugout with for algae? It's seeded with rainbow trout.

- Yes. Reglone can be used. Be sure to follow the directions carefully.

Metric! I need to know how much chemical I have in this "litre-jug" and at what rate can I do how many acres?!!

- We can try to do some quick conversions over the phone for you. But the best way to know what the sprayer holds and the rates you are applying is to convert and label your sprayer. Otherwise the conversion problems will creep up year after year.

Don't forget - Colin Simmons, solicitor with Alberta Agriculture, will be available to discuss your concerns about wills and estate planning. He will be in our office on June 29. Please call us, 663-3666, for an appointment.

Triumphs near flag

Tofield Triumphs need only one more victory to clinch the pennant in the Highway 14 Women's Fastball League.

The regular schedule ends next week and Viking would have to win all remaining contests while the Triumphs went winless in order for Viking to finish the regular schedule in first place.

Other decisions are rapidly being reached.

The winless Holden squad has been eliminated from playoff contention.

In addition to the Triumphs, Ryley Blue-Jays have clinched a playoff berth while Viking needs only one win to assure themselves of a spot in post-season play.

Tofield Triggers are the current holders of the final playoff berth but, Ryley Chickadees, Spilstead and Shawpoe-ettes are still in contention and actually, the Chickadees are still in the running for third place.

Games yesterday (Wednesday) were played in Tofield, Holden, Ryley and Shaw and will be reported next week.

Games on Monday evening will see Triumphs at home to Spilstead, Holden will host Viking, Shaw will host Triggers and the two Ryley teams will tangle.

Next Wednesday's final regularly scheduled evening will have Shawpoe-ettes hosting the Triumphs, Chickadees are at to home to Viking, Triggers will be hosting Spilstead and Holden is at home to the Blue-Jays.

Two postponed games have to be played between now and Wednesday.

Chickadees have to host Holden and play in Viking. Dates for those games were not available at presstime.

Semi-final action will begin on June 27th.

Triumphs extended their unbeaten streak to eleven games (ten wins and a tie) with two more wins last week when they whipped Viking 7-2 and then doubled Shawpoe-ettes 12-6.

Blue-Jays extended their unbeaten streak to three games after they edged the Triggers 8-7 and then outslugged Holden 13-10.

Chickadees swamped Spilstead 21-7 and then had a game in Viking postponed because of rain.

In the other two contests that were played, Shawpoe-ettes bombed Holden 31-17 and Triggers trounced Spilstead 28-12.

Horse club is active

Katchemut Creek Family Horse Club has had several activities over the past few weeks.

The first gymkhana of the season was held on Mother's Day.

During the weekend of the Sodbuster Rodeo held in Tofield we operated a concession table.

On June 3, a clean-up evening was held at Beaverhill Family Centre.

On June 11, several club members journeyed to North Cooking Lake to participate in Homecoming Day. There were 10 horses and three chariots. Our club received first prize for best horse entry and Jake Neufeld got second for his decorated ponies and cart.

North Cooking Lake Community League had invited the club to give pony rides and it was decided to donate our earnings to the North Cooking Lake Hall Building Fund.

On June 18, the club will be giving pony rides at Ryley Sports Day and any of the members wanting to, will be riding in the parade.

Senior citizens are reminded of the up-coming Seniors Day to be held at the Club Grounds on June 19 at 1:30 p.m. Any person over 55 is being treated to whatever they want from our concession booth. There will be some special novelty events. The chariots will also be running.

If there are any senior citizens needing transportation, please get in touch with one of the following people: Gerald Weder - 662-4014; Ward Norton - 662-3246 or Walter Krystal - 662-4026.

Students hired

by Ken Kreutach

Three students have been hired by Tofield Parks and Recreation for summer employment, and one more will be hired, through a Federal Student Employment Program Grant of $7,000, said Jackie Dumouchel, recreation director.

Sidney Geoglein, hired as project manager, will start work on June 20.

The other employees will start work prior to July 1 to get the grounds prepared for Tofield Sports Day, said Dumouchel.

Two of the employees will be primarily on parks maintenance, while the project manager and the other employee will be working in the playground programs.

There are two programs this year in the playground.

One is the pre-school program for the smaller children, and the regular program for older children.

There is no charge for the programs and there also is no registration, said Dumouchel.

The program is structured so children can come and take part in the activities at any time. The playground programs will start on July 5.

Other programs like swimming, roller skating, day camps, and soccer will require both registration and a fee.

A preview of what will be happening this summer in the playground programs will take place June 27, with a presentation by Outdoors Alberta Caravan.

T.G.H.A. Flashes

The Tofield Hospital Auxiliary is sponsoring Heritage Day in Tofield on August 1 at the Tofield Arenas.

This day is partially subsidized by a government grant as it is a community minded project.

The program is as follows: food and visual displays; working demonstrations; Heritage parade of fashions and variety entertainment.

The theme is, of course, heritage.

Therefore all displays, cooking, etc. will be centered around ethnic or heritage ideas.

There will be groups offering samples of ethnic food which may be purchased. This area will replace the concession booth on Heritage Day.

As well, there will be tables displaying crafts and items from a number of different ethnic origins. Several historical demonstrations will also be present.

The entertainment part of the program will feature a number of participants performing both ethnic music and dance with a touch of history.

There will be no admission to Heritage Day but donations for the sponsoring organization may be made.

The TGHA requires both ideas and help to set up a French food and display booth. Anyone interested may contact Rose Charter at 662-3615.

As well, anyone with ethnic or historical costumes which could be displayed or modelled in the fashion show may contact Dolores Roth. Any other ideas or suggestions contributing to Heritage Days may be left with any TGHA member.

Specifically: food displays - Rose Charters; displays and demonstrations - Yvonne McAllister; entertainment - Lacy Anderson; costumes - Dolores Roth.

The next TGHA meeting is on June 20 at 7:30 p.m. in the Tofield School Library.

Tennis courts open

by Ken Kreutach

After three years of work, Tofield's tennis courts are now workable, said Jackie Dumouchel, recreation director.

A sign has been posted on the inside of the tennis courts, located at the Tofield School, to inform those using the courts of the rules and regulations.

Dumouchel said since the courts have opened there has been some problems with people not following the rules and regulations.

She said these problems are dealt with as they arise.

"We will go and enforce it if we have to," she said.

One problem, said Dumouchel has been children using the tennis courts during adult time and refusing to leave when adults have shown up.

She said that if people continue to abuse the rules and regulations then the gates to the courts could be locked as an extreme measure.

During school hours, the school has priority over the courts.

From Monday to Friday, between 3:30-6 p.m. the youth have priority, while 6 p.m.-11 p.m., adults have priority.

All other hours, it is first-come first-serve.

Complaints of abuse on the courts can be forwarded to the Tofield Parks and Recreation by phoning 662-3269.

The Tofield tennis court is a joint co-operative of the Tofield Lions Club, The County of Beaver Board of Education and Tofield Parks and Recreation.

Tournament is planned

by Lee Kroetsch

The calibre of teams entered in the Ball Hockey Tournament, June 24-26 in the Tofield Arena, is high, said the coach of the hosting team, John Hayes.

Hayes said that four or five of the teams entered are some of the top contenders in Canada today.

He said that he had even been approached by some of the teams not entered and told that they weren't entered because of the high calibre of the entered teams.

There are seven teams entered in the tournament; Edmonton Nordiques, Edmonton Warriors, Edmonton Flyers, Edmonton North-West Rangers, Calgary Landscape Artist, Lethbridge Bullets and the Lethbridge Hill Hawks.

The favourite to win the tournament is the Edmonton Nordiques, said Hayes.

Hayes said they have won three times in the provincials, five times in divisions and three times in the nationals.

Last year, Edmonton represented Canada in international competition, said Hayes.

The Nordiques and the Rangers will start the tournament Friday evening at 7 p.m., followed by the Rangers and the Hill Hawks at 9 p.m.

Saturday morning at 10 a.m. the Bullets and Landscape Artists will play, followed by the Rangers and the Hill Hawks at noon.

Sunday the semi-finals will be held at 11 a.m. and at 1 p.m. with the finals to go at 6 p.m., said Hayes.

The tournament is split into two divisions, the first is a double knockout and the second is a round robin.

The two top teams in each division will play in the semi-finals.

Prize money for the winners of the tournament is $700 and prize money for second place is $300.

The tournament was brought to Tofield because it fits all the requirements, said Hayes.

It is close to the city, it is large enough to house the players, but is small enough that players won't get lost, said Hayes.

Ball Hockey has been played in Canada for the last 15 years. Hayes said it is basically the same as regular hockey with some technical differences.

One of the most obvious differences is that it is played with a ball instead of a puck. Another difference is that skates aren't used.

Hayes said there are some differences in the rules also.

The three-day tournament is hosted by the Flaming Ardvarks of Edmonton. Tickets for the event are available at the Recreation Office in the Tofield Town Office.

BETWEEN THE COVERS

I will be away on holidays from June 13 to July 4, but the Library will remain open for its usual hours, and there will continue to be new books set out each week.

This week, look for In the Footsteps of St. Paul, by W.E. Pax, a fascinating modern and historical travelogue of the Middle East and Mediterranean areas. Another travel book, This is Scotland, is an up-to-date pictorial presentation of that country.

The Servant's Hall by Merlin Waterson will appeal to biography readers and also history fanciers. It is a true-life account of the world "below stairs", in a Welsh country mansion; the lives of the servants over twenty-five decades. Enriched by numerous original photographs, this book should prove to be interesting reading.

On the children's table this week, three new picture books of Bible Stories are joined by a number of other new picture books. We Can't Sleep by James Stevenson will be popular as a fantastic bedtime or anytime story. Minibike Winners, and Karting Winners will appeal to youngsters interested in those sports. Machines On The Farm by Hope Marston is of interest to town and rural children alike.

A story without words, Moonlight, by Jan Ormerod, can be enjoyed by even the youngest reader. Look for these and others next time you visit your library. Remember you or your children are welcome to come in and read anytime the library is open, whether or not you wish to take out a membership. Preschoolers should be accompanied by a responsible older person.

Watch for Summer Hours beginning July 5: Tues., Wed., Fri., and Sat. 10-5, and Thurs., 3-9.

Tofield 4-H holds Day

The Tofield 4-H Beef Club Achievement Day was held on June 8th in the Arena.

Weigh-in of calves took place at 10 a.m., show and judging of calves took place at 12:30 p.m. with the sale beginning at 3 p.m. Judge for the day was Joe Kallal of Thorhill.

The steers were divided into two classes for the show.

In the lighter weight class, first place went to Candyce Ray with 2nd place going to Teresa Kleniak; in the heavier weight first place was won by Dale Brown and Penny Wood's steer took second.

These four steers then entered the ring for the championship class with Grand Championship steer honors going to Candyce Ray and Reserve Champion was won by Dale Brown.

Showmanship judge Keith Finseth selected three top showmen from each class. They were Candyce Ray, Angie Rude, Cathy Brown, Joe Brown, Daniel Brown and Dale Brown. These six people then competed for showmanship - Cathy Brown placed first, Daniel Brown was second and Angie Rude placed third.

The heifer show followed.

In the yearling heifer class, first place went to a Hereford heifer shown by Cathy Brown and second place went to Daniel Brown.

In the two year-old class Cathy Brown was first and Paul Laarhuis took second.

The four top placings then competed in the championship class with Cathy Brown winning and reserve honours went to Paul Laarhuis. Champion Herd was won by Cathy Brown.

Otto Streberg sold the steers and then the carcasses.

The banquet was held in the Legion Hall. Guest speaker for the evening was Don Kondrat.

The presentation of trophies and awards then took place.

The grand champion steer award sponsored by the Tofield Agricultural Society was presented to Candyce Ray.

The reserve champion trophy, the Mel Wood Memorial Award went to Dale Brown. The trophy for the best judge was won by Cathy Brown, this award is donated by Don Sharek, U.F.A. Tofield.

The best gain trophy which is sponsored by John Moore, was presented to Wally Rude. The best showmanship award, donated by the Weatherill family, was presented to Cathy Brown. The efficiency trophy sponsored by the Stan Veitner family went to Joe Brown.

A silver-plated tray for top placing in public speaking in the senior age group was presented to Cathy Brown on behalf of Unifarm. Lori Brown won the trophy for public speaking in the junior age group and this trophy was donated by the Co-op Store (Tofield).

Grand champion carcass trophy, sponsored by Tofield Meat processors, went to Dale Brown. The grand champion heifer trophy donated by the Bank of Montreal, was won by Cathy Brown, while the reserve champion heifer award, the Verlyn and Bob Moen Trophy, was presented to Paul Laarhuis. Cathy Brown had champion herd and was presented with a silver tray donated by HB Polled Herefords.

One award is still to be presented, that is the Helberg Family Memorial Trophy for the "best kept 4-H record book". This award will be presented at the "wind-up party" to be held on June 20th at the Don Wood farm.

Mrs. Grace Schacher was presented with a gift of appreciation for marking the record books during the year.

Angie Rude, who is the youngest member in the club, presented Don Wood with an engraved tray for all his work as club leader again this year.

A high-lite of the banquet was the presentation of a 20-year certificate to the club by Doug Bismert, Supervisor of Field Services for the 4-H Branch.

The Tofield 4-H Beef Club has been active for 40 years and is one of the oldest clubs in the province.

The three leaders of the club, Elmer Googlein, John Moore and present leader Don Wood were called on to accept the framed certificate. John Moore was also presented with a 20-year leadership pin.

John Moore, on behalf of the Alberta Hereford Association presented Hereford pins to the members who showed calves sired by a Hereford bull. Earl Rose presented Main-Anjou caps to members who showed Main-Anjou steers.

A weight guessing contest was held again this year at the show and ended in a tie between Oscar Epp and Ben Googlein.

Ewasiuk resigns

by Ken Kroetsch

County of Beaver councillor Eugene Ewasiuk of Division 5 tendered his resignation, effective June 30.

Ewasiuk said that he had resigned for personal reasons.

On June 21, Ewasiuk commenced work as manager of the Holden Lodge.

"I felt I probably had more to offer in the operation of the Lodge, so this is the reason I tendered my resignation," said Ewasiuk.

He went on to say that he felt he had more to offer the senior citizens in Holden.

Ewasiuk has served Division 5 in the County of Beaver for the last eight and one-half years.

With county elections due in October, Garth Bancroft, County of Beaver secretary-treasurer, said that he didn't think there would be a by-election, but said that this decision would be made by council at their next regular meeting.

Day rained out

by Ken Kroetsch

Most people were willing to give up the Ryley Sports Day for the much needed rain, said Doug Capogreco, sports day committee secretary.

One disappointment however, said Capogreco, was the rain spoiling the day for the children.

He said the committee had gone all out this year to make it an event for the entire family.

Events that went ahead as scheduled were geared more for the adults.

The pancake breakfast had a good turnout, with over 400 people being served. It was sponsored by Ryley Scouts.

A donation box set up at the breakfast netted $194 towards Ryley sports.

In the afternoon, there was a licensed event at the arena starring the band Country Roads. Hot dogs, hamburgers and beer were sold at the event.

A barbeque was held in the Community Hall.

A dance held Saturday night also had a good turnout, said Capogreco.

Another disappointment was the cancellation of the parade. Capogreco said a lot of time and talent had gone into putting the floats together for the parade.

Capogreco said that this is only the second time that the Ryley Sports Day has been rained out.

Exhausting

Ryley, Tofield and Holden Fire Departments responded to a fire at Randy Nees farm, one mile south of Ryley, last Thursday. A garbage barrel had started a grass fire which spread, burning three buildings to the ground. County Fire Chief Laurie Weatherill directed firefighters at the scene of the fire.

July 1 plans made

... for Tofield Sports Day

by Ken Kroetsch

The July 1 Sports Day in Tofield is one time when all community groups get together for a common goal, said Jackie Dumouchel, recreation director.

All proceeds from the event are donated for the benefit and improvement of the campgrounds, she said.

The Sports Day will feature a parade in the morning, with this theme for this year Canada Day. The skating club is in charge of the parade.

At one p.m. in the arena, prizes for the parade will be awarded.

Another attraction will be the ball games planned for the day.

There is a ladies' fastball tournament commencing at 10 a.m., the men's fastball tournament commences at 8:30 a.m., a baseball tournament begins at 10 a.m. and the minor ball games commencing at noon.

In the afternoon, there will be a presentation by the Tofield Dancing School and the Tofield Gym Club in the Arena, starting at 1:30 p.m.

Also in the afternoon will be a bingo, sponsored by the Legion, pony rides by the Ketchemut Riding Club, a gymkhana by the Beaverhill Lighthorse Club, a Farmer's Market and horseshoe pitching.

Also throughout the afternoon will be displays by the Tofield Historical Society at the Tofield Museum, by the Tofield Gun Club at the Gun Club Building and a display on further education in the Arts and Crafts room.

Prior to the Lion's barbeque, Gordon Kyle and his bagpipers will be performing.

Following this performance will be the Lion's pit barbeque, planned for 4:30 p.m. at the Arena.

The whole day will be wrapped up at 9 p.m. with a dance in the Arena. Refreshments will be available throughout the dance and a lunch will also be served.

There will be two entrances on to the Fairgrounds, one on the north side and one on the west. This is being managed by the Ag Society.

There will be concession booths run by the curling club, minor hockey, old timers hockey, Garden Club, Golden Club, 4-H Club and the Boy Scouts.

There will be two outdoor concessions and two indoor concessions, one in the curling rink and one in the Arena.

Presently, members of the Tofield Fairground Advisory Board are actively involved in preparing the fairgrounds for the July 1 Sports Day.

Brix wins

Katie Brix, a grade six student at Ryley School, had the winning entry in the cover contest for the 1983 Ryley Fair booklet.

Runners-up in the contest were Shelly Hemerd and Kent Rude.

Katies picture will be featured on the fair booklet which are now being distributed.

Those not having students at Ryley School may pick up a book at Ryley Variety, Ryley Foods, District Agriculturist's Office or Aspen Textiles in Tofield.

The fair is scheduled for August 11, in the Ryley Curling Rink and Community Hall.

Tournament set

by Ken Kroetsch

Laurie Beachamin, captain of the Winnipeg Jets and a former Edmonton Oiler, could be playing with the Edmonton Flyers ball hockey team in a tournament to be held this weekend in Tofield.

John Hayes, manager of the hosting team, the Flaming Aardvarks, said a lot of hockey players are involved in ball hockey during the summer season.

The tournament will start Friday evening at 7 p.m. with Deputy-Mayor Hans Christensen and Ag Society president Derrill Reil officiating in the opening ceremonies.

The opening games at 7:10 p.m. will be between the Edmonton Nordiques and the Edmonton Warriors.

The second game will be between the Edmonton Flyers and the Edmonton North-east Rangers.

The third game will be the Lethbridge Bullets against the Calgary Landscape Artist at 10 p.m., followed by the Edmonton Northwest Rangers against the Lethbridge Hills Hawks.

The semi-finals will start at 11 a.m. on Sunday followed by the second semi-final game at 1 p.m. The final game will go at 5 p.m.

Unofficial rankings for the tournament are:

1. Edmonton Nordiques
2. Lethbridge Hill Hawks
3. Edmonton Warriors
4. Calgary Landscape Artist
5. Edmonton Northwest Rangers
6. Lethbridge Bullets
7. Edmonton Flyers

Hayes said that he hoped the tournament would introduce the sport of ball hockey to Tofield and maybe motivate the town to put together a couple of teams to play in the Edmonton Ball Hockey League.

Interested parties in ball hockey can contact John Hayes at 662-3662.

Mercy killing

Euthanasia.

Mercy killing.

Crime? or charity? Kindness? Benevolence? Or malevolence?

Regardless of whether we're for or against the principle, few of us are neutral in this question. Few of us don't really care.

The subject, naturally, has been brought into sharp focus by the attention focussed on a recent mercy killing in an Edmonton hospital, wherein a doctor ordered a lethal injection for a sixteen hour old infant suffering severely with mental pain.

Nature herself has been doing the same sort of thing for centuries for, and to, infants ill-equipped to survive in this world. And we charitably call it Natural Selection. We don't blame Nature. But when the marvels of modern medicine bring such an infant to full term, and only then show how ill equipped it is to survive in our world, when the kindness of medical personnel step forward to assist the course of Nature, some of us at least are all too quick to jump forward and charge "Murder".

We can't accept that one and the same medical staff can be labelled the handmaidens of God on the one hand when things go the way we might want them to in the Operating Room, then turn and charge them with usurping the role of God when things follow a somewhat less happy path.

On the one end, probably, we're dealing with birth. On the other, we're dealing with the upper reaches of life, reaches where reason has ceased to exist, where it is improbable that excruciating pain can be relieved, where life can be continued only in the vegetable state, where comprehension, understanding, reasoning, as we know them, is no longer possible, and breathing, blood circulation, and the continuance of purely bodily functions are possible only because of life support systems.

Neither of these extremes can be considered human 'life'. Few of us would choose this kind of existence for ourselves, or for our loved ones. Few of us would argue that this kind of 'life' was ordained of God.

Few of us would want a return to the Middle Ages, when Nature's grotesqueries were thrust on an uncomprehending world, and suffered all the barbs, the misfortunes, the cruelties that could be inflicted by an unwelcoming and ununderstanding and intolerable world.

Certainly it can be argued that Jesus was persecuted by an intolerable world, an unwelcoming world, a misunderstanding world, and that these are therefore no worse off than He. But at least Jesus was normal, not misshapen, not suffering from all the other pains nd problems of deficient birth, so we're not talking about the same thing.

Nature herself has been working at this business for centuries. Modern medical people have commonly been understood to have faced as part of their routine some of the abnormalities, some of the horrors that mutations of genes can perpetrate, and to deal with them with the same kind of humanity, the same spirit of servitude so exemplified, so personified by Florence Nightingale. It seems utterly tragic that this same spirit of humanity, of sympathy for others, should be so severely tested, so severely critized and condemned, at precisely the same time we are tacitly accepting far broader approval for our own police forces to break the law, for lighter and still lighter penalties to be visited upon lawbreakers.

Insofar as we are concerned personally, we have maintained for half a century that true Christianity embraces euthanasia. We would shoot a dog or a horse to put it out of its misery. Why should we show less compassion when it comes to people? To insist on the continuance of suffering, it seems to us, is not based on the sacredness of life, but shows instead little but misguided insensibility and callousness.

The nineteenth week

Promising not to talk about the weather last week certainly didn't do anything to improve it. In fact, if anything it was even worse. Reckon this is as good a time as any to talk about Forestry Week and the weather.

Last week I heard lots of comments about "timing" and suggestions that the annual event should be postponed until weather conditions were more favorable (as if one had a crystal ball).

The original intent of Forestry Week was to have it coincide with the week designated as National Forestry Week. When the first full week of May seemed too uncertain, the local celebration was set back a week. Actually, out of the nine weeks to date, the last one was really the only one that could be considered a total wipe-out.

And at that, if it had been possible to hold some of the outdoor events in a building such as the arena, all would not have been lost. But that brings us to another story, and perhaps it would be better to concentrate on other matters.

When the idea of Forestry Week was first conceived, it was felt that it should accomplish several things a) It should be the first celebration of spring, to mark the end of a long winter b) It should be early enough so other summer events would not interfere and hopefully, seeding would not prevent farm families from participating c) The program would be designed in such a way that local residents would better appreciate the importance of the forest industry to economy and welfare of the community d) Include educational events for school students (poster contest, talks by foresters, films etc.).

One must admit that to a large extent these objectives had been met. In fact, so well that now the community must decide on several other facets of the celebration.

Since attendance and participation are essential to ensure the success of Forestry Week, several program items have now grown beyond original expectations. Other events need to be added to keep up the interest, but suddenly one is faced with a totally different concept. And therein lies the dilemma. Is it better to stay small and risk losing resident interest, or should one plan on growing and perhaps losing some of the original objectives.

Anticipating the need to expand the program several years ago, it was suggested a larger area with some permanent facilities was needed. Obviously those events that could only be held downtown, such as the sidewalk sale, parade, etc., would continue in the present location. However, new and expanded events could not be held in one block of Churchill.

Response to the proposition that plans be made for the development of a permanent site for Forestry Week, were immediate and vocal – "No Way!" People even refused to sponsor the walk-a-thon which would have started a fund towards that end. Suddenly there was opposition to the proposal, but without any alternatives being offered.

It has even been suggested that a permanent Forestry Week committee be set up, to ensure the continuity of planning from year to year. This idea too has failed to bring the sort of response one might expect.

Since most people feel the community should have one major event during the year, it might be well to give some thought to a program for National Forestry Week, and a second one called the Loggers Festival to be held at a later date and include such events as horse races, a gymkhana, pro crt races, expanded logging events, ball tournament, midway, etc.

Well no matter what the outcome, it will take some careful planning by all community organizations. That's the only way an event of this size can succeed, now and in the future.

And in closing, a hint for those of you who really want to save money on this year's summer vacation. It's rather easy. Buy $2,000 worth of traveller's checks – and don't go.

No tears, please, for public service

By W. Roger Worth

During a recession, a great many people suffer, yet some suffer more than others.

This time, public sector workers claim they are not being treated fairly, particularly since Ottawa and most provinces have placed restraints on their wages and, in some cases, denied civil servants the right to strike.

But is that the case? Are the nation's civil servants really being treated inequitably?

The first point to consider, perhaps, is the fact that there have been few layoffs in the public sector, even though hiring freezes are prevalent.

Nevertheless, with 1.6 millon Canadians seeking a job (any job), it seems obvious that the unemployed are suffering a great deal more than the civil servants who [illegible] regular pay cheque.

Then there's the matter of salary restraint. While Ottawa actively promotes its 6 and 5 percent program, the past president of the Treasury Board openly admits that for 40 percent of civil servants, restraint really means raises of 10 percent and 9 percent, certainly a far cry from the advertised 6 and 5 program.

Meanwhile, according to a survey questionnaire completed by 14,171 members of the Canadian Federation of Independent Business, two out of three smaller firms have been forced to postpone wage increases for their employees, or limit them to less than the 6 percent federal guideline.

What's more, about 30 percent of small business owner/managers have actually been forced to reduce their compensation, while another 30 percent couldn't afford any increase.

Stacked against the substantial increases awarded to public sector employees, it is even more difficult to understand why the civil servants are complaining.

Placing a moratorium on the right to strike of public sector employees, of course, hits at the very heart of the matter. Yet even the International Labour Organisation has agreed that the government's move was justified.

For years, civil servants have used the strike threat to win large salary increases, many times leading the private sector in wage settlements.

By closing down the postal system (and costing business more than $3-billion), for example, the postal unions have managed to win themselves salaries of $23,000 per year for jobs that require little training. What's more, one postal union leader says his members cannot be laid off, even though mail volume (and work) has plummeted.

On all counts, it is hard to support the civil servants' claim that they are bearing an unfair burden. As it stands, public sector workers are a lot better off than their private sector counterparts.

BRTA draws members

Membership fees in the Battle River Tourist Association have reached a record level.

When a monthly meeting was held last week in Chauvin, delegates were told that membership fees to date had reached $37,225 with committee chairman Arlen Adams crediting the joining of the County of Strathcona as a major boost.

However, Adams cautioned his listeners not to relax as the total membership was still down by about thirty members over last year (1982).

Delegates were told that a STEP grant amounting to $16,235 had been received and will be used to help staff information centers in Camrose, Wetaskiwin, Leduc, Viking and Sherwood Park.

Blaine Alexander of Camrose informed members that a new order for additional souvenirs had been placed because of the demand for the different items and he indicated that the reordered items should be available almost immediately.

Members gave their approval for the printing of 35,000 visitors' guides and were told that '84 lure brochures were being prepared.

In her monthly report, BRTA Manager Sylvia Clemens highlighted activities of the past month, singling out the fact that over 2,300 Edmonton area residents had toured the zone under the sponsorship of The Edmonton Journal.

Clemens also reported that final arrangements had been completed so that participants in the Universiade Games would be able to tour the zone while they were in Edmonton.

Special guests at the Chauvin meeting were Gillian Nish and Brent Ritchie of the Travel Industry Association of Alberta.

The next BRTA meeting is scheduled for Devon on July 21st.

Schedule nears end

With only two weeks left in the regular schedule, decisions are being reached in the Highway 14 Men's Fastball League.

Following last week's action, Kinsella, Ryley and Spilstead have officially been eliminated from playoff contention while Holden Revies are out of the running for first place.

Lindbrook continued its climb and moved into a tie for first place with Holden Merchants although the Merchants do have an advantage with two games in hand.

Tofield is only two points off the pace while Holden Keggers are four points away and Round Hill still has a chance for top spot.

Although they are in seventh place, Revies are still in the running for a playoff berth.

Games yesterday (Wednesday) were scheduled for Kinsella, Holden, Ryley, Lindbrook and Tofield and will be reported next week.

Tomorrow's (Friday) contests will be played in Spilstead, Round Hill, Holden and Bruce.

Games next Wednesday will see Tofield at home to Ryley, Bruce is hosting Spilstead, Lindbrook hosts Kinsella, Merchants are at home to Round Hill while the Keggers and Revies tangle in Holden.

Because of Canada Day being a holiday, there will not be any league games one week from tomorrow (Friday).

Merchants held their share of first place with an easy 9-3 win over Spilstead.

Lindbrook extended its winning streak to four game when they edged Keggers 5-3 and whipped Round Hill 13-1.

Bruce also made it four in a row by whipping Ryley 11-4 and then they blanked Kinsella 6-0.

Tofield outgunned Kinsella 10-6 before battling to a 6-6 draw with Revies.

In the only other game that was reported, Spilstead edged Ryley 6-5.

A game between the Revies and Round Hill was either postponed or, not reported to CFCW.

Keggers and Merchants were to have played on Friday but, this game was postponed as was two innings of a game that had to be replayed from a contest played back in May.

Holden and district news

by Mrs. G.H. Taylor

Holden Lodge Order of the Royal Purple held their regular meeting on June 14th with H.R.L. Mary Semotiuk in the chair. The Lodge was advised that P.D.D Lady Frances Overbo of Kinsella had been appointed as district deputy for the year 1983-84. A donation was made to the Holden Recreative Playground Committee. H.R.L. Semotiuk was appointed to attend the Supreme Convention at Red Deer as delegate O.O.R.P. meeting.

June 27th set at Decoration Day when Lodge members visit graves of departed sisters and brother Elks, placing bouquets of flowers on their graves. Lady Olga Mielnicka, who was absent at the installation meeting, was installed as Historian by P.H.R.L. Harvey H.R.L.

At the close of the meeting lunch was served with hostesses being Lady Ethel Brekstad and Lady Anne Scherger.

Lodge will now recess for the months of July and August.

Miss Teresa Lukawiecki, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albin Lukawiecki of Holden left for Quadra, on Vancouver Island. She will be employed there with the Cadet Corps until August 19th. She will be returning to the University of Alberta in the fall to continue with her second year of training in the Faculty of Arts where she is majoring in English, French and Drama.

Mr. and Mrs. Albin Lukawiecki have received word from their eldest daughter, Anona, that she has arrived safely in London, England. She is taking a working tour of the country and will be remaining there until September. She will, on her return home, resume her third year of studies in the Science Faculty at the University of Alberta with a major focus in the courses required in Pre-Medicine.

On June 18th, St. Gregory's C.W.L. hosted the Zone 3 Regional Conference. In attendance were ladies from Viking, Star, Fort Sask., Edmonton and Holden. Mass was celebrated by Father Keufler of Viking and the guest speaker was the Diocesan Historian, Mitzi Crowe. There were 51 ladies from all the different areas attending the conference.

Robert and Merle Taylor of Viking were Sunday afternoon visitors with his parents Mr. and Mrs. George Taylor, with Father's day greetings, also a phone call from their son Brian and family of St. Albert.

Pete Kowalczuk is a patient in Daysland Hospital. Mrs. Kowalczuk went there Tuesday for a check-up.

Mrs. Frances Hansen remains a patient in Daysland Hospital and her condition is not very good.

On the weekend of June 4th, Mrs. Anne Scherger and family were in Edmonton and attended the convocation exercises at the Jubilee Auditorium when her son, Bradly received his diploma from N.A.I.T., in Telecommunications.

A former Holden resident for many years, H. Beveridge passed away in hospital in Vancouver, B.C. on June 17th at the age of 76 years, after a short illness. He is survived by his wife, Winnifred; one daughter, Diane; and a son, Stephen. Mr. Beveridge was manager of the Royal Bank for a number of years taking part in community affairs. He was member and Past Master of Holden Masonic Lodge. He also resided in Holden for some years after retiring from the bank until he and Mrs. Beveridge left to make their home in Vancouver.

Marjorie and Ken Campbell of Leduc were visitors in Holden last Wednesday and were guests with Mae and Bruce Dodd.

Mrs. Lorraine Hazel Fredericks of Bruce passed away in Viking Hospital on Thursday at the age of 57 years. She had been a hospital patient for several weeks. The funeral was held on Monday from the Bruce Community Centre with Rev. Dan Newell officiating and interment was in the Bruce Cemetery. She is survived by her husband, Irven; one son; one daughter; and grandchildren. Pallbearers were Dennis Sandstrom, Grant Fredericks, Vern Pratt, Clifford Knudston, Bob Furlinger and Ken Heber.

Mrs. Beatrice Dinyak of Edmonton is spending a week visiting with her sister, Mrs. Ruby Benson and her brother, Melvin Hooper. They both attended the funeral service in Bruce for Mrs. Lorraine Fredericks.

Helen and Jim Zwiarschke have grandchildren visiting with them for the week, Wendy, Johnnie, Paul, children of David and Maureen Tiedemann of Edmonton. Maureen is attending a L.C.W. Missionary Convention in Toronto.

George Giebelhaus has been a patient for several days in Viking Hospital.

[illegible] TEEN LEADERSHIP

Approximately 250 guests from far and near attended the 75th anniversary of Wilhelmina Lutheran Church which was observed during the weekend. Activities commenced June 11 with a service conducted by Rev. Wessel. Bishop Sjoberg of Edmonton was the guest speaker. The first lesson, was given by Rev. R. Jacobson of Donalda and the second lesson by Rev. Swedberg of Ponoka. As former pastors of the church, both reminisced on the past. Rev. Vincent Erickson and Rev. Luther Erickson were also present.

The service was followed by fellowship and coffee. A former resident, John U. Erickson of Lethbridge, then showed slides giving the history of Wilhelmina Church and the pioneers of the area.

On Sunday morning Rev. Wenzel conducted the service including communion, with Rev. R. Kemppanen delivering the sermon. The Swedish Consul, Lars G. Fahlstrom also spoke.

Dinner was served out-doors to the multitude in attendance. Then time for visiting and picture taking before the next program at 3 p.m.

Ed Holdsworth was emcee for the informal afternoon program with Alver Person as the main guest speaker. A former vice-pastor, Herb Erickson also spoke briefly.

PART I

Your ideal vacation may be relaxing in a condominium in Hawaii, or in a resort in the Bahamas. Many people are turning to time-sharing agreements in order to arrange these holidays. In time-sharing, several people own or lease property, and share its use, cost, and maintenance.

Why do people want to spend their holidays at a particular place? Some people feel comfortable going to the same holiday spot every year. They enjoy seeing familiar faces and making long-term acquaintances. For these people time-sharing offers the perfect holiday arrangement.

Often, time-sharing is advertised as being a less expensive way to make holiday accommodation arrangements. However, this may not necessarily be true. You have to pay for the unit regardless of whether or not you use it every year. Property taxes and maintenance costs must be paid. Rising travel expenses must also be considered.

You may want to ask yourself the following questions before making a decision to purchase or lease a time-share unit.

- What kind of vacation do I want?
- Where do I want to spend my vacation?
- Can I take my vacation at the same time every year? Do I, in fact, want to take my vacation at the same time every year?
- How much money can I afford?

There are two types of time-sharing plans: ownership and nonownership. An ownership plan allows you to buy an interest in a property with other people. Another agreement sets out when you can use the property during the year. You are allowed to sell, rent, or bequeath the time-share unit. A non-ownership plan allows you to lease the property for a specified period over several years. The most common time allotments are fixed time, which means that you use the time-shared unit at the same time every year, and floating time, which means that your dates for using the unit may change from year to year. As in ownership plans, your time allocated for the unit may be sold, rented, or bequeathed.

There are many varieties of time-sharing agreements, so you should investigate carefully. Familiarize yourself with the type of time-sharing that you are considering.

Before entering into a time-sharing agreement, check fo the following information which the prospectus, developer, or complex's management should be able to provide.

1. Cost of a time shared unit. Are you saving money by time-sharing? Is time-sharing less expensive than regular rental? A good rule to follow for buying a time-sharing unit is that the cost of the unit should not be more than ten times the going rate for a comparable week(s) in a hotel. In right-to-use agreements, divide the sales price by the number of years of the agreement. Is the amount less than an equivalent rental accommodation?

2. Travelling expenses. How much will it cost to travel to your time-sharing accommodation? Will this expense increase in the future? You must consider this expense when calculating how much your time-sharing venture will cost.

3. By-laws. Study the by-laws of the time-sharing complex where you are planning to make your purchase. Can you abide by them?

4. Insurance. Make sure you receive and read a copy of the time-sharing complex's insurance policy. Find out what is covered. Is there an interruption clause that gives you compensation if damages such as those resulting from a fire prevent you from using the unit?

5. Management. What services does the management company for the complex supply? Will the complex be properly maintained in future years? Check the management service contract for services, term of management, the removal of management. Your lawyer may have to do this for you.

6. Maintenance costs and planning. Is there money put away in trust for emergencies such as buying a new furnace or repairing leaky pipes? How much are maintenance costs likely to increase to meet future needs? Ask your lawyer to check and inspect the time-sharing complex's budget.

7. Costs not included. Who pays for phones or utilities?

8. Cost sharing. This is very important if all the units have not been sold because it means that your share of the costs will increase. Also, check to find out who pays the building management, staff wages, and supplies.

9. Non-payment penalties. What happens if one of your neighbours is late with his payment? Do the other owners have to compensate?

10. Taxes. What taxes are you responsible for paying?

Next week we will be looking at buying Time Shared Units that are out of the Province of Alberta.

Medically Speaking

by Dr. Bob Young

The little nubbin of cauliflower that you might serve yourself at a salad bar would, if it was pink or red in color, closely resemble a tumour of the bladder. Cancers of the bladder may range in size from those invisible to the naked eye to massive growths that leave little room for urine.

The majority are fairly small when symptoms lead to their discovery.

The usual symptom is blood in the urine. If there has been no injury and if the urine is not infected (both of which may cause bleeding), a tumour of the urinary tract is highly likely, and most of these occur in the bladder.

Early malignant change in the bladder, often in several areas and consisting of much smaller growths, may cause bladder irritability and discomfort before bleeding occurs.

The incidence of bladder tumours appears to be increasing. The urine is responsible for removing a large number of foreign materials from our bodies and it is felt that bathing the bladder walls with an ever-increasing number of toxic substances is a factor in the increase.

Saccharine, you may recall, is one of the suspect materials, although it may perhaps cause problems only in bladders that have previously been damaged by other chemicals.

Most bladder tumours are found using a cystoscope, an instrument that allows the inside of the bladder to be examined. Small growths may shed cells into the urine. These can be concentrated and be identified as cancer by using a microscope.

The run-of-the-mill tumours are burned off using an operating cystoscope. New ones tend to appear, and re-examination is generally required every few months for life.

The very large growths may require extensive open surgery, including removal of the bladder. Surprisingly the very small growths, because they may be numerous and tend to spread, usually require major surgery also.

The majority of patients do well if an early diagnosis is made. Today's lesson – do not ignore either blood in the urine or an irritable bladder.

Medically Speaking is published with the cooperation of this newspaper and the Alberta Medical Association.

Mrs. Louise Lukowecki of Holden has earned a major award from the U of A valued at $3,500 for each semester she attends the university. She is taking her Masters Degree in Reading.

Ryley Pool news

Most of the pool's spring programs will be ending this week.

Summer schedules may be picked up from the pool.

A brief look at what we're offering for the summer months.

Red Cross lessons begin July 4th, we will be holding four sets of lessons during the summer, each set will have ten lessons and will run Monday through Friday for two week periods. All Red Cross Color level lessons will be held in the morning.

Moms and tots will begin July 4, they will be held on Mondays and Wednesday at 11:30 a.m.

Fun for Fives begin July 4th held also on Mondays and Wednesdays at 12:15. There will be one set of lessons in each month, with eight lessons in each set.

Adult lessons begin July 5, we will be holding a morning class and an evening class, providing we have enough registration to do so. Adult lessons will be on Tuesday and Thursday.

We will begin our Bronze Medallion life saving course on July 5-28. Classes, Tuesday and Fridays from 7 a.m. to 9 a.m.

For more information about these courses or registration, contact the pool 663-3[illegible].

Recreation swimming will remain pretty well the same, a few changes and a new Friday afternoon Fun Swim from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m.

There are still some spaces left in our summer schedule, if you have a program suggestion, and we can get enough people interested, we'll certainly be willing to try it out.

For people planning summer get-togethers, keep in mind that the pool can be rented for very reasonable rates, book early for summer parties.

Awards presented

On June 11th in the Ryley Legion Hall, Bob Westmacott was presented with a past president's medal.

Walter Stenrude and Earnest Brown were given bars for past presidents.

Patricia Jeffery and Clara Vergette were presented with past president's pins.

A check was presented to the Legion President, Walter Williams, by the Ladies Auxiliary President, Mildred Stenrude for the amount of $2,000 to be used towards the recent cost of renovating the Ryley Legion.

Tammy Booth and Sheena Ogonoski were presented with awards for winning at Zone competition in the Legion's Remembrance Day contest.

Ken Fiddlersmy related his travels to the Terry Fox Institute in Ottawa. He was sponsored by the Ryley Legion. An award he had received on the trip was presented by him to the Legion President, Walter Williams.

Legion President Walter Williams presented Doug Capogreco with a cheque for junior sports for the amount of $[illegible].

Marlene [illegible] was presented with a cheque for $[illegible] for the Sea Cadets.

Last games are set

The schedule in the Powerline Baseball League is over at the end of this month and major decisions are still to be reached.

Viking, Bardo, Tofield, Holden and Round Hill can't finish in first place.

Camrose continues to hold down top spot but, are only two points ahead of Ryley and four points ahead of Armena.

Camrose and Ryley are the only teams to have clinched playoff berths although Armena is only one win away from advancing to semi-final play.

Viking is currently holding down the final playoff berth but, is only two points ahead of Bardo and Tofield and four points ahead of Holden and Round Hill.

All of Monday's scheduled games were postponed because of rain or wet grounds. No dates had been set for these contests, at presstime.

Games this evening (Thursday) are being played in Tofield, Bardo, Viking and Armena.

Tuesday's contests will see Ryley at home to Camrose, Holden is hosting Viking, Tofield plays in Armena and Bardo travels to Round Hill.

The final evening in the regular schedule goes next Thursday and will see Tofield at home to Ryley while Holden goes to Round Hill, Bardo is in Viking and Camrose is at home to Armena.

Camrose remained in first place with a 9-5 triumph over Holden.

Ryley blasted Round Hill 16-2 to remain in pennant contention.

Bardo jumped into an early lead and held on for a 7-4 victory over Tofield and in the other match that was played, Viking edged Armena 5-3.

In the recently held tournament in Bardo, Camrose emerged with top honours when they stopped Armena in the finals.

Partners on the Prairie

Richard Friesen and Menno Kornelsen each had the talents the other needed. Together, with Menno's sales experience and Richard's technical background, they knew they could succeed making a new type of storage bin for wheat and fertilizers.

But, their partnership lacked one vital ingredient. The financial backing to get a company off the ground. Because neither Richard nor Menno had managed a business before, conventional lenders had to turn them down. That's where the Alberta Opportunity Company came in.

Today, after three years in business, Wheatland Bins in Lethbridge is thriving. With farmers across the Prairies in Canada and the U.S. buying their product, Richard and Menno are planning for the future.

If you have a sound business idea, but you're unable to obtain financing through regular sources, call or visit your nearest AOC office and ask for our brochure, Financing Alberta Business.

Winners

Michael Lutz and Lana Gibson of Holden were two of three students to qualify to go to the Provincial track meet in Calgary. Michael won two 3rd place medals, one in the 20 metre and one in the 4x100 relay. The other student was from Viking. The students were escorted to the track meet by Holden principal Oleh Skykora.

Major clinic planned

...for hockey coaches

Some of the better coaches in hockey will be coming to Camrose near the end of August.

Camrose Lutheran College (CLC) will be conducting a three-day clinic for minor hockey coaches, starting on August 26.

Clinic co-ordinator Mike Johnston has released the names of most of the coaches who will be teaching at the clinic.

Two of the coaches are presently employed in the National Hockey League.

Bob Johnson, head coach of the Calgary Flames and Pierre Page, who holds a similar position with Colorado Rockies, have agreed to attend.

One of the top university coaches in Canada is Clare Drake of the U of A Golden Bears. He will be an instructor.

Former Quebec Nordique Bob Fitchner, who is presently an assistant coach with the Brandon University Bobcats, has also agreed to attend.

Dale Henwood is the goaltending coach with the 1984 Canadian Olympic team and who is the technical director with the AAHA is coming and will be joined by another coach from the Olympic team.

Other coaches who will be acting as teachers are Ken hitchcock, a coach in Sherwood park, Bob Robson of Prince Albert, Al Lymer; and Bill Steen of Camrose.

It is expected that several other coaches with professional experience will be named in the near future.

The clinic is open to any minor hockey coach in Alberta although CLC officials are hoping for a good response from the Camrose and surrounding area.

Lectures will be delivered on the psychology of coaching, training techniques, skill development and practice planning. In addition to the lectures, there will be on-ice seasons and activity groups.

Registration for the three-day clinic will be limited to 60 participants on a first-come first-serve basis and it is expected that the registration will be about $90.

Even with a full turnout of participants, CLC is not planning on making any money from the clinic as the registration fees will just cover the expenses.

Interested persons are invited to call Mike Johnson at 672-6604 or 679-1164 or, write to him at CLC, Camrose, T4V 2R3.

Quilt show set

by Ken Kreutsch

All money collected from the Quilt Show on Saturday will be donated to the Senior Citizens Drop-in Centre, said Margaret Lammerts, quilt committee member.

The Quilt Show will be held this Saturday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. in the Legion Hall.

Handmade quilts from in and around the area will be on display.

There will also be a 20-minute film shown during the day entitled "Quilts in Women's lives".

A door prize, a quilted box and matching frame, will be drawn for at the end of the day.

All quilts on display will be numbered so viewers can pick their favorite quilt so that a prize can be given for the best quilt of the show at the end of the day.

T.G.H.A. Flashes

The regular monthly meeting of the T.H.A was held this past Monday.

It was decided that there would be no general meetings during the months of July and August (vacation months). The next regular meeting, therefore will be the third Monday evening of September.

The volunteer of the month for June was Melita Wall for her numerous hospital visitations. This area of the T.H.A. seems, at times, overshadowed by the fund-raising efforts, but it is more the "silent" project of the T.H.A. Due to the confined facilities of the current Tofield Hospital, active patient involvement is very limited. Once the new Health Care Centre opens, more opportunities will arise. Of course, this requires funds.

This month's surprise package was won by Pat Litwin. The June tray favours were done by County Carpet Cleaners. Father's Day favours were created by Jane Good and Gladys Severson.

The craft committee is now in need of bits of crochet cotton and acylic yarns as well as plastic pill bottles.

The Heritage Day program is underway as numerous committees of T.H.A. members plan and arrange for this special day, August 1. Any suggestions or help may be made to any T.H.A. members.

Hay Lakes district news

by Mrs. A. Amstea

SAINTS PETER AND PAUL DAY

Sts. Peter and Paul Roman Catholic Church of Hay Lakes will be celebrating mass at 11 a.m. on June 26 with a family barbecue to follow. A special invitation is extended to all Catholics in the area. Each family is being asked to bring certain items for the picnic. Those planning to attend, please contact Maureen Yakimchuk (878-3881) or Greg Pelz (672-7247) for further details.

The Hay Lakes Blue Knights Fastball Club is holding an eight team men's fastball tournament on July 2-3, commencing at 9 a.m. Concession booths will be in operation both days and a dance held on Saturday evening.

Leslie and Brenda Groeller and daughters of Strathmore were weekend guests at the home of Leslie's parents, John and Mary Groeller. They were here to attend the wedding of Brian Berkholtz and Dominique Kaser which was held in Our Savior Church on June 18.

Andrew Adam Michael Mann, infant son of Michael and Suzanne Mann of Sherwood Park was baptized during the morning service held at St. Joseph's Lutheran Church on June 19. Pastor Michael Bergman officiated. Mrs. Clara Fisher and her son Brian were the sponsors. Following the service a dinner was held at the Mann home. Guests included Andrew's maternal grandparents, Johnnie and Helen Sware, Clara Fisher and sons Brian and Donald, Peter and Myrna Sware and family.

Mrs. Elsie Lager is now at home following an extended stay as a patient at St. Mary's Hospital in Camrose and the Royal Alexandra Hospital in Edmonton.

Mrs. Agda Miller is presently a patient at the University Hospital in Edmonton.

Mrs. Elsie Zacht has returned home following surgery at St. Mary's Hospital in Camrose.

Sophie Fameiak and Zenon and Helen Gecien motored to Tisdale, Sask., where they attended the funeral of their brother, Martin Hamula. Martin passed away on June 7 following a short illness. The funeral was held on June 10.

Asbjorn Stetten of Terrence, B.C. was a weekend guest at the Ola Sandbu home prior to leaving for a two-month holiday in Norway.

Alan Welda of Czar was a weekend guest at the home of his parents, Don and Helen Welda. While here he attended the 75th anniversary of St. Joeseph congregation and assisted Pastor Bergman with the Communion Service.

ST. JOSEPH'S 75TH ANNIVERSARY

Despite the steady downpour of rain on Sunday about 180 people attended the 75th Anniversary service of St. Joseph's Lutheran congregation of Hay Lakes. Coming from the farthest for the event were Mr. and Mrs. Chester Grue of Campbell River, B.C.

Activities commenced with a service and communion at 11 a.m. Pastor Michael Bergman officated and Alan Welda assisted with the communion.

Special singing was provided by children of the Sunday School class.

During the service Andrew Adam Michael Mann was baptized. He is the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Mann. Following the baptism Andrew's six-year-old sister, Katrina, sang a selection.

Dinner was served by the St. Joseph L.C.W. in the church basement. Fellowship followed with many former members of the congregation in attendance.

The special 75th anniversary program commenced at 2:30 p.m. with a medley of songs by the quartet, Theresa Bussmiss, Carol Tomaszewski, Glenn and Marian Winder, with Karen Johnson at the piano. The main address was given by a former reverend of St. Joseph Church, Raymond Olson. He reminisced on the past and gave food for thought on the future. Another former reverend of the church, Henry Holte, also reminisced and spoke briefly.

A history was compiled by Allan Welda and Magnus Arntson telling of the coming of the Norwegian settlers to the area, the forming of the St. Joseph congregation and building of the church. The history was read by Magnus Arntson and copies are available on request.

A presentation of anniversary plates picturing St. Joseph Church was then made to former reverends who were present, Rev. R.O. Olson who ministered here from 1946 to 1951 and Rev. Henry Holte from 1958 to 1963. A plate was also given to Mrs. Harold Frostad whose husband ministered at St. Joseph 1964-67 and is now deceased.

Greetings were read from a former reverend Roger Nostbakken and his wife who now reside in Winnipeg. A letter from a former member, Helene Fjordbotten and her husband Alf, now living in Washington, D.C., was also read.

Crossfire

by Allen Severson

As we move into the summer season we are mindful of vacation time.

There is something refreshing about a time of rest and relaxation.

Jesus said to His disciples, "Come ye apart and rest awhile".

Many will go to lakes, others to cottages, others will visit relatives and friends.

As we think of vacation our vacation should not be a time of vacation from God. Opportunities for worship are present as we travel about.

We know of resorts that have Sunday services on a regular basis. We have Church related camps. Our lives can be enriched as we share in worship at churches other than our own home church.

Some congregations encourage their members to bring home the Sunday service folder to their home Church after visiting another house of worship.

Let us not forget to exercise our financial stewardship in our home congregations. Financial needs continue even during the summer months.

God gives us variety in experiences as we seek to serve Him.

In the summer months on vacation we can be enriched as we read and study His Word and join with fellow believers in coming before God in prayer, praise and thanksgiving.

Program set

by [illegible] Kroetsch

The theme for the [redacted] program this year is Try It In Tofield, said Sidney Geoglein, project [redacted].

The goal of this project is to have a maximum participation by children, getting children to try it in Tofield, [redacted].

The seven-week playground program at the Lion's Park will also have a weekly theme. One weekly theme for this summer is Heritage Days.

In this theme there will be a mini-universiade games, drama and music.

Each Thursday afternoon will be a special events day, said Geoglein. One of the special events planned are [redacted] shows, penny carnivals and field trips.

The program will also be co-operating with library staff to have story times and films from the National Film Board.

Also planned for the summer, said Geoglein, are two [redacted] July and one in August.

These will be held at Elk [redacted]. Children will be bused to the park.

The playground program will commence on July 5 with Nancy Neufeld hired as the other playground worker through the STEP program.

On the new book table [redacted] week, [redacted] an enormous [redacted] illustrated book of Disney Animations. The book covers not [redacted] details of the various animated films produced by the studio, but also the methods of film animation used in each instance. A hardcover edition of Lawrence Sanders book, The Third Deadly Sin replaces the worn paperback copy.

An official Debrett book, Royal Children rounds out our selection of "Royalty" books this season. Covering many generations of royal families, from Queen Victoria to the newest royal baby, this should please many readers.

For young people, a new Betsy Byars book, The Animal, the Vegetable, and John D. Jones explores relationships between children of divorced parents. Tough Luck Karen by Johanna Hurwitz is about a girl who is having difficulty in school, and how she overcomes her problems with her family's help. A new biography for younger readers is The Judy Blume [redacted] Lee, a portrait of a very popular author.

There are also a number of new picture [redacted] be found for the youngest readers, including Strega [redacted] Lemon, by Tomie de Paola, a story recently enjoyed by a school class visiting the library.

Round Hill district notes

by Evelyn Law

The Round Hill Women's Institute met at the home of Marion Burnstad in Camrose on June 7 with 13 members present.

Mrs. Rita Thorsen spoke on the Olds Conference in which Rita was a W.I. delegate.

The W.I. will be having a clean-up day at the Round Hill Cemetery on [redacted] p.m. and would like all the help we can get. Bring your own wieners and buns as there will be a wiener roast after the clean-up. If it doesn't rain before the 21st it will be cancelled.

The raffle was won by Doris Powel. The hostess served lunch. Next meeting will be July 5 at the home of Lucy Owens in Camrose.

Robert and Marion Law from 150 Mile House B.C. were at their mother's home, Evelyn Law's, for a week where Robert did some renovations to the house.

Mrs. Doris Foss from Camrose and Mrs. Carrie Henry from Red Deer were Wednesday afternoon visitors with Grace Foss.

Irene Wancho from Edmonton was a guest at her sister's, Ida Day, at Kingman for a few days. She also visited with Grace Foss and Evelyn Law. Irene also visited with daughter and son-in-law, Carol and Doug Currie and grandchildren in the Ohaton district.

Kenny and Barb Foss and Jim from Holden were Friday visitors with their mother Grace Foss.

Patricia Young Says . . . . . .

To most people, inflation is just another dirty word - irritating as we find prices racing to keep up with wages. The last thing we need is another committee or commission of tax-financed economists to tell [redacted] that things are bad - that we are earning more and eating less. [redacted] we do need is to face the simple fact that the main cause of inflation is excessive government spending; that citizens simply cannot go to government for handouts and subsidies. In fact, we can get out of the mess only by the [redacted] that [redacted] into it - namely balanced budgets, thrift, [redacted] our suit according to our cloth. It means thinking twice about financing projects we can live without, examining our bloated bureaucracies, welfare rip-offs and subsidies.

To be sure, no-one is going to like abandoning the "buy now pay later" syndrome; to separate our needs from our greeds; to control our whims and wants. Indeed, we ourselves dressed government in a Santa Claus suit - pouting [redacted] mediately fulfilled. Little wonder that government, fearing rejection, printed more and more money and distributed it like pep pills.

The trouble is, no society and no economy can survive indefinitely on pep-up pills. It eventually has to stop and stand on its own two feet. It means re-examining the largesse that had us rebuilding, re-modernizing and financing plants in Europe and Japan following World War II, which, in a few years would end [redacted] North American industries out of business!

It means re-examining our oil resources and searching for alternatives. It means examining our own individual waste along with civic, State and federal government waste. It means re-cycling our thinking along with our beer bottles, paper and vegetable cans. Certainly, if we don't stop blowing into the balloon, it is going to explode in our face. It means demanding that government expenditures do not exceed government revenues. Citizens need to support office seekers who pledge themselves to working to a balanced budget. If we don't, all the committees, commissions and government bonds [redacted] And that we can [redacted]

BARBARA BENNETT

As I sit here, trying to write a newscolumn, my mind keeps reverting back to the events of the day. Our office has been very busy with phone calls and office visits in the areas of cereal and oilseed production, herbicides and their use under the dry conditions currently being experienced, and questions regarding insects and diseases.

The D.A.'s newscolumn should be as timely as possible but, unfortunately, publication deadlines force us to prepare them a week in advance. Now it is my hope that this newscolumn is out of date by the time it is published. However, if we don't receive any significant amounts of moisture soon, this article may be of interest. Here are a few topics that have received much attention. Unfortunately, answers to these questions depend on many variables and some of the experience gained this year may help in following years.

1. Many earlier seeded crops in the Viking area are [redacted] snow received about the second week of May. Cool soil temperatures and crusting have slowed growth to the point where the plants are susceptible to disease and there have been diagnosed cases of root rot. Seed treatment (I know it's expensive) will have to be looked at more closely in the future. Some farmers have used a slow harrowing to avoid the crusting problem on wheat, even if it has partially emerged. But don't try this on barley. The harrowing practice may be familiar to many as it was very often used as a partial control for wild oats.

2. Some farmers are talking of turning some crops under. Also, most of the problems are being blamed on dry conditions and this is true in many cases. However, reseeding may not solve any problems either, especially if it stays dry. Making sure that the seed has not germinated by digging for it, is the best way to confirm if lack of moisture is responsible. Be careful, though, to make sure that something has not gotten to the seed before it has emerged from the soil. There are some cases and many suspicions that lack of moisture is not the only problem out there. Another word of caution: notify your crop insurance agent before you work anything over.

3. To spray or not to spray? Here, again, many variables affect this decision and each situation is different. Remember the following points: Even if rain is received, crop competition is light and weed germination is still a possibility. There are herbicides that can be used up to the flag leaf stage of a crop. For crops with heavy infestations of weeds already, these weeds are using moisture; moisture that won't be available to the crop. If you decide to spray, try to arrange your schedule to spray in the evenings. Cooler temperatures and the night period produce better results [redacted] and the crops under less [redacted]

This is a poor year to take decisions lightly. Weigh all the alternatives and be prepared to live with the results. If you would like to discuss alternatives, don't hesitate to call us.

REMINDER. Colin Simmons, Agricultural Solicitor with Alberta Agriculture will be in our office on June 29. Some appointment spots are still open. Please call if you would like to book an appointment.

Spilstead district news items

The recently formed Spilstead Community League held a general meeting recently. The upcoming family picnic, which will be held on July 17th, was discussed and plans were made to have ball games, a horseshoe tournament and crib tables. A pot-luck dinner will commence at 12:30 p.m., with each family bringing a casserole large enough for their family. Ice cream will be supplied for the children. Further details will be in the community news as the day draws nearer.

Programs for the fall season were discussed, some of these are Cubs, Scouts, a home-made chocolate making course, a mukluk making course and dog obedience classes. Pathfinders will start in September for girls over 12, for more information call Ardel Agrey at 662-2086 after 6 p.m.

The community is also looking for someone to teach an exercise or aerobics class come September. If you know of someone, call Louise at 662-2136 or Shannon at [redacted]

Anyone who has a talent they would like to share with others are more than welcome.

General meetings are held the first Tuesday of the month from September until June. Any summer meetings will be announced in your community news or on the new bulletin board. On September 5th, the general meeting will have as guest speaker, some members of the Rural Crime Watch program.

The Spilstead Hall, through the Community League, is available for rent at reasonable rates for such functions as meetings, family reunions, weddings etc.

The ball diamond is starting to look like a ball diamond. Grass has been seeded and now with the rain.

On Saturday, a second fund-raising dance was held. The executive who organized the dances are president, Gord Lang; vice-president, C. Ray; secretary, Terry Ziegler; treasurer, [redacted] directors are Birdie Brunner and Shannon Cunningham.

If you have news you would like to see in this spot, please call your correspondent, Louise Berube, at 662-2136.

Plans are being made for a ball tournament in August. More details as it draws nearer.

A serious accident has just taken place outside of Tofield. Police and ambulance services are called to the scene.

The person is seriously restricted in the vehicle. How do they get the person out?

In a presentation to the County of Beaver Council by the Tofield Fire Department, delegate John Bauman told council that, at this point, who ever is at the scene of the accident does whatever they can to get the person out.

Bauman told council that the time of an accident isn't the time to be trying to figure out what to do.

He said it should be handled by trained people, who will be taught the best way to get the person out.

County Fire Chief Laurie Weatherill said that the vehicle extrication was outlined as removing the vehicle from the person.

A film was shown to council to show exactly what Weatherill had meant.

In the film, an accident situation was shown, where two fire departments had responded to the scene, apart with police and ambulance services.

After the film, Bauman stressed that the Fire Department was not trying to replace existing services, but only to symbolize and police, but, to fill a void that exists.

The new rescue service would compliment not replace the existing services, said Bauman.

"It's important right off the bat that, in this program, all three departments, Fire, Police and Ambulance, are working together as a team."

It was suggested that a liason committee be set up to represent all three departments to ensure ongoing cooperation and communication.

The objective of the new program will be to respond to motor vehicle or industrial accidents where there is a need for safe removal from a hazardous situation.

Training for the rescue service will primarily include eight firemen of the Tofield Fire Department and eventually include all of the firemen of the Tofield Fire Department.

The training will include cardiopulmonary resuscitation, first aid, vehicle extrication, ropes, ladder, disaster training, emergency driving and traffic control.

The Fire Department will start training with existing equipment. Further equipment that is required will be the responsibility of the Fire Department, its members and the community at large, said Bauman.

Some additional items would include PERK rescue kit, a Kendric extrication device, cribbing material and Vedder system air bags.

Reeve George Kaudelen said that potential for accidents is there in the area and that it was just a matter of time before something serious happens.

The council gave its sanction and support to the Tofield Fire Department for the program.

In the fire department, 95% of the firemen are trained in CPR and the majority have been trained in first-aid.

Some of the members have been trained by Disaster Services two years ago, but haven't maintained this training.

Bauman said the purpose for the rescue service is to provide ongoing training in case of an emergency.

He said that if they only respond to one accident in a year and are able to do a good job that the training will have been worth it.

Report from Parliament Hill

by Hon. B. Mazankowski P.C., M.P.

Aviation Safety Board Bill introduced

On Monday, June 13th, Bill C-161, which will establish a Canadian Aviation Safety Board was introduced into the House of Commons by Transport Minister Pepin.

This legislation springs from the recommendations of the Dubin Commission Inquiry into Aviation Safety which was initiated in 1979 by Progressive Conservative government during the period in which I served as Minister of Transport. At that time, our government was prepared to deal quickly with the many questions concerning aviation safety in Canada.

The first report of the Commission, headed by Justice Charles Dubin, was tabled in the House by the Liberals in May, 1981. The 63 recommendations in this report dealt with the establishment of an independent Canadian Aviation Safety Board and, now, two years later, the government has finally brought in the necessary legislation. I regret it has taken the government so long to introduce a Bill on this important matter.

The CASB, consisting of three members, will have jurisdiction over any aviation accident or incident within Canadian lands and waters. It will have the power to conduct public inquiries, investigate aviation incidents, determine the cause of accidents and make general recommendations.

Our Party is in agreement with the Dubin Commission report. While the Bill closely follows Dubin's recommendations, we will want the opportunity to hear the views and suggestions of interested witnesses. It is hard to explain why the government required two years to introduce a bill, but now that it has been produced, I look forward to studying it, making any possible improvements and seeing it is implemented.

The CASB will be an important improvement in Canada's aviation safety system which has been badly neglected by the federal government in the past decade.

Elevators open

Official openings were held on June 20 and 21 at Olds and Stirone, Alberta for two modern country elevators, each the first of its kind in the province of Alberta, by the Pioneer Grain Company.

Pioneer Grain Company Company President K. Bruce MacMillan officiated at both ribbon cutting ceremonies.

The Olds elevator, situated one and one-half miles south of town, has a capacity of 300,000 bushels and, together with a similar facility opened by the Pioneer last fall at Swan River, Manitoba, shares the distinction of being the largest single elevator in Western Canada capable of being filled or emptied without the use of horizontal conveyors.

The new elevator at Stirone, while somewhat smaller in size, is of a "new generation" composite design that also unites maximum use of gravity flow in the filling and emptying of its 150,000 bushel storage capacity.

Both elevators are designed for rapid loading and unloading and incorporate computerized control together with provision for microcomputer installation in keeping with the company's policy of moving to full computer operation of country facilities in the future.

Al Olds, Elevator Manager Dave Shoemaker received the ceremonial "first load" from long-time customer Phillip Huber, while first loads were delivered by area farmers Mel Froshier and Jim Lausch to Terrance Manager, Gordon Mertz.

Firemen get pagers

by Ken Kroetsch

Now fire communication equipment was ordered Friday for Tofield after the County of Beaver approved matching funds for the system in its regular meeting last week, said Lyle Wack. Tofield assistant administrator

The fire communication equipment has been ordered from Millmen's Communication Ltd., one of four companies with tenders submitted, said Wack.

The estimated cost of the equipment is approximately $16,000, of which the County of Beaver has budgetted for $8,300.

A frequency for the equipment has been applied for from the Department of Communications, with the whole system to be in place by fall at the latest, said Wack.

The new equipment consists of two hand-held radio telephones, 10 pagers, a repeater, a tower and various other related equipment.

"The radio telephone will provide the fire department greater mobility to ensure a fire call via a telephone from any point in Tofield," said Wack.

From the hand held, a fireman will be able to page the other firemen with pagers, be able to set off the siren directly from the hand held, direct men at the fire, and be able to call a number of different agencies for back up, such as RCMP, utilities and power companies, said Wack.

The hand-held units have a range of one or two miles, giving the firemen greater mobility

The pagers have a 15-mile range and also have voice communication so that the person with the hand held unit can give messages over the pagers to direct the firemen to a location.

Only ten pagers are being ordered at this time, but eventually all firemen in the fire department will have one.

Currently firemen in Tofield have to babysit the fire phone, not even being able to leave the room in which the fire phone is located, said Wack.

With the hand held units, the firemen can go anywhere in Tofield without missing a fire call.

The equipment was approved by the County of Beaver in its regular meeting of council last Thursday.

County of Beaver Fire Chief Laurie Weatherill had brought the proposals of a joint committee, of Viking and Tofield council members, its respective fire chiefs and the County of Beaver fire chief

Weatherill told council that the proposals of the joint committee were

1 That the physical components of the system be accepted and that Millmen's Communication's tender be accepted.

2. That the system be cost shared on a 50-50 basis.

3. The committee recommended to council that the budgetted amount to each party be raised to cover additional costs.

Weatherill also told council that at the last minute Viking town council had voted not to go ahead with the fire equipment purchase this year

Viking council told Weatherill they couldn't afford the equipment at this time, but didn't want to close the door on a possible system in the future.

County council decided to re-allocate the budgeted funds for Viking elsewhere.

Trustees sit

by Ken Kroetsch

Council decided 7-3 in favor of honoring eight families' requests to have their children bused to Viking rather than to Holden, at the County of Beaver Board of Education meeting, last week.

School Superintendent, Fred Reinhold, said that every year bus routes are closely looked at by the board to ensure they are efficient.

Twelve children, at this time, will be bused to Viking instead of Holden.

The families involved are all on the outer edges of the present bus route.

This final decision was part of other changes in bus routes in the County of Beaver.

Two bus routes were terminated in the County: one route in Kinsella and one route in Holden

Another point of business at the meeting was the STEP program. The Board has received approval to hire four students for school yard maintenance and repair to equipment.

The Board has also applied for another STEP program to hire a student to list computer programs.

Playoffs set to go

Playoffs in the Highway 14 Ladies Fastball League will get underway this coming Monday

Because standings had not been finalized at presstime, playoff opponents were not known.

Playoff berths have been clinched by Tofield Triumphs, Viking, Ryley Blue-Jays and Tofield Triggers

A combination of a Triumph win or a Viking loss this week would give the Tofield team the pennant.

The battle for second place also continued this week as Viking had only a one-point edge over the Blue-Jays while the Triggers were assured of finishing in fourth place.

Although they are out of the playoffs, Ryley Chickadees, Splitsteel and Shawpoe-ettes are tied for fifth place and will fight it out to see who can end up on top.

Holden will finish the season in the basement.

Monday's games in Tofield, Holden, Shaw and Ryley were all rained out and it was expected that they would be played this evening (Thursday).

The regular schedule was slated to end yesterday (Wednesday) when games were played in Shaw, Ryley, Tofield and Holden.

As well, an earlier postponed game between the Chickadees and Holden has to be played this week.

The semi-finals will be best of three affairs with next week's games going on Monday and Wednesday.

Triumphs moved closer to the pennant last week with a convincing 8-3 triumph over the Chickadees

Viking remained in the hunt for first place when they whipped Shawpoe-ettes 18-7 and blasted the Chickadees 20-3.

In the other two contests that were played, Triggers thumped Holden 23-10 while Blue-Jays trounced Splitsteel 18-7

STANDINGS	W	L	P
Triumphs	11	0	1
Viking	9	2	1
Blue-Jays	9	3	0
Triggers	6	6	0
Chickadees	3	8	1
Splitsteel	3	9	1

Gardeners meet

The June meeting of the Tofield Garden Club was held at the home of Irma Francis.

The pruning saw had come and was viewed and is to be kept in the club's library to be used when wanted. An Alberta plant book was viewed. It was decided to order more for the members and to sell to interested gardeners.

Candle holders have been purchased to use as prizes at the annual Fair. It was decided to get three sheets of plywood to make a top for a trailer for the floats.

Price lists for Iris a Peonies from Fern Cliff we discussed and members we reminded of the Provincial Horticultural Show in Augu

At the Farmer's Market June the theme was Yout and there were displays by L Scouts, Guides, Dance Cl and 4-H

Members were reminded meet at Irma's on June 30th 7:30 p.m. to make up the flo for July 1st parade.

The next meeting will be July

Rain falls

A much needed rainfall began on Friday with an almost steady rainfall over a two-day period.

More rain fell throughout the area on Monday and Tuesday.

The rain was needed for the germination and growth of crops and in addition, was badly needed for garden growth and to keep lawns alive.

Reports received from the Alberta Wheat Pool, prior to the rain, had indicated that crops in many areas were in serious trouble.

The Ryley Region was in particularly bad shape with all crops being described as being only fifty percent of a normal condition for this time of year.

To illustrate totally what conditions were, the best off region was around New Norway where crops (except canola) were rated about ten percent below a normal state. Canola was said to be about thirty percent off a normal pace.

Going into the past weekend, Tofield area farmers had received about one-fifth of an inch of rain since May 1st while Bawlf was the best off (except for Hanmer) with just over an inch of moisture during that same time frame.

In the Rosalind region, just over three inches of moisture had fallen but, that was a mixture of rain, hail and snow that all came down in one day.

According to a number of reports, harvesting of the 1983 crop should get underway during the last week of August.

Although the rain was a blessing, it was accompanied by high winds in a number of locales which resulted in a fair amount of property damage which saw trees broken or uprooted and shingles blown off houses.

About two and one-half inches of rain fell in the City of Camrose from Saturday through Monday.

Health Unit Review

"Don't be afraid" can be the worst thing you can say if you're taking your child to the dentist for the first time. That little phrase that seems so reassuring can affect your child's attitude toward the dentist for life.

If you imply that the visit is going to be unpleasant or use a visit to the dentist as a threat, then naturally the child will learn to fear the dentist. On the other hand, if the child accepts the dentist as a friend, the child may lose the loss of his approval and accept office routine better.

Fear of the dentist is promoted in many areas: on television, by playmates, in cartoons, magazines and books as well as by parents. While parents can't keep their child from being exposed to this fear from other sources, they can help the child deal with it through continuing encouragement.

The best age to take a child to the dentist is between two and three years of age. At this age children may face any or all of several specific fears, the unexpected, the unknown, separation from parents, failing or loud noises. If the dentist and the parents can give the child reasonable explanations for the noise of dental equipment and the child is handled gently in the dental chair, then he won't build up fears.

To sum up, parents bringing their child to the dentist for the first time should not voice their own fears. Studies have shown that the primary cause of fear in children is hearing parents express their own fears about dental care.

Remember, don't threaten the child with the dentist. Children associate punishment with pain and unpleasantness. The dentist should never be used as punishment.

Allow your child to accompany you to the dentist before his examination visit if possible. the dentist should cooperate and conduct a tour of the office, explaining the instruments and introducing the child to the staff.

Don't bribe the child to go to the dentist. A bribe can be associated with trouble ahead.

Never make promises to the child about what the dentist will do. If the dentist unknowingly fails to live up to these promises the child will mistrust the dentist and probably the parent.

When accompanying the child into the dental treatment room, act as a spectator only.

The best way to eliminate fear in a child is to keep up regular dental care from an early age. Severely neglected teeth can cause pain and if a child's first visit to the dentist is associated with pain or dental injury, fear could develop very easily. The promotion of good oral hygiene will not only protect your child's teeth but will help your child eliminate fears of the dentist.

Holden may join AFHS

by Ken Kroetsch

Near the end of a public meeting held by the Future of Holden School Committee, it was recommended that the community of Holden become a member of the Alberta Federation of Home and Schools (AFHS).

Bobbie Schweitzer, committee member, made the recommendation to approximately 150 people, relating to them that the AFHS would be an ongoing committee in the community, while the Future of Holden School Committee was just a one-shot committee.

Schweitzer asked for volunteers at the meeting to take materials from the AFHS and read it to bring back recommendations back to the public at a later date.

Guest speaker, Diane Alesberg, vice-president of AFHS, told those present that the concerns of AFHS is to educate and inform parents about the education system and to foster a better understanding between home and school.

Alesberg said that many parents feel intimidated by the school system, because they are not familiar with it.

She said that with cuts in the education system there are important questions to be addressed by parents.

Parents need access to information in know of their rights within the system. The role of AFHS helps to promote better cooperation between school systems and parents, said Alesberg.

Another recommendation by the committee was for all those present to attend candidate forums in the upcoming County of Beaver election to ask the candidates their views and concerns about the education system within the county.

During the meeting, a report was presented by Bobbie Schweitzer on the committee's activities and progress since its conception in October of 1982.

Schweitzer reported that she and other committee members had attended 12 school board meetings and two council meetings since the committee was organized.

Questions were asked from the floor following her report.

One concern by many people at the meeting was the recent bus route changes made by the County of Beaver Board of Education.

Girls win

Despite bad weather conditions, Vermilion still held tryouts for the Alberta Summer Games.

In Equestrian events, Cindy Szafranski (Fisher) and Kerry Krystal both battled the weather to exceptional victories.

Cindy placed second in barrels and first in poles. Kerry placed third in barrels and second in poles.

Both these girls will be competing August 11 through 13 in Olds and Didsbury against some of the stiffest competition in Alberta.

Canada Day is set

by Ken Kroetsch

The parade route has been chosen, the ball tournament schedules drawn and preparations and plans drawn to a close for the Tofield July 1 Sports Day.

The parade starts at the north side of the school, with entrants assembling at 10 a.m.

There will also be a barbecue pit set near the gun club, a display by the Tofield Historical Society at the Museum, a display by the Gun Club and a display on further education in the Arts and Crafts room at the Arena.

There will be a haggis performance at the Arena at 4 p.m., followed by the Lion's pit barbecue at 4:30 p.m.

There will be two entrances to the fairgrounds, one on the north side and one on the west side of the fairgrounds.

There will also be concession booths run by various organizations.

Display planned

The Tofield Library will be the site of an historic Ukrainian display next week.

Provided by the Ukrainian Cultural Heritage Village, the travelling display will be in Tofield from July 7 through July 9.

Designed for easy transporting, it will be assembled in the meeting room of the Library and will be open to the public from 3-9 p.m. on Thursday, and 10-4 both Friday and Saturday.

The compact exhibit will feature a series of graphics and pictorial panels, capturing such things as old mail order catalogue "best sellers" and re-enactment of the activities of Alberta's Ukrainian settlers by costumed Village staff.

In addition, the exhibit will include a slide presentation highlighting the various steps in the underlying theme of the Ukrainian Cultural Heritage Village exhibit.

The display will tour throughout East Central Alberta during the summer months and Tofield is one of its first stops.

Holden and district news

by Mrs. S.H. Taylor

Mrs. Adele Anne KaBeldon passed away suddenly on June 14th. A memorial service was held on June 21st in Holden Lutheran Church with Rev Johnson of Viking officiating at the ceremony. She is survived by an aunt, Mrs. Hedna McGilgrey; a sister-in-law, Mrs. Edna Pagtun and the Fjellstrom and Sen families.

Herman Nichols of Ponoka was over Thursday afternoon and took Mrs. Kate Nichols back for a visit, to meet with relatives from the States.

Mrs. Lena Ewasiuk left last week on a holiday trip to Toronto, visiting there with family.

Several members of Holden Lodge Order of the Royal Purple observed their annual Decoration Day by going out to the cemetery and placing bouquets of flowers on graves of departed sisters and brother Elks.

Mrs. Shiela Squires (nee Ruxton), daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Jim Ruxton of Creskeuk was a recent graduate of Olds College, when she graduated in Animal Health Technology.

Rev and Mrs. Ruxton and family resided in Holden for several years when Rev. Ruxton was minister of Holden United Church.

Saturday afternoon visitors with Mr and Mrs. George Taylor were their son and wife, Robert and Merle Taylor of Viking, also Brian and Diaska Taylor, grandson, Ronald and granddaughter, Cathryne of St. Albert.

Mrs. Clive Good was a recent visitor with their daughter and family, Judy and Gene Daniels and grandchildren. Clive with Judy and children also called on Mrs. Beth Campbell in the nursing home.

Mrs. Ethel Brekstad and Melvin Fjellstrom were Wednesday visitors last week with Ethel's aunt, Mrs. Frances Hansen, in Daysland Hospital.

Weekend visitors with Helen and Jim Zwierschke were their family Alan and Bobbi-Jo Henderson and children, of Edmonton.

Mr. and Mrs. George Taylor were Sunday guests with their son and family, Robert and Merle Taylor, of Viking.

Last Friday, Miss Ethel Brown with Mrs. Edith Carlson, Mrs. Rene Taylor and Mrs. Ethel Brekstad called on Tofield where they picked up Miss Brown's sister, Mrs. Annie McClintie and went to Ledue and visited with a former long-time resident, Mrs. Beth Campbell, now a resident in the nursing home in Ledue. After returning home, they called on Mrs. Rosie Raedor, another former Holden resident, now a resident at Salem Manor Nursing Home in Ledue.

Harry Stephen Beveridge, formerly of Holden, died in Vancouver on June 17th at the age of 78 years. He is survived by his wife, Winnifred; a son, Stephen of Edmonton; a daughter, Diana of Qualicum Beach, B.C., three grandchildren; and a brother, Donald of Calgary. He retired from the Holden Royal Bank as manager in 1967.

The Friendship group held their regular monthly meeting last Thursday at the home of Mrs. Kate Nichols. Mrs. Ethel Brekstad was in charge of devotions and the Bible study. The meeting closed in the usual manner and the Benediction was repeated in unison.

A lunch was served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Edith Carlson.

Mrs. Kate Nichols attended the 25th wedding anniversary party held Sunday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Brache, in Bruce.

Mrs. Kate Nichols who spent a few days last week at Ponoka visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Herman Nichols and family, returned home Sunday morning with Herman's son, Doug and his fiancee bringing her home.

Mrs. Clara Siner was a recent visitor with her husband, A.M. (Bud) Siner, a resident in Dr. McGuigan's Nursing Home in Edmonton going up with her daughter, Mrs. Carol Chemic and also visited with other friends while there.

Ryley news

by Lena Bell

The hail, wind and heavy rains did a lot of damage to crops, garden's and trees. Also shingles on houses. Marilyn Campbell had many trees torn up in her yard which left a mess.

Kristina Bowden is visiting her grandparents, the Herman Jensens.

Ted and Edna Gjerde of Camrose were weekend visitors with Kathleen Anderson.

So far, we have had over 5½ inches of rain in Ryley since June 14.

Elmer Anderson is back in the Tofield Hospital, after spending some time in U of A Hospital.

Ron and Vanda Stefura became the proud parents of a baby daughter, Sheena Lynn, on June 21.

Proud grandparents are Louis and Carole Stefura and Brian and Jeanette Johnson.

Dorothea Kirkeland is a patient in the Tofield Hospital.

David Reil enjoyed a birthday dinner at his sister, Clara's home. His brother and sister's and sister-in-law and Ella Welgum were guests.

A birthday cake made by Elvera was enjoyed by all.

PROBLEM SOILS

Soils commonly called alkali in fact may not be alkali. Correctly identifying salt-affected soils is important for prescribing suitable reclamation procedures. The following article from the Lethbridge Research Station provides a good explanation of the differences between alkali and salt-affected soils.

A salt-affected soil has a white crust on the surface usually a mixture of magnesium, sodium, and calcium salts. Salt-affected soils can be classified into three groups - saline, alkali (sodic) and saline-alkali (saline-sodic) soils — based on their chemical properties. Although these terms refer to well defined differences, they are used loosely by many people. Many of the soils called alkali are really saline or saline-alkali.

Saline soils contain sufficient soluble salts to interfere with the growth of most crops but do not contain enough sodium to affect their drainability. The pH (measure of acidity) of a saline soil is usually less than 8.5, and about two-thirds of the total soluble salts is soluble sodium salts.

Alkali (sodic) soils contain sufficient sodium to interefere with the growth of most crops, and do not contain appreciable quantities of total soluble salts. Consequently, these soils have a poor physical condition that reduces drainage and aeration, and a pH that usually ranges between 8.5 and 10. This type of soil is usually black rather than white.

Saline-alkali (saline-sodic) soils contain high levels of both soluble salts and sodium. In appearance and performance these soils are similar to saline soils with excess salts, with a pH seldom higher than 8.5.

To reclaim a saline soil for crop production, the excess water first must be removed and then the excess salts can be easily leached out of the root zone. However, performance of the other two types of soils is more complicated and may require advice from a soils expert.

At this point, it is important to note that these three classifications have no relation to the acidity level or pH. Therefore, lime will not correct these soil problems.

Work postponed

Construction was postponed last Saturday on the new Holden Creative Playground because of rain and high winds, said Bobbie Schweitzer, committee member.

The structure is to be completed by July 9, she said.

The new playground, planned to be finished by last weekend, will cost $15,000 to build.

Money for the project has come from two sources.

The Village of Holden has approved use of the Government of Alberta Major Culture Recreation Grant in the amount of $7,500 to be used for the playground.

The creative playground committee has raised the other $7,500 through community donations and volunteering of material, equipment and time.

The new playground will include a tire mountain, suspension bridge slide unit, triple swing, monkey swing, tire pyramid, tire wall, tire hammock, culvert tunnels, hill tunnels and an amphitheatre.

The on-going maintenance for the new playground will be taken care of by the Holden Kindergarten Association.

League is idle

Players in the Powerline Baseball League might be in danger of forgetting how the game is played.

It is two weeks since the last league game was played.

The last three evenings of action, including Tuesday, have either been rained out or, postponed because of wet grounds.

Today's (Thursday) action is supposed to have games in Tofield, Round Hill, Viking and Camrose. However, there is a chance that some games could be postponed because of a tournament the next day (Friday) in Holden.

Tuesday's contests will see Bardo at home to Armena while Holden will host Ryley. Tofield goes to Round Hill and Viking travels to Camrose.

One week from today (Thursday) will see Tofield hosting Camrose, Bardo is at home to Holden, Ryley goes to Viking and Round Hill will play in Armena.

The regular schedule was supposed to end today (Thursday) but now, the schedule won't be completed until July 13th.

Standings printed in last week's issue of The Mercury were incorrect. Following are the corrected standings.

Heritage Day set

by Ken Kroetsch

August 1 is the second annual Heritage Days in Tofield, said committee chairwoman Yvonne Brown.

The Heritage Day celebrations start at 4 p.m. with food and visual displays.

Food booths will be set up in the Arena featuring various ethnic foods. Food sold in the booths will be of only an ethnic background, "No hamburgers or hot dogs", said Brown.

Also at 4 p.m. will be pictorial displays, histories of various communities and organizations, and heritage and ethnic displays.

At 5 p.m. there will be various demonstrations of heritage skills such as Ukrainian easter egg painting, spinning wheel, hardanger (needle work), knitting, homemade ice cream and various other skills.

At 6 p.m. there will be the Heritage Parade of Fashions.

Included in the parade of fashions will be ethnic fashions, bridal and general fashions.

One of the oldest costumes to be displayed dates back to the late 1800s, said Brown.

At 7 p.m. there will be a program of culture presentation featuring singing, dancing and musical performances

Anyone interested in participating in Heritage Days are asked to contact Yvonne Brown at 662-3881 or, Delores Beth at 662-2265.

The Heritage Day program is being organized by the Hospital Auxiliary with other organizations in the community taking part.

Correction

In the story, Trustees fill, the reporter inaccurately reported that eight families had requested to go to Viking rather than Holden in the next school year.

County of Beaver Superintendent, Fred Reinholt, said that only one family had requested by letter to go to Viking and that others had shown interest verbally to a councillor, in having their children attend Viking.

Quilt show a hit

by Ken Kroetsch

The viewer's choice at the Quilt Show held last Saturday was a double wedding ring pattern quilt owned by Barbara Appleby and made by Barbara Widenor, both of Tofield, said Margaret Lamberts, committee member.

The winning quilt was shown on the brass bed displayed in the Legion Hall.

The quilt was voted the viewer's choice by the people attending the show. They were asked to vote on the quilt they thought the best of the show, said Lamberts.

Appleby will receive fabric and patterns from Aspen Textiles for winning the viewers' choice.

There were 86 hanging quilts on display with approximately 175 people through the door to view the displays.

Lamberts said they had expected more people to come out and view the displays, but said that a lot of people had stayed home because of the wind and rain.

After expenses, $250 will be donated to the Tofield Senior Citizen Drop-in Centre.

Some of the people that did attend the show were from Winterburn, Viking, Vegreville and surrounding area.

The door prize, a soft hat and picture frame, was won by Mrs. Howard Stauffer of Tofield.

The GeLen Club catered to the event.

The next quilt show is planned for this time in 1985.

Partners on the Prairie

Richard Friesen and Menno Kornelsen each had the talents the other needed. Together, with Menno's sales experience and Richard's technical background, they knew they could succeed making a new type of storage bin for wheat and fertilizers.

But, their partnership lacked one vital ingredient. The financial backing to get a company off the ground. Because neither Richard nor Menno had managed a business before, conventional lenders had to turn them down. That's where the Alberta Opportunity Company came in.

Today, after three years in business, Wheatland Bins in Lethbridge is thriving. With farmers across the Prairies in Canada and the U.S. buying their product, Richard and Menno are planning for the future.

Tofield okays program

by Ken Kroetsch

Tofield Town Council approved in principle the new extrication program that fire department delegates, John Bauman and Fire Chief Wayne Lyness, had made in a presentation to council last Monday evening.

In discussion, councillors voiced their concerns about the new program.

One councillor was concerned that during daylight hours that if a call came in to respond to a scene of an accident that there wouldn't be enough personnel in town to respond.

Bauman responded that there were a lot of people around the community that weren't on the fire department at this time that could be.

He said that there might be people in the community that might not be interested in fighting fires but might be interested in vehicle rescue.

"I think it will rekindle some interest in the fire department."

One other concern was who would be in charge of the situation on the scene.

Bauman said that the person who would be in charge is the person who would have direct contact with the victim. In most cases this would be the medical people said Bauman. The exception would be when both Medical people and the victim were in danger from fire, or related problems.

One of the primary steps in the new program is to set up a liaison committee between the ambulance service, the RCMP and the fire department.

Hopefully the question of who is in charge wouldn't come up after the people involved had a chance to work together, said Bauman.

Councillors said they were supportive of the new program in the fire department.

One councillor suggested that a demonstration be staged by the fire department for the public.

The object of the new program will be to respond to motor vehicle accidents, industrial accidents and farm accidents where there is need for safe removal from a hazardous situation. Training for the rescue service will primarily include eight members of the Tofield Fire Department and eventually include all members of the department.

Training has started and the fire department expects to be ready to respond to a situation in approximately two months.

Training for the new rescue service will start with existing equipment. Further equipment that is required will be the responsibility of the Fire Department and will be raised through donations and other money raising projects.

In other council business a motion was passed to hire five STEP students for this summer.

Holden may join . . .

Some felt that the School Board was trying to chip away at the enrolment of the Holden School.

Some parents voiced concern about not being contacted about the changes until after the decision had been made.

It was suggested to these people, by the committee, that they write to the County of Beaver School Superintendent, Fred Reinholt, stating that they would like to have their children remain in the Holden School.

Holden School Principal, Olah Barbara, gave a report on the programs for 1983-84 school year.

He said in February there was a .3 cut in staff and that in September there will be a further cut in staff of 1.3 teachers, a total cut in staff for this year of 1.4 teachers.

This means, he said, that the current staff will have to be re-adjusted to assume these responsibilities.

Some courses will be double classed and some classes are already being cycled (only offered to the student every two years), he said.

He reported that at the present time, Holden School is holding classes for kindergarten through to grade twelve, with two special classes, one pre-vocational class and two elevenths in the high school program.

Mayberry said Holden School is meeting the requirements of Alberta Education.

NWU rates approved

The Alberta Public Utilities Board has issued a final decision on Northwestern Utilities' 1982-83 rate application.

Pending this decision, the company has been employing rates approved by the Board on an interim basis since September 1, 1982.

The decision establishes a rate of return of 15¾% on common equity invested in rate base for 1982 and 14¾% for 1983. Northwestern had requested a rate of 17% for 1982 and 16¾% for 1983.

The Board confirmed the bulk of Northwestern's operating expenses but, reduced the company's 1983 purchased gas costs by almost 16 million anticipating that the company will be successful in negotiation the elimination of penalty charges for gas purchased from export companies during periods of peak consumption. Northwestern was successful in having those penalties waived in 1982.

The Board changed the accounting treatment of certain assets directing that unconnected gas wells not required for use at this time be treated as "plant held for future use", and that the cost of the Company's salt cavern storage project be considered as construction work in progress rather than being included in the utility rate base.

The total revenue requirement approved by the Board for 1982 is $523,052,000 and for 1983 is $572,532 000. Northwestern will be applying to the Board for revised rates, which will give effect to the Board's decision.

Northwestern Utilities provide natural gas service to north central Alberta including the Cities of Edmonton, St. Alberta, Grande Prairie, Ft. McMurray, Red Deer, Camrose and Wetaskiwin as well as 161 towns, villages and hamlets.

Northwestern is a subsidiary of Canadian Utilities Limited, an ATCO Company.

FOOD FOR FITNESS

A person can be well nourished without being physically fit. But you cannot be physically fit without proper nutrition. Not only should you be getting a new start on fitness this summer, but also a fresh look at your food habits.

Answer yes or no to each of these questions and see if you have a "fit foodstyle" or a "failing foodstyle".

1. Do you salt your food only after tasting?
2. Do you include a good source of iron in your daily diet? (eg. red meats, eggs, whole grain cereals?)
3. Do you start your day off with a good breakfast?
4. Do you choose the recommended number of servings from the four food groups?
5. Do you limit your intake of foods with high calories and low nutrients?
6. Do you trim excess fat from meats before cooking?
7. Do you eat nutritious snacks that are low in sugar?
8. Do you limit your intake of alcoholic beverages?
9. Do you rely on the four food groups rather than Vitamin/Mineral supplements for your nutrients?
10. To loose weight, do you follow a diet which includes all four food groups?

Count the number of yes responses and check your food sytle:

9-10 — 'a fit foodstyle' — you are well on your road to fitness.
7-8 — 'a fair foodstyle' — the road to fitness is only a few steps away.
5-6 — 'a faulty foodstyle' — take time now to make some changes.
0-4 — 'failing foodstyle' — if this keeps up you'll never make it on the road to fitness.

P.S. You can't really tell what shape you're in by what shape you are.

Thanks to Betty Grudnizki for the above information.

Large reunion planned

by Ken Kroetsch

July 30-31 is going to be a time to visit with old school chums and friends at the McKenzie-Lakeshore reunion to be held on the Tofield Fairgrounds, said committee chairman, Arnold Jones.

"It was getting time that, if we were going to have a reunion then we'd better have it," said Jones.

Jones said there is a possibility that there could be a turnout of 700 people.

Two hundred invitations have been sent out to people that had attended one or the other schools. This did not include the people around Tofield said Jones. These people have been contacted individually by committee members. There are approximately 75 former students in this area.

All of these people invited are expected to bring their children with them, said Jones.

Saturday of the reunion will be mainly to visit and rekindle old relationships, said Jones.

At 5 p.m. there will be a catered supper followed by a program, presentations, a dance and other entertainment for those that don't dance.

Sunday morning there will be a pancake breakfast followed by an inter-denominational church service.

Jones said that this service will be performed by one of the former students who is now a minister.

Following church services will be a pot-luck dinner.

On Sunday afternoon, there will be entertainment and more visiting.

Although the reunion is only planned for just the two days, people will be encouraged to stay the extra day and take in the Heritage Days, said Jones.

Jones said the reason the two schools are having a joint reunion is that a lot of people started out at Lakeshore School and finished their education at the McKenzie School. Lakeshore School taught classes from Grade one to eight, while McKenzie School taught school from grades one to 11.

Jones said there was quite a bit of rivalry between the schools when it came to ball games between the two schools.

He said that although there was this rivalry the two school districts would hold their school picnics together.

The schools were built around the turn of the century. One of the former students attending the reunion attended in 1912, said Jones.

1964 was the last year the schools ran. The Lakeshore School was moved to Lindbrook and converted into a house. The McKenzie School was moved to Tofield and used for classrooms for a while, then later was torn down.

Concession booths will be run on the fairgrounds by local organizations and the Gymkhana Club will be putting on a performance Sunday afternoon.

Ministik and district news

by Catherine Reddick

The Community League meeting for June was held at the hall. The auction sale the league had planned for July was re-scheduled to next spring as it was thought July was not a good time for a sale.

The league has recessed now until August.

The community picnic was rained out last Saturday, but everyone was so happy with the rain that came there was no time to miss the event.

The western dance did go on, with all in attendance enjoying themselves. A supper was served by Jean Wittig as convener with helpers Joyce Stevenson, Margaret Peterson, Claudette Legault and Marie Wittig giving a hand.

Many spot dance prizes were given out, as the evening went on.

Brenda and Gary Dueck of Fort Saskatchewan are the proud parents of a son born on June 12th. He answers to Jeffrey Arthur Nathaniel, a brother for sisters Kristine and Kimberly, and a grandson for Bill and Vi Reddick.

Joe, Eva and Doris Davenport attended the 50th wedding anniversary reception of Eva's aunt and uncle, Aurora and Edgar Blackburn, at St. Andrews Centre in Edmonton. Before the meal, the couple received their marriage vows in an impressive ceremony.

Angeline Blackburn, Eva's mother from Edmonton, who had spent a week at the Davenport home, also attended the anniversary.

Those who attend the Ministik United Church were saddened to hear of the death of Mel Fowler of Edmonton. Despite failing health he attended services there each Sunday, while his wife, Helen was the lay minister for two years.

Pupils, teachers, bus drivers and janitors alike, will enjoy a two month vacation after tomorrow (Friday) from Ministik Fultonvale and Ardrossan Schools.

The Ladies Club held their June meeting in the hall kitchen, on Wednesday afternoon.

It was decided to have no meeting in July, but to meet at the campsite for an August get-together. The September meeting will be held there also if weather permits.

Jean Ferguson gave a favorable report on the strawberry tea, and thanked all those who helped in any way to make it the success it was. Betty Williams, club treasurer, had sent a donation to Camp He Ho He to send a handicapped child to that camp.

Panel

The Future of Holden School Committee held a public meeting last week to inform the public of the committee's activities since its conception in October of 1982.

Schedule extended

The weathermen has extended the regular schedule in the Highway 14 Ladies Fastball League.

The regular schedule was supposed to have been completed last week and semi-final action was slated for this week.

Only one game was played last week and since the games have a bearing on the final standings, league officials decided that all postponed games had to be played this week.

It was left to the teams to determine when these games were to be played and as a result, dates were not available.

Semi-final action will get underway on Monday with the top four teams involved in best of three series.

Tofield Triumphs, Viking, Ryley Blue-Jays and Tofield triggers are all assured of berths in the playoffs but, until the postponed games are played, don't know who their opposition will be.

Viking outslugged Holden 26-19 in the only game that was played and, as a result, kept alive the team's chances of finishing the season in first place.

Viking is the only team with a chance of overtaking the league-leading Tofield Triumphs.

While Viking still has a chance at the pennant, their second place spot is not secure as they could still be overtaken by Ryley Blue-Jays.

Tofield Triggers are assured of fourth place.

For the other teams in the league, pride is still at stake and there is a race for fifth place.

Ryley Chickadees, Splistead and Sherpoe-ettes are all deadlocked in fifth spot while Holden's entry in the league can't escape the basement.

Because of the delay in completing the regular schedule and the semi-finals, the championship finals have been delayed for one week and will get underway on July 13th.

BETWEEN THE COVERS

Three new books give three different approaches to reading about wildlife. Insects, an Illustrated Survey of the Most Successful Animals on Earth, is colorful and interesting, fully factual and informative. Animal Migration by John Chesshire-Thompson, covers that mysterious behavior of fish, birds and animals and traces many of the routes taken on their wanderings. However, Dougal Dixon's book After Man; a Zoology of the Future is purely fanciful, as he illustrates his imaginings of future evolutionary developments after the supposed decline of man. Detailed drawings of such animals as the Chirt, the wooly Gigantelope, or the Stander are accompanied by text describing the imagined habits of each creature.

For younger readers, or those interested in folklore, there is Glenis, by David Larkin. Well illustrated, this book covers the place of giants in folklore and fiction.

One of the new picture books, A Visit to William Blake's Inn is book of children's poetry which has won two awards, the Newberry Medal and the Caldecott honor award. A book which makes for delightful reading aloud, is The Snail's Spell, by Joanne Ryder. In it, a boy imagines himself to be shrinking to the size of a snail, and begins to see the world from a new perspective.

Chickens Aren't the Only Ones is another picture book, which develops the idea of other egg-laying creatures than the chicken. Lovely colourful drawings of many kinds of birds, fish, reptiles, etc. illustrate this story in rhyme. Mirra Ginsburg has written a story for the very young, or for the beginning reader, Across the Stream. It will be a story which helps to dispel the fear of bad dreams.

Remember that summer hours begin July 5, and continue through August 31: Tuesday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday 10-6 and Thursday 3-9.

Children are welcome to join the summer reading club Spinning Into Space, whether or not they have a library membership. Also the weekly films are free to all both Friday afternoons at 2:30 and Saturdays at 11 a.m.

Lindbrook has lead

Lindbrook has taken over sole possession of first place in the Highway 14 Men's Fastball League.

Only two results from last week's action were reported to CFCW as all of Friday's games were postponed because of the storm and three games from Wednesday were either postponed or not reported.

Games yesterday (Wednesday) were to have been played in Tofield, Bruce, Holden and Lindbrook and will be reported next week.

There are no games scheduled for tomorrow (Friday) because of the Dominion Day holiday.

Games on Monday will see Kinsella at home to Holden Merchants, Bruce is hosting Holden Review, Lindbrook will be at home to Ryley, Holden Keggers will host Tofield and Spilstead plays in Round Hill.

Games next Wednesday will have Merchants at home to Lindbrook, Spilstead hosts Kinsella, Keggers are at home to Round Hill, Tofield is hosting Bruce and Ryley is hosting the Revies.

One week from tomorrow (Friday) will have Ryley at home to Kinsella, Round Hill is hosting Bruce, Tofield hosts the Merchants, Revies are at home to Lindbrook and Keggers will host Spilstead.

The schedule is supposed to be concluded with next Friday's action. However, in addition to last week's postponements, there are two other games to be played and two innings of another contest to be completed.

It was not known, at presstime, when these games would all be rescheduled.

Only the top four teams will advance to semi-final action and going into yesterday's action, only Kinsella, Ryley and Spilstead had been eliminated from the hunt for playoff berths.

Lindbrook blanked Spilstead 8-0 last week for the team's fifth win in a row and the victory vaulted them into sole possession of first place although the Merchants do have three games in hand.

In the only other game that was reported, Revies and Kinsella battled to a 6-6 stalemate.

CARDS OF THANKS

I would like to thank everyone who attended my 85th birthday party. Your thoughtfulness and your kindness will always be remembered. Thank you for all the cards, gifts and gifts of money and for the food brought to the pot luck supper. A special thanks for the good music that I enjoyed so much. You have made my 85th birthday an occasion that I will never forget.
–Sincerely yours

I would like to express my sincere thanks and appreciation to Dr. Freebury, nurses & staff at the Tofield Hospital and Dr. Haraphongse, nurses & staff at the University of Alberta Hospital for the excellent care I received at both hospitals during my recent illness. A special thank you as well to my family, relatives, neighbors & friends for visiting me, for the concern expressed in several phone calls, for the flowers, cards, candy, fruit and many other gifts I received. Thank you to everyone who made the trip to Edmonton to visit me at the University Hospital. A very special thank you also to my family & relatives for helping with the work at the farm. God bless you all.

Heritage Day planned

by Ken Kroetsch

There have been several entries of displays and demonstrations for Heritage Days on August 1, but there is still room for more, said Yvonne McAllister, committee member.

Some of the demonstrations booked for Heritage Days are a demonstration of Ukrainian easter egg painting, Norwegian hardingfe, spinning of wool, willow weaving, horsebacking, lasting, harness making and home-made ice cream.

On display will be histories of the Lakeshore-McKenzie District, the Spiritwood District and the Ketchemut District.

There will also be a pictorial display by the Salem Mennonite Church, a history of the 4-H in this area, a display by the hospital, a display by the library and an Australian display by the Boy Scouts.

There will be an old-time school room and an old-time kitchen display set up.

Anyone with dolls or linen or other demonstrations or displays is asked to contact Yvonne McAllister at 662-2750.

The Heritage Days demonstrations and displays start at 4 p.m. with food and visual displays.

At 5 p.m. there will be the various demonstrations of the old-time heritage skills.

At 6 p.m. there will be a Heritage Parade of Fashions followed by a program of singing, dancing and musical performances.

The Heritage Days program at the Arena, is being organized by the Hospital Auxiliary, with other organizations in the community taking part.

Reinholt resigns

by Ken Kroetsch

County of Beaver School Superintendent, Fred Reinholt, has tendered his resignation, effective July 15.

In an interview, Reinholt said the reason he tendered his resignation was to accept the position of administration consultant in Grande Prairie.

In his new position, Reinholt will be the department consultant for all schools in his jurisdiction.

Reinholt said that he had been in Fort Vermilion for three years so he said he looks forward to be with the area.

Reinholt said the School Board will be appointing a selection committee and will be advertising for someone to fill the position.

He said the position will be filled by late August or early September.

Ladies meet princess

by Ken Kroetsch

Three Tofield ladies travelled to Edmonton last week to see Princess Diana and Prince Charles and to present a birthday card from the ladies of Tofield, to the Princess.

Dorethea Freebury, Christine Kenny and Agnes Anderson, dressed in red, white and blue, stood in line waiting among others who had also made a point of being on hand to see the Royal couple.

Agnes Anderson gave the princess the card, who then stopped to talk with Dorethea Freebury.

"Why she shook hands with me, I'll never know."

Freebury said that she asked the princess if she was now 21. She said the princess answered, "No 22," going on to comment that she didn't expect anyone to remember her birthday.

Freebury said the princess was as relaxed as if she was one of us.

Freebury said she had seen the Queen in Vegreville a few years ago, but everything was very formal. She said the atmosphere was very relaxed, different from that of the Queen's visit.

The Royal couple were in Edmonton last week as part of their Canadian tour.

Playground opens

by Kim Chomick

Come rain or shine the playground programs for children, pre-school to twelve years old, will go ahead as scheduled, said Sydney Goeglein, playground project manager.

If it rains, the programs will be held in either the hall or the arena, depending on availability, said Goeglein.

The program started Tuesday of this week with drama, arts, crafts and games. Pre-school children will meet at 9:30 a.m. and children 6-12 years old will meet at 1 p.m.

The schedule for the month of July starts this week with mini-Universiade games today (Thursday).

On July 14, children will be taken out to the Brown's and Lawson's farms to tour the farms and to have a marshmallow roast.

On July 18-22, daycamps will be held at Elk Island Park. Children will be bused to Elk Island Park from the arena.

On July 25-29, will be a salute to heritage. On the 27th, children will be visiting the museum and senior citizens at the lodge.

Starting Saturday and on every Saturday for the length of the program, there will be a bus leaving at 9 a.m. for Sherwood Park to take children to roller skate.

The bus-to-swim started this week. Students taking Red Cross classes at the Sykey Pool can catch the bus at the arena.

On July 25-29, there will be a soccer clinic at Lamont. The bus will be leaving every morning at 9 a.m.

For further information on any of these programs, contact Sydney Goeglein at 662-3560.

Students honored

by Ken Kroetsch

Awards were handed out to Tofield Elementary School students, in recognition of various achievements made during the school year, last week.

Each student recognized were given a felt T with a small crest for the area of achievement.

In sports, awards were given for those who had placed first or second in the county track meet.

In intramurals 30 members on the winning team were given awards. The intramural program took place during noon hour with various games being played.

Other awards in sports were ribbons given out to students who had participated in the Universiade run and had completed the 88 laps, the distance from Tofield to the Universiade games in Edmonton.

In music, 34 Choral Club members were given crests for their outstanding performances.

Four students were given awards for perfect attendance over the last school year. The students with perfect attendance are Shane Weatherill, Jodie Crystal, Kevin McBurney and Rodney Underwood.

In the Chess Club, three students were presented with a trophy, Danny Neufeld, Mike Gillespie and Erroll Hastings.

Awards for the most improved students were given to Danny McMillan, Misty Hagerman, Nolan Adamson, Troy Cunningham, Crystal Cotton, Corey Drader, Leon Baccam and Kerri Lee Smyrnik.

In the National Mathematics League, Danny Neufeld came in sixth overall in the province, with Tofield School coming in sixth overall in the province.

In the Science Fair, there were 48 students that participated and were presented with crests. Eight projects from Tofield went to the County Science Fair, with one group, Lisa Voltner and Karen Swarz, going on to the Science Fair in Edmonton.

Citizenship Awards were voted on by the students after being nominated by the teacher.

Winners of the citizenship awards were: Brenda Voltzer, Rachelle Risdale, Nia Roberts, Duane Dixon, Sullana Adamson, Deanna Baron, Jodie Ritter, Lisa Voltner and Irma Webb.

Day rained out

by Ken Kroetsch

All events, except for the dance, were cancelled for the Tofield Sports Day to have been held on Friday.

The decision to cancel the events was made by the July 1st Committee on Thursday at 3 p.m. said Jackie Dumouchel, recreation director.

Heavy rains on Thursday prompted the committee to cancel everything, she said.

This decision was made to give the various organizations time to return food items they had ordered.

Even yet, said Dumouchel, there were 60 dozen buns they were stuck with.

With a little weather on Friday, there were some people wondering why they had not gone ahead with some of the events.

"The decision was made that if anything was cancelled it was all going to be cancelled," she said.

The only event that wasn't cancelled was the dance which was held Thursday night.

The events that were cancelled were the parade, men's and women's football tournaments, men's baseball and minor baseball.

Indoor events that were cancelled were a presentation by the Tofield Dance class and the Tofield gym class, a bingo, pony rides and a Farmer's Market.

Universiade

Opening ceremonies for the World University Athletic Games would draw a huge crowd of watchers anywhere, at any time. But it's certain they would draw a larger percentage of watchers in this region when they're held in Edmonton. And an even larger share of public attention was bound to be focussed on them when there was the added feature of the Prince of Wales and his Princess to open them.

Thousands in the stadium and many more thousands on the television screen were thrilled Friday to see the pageantry, the expertise, the professional execution of a strictly amateur event, even had it not been for the Prince and Princess. And even had it not been her birthday, a feature which the crowd thrilled to.

Surveys and polls tend to portray Canadians as a relatively anti-monarchist group. They also claim to be 95% accurate within a few points either way. But after the past two weeks of the Prince and Princess visiting this country, we seriously challenge their findings, their accuracy, their representative cross-sampling. We know the 'sample' is supposed to be scientifically taken, but most polls involve only 1,014 or fewer people across this broad nation. That means that roughly one person's opinion would count for all the people in both Camrose and Wetaskiwin, with Bittern Lake, Gwynne and New Norway thrown in for good measure.

We don't know how that one person could conceivably represent all the shades of opinion in that sort of population . . . indeed, more than thirty elected representatives can't express a consensus for them all.

The monarchy aside, it was hard not to feel a thrill of pride in being Canadian surge through as you watched while the Universiade opening ceremony developed. There was so much sheer 'class' to the concept and the development of that concept that was 'purely' Canadian, so much that was . . . not just good, but world class . . . that it was well nigh impossible not to experience a thrill of Canadian-hood.

Universiade proved many things, not least among them that it is still not necessary to stage a Montreal-class extravaganza (at incredible deficits) but that people will respond to the appeal for volunteers, that people want to get involved, that amateurs when given professional heights at which to shoot are still capable of achieving them, and that people . . . everyday people . . . including Canadians . . . still love pomp, still love pageantry, still love the Monarchy.

Past Time Pastimes

by Murray Sheck

June 30, 1912 — Adverse weather conditions are common to all parts of Canada. On this date, a tornado ripped through Regina, Saskatchewan. The tornado was unexpected and residents had little or no warning. The damage was severe, 28 people died, 200 were injured and numerous people were left homeless.

July 2, 1812 — The War of 1812 between Canada and the United States had just begun. The American schooner Cuyahoga Packet is sailing on Lake Erie towards Detroit, carrying thirty American soldiers, military stores, and the personal luggage of American General William Hull. A longboat, a small rowing craft, under the command of Lieutenant Frederic Rolette, and with six armed sailors, approaches the schooner. The Americans, unaware that war has been declared, expect a friendly welcome. However, Rolette and his detachment fire a few warning shots, board the ship, and seize it as a prize of war. It was not until the cargo was inspected at Fort Amherstburg that General Hull's personal baggage was found. In these bags were papers which outlined the strength, disposition, and state of the American Army. As well, a letter to the Secretary of War contained the American plans for the invasion of Canada. These papers and reports enabled British General Isaac Brock to not only plan the defence of Canada, but to attack and capture the Michigan Territory.

July 3, 1608 — Samuel de Champlain and thirty followers founded the settlement that is now Quebec City. Quebec is an Algonkin Indian word which means "place where the river narrows".

Champlain had spotted the site of Quebec City on an earlier voyage along the St. Lawrence River in 1603. He recognized the site's rich soil, and the great rock, the Citadel, which would enable the settlement to defend itself, against Indians and the British. Quebec City was the major settlement in New France until the British conquered New France in 1759.

Patricia Young Says . . . . . .

I don't think I'll ever quite forgive the news media and the novelist for killing off chivalry and romance — replacing them with the "reality" of an "equal" chance to reach for the dinner cheque, tell a foul story and walk down the aisle carrying the blueprint of our sexual preferences.

Time was when we danced and dreamed of a knight who would one day sweep us off our feet and carry us off to an eternal paradise. But it's hard to think romance and chivalry when the TV commercial blurts out your every secret to the viewing world, when we are steadily reminded that we might smell, have bad breath, look constipated or look our age.

While there may be something to be said in warning our schoolchildren of the dangers of promiscuity, venereal disease and the like, it is hardly conducive to romantic love or any other kind of love when the nation's blackboards spell out our "alternative lifestyles" and the ninety-nine positions with all the finesse of a proverbial bull in the china shop. Time was when little girls were thought to be nice and in need of masculine protection. While it may not always have been entirely true, nice young ladies accepted the "male chauvinism — and loved every minute of it. In this twentieth century, womanhood has become overshadowed by "equalhood" as we wear his pant, strive for his job and imitate his language and drinking habits!

God alone knows who exactly initiated the male perfumes, frilly shirts and male shoulder purses. One is inclined to conject that many men secretly envied the woman her special role and special perogatives, seeking to get into the act! Either that or he was conned into it by designing women who figured that the answer to "equality" lay in the creation of a "Unisex". Since it was hardly possible to pass half of the child bearing duties to the male, she settled for abortion — even if it meant the ultimate phasing out of the human race!

But of course, there's no turning back and women will probably continue taking to the Open Line radio show to spill the beans about their sexual hangups and their "equality" that cost them nothing but the romance and chivalry that once made it all worthwhile!

Roadwork planned

Contracts for work on area roads have been let by Alberta Transportation.

Grading is to be done on Secondary Road 834 from SR 617 to the Town of Tofield and this work is to be completed by the end of October.

The work covers a 14 kilometre stretch with the contract having been awarded to an Edmonton firm with the work being worth $856,347.

A second contract, also to an Edmonton firm, is for work on Highway 36, from the Battle River to south of Highway 53, on a three kilometre section of Approach Road 125 from Highway 36 to Alliance and on a seven kilometre stretch of Approach Road 137 from Highway 36 to Galahad.

This work is to be completed by the end of September and is valued at $1,625,783.

A total of twenty-seven bids had been submitted.

Dear Editor:

Would you please print the enclosed letter on the editorial page of an upcoming edition of your newspaper.

In the way of background, the Beaver Local A.T.A. Executive strongly feels that the quality of education in the County of Beaver is being jeopardized because of changes in educational funding. Thus I was directed to write this letter for publication. We sincerely hope you can print it in its entirety.

Yours truly,
E. Anne Taylor
Secretary, Beaver
Local A.T.A.

This diagram clearly indicates that the provincial government has over the years supplied the bulk of monies for education. It should be noted, however, that the percentage of money coming from provincial funds has decreased by 26.4% over 20 years. In this 20 years' span local boards have been forced more and more to rely on local taxation (i.e. supplementary requisitions) to fund education in their areas; in fact local taxes pay for 27.9% of educational costs today. This dependence on the supplementary requisition for educational funding is becoming painfully clear to County of Beaver residents who are this year being faced with increases in taxes that amount to an average of 27% over the previous year.

Consider too the following information:

TABLE 1 – Expenditures on Elementary and Secondary Education by the Province of Alberta.

	Percentage of Total Government Expenditure	Percentage of Gross Domestic Product (3)		Dollars Per Capita (4)
		Alberta	(Canada)	Alberta	Canada
1961-62	18.1 (1)	4.2	(3.7)	102	[illegible]
1971-72	20.1 (1)	5.1	(5.6)	266	[illegible]
1976-77	16.9 (1)	3.4	(5.1)	413	63[illegible]
1978-79	14.6 (2)	3.3	(5.2)	446	[illegible]

Source: Statistics Canada

This table reveals that the Lougheed government has since its inception in 1971:
a) reduced the share of total government expenditures going toward education from 18.1% in 1961 to 14.6% in 1978-79;
b) allowed the percentage of gross domestic product being spent on education in Alberta to fall well below the Canadian average;
c) allowed the dollars per capita spent on education in Alberta to fall below the Canadian average as well.

Clearly we must convince the Lougheed government that education is important to the taxpayers of this province and thus must be funded.

GREATER COSTS – FEWER SERVICES
EDUCATION TODAY:

The following changes have recently taken place in the County of Beaver Schools:
a) the vocational guidance program has been dropped;
b) the library clerks are no longer working full time; students thus do not have access to assistance from them as they have had in the past;
c) bus trips outside the County have been cut severely, which has affected year-end field trips and athletic programs;
d) teaching staffs will be reduced in number as of September (Tofield School will lose 1.8 teachers, Viking 1.8 teachers, Ryley .8, Holden .8 and Sears .5). This change will undoubtedly result in larger classes, more double-programming and fewer course offerings;
e) the position of travelling librarian has been terminated, which will undoubtedly adversely affect the quality of service and materials in school libraries;
f) secretarial staff time has been reduced: teachers and administrators thus have to spend more time on preparing materials and less time with children.

At the same time as services are being cut, County residents are being asked to contribute more in the way of tax dollars to fund the local education system. Why are local County residents being asked to pay more while their children are receiving less?

To start with, consider how education has been, and is now, being funded in Alberta:

Schedule nears end

The regular schedule in the Highway 14 Men's Fastball League is supposed to be concluded this week.

Games were played yesterday (Wednesday) in Holden, Spilstead, Tofield and Ryley and will be reported next week.

Tomorrow's (Friday) contests are scheduled for Ryley, Round Hill, Tofield and Holden and tomorrow was supposed to be the final playing date in the regular schedule.

However, a total of twelve games were either not played or, not reported to CFCW.

All games slated for June 30th had been postponed. Other non-reported games for each team are Merchants 2, Bruce 3, Tofield 1, Keggers 2, Round Hill 2, Revies 2, Spilstead 1 and Ryley 1.

With the schedule nearing an end, only Spilstead, Kinsella and Ryley have been eliminated from the playoffs.

Lindbrook is still in first place with a four-point edge over Holden Merchants with the Merchants having two games in hand.

Merchants lead Holden Keggers and Tofield by only one point and are two points ahead of Bruce with those five teams the real serious contenders for the four playoff berths.

Round Hill and Holden Revies hold the next two positions but, still are in the hunt for post-season playdowns.

Earlier in the season, Keggers edged the Merchants 3-2 in a contest that was protested by the Merchants. The Mercury has been informed that a ruling has been made and that the victory stands.

Best of three semi-finals are supposed to get underway but, since final standings were not known at presstime, playoff opponents and game sites couldn't be announced.

Tuesday's results saw Kinsella stun Merchants 7-6, Lindbrook edged Ryley 4-3, Tofield and Keggers tied 4-4, Spilstead edged Round Hill 15-14 and a game between Revies and Bruce was not reported.

STANDINGS	W	L	T	Pts
Lindbrook	11	3	0	22
Merchants	9	3	0	18
Keggers	8	3	1	17
Tofield	7	3	3	17
Bruce	8	4	0	16
R. Hill	6	6	0	12
Revies	4	6	1	9
Spilstead	3	10	1	7
Kinsella	2	11	1	5
Ryley	1	10	2	4

Playoffs scheduled

Alberta Games — The ladies' Zone fastball playoffs are being held in Ryley on July 17.

The winning team will represent North-East Alberta in the Alberta Summer Games to be held in Olds (Mountain View County) on August 11, 12, and 13.

Three teams are participating in these playoffs. They are Viking Comets, Wasketenean and Ryley Nomads.

DEMOCRACY

de-moc-ra-cy — A form of government in which political power resides in all people and is exercised by them directly, or is given to elected representatives.

(Funk and Wagnall)

The Alberta Wheat Pool is a farmer-owned cooperative. All grain, oilseed, forage, or cereal seed producers are eligible for membership. Membership is voluntary and facilities and services offered by Alberta Wheat Pool, are available to all farmers.

REPRESENTATION

The delegate is the key policy maker. It would be impractical for 58,000 or more members to meet to decide policy, so representatives, called delegates are elected. Alberta and a portion of British Columbia is divided into seventy sub-districts and members in each sub-district elect a delegate. Any Alberta Pool member is eligible to seek election as delegate for the sub-district in which they live. All members in a sub-district receive a ballot and vote for a candidate of their choice. A delegate is elected for a two year term of office and may seek re-election.

ACCOUNTABILITY

Members in the sub-district have contact with their delegate on a personal basis, at Advisory Committee Meetings, or Delegate Report Meetings. At these meetings, the delegate seeks guidance from the members on matters of concern to the Alberta Wheat Pool. The delegates meet annually to review the operation of Alberta Wheat Pool and to set policy. The delegates may also meet for special meetings. The delegates have complete control of these sessions and their decisions, as decided by the majority, are final.

ADMINISTRATION

The seven member Board of Directors, is elected by the delegates. The President and first Vice President are full-time employees of Alberta Wheat Pool. The Board of Directors meet at least once a month and guide the organization and administer the policies set by the delegate body.

The government of Alberta Wheat Pool can be compared to the government of Alberta. Pool members are the electorate, sub-districts are constituencies, delegates are members of the legislative assembly, and the Board of Directors is the Cabinet.

The government and control of the Alberta Wheat Pool is democracy in action.

BETWEEN THE COVERS

The Summer Hours are now in effect at the Library: Tuesday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday: 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Thursday, 3 p.m. to 9 p.m. With the help of two full-time student workers, the library can also stay open over lunch hours.

Free films for children begin this week, Friday, July 8 at 2:30 p.m. and a repeat on Saturday morning at 11 a.m. These films will have an interest range of age 3 to about 10 or 12 years of age. There is no admission charge, but we do ask that young children be accompanied by a parent or guardian. The programs will last approximately 45 minutes. This week's films are: Curious George Rides a Bike, The Puppy Who Wanted a Boy, and A Picture for Harold's Room.

The Ukrainian Cultural Heritage Village Information Display is in the Library Thursday through Saturday, July 7-9, and is open free of charge to the public during regular library hours.

There were numerous shipments of new books during my absence on holidays these past two weeks. Watch next week's column for a description of some of the new titles, after the books have been processed and prepared for the shelves.

Corn Spurry

Corn spurry is an annual weed which spreads by seeds. It is most commonly found in cultivated fields and waste places and usually associated with light or acid soil types. The stems grow from the base of the plant up to 40 cm tall, are usually hairless and occasionally sticky. The narrow leaves arise in whorls of 6-10 at each node of the stem. The small white flowers are borne singly on the ends of branched stalks.

Agricultural Concern

Corn spurry became a serious problem as the widespread use of 2,4-D and MCPA removed a great number of weeds which had formerly provided sufficient competition to keep it under control. Since corn spurry is unaffected by 2,4-D or MCPA it spreads rapidly without restriction, eventually becoming a serious competitor with crop plants for moisture and nutrients.

CONTROL

a) Cultural

To stimulate seed germination and then to destroy the young seedlings, is the basic philosophy behind the control of annual weeds. Shallow fall tillage will stimulate the germination of corn spurry. This makes the young seedlings susceptible to frost. Shallow tillage also encourages seed germination but in order to kill the seedlings, a succeeding tillage operation must also be done.

b) Chemical

For details of chemical control of corn spurry in specific crops see, "Guide to Weed Control in Alberta — Part I — Chemical", which is available at your District Extension Office.

Spilstead news

Plans have been finalized for the family picnic which will be held July 17 at 12:30. If bad weather prevails, it will then be held on July 24th. The picnic will start with a potluck dinner, followed by ball games, tug of war (mothers and the girls involved — with prizes).

The district will have a display at the Tofield Heritage Days Festival on the history of the settlers and its founders.

Fall and winter programs are being organized and any input you have as to what may be relevant to residents in the district would be appreciated. There will be information sheets at the family picnic.

Mark Wheeler and Darren Hollis had recent stays in the hospital.

Cindy (Fisher) Szafranski will be competing in Olds and Didsbury for the Alberta Summer Games Equestrian events after placing first and second in the recent tryouts held in Vermilion.

Powerline nears end

The Powerline Baseball League will try to end its regular schedule next week

Three games were played on Tuesday while a fourth contest in Round Hill had to be postponed because of wet grounds.

Yesterday (Wednesday), Ryley was at home to Camrose and Tofield played in Armena with those games to be reported next week

Games this evening (Thursday) are being played in Tofield, Bardo, Viking and Armena.

Tuesday's contests will have Holden at home to Viking while Bardo travels to Round Hill.

One week from today (Thursday) will end the schedule with Tofield at home to Ryley, Holden goes to Round Hill, Bardo is in Viking and Camrose will be at home to Armena.

It is possible that some of these playing dates could be changed so that the schedule could end earlier.

There are still two important battles taking place in the league.

Camrose, Ryley and Armena are fighting it out for the top three positions and first place and these three teams have clinched playoff berths.

The fight for fourth place and the final berth could go right to the final games in the schedule.

Viking is currently in fourth place but, have only a two-point edge over Tofield and Bardo with those two teams, in turn, being only two points ahead of Round Hill and Holden.

In Tuesday's contests, Camrose blasted Viking 18-3, Ryley stopped Holden 7-4 and Armena edged Bardo 6-4.

The Tofield-Round Hill contest might be played as a part of a tournament slated for Round Hill.

Holden and district news

by Mrs. G.H. Taylor

Cousins of Clare Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. Elton Tiesma of Watford, Ontario were recent Saturday visitors with him.

Mrs Ethel Brekstad, Melvin Fjellstrom and Clare Anderson were Wednesday visitors with Ethel's aunt, Mrs. Frances Hanson, a patient in Daysland Hospital.

Mrs. Edith Carlson and son, Eric, left last week on holidays, going by bus to Penticton, B.C. where they will visit with Edith's father, Mr Lamb and her sister and husband, Tom and Metta Armstrong.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Bald were visiting in Provost with her brother and wife. On Saturday they left to attend the funeral of their sister-in-law. The Tom Budds of Camrose, Jim Budds of Edmonton and Mr. and Mrs. May of St. Albert also attended the funeral.

Pete Kawalchuk is home from Daysland Hospital. On Saturday, he and Mrs. Kawalchuk left for Blackfalds to visit with relatives.

Allan and Helen Warren and family of Edmonton are now making their home here in the residence of Mrs. Chomic Sr.

Mr and Mrs Fred Tchir are having a two-car garage built at the back of their lot.

Mrs. Helen Stecyk was away for the long holiday weekend and attended the opening of the Universiade Games on July 1st with her daughter, Joan and husband and on Sunday, went to the Coliseum to watch the gymnastic competitions with her daughter, Cathy.

R.C.M.P. report

by Cst. G. Dell

In the month of June, the RCMP Detachment in Tofield has opened and investigated a total of 188 new files.

These files originate from the general public's complaints, information members receive from various sources and information passed on from other detachments.

Assist General Public — 39; Summons, Subpoenas, Warrants — 13; Firearm Acquisition Certificates — 7; Theft — 20; Lost and Found — 3; Motor Vehicle Accidents — 13; Missing Persons — 3; Mischief and Wilful Damage — 6; Break, Enter and Theft — 6; Vehicle Identification Check — 4; Provincial Statutes — 39; Crime Prevention — Police Community Relations — 4; Firearm Complaints — 4; Drugs — 2; Fraud — 3; Fail to Appear — 7; Impaired Driving — 6; Cause Disturbance — 4; Sudden Deaths — 1; Assaults — 3; Possession Stolen Property — 2; Sexual Assaults — 2; and Erratic Driving — 2

Monitoring traffic on Highways 14 and 16, on a daily basis has also resulted in a number of Highway Traffic Act charges, the most common being speeding.

The majority of these files have been concluded, some awaiting court and investigations are continuing on the remaining.

If anyone has information, however slight on any of the above files, your calls will be welcomed by any members of your RCMP Detachment.

Rain hurts crops

Crops in this part of Alberta are suffering from too much rain over too short a period of time.

Reports received from the Alberta Wheat Pool indicate that many acres of land have been flooded and on higher ground, crops are turning yellow from receiving too much moisture.

In addition, hail has caused damage in some regions.

After nearly six weeks of almost drought conditions, the area has now been hit with heavy rainfall on two successive weekends along with some rain on other days.

Mothball sized hail was reported in the Ryley area with considerable damage as a result while slight damage from hail was reported around Bawlf and Holden.

Heavy flooding of lowland areas was reported around Hay Lakes, Daysland, Rosalind, Tofield and Holden with the loss likely to be heavy in some instances and overall, excess moisture is creating problems in most areas.

Not including this past weekend, rain in the area ranged from a high of eight and one-half inches around Holden (since May 1st) to about five and one-half inches in the Bawlf region.

On the previous weekend, the Hay Lakes area was hardest hit with nearly four inches of moisture while the Rosalind region escaped with little more than an inch.

PICNIC

A pot-luck dinner was served Sunday at the annual picnic at the Shaw Community Centre. On behalf of those present Carl Staal presented Lewie and Carol Stefura with a coffee urn as a momento of their silver wedding anniversary that they marked in June by a trip to Victoria, B.C.

SILVER WEDDING

The family of Marvin and Helen Vassberg, Keith, Kenneth and wife, Randy, Barry, and Cheryl entertained Helen's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Mueller of LaCrete, Richard and Eunice Vassberg and Brenda and the Jack Vassberg family of Hinton and all the family at a dinner Saturday at the Shadeness Church parlors. In the evening open house was held at their farm home when many came with gifts and all good wishes, plus a special gift from their children.

SPAULDING'S HONORED

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Spaulding (nee Naomi Stenerud of Earling) were honored on their 25th wedding anniversary June 27, when dinner was served at the Legion Hall for 125 guests at Killam. Their three daughters, one son-in-law and two sons were present. After the meal a musical number was rendered by her brother Elmer Stenerud, a duet by Wetaskiwin friends, plus other items, followed by an open house. Albert and Naomi held their wedding at the Baptist Church in Camrose 1958, attending the 25th from here the Daniel Reum's and Ed and Jeanette Knudsen and the Vern Reum's.

RAINSTORM

A heavy rainstorm accompanied by hail hit Ryley hard, and also in various places south of Ryley and some at Earling and Likeness in a hit and miss fashion. In a few places trees were uprooted and granaries tipped over.

Weekending at George Neil's were her mother and brother Fern Longway and Dave of Crossfield.

Bob and Jane Kushnerick were Sunday evening visitors at Ron Bratrud's.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bekkering, Denis and Annalise of Lethbridge are visitors at Denis Huseby's.

District news from Ryley

by Lena Reil

On June 26, an Oslund family reunion was held in the Ryley Community Hall, with about 150 relatives attending.

It was the 81st anniversary since the grandparents, the P. Oslund's, settled in Ryley. The only one living of this family is Minnie "Oslund" Hutchison who is in a nursing home and who was able to attend.

For this special occasion, an anniversary cake was baked and decorated by Mrs. Albert (Vicky) Neroonen and dinner was buffet style. Relatives arrived from Edmonton, Vancouver, Ontario, Sherwood Park, Drayton Valley, College Heights, Camrose, Bruderheim, Tofield, Viking, Kansas, Ryley and area.

Born to Dana and Shirley Bawden on Tuesday, a daughter, a sister for Kristina.

Harry and Joan Harbak, Bruce and Joan Burnstad and Bev Burnstad spent the weekend with Barb, Ted and Bradley, attending the Mizera-Gill wedding in Holden

The former pupils of Solberg School and their families are getting excited about the second reunion which will start on July 15 with registration and a wiener roast at 8 p.m. in the Bardo Recreation Centre. On Saturday they will enjoy a pancake breakfast from 8 to 9:30 a.m. Pot-luck dinner is at noon.

Marilyn Campbell and her mother enjoyed an afternoon with Johnnie and Mae Hunka, in Edmonton on Saturday.

News items, ads, future dates, subscription renewals etc. would be much appreciated. There are so many visitors and things going on.

Dorothea Kirkelund and Barbara Johnson are back home again, after spending a few days in hospital

Several families from the Salem Mennonite Church drove to Three Hills to attend a church conference.

Visiting with Fannie and Robert Lyslo on Saturday was Emma Reil of Whonnock, B.C. while here daughter, Eileen and husband, Oliver Westby, attended the Anderson reunion at Bardo. Oliver's mother, Ida (Onsmo) Westby, of B.C., also attended.

Report missing

A report from the Highway 14 Ladies Fastball League is not available this week.

The Mercury has been receiving regular reports each Tuesday afternoon.

This week, a report was not received.

One regular evening of action plus on postponed game had remained to complete the regular schedule and playoffs were to have gotten underway this week.

The Mercury has surmised, looking at the remaining schedule, that the standings printed in last week's edition, were not correct.

The paper's editor has been writing the stories about this league, but for the next three weeks, will be away on holidays.

The paper would appreciate, if a league report could be received and it should be called to Ken Kroetsch at [illegible].

Raffle winners

The winners of the Holden School raffle drawn on June 17 are: 1st prize 12" television set — Kary Dewart, Bruce; 2nd prize stereo cassette player — Doug Sharuga, Daysland; 3rd prize electronic clock radio — Alfred Gibson, Holden.

Karen Kain Chantilly

This new dessert, named after National Ballet Dancer Karen Kain, is sure to become a Canadian classic. The dessert features individual strawberry-filled meringues topped with flavored whipped cream. Because Karen is on a strict weight maintenance program, she was pleased this delicious dessert provides only 126 k cal per serving.

The meringue recipe makes 12 meringues and the filling serves six; six meringues could be frozen for later use.

Meringues

3 egg whites
0.5 mL cream of tartar
175 mL sugar
2 mL vanilla

Beat egg whites and cream of tartar until soft peaks form. Gradually beat in sugar then vanilla until stiff peaks form. Line a baking sheet with greased foil. Shape meringue into rings (7 cm in diameter and 3 cm high) using a piping bag or two spoons. Bake at 120°C until set (1 to 1½ h). Turn off oven and let stand 1 h more. May be stored up to one month in freezer. Do not thaw before filling. Makes about 12 meringues.

Filling for 6 meringues

500 mL sliced strawberries
15 mL sugar
75 mL whipping cream
10 mL icing sugar
5 mL kirsch OR
1 mL vanilla

Combine strawberries and sugar. Whip cream, gradually adding icing sugar then kirsch or vanilla. Fill each meringue with 80 mL strawberry mixture and top with 25 mL whipped cream. Garnish with strawberry slice. May stand up to 1 h at room temperature before serving. 6 servings.

KATIE NORTON PASSES

Eric and Velda Thorne, Camrose, accompanied Chester and Valerie Forre to Islay on Wednesday to attend the funeral of Eric's sister, Mrs. Katie Norton who passed away suddenly on June 28th.

Visitors June 23 at Ed Knudson's for his birthday were Clifford and Alma Carlson, Magdalene Knudson and Chester and Judith Knudson, all of Camrose.

Ruth Chappell and Art Grinde's, Holden, weekended at St. Vincent Lake, and visited Walter and Dolly Liesman there. At Bonnyville, they called on Mervin and Marilyn Teidemann's, Ruth's daughter.

HERE FROM DENMARK

Carl and Arlene Staal were at the Calgary Airport Monday to meet their relatives Vebecca and Yitta Iverson, who arrived to spend three weeks here. Presently, they are guests at Peter Staal's, Camrose, and will also be visitors at the Carl Staal home. They are able to speak a bit of English.

The Bob Beattie's were Saskatchewan callers.

80TH BIRTHDAY

Albert Olsen celebrated his 80th birthday July 2. He is the former Reeve in the County of Camrose.

Officer appointed

Randy Niven, manager of farm lending with the Agriculture Development Corporation (ADC) has announced the appointment of Saroj Gyawali of Fairview to the position of loan review officer in Camrose.

Mr. Gyawali was born and raised in Nepal, and was employed by the Agricultural Development Bank in Nepal for four years. He then moved to Australia where he graduated in 1977 with a masters degree in agricultural economics from the Australian National University.

Mr. Gyawali emigrated to Canada in 1978 and commenced employment in 1980 with ADC as a loan officer in Fairview.

OFFICIAL OPENING Kananaskis Country Golf Course
July 22nd - August 1st, 1983
WIN Free Play Until August 1st, 1983

This is your opportunity to celebrate the opening of your Kananaskis Country Golf Course, the newest addition to the recreational facilities of Kananaskis Country. 36 challenging world class holes ... the first of its kind in Alberta ... over four years in the making. And to celebrate, we're conducting a DRAW to give away FREE ROUNDS (18 holes) TO LUCKY GOLFERS THROUGHOUT THE PROVINCE.

FREE! Every golfer who plays Kananaskis Country Golf Course in 1983 will receive a free souvenir bag tag.

Open to all Albertans, your Kananaskis Country Golf Course is located on Highway 40, just one hour's drive west of Calgary. Join our Grand Opening Celebrations Friday, July 22, 1983, beginning at noon. Premier Peter Lougheed will officially open the course at 12:30 p.m.

To become eligible to WIN A FREE ROUND OF GOLF (18 holes), please complete the coupon below.

Winners will be contacted by telephone between July 16th and 20th. DEADLINE FOR RECEIPT OF ENTRIES: 4:00 p.m., Friday, July 15th, 1983.

IN MEMORIAM

JENSEN—In loving memory of my husband, Verner Jensen, who passed away in Kimberley, B.C., July 10 1982

Gone are the days we used to share,
But in my heart you are always there
The gate of memory will never close,
I miss you more than anyone knows
They say time heals all sorrow,
And helps us to forget,
But so far only lets me know
How much I miss you yet
I mourn for you in silence,
No one can see me weep,
But many tears are shed
While others are asleep
It broke my heart to lose you,
You did not go alone,
For part of me went with you,
The day you did not come home
Your music still lingers in my heart
And will for the rest of my days
Sleep in peace
Till we meet again

—Your loving wife, Elvi 44c-5304

TIEDEMANN—In loving memory of James Ernest Tiedemann who passed away July 10th, 1976

We watched you suffer,
We watched you sigh,
But all we could do was stand by,
When the times we suffered too,
For you never deserved
What you went through
God took your hand
And we had to part
He eased your pain
But broke our hearts
If you could have spoken before you died,
These are the words you would have replied,
Weep not for me but courage take,
And love one another for my sake

—Always remembered and sadly missed by Ella, Mom and Family 44p-5294

KALUZNY—In loving memory of Lawrence who passed away July 7, 1976

Treasured memories never die,
As years roll on and days go by,
Deep in our hearts a memory is kept,
Of one we loved and will never forget

—Always remembered and sadly missed by wife Nellie and Family 44c-5658

Time capsule

Golden Club members Alex and Irene Scott, and Isobelle Lee watched George Lee drop a time capsule into the wall of the new Senior Citizen's Drop-In Centre. Contents of the capsule were a history of the Golden Club since its organization in 1972, a list of membership for 1983, a picture of the sod turning ceremony, a picture of the building committee, a 1983 stamp to commemorate the building of the drop-in centre, and a 1972 penny to commemorate the organization of the Golden Club photo by Kroetsch

Holden playground built

by Ken Kroetsch

After a two week postponement, because of rain, the Holden Creative Playground has finally been built.

All there is to do on the playground is a small amount of tidy-up work, said Bobbie Schweitzer, playground committee member.

Approximately 65 people from the community volunteered their time to work on the project last Friday and Saturday, said Schweitzer.

Lunch was provided for the work crews by church organizations and individual community members.

Schweitzer said it was amazing to see all aspects of the community pitching in to help.

"It showed how much people thought of the school and the community."

Although the costs and donations haven't been tallied up, Schweitzer said that she felt the project was right on track.

The Grand Opening of the playground will take place in the fall after school reconvenes. The opening will be commemorated with plaque and a ribbon cutting ceremony.

The playground is estimated to cost $15,000 after it is completed.

Money for the project will have come from two sources. The Village of Holden has approved use of the Government of Alberta Major Culture Recreation Grant for the amount of $7,500.

The Creative Playground Committee will have raised the other $7,500 through donations of cash, construction equipment, materials and volunteer help.

The new playground has a tire mountain, a suspension bridge slide unit, a triple swing, a tire pyramid, a tire wall, a tire hammock, culvert tunnels, hill tunnels and an amphitheatre.

The new playground is situated at the north-east corner of the school.

Ongoing maintenance for the playground will be taken care of by the Holden Kindergarten Association.

Rain delays street repairs

by Ken Kroetsch

Rain has slowed down construction efforts to fix intersections around Tofield, said Neil Brodie, town administrator.

Brodie said the construction would have been completed if it hadn't been for the rain.

The contract work for the repairs is being done by Standard General.

Brodie said that Standard General has the preliminary work one the intersection done and should be asphalting all of the intersections at one time rather than doing them one here and one there.

There are two intersections being fixed that weren't in the contract, but are being fixed at contract prices, said Brodie.

Other street repairs being done by the town include filling of cracks with hot tar, painting of centre lines, painting of crosswalks and painting curbs at intersections to indicate no parking.

These projects around the community will be done by the town crew and STEP students that have been hired by the town.

Saskatoon firm awarded licence

by Ken Kroetsch

Rural Satellite Television (RSTV) of Saskatoon have been awarded a license (CRTC) to install cable television in Tofield and other communities in Alberta.

This information was received by council in a letter from the CRTC.

RSTV was one of two companies that were applying to put cable television into rural areas in the province, said Neil Brodie, town administrator.

One of the conditions of the license is that the cable has to be installed within twelve months, or the license will be revoked, said Brodie.

RSTV is a division of Saskatoon Tele Cable Ltd.

In other council business councillors expressed concern over the rate of speed the new dump site is filling up.

Councillors said that a lot of trees, cement blocks and dirt have been dumped in the pit.

Council is presently looking for another landfill site in the Tofield area.

Boy Scouts will visit

by Ken Kroetsch

After the International Boy Scout Jamboree, 16 Boy Scouts and two leaders from Paris, France and surrounding area will be visiting the Tofield area, said Scout Minister, Tom Kendal.

The boys and their leaders will arrive in Camrose this Saturday with other leaders and Boy Scouts that will be staying in other communities in the area. Don Kondrat will be going to Camrose to meet the Scouts from Paris.

The Boy Scouts and their leaders will be staying at Tofield as guests of various Scouts and Units.

Upon their arrival Saturday evening there will be a pot-luck dinner followed by a civic reception where the leaders and visiting Boy Scouts and their leaders will meet the mayor, the president of the Lion's Club and the president of the Rotary Club.

Another activity planned for the visitors will be a tour of a farm in the area.

It is felt that the farmer will be free to experience the life styles of the Tofield families. Each individual family will have the opportunity to show their visitors around, said Kendal.

The visiting Boy Scouts and their leaders will be leaving July 19.

Planting help wanted

by Ken Kroetsch

The Town of Tofield is presently looking for an organization of individuals to undertake a tree planting or beautification program at the cemetary, said Neil Brodie, town administrator.

Upgrading of the cemetery has already started with the expansion of the existing boundaries with a new fence around the boundaries. This should be completed shortly.

Interested parties can contact the town office.

Hard at work

Approximately 65 people showed up last Friday and Saturday to complete construction on Holden's new Creative Playground. The playground was funded through an MCR grant and through donations of cash, material, construction equipment and of labor. The playground is estimated to cost $15,000 photo by Kroetsch

Revealed

Federal Health Minister Monique Begin stands this week revealed.

Protesting for many months against balance billing from doctors in the Medicare program, against hospital user fees, and other charges tending to reduce universality of the Medicare program, she switched suddenly this week to the damage that smokers do themselves.

A reformed smoker herself, Mme. Begin stands revealed as the crusading type of zealot, almost in the religious mold, who would protect all her subjects, who would 'save' them from themselves. By her method. Very simply, to increase the tax on cigarettes by another full thirty percent.

A package of cigarettes is already eighty percent tax.

And Mme. Begin would increase that by THIRTY percent more! So people would find cigarettes out of reach. They'd be forced financially to lead a healthier life. They'd be forced to imitate, (if not emulate) Mme. Begin's healthy model.

Hell, says the old fable, has no fury like a woman scorned. Nor, surely, can it have any more religious zealot than a reformed smoker.

Judy Erola is being backed into a corner by Mme. Begin's persistent outbursts, even if she is proving how unreasonable, how impractical, how unpolitical, are her many suggestions.

If she wins on cigarettes, next she'll attack drinking, following which she would have to license the number of babies a woman could bear . . . all in the name of reducing hospital user fees. Then there would be speed controls on automobiles, to reduce the carnage on the highways. Even reducing the number of cars would help. We can do that, of course, by increasing the tax on them. Out of sight. Somebody should tell Mme. Begin.

That is, if they don't tell her to stop meddling. Raising taxes is one thing. Legislating morality, or health, or any other social virtue, is something else entirely.

From the mail bag

June 28, 1983

The executive, of the Clover Bar Constituency, of W.C.C. wishes to thank the members of the June 28th Party Conference, and are dismayed that we were unable to exert a greater influence towards convincing those in attendance to adopt a more moderate stand on the issue of independence.

I, personally, cannot condone this renewed emphasis on independence (using the threat of separation) as the process which would result in a Provincial Government that would bring justice to legitimate grievances in this part of Canada. I, therefore, have chosen to leave the executive and the Party.

September 30, 1983 has been set for the next local annual meeting for those interested in the Party.

E.R. Maloney

July 7, 1983

Dear Sir,

Once again, I want to bring greetings to my friends and to give a big banquet to Tofield and the surrounding areas.

I first visited Tofield in 1912 and came to live as a bride in July 1917, so have really seen Tofield grow and progress. I shall be 95 years of age this fall.

I look forward to receiving the Tofield Mercury. It keeps in touch with the worthwhile efforts of the community minded citizens not only in Tofield but down the line. God bless you all in all your endeavours.

Sincerely,
(Mrs. J.W.) Isabel Robinson

Past Time Pastimes

by Stacey Ewart

July 8, 1880 — Construction of the Calgary and Edmonton Railway, later to be leased to the CPR, began. The new railway followed parts of an Indian and wagon trail between the two settlements. As settlers poured into the area between Calgary and Edmonton, a railway was required to service their needs. Communities like Wetaskiwin, Olds, Innisfail, and Penaka were linked together and continued to prosper.

July 10, 1730 — The American privateer Viper and the Nova Scotian privateer Resolution engaged in a bloody sea battle off the Nova Scotian coast. Over 50 sailors were to die. During the American Revolution, privateering was a lucrative and profitable enterprise for both sides. Nova Scotia boasted a large "mosquito fleet" of small craft that were active privateers. Privateering was no more than legalized piracy. Owners of merchant or fishing ships would recruit a crew, arm their ships, and apply for Royal consent from the Governor. Under this licence, only enemy ships, or ships trading with the enemy could be attacked. Upon capture, these ships were taken to Halifax where the Court of the Vice-Admiralty would auction the ships and cargo. Proceeds from the auction were then divided among owner, captain, and crew.

July 13, 1909 — Thomas Geddes discovered gold in the Porcupine area of Northern Ontario. By 1911, many towns had been erected and vast fortunes were being made by mine owners. Geddes did not, however, become rich. On July 11, 1911, a large forest fire blazed through the Porcupine area, destroying several towns and killing roughly 300 people, Geddes included.

July 11, 1857 — The Palliser Expedition, headed by John Palliser, left Fort Garry to conduct a three-year survey of the West. The primary purpose of the Palliser Expedition was to gather scientific information to determine if the Canadian West was suitable for settlement. The Expedition also explored various passes through the Rocky Mountains, including the Kicking Horse Pass, now used by the CPR. Palliser's conclusion after three years of extensive travelling in the West was that a large area of the West was too dry for agricultural purposes. Although water shortages still plague the area, known as Palliser's Triangle, development of dry land farming techniques and ranching have enabled this area to become a modestly populous area.

Patricia Young Says . . . . . .

There is an old French proverb: "If it isn't necessary to change, then it is necessary not to change." Meaning perhaps that change for change sake can amount to jumping out of the frying pan into the fire! It can also mean hanging on to the tried and tested unless you are sure that change is going to be for better. Today, we slavishly follow the "new" be it a new political label, a new label on an old detergent or a "new" look in fashions designed to put more money into the clothing manufacturers pocket.

While the social order is a changing concept, the cult of "newness" is all too often a smokescreen for the continuance of old evils while letting it be thought that improvements had been made. This has been true of political parties, organizations or school curricula. What we tend to overlook is that all really constructive changes emerge from the "New Man" or the "renewed" man — one who recognizes and keeps alive old concepts of justice, honour and decency — whose principles and ethics are clearly defined and whose compassion and understanding is a growing thing.

Yet we are constantly urged to "keep up with the times." We are told: "It's time for a change" and rarely stop to consider why or to ask ourselves if the change would be for the better. We are urged to keep "an open mind" as if thousands of years of civilization have not enabled us to make a decision as to right and wrong. Yet even as we see our civilization crumbling, we fail to associate the decay with the abandoning of time-tested standards of behaviour. While we may change government philosophies, environment or systems, there is no change unless man changes himself.

Little wonder that so many of our young people have turned their backs on the hypocrisy of "the new, improved, enriched brand". They have become cynical of the "newness" cult that invariably enslaves them more — financially, and emotionally. Basically then, if we are to improve society, leaders whose commitment is to the stars rather than the sewer; who will seek a better way of life for all citizens — and mostly see class or those of the right political persuasion; who recognize the worth of humility, the grandeur of graciousness and the role they seek is being that of servants of the people rather than master of the people. For to be satisfied merely with a new label is to be satisfied with meatballs labelled steak. Come to think of it, the man who never changed his mind probably never changed anything!

Newness and change then, must be a development and improvement if it is to contribute to the progress of society and mankind. After all, one could change ones abode from apartment to jail. The environment might be "new", but it would hardly be an improvement — or his lifestyle!

Report from Parliament Hill

from Hon. Don Mazankowski P.C., M.P.

Mazankowski Appeals On Behalf Of Farmers

Don Mazankowski, M.P., has made representations on behalf of farmers and dealers with respect to the receivership of White Farm Equipment Ltd. Mr. Mazankowski called on the federal government, through the Minister of Industry, Trade and Commerce, to ensure that despite the receivership a sufficient supply of combine parts is available during the upcoming harvest for prairie farmers with White combines.

Noting that thousands of White combines are currently in operation in western Canada, Mr. Mazankowski stated that the failure to provide an adequate supply of parts could cause a serious disruption of the prairie harvest. "This is hard would have a dramatic impact on the prairie economy. The situation requires prompt and decisive action to protect the western agricultural community."

Parts for White combines are manufactured at the company's Brantford, Ontario plant which is now closed due to White Farm Equipment Ltd. being placed in receivership. Although an inventory of parts does exist it is not certain that this will be sufficient to meet the demand.

Mr. Mazankowski urged the federal government to consider ways to resume production in Brantford should this be necessary to meet parts requirements. "Apparently, there are several interested buyers", said Mr. Mazankowski "and the government should move expeditiously to have the plant sold in order to see it reopened as soon as possible."

With the beginning of the harvest only weeks away, the government must act now to ensure the necessary parts are supplied. When harvesting starts, farmers cannot afford to wait days to repair equipment and it is essential that parts be available when required.

RABBIT: MEAT OF THE FUTURE!

The rabbit's breeding ability is the subject of countless jokes. However, for some Agriculture Canada researchers, rabbit production is no light-hearted matter.

According to the researchers, rabbits are an excellent source of meat and could become an important meat industry in Canada. Rabbits can produce almost five times as much meat as beef cattle can on the same amount of alfalfa and rabbits don't require grain as do pigs and poultry.

Sidewalk sale

Nicer weather on Friday and Saturday saw many people taking advantage of the

Medically Speaking

by Dr. Bob Young

Who can you trust these days? What groups within society have some or at least enjoy, the confidence of the public at large?

A survey was done recently in British Columbia to determine the credibility of about health care. One of the questions explored the beliefs of people regarding the relative trustworthiness of groups within our society. Doctors, as they had in previous surveys, again led the polls. (If they had not, I probably would not be writing this column!)

Physicians and dentists ranked highest, both with an index of trust and about 75 percent (out of a possible 100). Police and priests/ministers received scores of 70 percent. Teachers and judges have the confidences of 60 percent of the population.

T.V. newsmen at 55 percent are slightly ahead of lawyers, who scored 53 percent. Newspaper journalists (does this include the author of this column?) obtained a rating of 45 percent, while the politicians were trusted by a dismal 27 percent of the respondents.

One of the problems with this type of survey is the fact that certain groups have become stereotyped. Lawyers and politicians, in particular, suffer from an image problem that will be difficult to reverse.

Health care professionals have traditionally ranked high in public esteem. The nature that the patient regard the provider as being a trustworthy individual as there is frequently so much at stake.

This has long been recognized within the medical profession. While not all doctors have formally sworn the Hippocratic oath, all are aware of it and most follow its articles. In Canada physicians are guided by the Canadian Medical Association's Code of Ethics, a compilation of approved behaviour which has developed over many years.

Provincial Colleges of Physicians and Surgeons have, and use, disciplinary powers to control members whose practice or personal behaviour is felt to be inappropriate or unacceptable.

It is not, however, the threat of disciplinary action that keeps most doctors in line. It is instead, I feel, an allegiance to centuries-old medical tradition. The survey results indicate, perhaps, that today's doctors are keeping the tradition alive.

Holden and district news

by Mrs. G.H. Taylor

Mr. Pete Kawalchuk, who was home from Daysland Hospital for a few days, is again a patient there having treatment for a bacterial ailment.

Mr. Nick Hayduk is a patient in Viking Hospital. Nick had been there for some days with a bad ankle and the day he was to come home he fell with his crutches breaking his ankle having to have surgery and a further stay in hospital.

The Jim Swierchuks' and Tiedemann families spent the weekend at the lake getting in some fishing, with several other Holden families taking advantage of the fair weather.

Mrs. Frances Hanson who had been a patient in Daysland Hospital for several weeks was transferred to Extendicare Nursing Home in Viking last Friday morning and Monday was taken over to Viking Hospital for observation and tests for a week.

Saturday afternoon visitors with Mr. and Mrs. George Taylor were their son and wife, Brian and Dineke Taylor, grandson Ronald and granddaughter Catheryne of St. Albert. Their youngest son, Richard who is a Venturer in the Scout movement is attending the World Jamboree at Kananaskis. Also calling in during the afternoon on their way home from Camrose was their granddaughter Saylor Friend Dean Maxwell of Viking.

Helen and Jim Zwierschke and Robert Tiedemann with the Tiedemann families of Edmonton spent part of the recent long weekend at their lake cottage. They also had grandchildren Sherri and Johnnie, children of the Alex Tiedemanns visiting with them for the past week.

Mr. Albert Johnson with Mr. Clare Anderson were Sunday afternoon visitors with Mrs. Frances Hanson in Viking Nursing Home.

A Monday evening visitor with Mr. and Mrs. George Taylor was their granddaughter Saylor Taylor of Viking.

Booklets of the upcoming Holden Agrifiton have been sent out the past week to residents of Holden and District which will be held Aug. 8, 1983 in the Holden and District Agricultural Complex. There is a varied assortment of classes which can be entered and intending exhibitors should now be getting ready for it. It is hoped with all the recent rains we have had that there should be a good assortment of flowers and vegetables.

Ernie and Olive Good have been taking a three-week tour of Ireland and Great Britain and other points in England.

A long-time resident of the Bruce District passed away on June 2, 1983 at the age of 69 years in St. Joseph's Hospital, Vegreville.

He is survived by his wife Angelica, four sons, three sons Larry of Bruce; and Vince and Pat of Holden; three daughters, Adeline and Joanne of Edmonton and Theo of Gibbons; 12 grandchildren and one great-granddaughter, Krista Lee; also four brothers, Louis of Bonnyville, Stan of Edmonton, Mike of Surrey and Bill of Calgary; two sisters, Emma of Edmonton and Stella of Calgary.

He was predeceased by his parents and a son Joseph. Prayer services were held July 4, at 7:30 p.m. at the Holy Heart of Mary Roman Catholic Church, Viking and funeral service was held July 5 at 10:30 at the same church with Father Juniper Kneller officiating at the ceremony and interment was in the Bruce Cemetery.

Buying Pressure Canners

Pressure canning is the only process that is able to destroy the tough spores of bacteria like Clostridium botulinum which can grow and produce deadly poison in jars or cans of any low acid food. Which are the low acid foods? All vegetables (except tomatoes), meats and seafood are considered low acid and are susceptible to bacterial growth.

Besides ensuring the safety of your home canning, using a pressure canner saves time. For example, processing beans in a hot water bath (unsafe) can take several hours, while in a pressure canner it takes only 20 minutes (pints).

Before buying a pressure canner, here are some things to look for. Canners are usually made of cast aluminum. They come in sizes measured according to loose-contents capacity; their diameters are all roughly the same, it's their height that varies. The most popular sizes are: 13½ quart size which holds 10 pint or 7 quart jars and the 21½ quart size which holds 18 pint jars, 7 quarts or 4 half gallon jars.

Pressure canners are expensive but they do their job for years if you care for them; keeping sealing rims/gaskets, pressure gauges, vents and safety valves clean and in working order. Prices this year run in the $160 plus range depending on size. If you have a large garden, as many rural people do, and you do a lot of canning, the expense is well worth it.

Make sure the canner you purchase comes with an instruction booklet. I receive calls every year from ladies who didn't receive instructions with the canner.

Pressure gauges come in two styles. The first is a numbered gauge which tells you the exact pressure inside the canner. The other style has a series of weighted rings - 5, 10 and 15 pounds, that sit on the vent, controlling pressure. Either method is accurate for home canning.

Borrowing a pressure canner is usually not feasible. But something that does work is get shares with a compatible friend in buying a large one and pool your resources and energies for canning bees.

Canning Workshops

I have tentatively planned a canning workshop for July 28, 1-5 p.m. at the Viking School. If you are new to canning and would like basic information on canning fruits, vegetables and meats you will find the afternoon valuable. Please phone this office to register.

I am willing to offer this workshop in other areas too, if interest is sufficient. Phone and leave your name if you are interested in a workshop in your area.

Blazers attend Summer Games

The ladies' Zone softball playoffs, originally scheduled for July 17 in Ryley, were played last Sunday in Wastekeneau.

Three teams played in a double knockout, Viking Camrite, Wastekeneau and the Blazers, a team made up of various ladies of the area.

The Blazers went out undefeated to win the playoffs. In the first game they defeated Viking 4-3 and then defeated Wastekeneau 8-5.

The Blazers now go on to the Summer Games in Olds (Mountain View County) on August 11-13 to represent the Central Lakeland Zone.

Some of the uniforms for the summer games are being provided by George Shon and Harness Repair and Catney Farms, both of Ryley.

District news from Ryley

by Lena Bell

Elaine Solberg left for Nova Scotia where he will present a paper concerning the sulfer in the soil.

Brent Podrasky of Camrose is staying in Ryley for a few days with grandma Anderson.

Lawrence Anderson's of Thorsby called on their mum and dad and Fannie Lynds also visited with Kathleen.

The Gary and Jack Nissen families were visitors with their folks on Monday for dinner, helping their mother celebrate her birthday.

Al Barton is a patient in an Edmonton Hospital.

Many of us find our gardens too wet to try and cultivate after all the rain in the past.

Sympathy goes out to Mrs. Mickey (Lillian) O'Brien, her sister and brother whose brother Allen Lee passed away July 6, 1983. Funeral last Thursday in Edmonton.

Selmer Helen, Henry and Irene Heiles visited Elmer Anderson in the hospital one day last week.

Ella Wolgam is spending a few days in R.D. visiting her daughter and family.

Very pleasant surprise tonight (Monday) when nephew and niece James and Sharon Reid of Victoria rode into the yard from the airport on their bicycles. They are visiting relatives and friends in Tofield and Ryley and area.

Tofield heritage preserved at museum

by Ken Kronbeck

Most people can remember the date of consecration and most people can remember Canada's first Prime Minister, but how many people in Tofield can remember the date when Tofield was incorporated as a village, or as a town?

Historical Society President Harold Shultz and Joel Tofield were incorporated as a village in 1907 and as a town two years later in 1909.

But before Tofield was incorporated as a town it was moved twice before being located at its present site, said Shultz.

Tofield No. 1 had its beginning in 1894 on what is the Rempel farm. It started when Morton and Adam built a general store close to the post office.

Shortly other businesses, a lumber yard, a hardware, a general store, a doctor's office with a pharmacy, and a blacksmith's shop, were added to the growing community.

In 1907, in anticipation of the railway coming in, The Grand Trunk Pacific, Tofield was moved to location No. 2, located in the area of the present Senior's Lodge

Tofield 2 became deserted when the railway came in more south then had been anticipated.

In the year 1908—11 Tofield was the site of a gas boom that brought a lot of settlers into the area, said Shultz.

Tofield at this time boasted four real estate agents.

A prospective buyer could catch the train from Edmonton and be met at the station by a real estate agent to be taken for a tour of available parcels of land.

"I can remember as a youngster seeing stakes out over Rempel's farm, extending a mile to the west," said Shultz.

Because Tofield was such a boom town at the time, said Shultz, a person could only put a deposit on a lot of land for a day or so, forfeiting his deposit if he didn't buy right away.

Land at that time sold for $100 an acre within a two mile radius of Tofield, said Shultz. Land in adjacent areas was selling for $12 an acre at the same time.

Tofield also had the honor of having gas lights the length of main street in 1912, while Edmonton didn't have gas lights until 1923, said Shultz.

After 1911 it was discovered that the water and gas at the time couldn't be separated. The gas boom in Tofield was over.

"The town went from boom to bust."

It would be a few years until the coal would once again keep up the nagging populations of Tofield.

For further information on Tofield's past, a trip to the Tofield Museum would be a memorable experience.

The Tofield Historical Society has put a lot of effort and time into preserving Tofield's history, said Shultz.

The Museum is open every Sunday afternoon from 1 p.m. - 5 p.m., during July and August.

People wishing to tour the Museum outside of regular hours can make arrangements by phoning 662-3542.

Mazankowski announces grant

Don Mazankowski, Member of Parliament for Vegreville, is pleased to announce a grant in the amount of $17,027 to the Tofield Golden Club, Tofield, to establish a Senior Citizens Drop-In Centre in the town fire hall.

The Club plans to remodel the facility and offer the following program of activities — shuffleboard, carpet bowling, table games and a wide range of social events.

It is expected that the group's membership will be considerably increased once the centre is completed.

Beef Club holds wind-up party

by Lori Brown

On Tuesday evening, June 29, members of the Tofield 4-H Beef Club held their wind-up at the Howard Brown farm.

After everyone had enjoyed a barbeque supper, Grace Schacher who marks the record books announced the winners of that competition. Teresa Eleniak won first place and was presented with the Andy Heiberg Memorial trophy, Lori Brown placed second, Dale Brown third and Daniel Brown fourth. The top junior book, Teresa's and the placing senior book, Daniel's will now go on to the county record-book competition.

The rest of the evening was spent playing games.

Several members from our club have been awarded trips this year. Joe Brown will go to Oregon, Dean Schacher, Daniel Brown and Doug Brown will be going to Toronto and Daniel Brown will also be going to Manitoba. Penny Wood will attend a 4-H camp at Moose Lake this summer.

The Tofield 4-H Beef Club will re-organize again this fall in October.

Elected by acclamation

Three Alberta Wheat Pool delegates from this region were among 21 across the province who were elected to the Pool's board by acclamation.

Among these delegates are Robert Ash, of Viking, Cliff Pepper, Chauton, and Lars Rude, from Tofield.

Out of 35 sub-districts, elections this year will be required in 14 regions, making it one of the busiest years for some time in the field of elections. Last year, for instance, only seven elections were conducted.

The Pool divides its sub-districts evenly into odd and even numbers, with electors being required in only one group each year.

Dogs are selective

Let there be no doubt that the dog was, is, and shall in the foreseeable future, be, man's best friend.

The problem here is one of selectivity. Man's best friend has a tendency to attack deliverymen.

Canada Post reports that last year alone, some 1,600 dog bites plagued its letter carriers and courier delivery people. These unwarranted attacks resulted in medical bills, lost wages, and lost time amounting to $200,000. This, needless to say, is an expense the taxpayer can well do without.

One such unfortunate incident involved letter carrier Peter Giesbrecht, a 23-year-veteran of the Post Office. About two years ago, Mr. Giesbrecht was making his usual rounds in Winnipeg, when a dog which knew him well and which had never attacked him before, suddenly lunged at him. Mr. Giesbrecht's arm was so badly mangled he was forced into early retirement.

Basically, there is no excuse for this sort of incident. The dog owner has a responsibility to his fellow human beings, particularly those who are performing a service for his benefit.

At the very least, dogs should be on a leash or confined if unsupervised during delivery periods.

This courtesy does not end with postal employees, of course. Meter readers, department store delivery people, and in fact anyone with a legitimate reason for approaching the door should be able to do so without risk to his or her future. This is simple, common sense courtesy, and will cost nothing for anyone to implement.

Swedish massage
Lynn Savey, Masseuse, gives one of her patients a massage to relieve muscle aches. Savey started her business in Tofield three weeks ago, upstairs in the Town Office.

A trip to a masseuse

by Ken Kronbeck

When I first saw the advertisement in the paper for Swedish massage, I had visions of a 300 pound, cranky-faced female in a dingy, poorly lit room, reeking of body sweat, waiting to bounce patrons off of the table.

I was curious to see what Swedish massage was all about so I decided to visit Lynn Savey in her office upstairs at the Tofield Town Office.

Talking to the guys in Canrose about my assignment, I received cocked eyebrows and knowing smiles, which made me even more curious about Swedish massage.

I was surprised to meet Masseuse Lynn Savey and find out she was a pleasant person, ready and willing to answer any questions I had on Swedish massage.

I was also surprised to find that Savey was far from being 300 pounds and that her office was well lit and fresh smelling.

Savey invited me back the next week to experience a massage. I was impressed with her professional manner.

Savey said that there is a difference between a body rub and a massage. A body rub is just over the skin area while a massage goes deeper to massage the muscles.

Savey said she has been well received by the community, partly because of a masseuse who used to be in Ryley.

She said she gets a lot of customers in the Tofield area who have had chronic muscle aches for years coming into see her.

She also said that massage will help relieve tension, cramped muscles, migraines, help with constipation, indigestion, sinuses, allergies and asthma.

She pointed out that although massage will help in these areas it is not a cure all or a miracle worker.

She said that massage is also good for broken bones, to help them heal faster. By massaging around the break it helps to keep the flow of blood to the break and helps to build the muscle.

The first time a person comes to a masseuse it is usually a shock to the muscles, which are not used to a vigorous workout. It is usually the second or third time to the masseuse before the body starts to react to the massage.

When I was being massaged, I found out that I had sore muscles that I didn't even know were sore. Some of my muscles, especially in the neck area, were very tense.

Savey said this is normal of a lot of people who carry tension in their muscles caused by stress.

After the massage I felt limbered up and full of energy. The kink in my neck that I had for years seemed loose and less painful.

Savey said that in a lot of cases she can see people feeling better as they leave.

Savey said that she is happy to have people drop in and discuss their ailments. If she doesn't think that a massage will help the person she refers them to someone who can help them.

Savey received her training to be a masseuse from the Northern Institute of Massage in England through a correspondence course. The practical part of the course was taken in Clyde, Alberta through Joyce Hawkins, a masseuse for 30 years.

The course was a 10-month course.

Savey chose to set up her practise in Tofield because she lived around the area and because she liked a smaller town.

Monday is an awful way to spend one-seventh of your life.

A book issued by the Army gives all manner of advice to non-commissioned officers. It even tells how to reunite men who have quarrelled, friends again. The men are put to washing the same window, one outside, the other inside. Looking at each other, they soon have to laugh and all is forgotten. It works: I have tried it. Ludwig Bemelmans

One day instead of serving the usual hot meal, the school cafeteria handed out peanut butter and jelly sandwiches. After lunch, a satisfied first grader marching out the door complimented the cafeteria manager: "Finally, you gave us a homecooked meal!"

Ukrainian heritage

Marvyn Machura, information officer for Alberta Culture, shows this young lady some of the artifacts that will appear in the Ukrainian Cultural Village located 50 kilometres east of Edmonton on Highway 16. Alberta Culture had a display set up last weekend in the Tofield Library

Ukrainian display in Tofield library

by Ken Kroetsch

The main theme of the Alberta Culture display last weekend in the Tofield library was to inspire interest in the Ukrainian Cultural Village and to let people know the village is in need or artifacts from earlier years, said Marilyn Machura, information officer for Alberta [illegible].

Machura said Alberta Culture is looking for any items that Ukrainian families might have used. Such objects as dishes, pots, chairs and anything else that might have been used.

The main theme of the Ukrainian Cultural Heritage Village is to re-create early settlement of this area of the people of Ukrainian descent.

The Village will show life of the Ukrainian people from their first immigration to Canada in 1891 up to 1930 at the latest, said Machura.

In the village there will be approximately 30 buildings including 12 houses, granaries and farm sites.

It will be set up as a rural community with a general store, a post office and a community hall. Plans are to utilize the buildings as much as possible, said Machura.

It has been referred to as a living museum, where nothing will be roped off, he said.

"It is where you will see the actual life style re-created."

Actors and actresses will be working and living the part of the early Ukrainian settlers.

Machura said people touring the museum will not only be able to see the actors going about their daily tasks, but will be able to smell various [illegible].

The Ukrainian Cultural Village was started in 1971 and later purchased by the Government of Alberta in 1975.

A major development project was started in 1982 and is to be completed by 1987.

The village is open from the Victoria Day weekend to the Labor Day weekend to all visitors, seven days a week, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

The village is located 50 [illegible] on Highway 16.

Crops suffer flood damage

by [illegible]

Warm, sunny weather is needed to prevent crops from deteriorating further in this part of Alberta.

Reports received at The Canadian this week from Alberta Wheat Pool indicate that crops on low-lying ground are badly damaged with flooding.

The total rainfall in most areas in the past week is approximately a quarter of the total rainfall since May 1.

Weeds are a problem and farmers cannot get into the fields to spray because of the wet, muddy state of the land, the reports indicate.

The area had almost six weeks of drought conditions and was then hit with heavy rainfalls towards the end of June and earlier this month.

Areas north of Camrose are flooded badly, the reports indicate.

Round Hill, Ryley, Tofield and Holden report flooding. In Round Hill the fields are wet and soggy and some crops are completely flooded, the report says. Round Hill crop development is low with only 25 per cent of the wheat heading, 15 per cent of the barley heading and 15 per cent of the canola blooming.

Holden reports some slight hail damage in the past week and both Holden and Tofield had 50 mm of rain in that time. In Holden 30 per cent of the wheat and 25 per cent of the barley is heading, and 20 per cent of the canola is blooming.

In Ryley 30 per cent of the wheat and 15 per cent of the barley is heading, and 20 per cent of the canola is blooming.

In Ryley 30 per cent of the wheat and 15 per cent of the flooding and had 80 mm of rain in the past week. Crop development is slow in this area with only 30 per cent of the wheat heading. Sixty per cent of the canola is blooming.

Hay Lakes reports that fields are still wet and muddy, although the rainfall was slightly less in Hay Lakes than in other areas. Forty per cent of the wheat is heading and 15 per cent of the barley is heading. The report says 15 per cent of the canola is blooming.

New Norway, south of Camrose, reports that barley has suffered light damage due to flooding. In the past week that area had 30 mm of rain. Crop development is higher in New Norway than in other areas in the district; 90 per cent of the barley is heading and 80 per cent of the canola is blooming.

East of Camrose there has been more rainfall. Rosalind had 70 mm of rain in the past week and Daysland had 50 mm. Both areas report excess moisture and the Daysland report says canola and barley crops are dying due to excess rain. The report estimates that these crops will suffer 30 to 40 per cent damage.

In Rosalind crop development is low with only 25 per cent of the canola blooming. In Daysland 10 per cent of the wheat is heading and 20 per cent of the canola is blooming.

100th birthday mass planned for Duhamel

The construction of St. Thomas Church in Duhamel, one hundred years ago, will be celebrated this month (July).

In a joint announcement, the Duhamel Historical Society and the St. Thomas Parish have announced that the event will be commemorated with a special service on July 31st.

Archbishop Joseph MacNeil of Edmonton will celebrate with an outdoor mass at the church site at eleven o'clock in the morning and he will be assisted by Father Len Garnter of Camrose.

Following the mass, pioneers of the area will be feted and then a pot-luck dinner will be served, with catering provided by the Duhamel Catholic Women's League.

For this occasion, coffee, juice and ice cream will be provided by the Duhamel Historical Society.

Father Bellevaire arrived in the Duhamel area in 1881 to establish a mission and two years later, the log church was erected by members of the parish.

Improvements were made following World War I when siding was put on the building, a belfrey was constructed and a sacristy was added.

Services in the church were held regularly for eighty years (until 1963) and then the old church was turned over to the Historical Society.

In the final month of 1980, the church was declared to be an historical resource.

To assist in preserving the structure, a concrete foundation was added, the entire structure was painted, inside and out, and maintenance has been on-going ever since, with more work having been done this past spring.

The Duhamel Historical Society and St. Thomas Parish have extended an open invitation to any interested persons, to attend the anniversary celebration on July 31st.

BARBARA BENNETT

[illegible] definitely concerned about the yield and quality of the crops this year. It seems like an odd time to bring up the topic of marketing. A farmer's marketing program however, is a year-round project. If crop yields happen to be lower than average the marketing strategy a farmer follows might help the farm through a tight year.

MARKETING FROM A PRODUCER'S VIEWPOINT

Marketing is an important factor in any farm manager's [illegible]. When many farm managers think of marketing, they are only concerned about selling cereal grains or oilseeds to the local elevator, feedmill, feedlot or crusher for the highest possible price. Marketing, however, involves management decisions all the way from the time decisions are made concerning what a farmer is going to seed in the spring to the point in time where the grains and oilseeds produced as a result of this decision are used by the final consumer. A producer's first marketing decision occurs when he commits himself to growing canola in the next crop year. When a producer makes this decision, he needs to be aware of what the expected delivery opportunities and price for this crop will be in the coming year.

After deciding which crop to grow, the next step in developing a marketing strategy is to select the most appropriate delivery and pricing alternatives. These options are limited by the type of grain or oilseed grown.

Canadian Wheat Board

Milling Wheat, oats and barley. Exclusive export and domestic, Committed at seeding; Feed wheat, oats and barley. Exclusive export, but optional domestic, Choice of delivery throughout.

Open Market (Futures base)

Rye, flaxseed and rapeseed: Exclusive export and domestic, Committed at seeding; Feed wheat, oats and barley. Domestic use only, Choice of delivery throughout.

Cash Specialty Crops

Sunflower seeds, mustard seed, buckwheat, grain corn, dry peas, fababeans, lentils, canaryseed, safflower, soybeans, forage seeds: Exclusive all markets, committed at seeding.

A wide range of pricing alternatives are available for non-board grains and oilseeds. A producer needs to ask himself a number of questions in order to make the most financially beneficial marketing decisions. Should I pre-price my grain or oilseeds in the spring? Should I [illegible] my crop in the fall or will [illegible] improved price I receive this winter be enough to cover the extra storage and interest costs? Should I deliver to the local elevator [illegible] order a producer car? Should I sell my feedgrains to the Board or non-board markets? A producer needs to be aware of the market outlook for the crops he grows as well as the advantages and disadvantages of each marketing alternative.

4-H On the Move

by Rod MacMillan
Regional 4-H Specialist

Hello, I'm Rod MacMillan the new 4-H Specialist for the Northeast Region. I started the position on July 5, 1983 and this is my first opportunity for significant contact with the 4-H people in the region. I would like to take this opportunity to give a brief personal introduction.

I was born in Vermilion and raised on the family farm in the Clandonald District. I attended school in Clandonald and Vermilion graduating from St. Jerome's High School. From 1968 to 1976 I was a member of the Clandonald 4-H Beef Club. Following High School I attended the University of Alberta, graduating in 1980 with a Bachelor of Science in Agriculture. During University I played an active role in the family farm and continue to do so. Over the past few years I have worked as a Surface Land Agent, Loans Officer and spent time travelling abroad. I look forward to meeting and working with people in the Region. Please feel free to call me at 853-2811 or drop into the office on the second floor of the Provincial Building.

Turning to 4-H activities, a very important weekend is fast approaching. This is the Provincial 4-H Rally and Sod Turning Ceremony, August 6 and 7, at the Battle Lake 4-H Centre. These are red letter dates for 4-H in Alberta as we will be embarking on a new stage of development. The weekend highlight will be the Official Sod Turning Ceremony on Sunday, August 7 at 2 p.m. Events to be held include an open air dance, pot-luck supper, pancake breakfast, slow pitch tournament, fireworks and many more activities. This should be a great weekend so tune up the camper or haul out the tent and plan to attend. Be sure to bring the entire family.

If you have any questions please contact the Regional 4-H office.

I would like to congratulate the participants and winners of the Regional 4-H Heifer Show held at Vermilion on July 2.

Upcoming events.

— Provincial 4-H Heifer Show at Barrhead, July 18 and 19.
— Provincial 4-H Dairy Show at Red Deer, July 23.
— Provincial 4-H Sheep Club Show and Sale at Vermilion, July 29 and 30; lamb barbeque on the 29th.
— Provincial 4-H Rally and Official Sod Turning Ceremony at Battle Lake August 6 and 7.

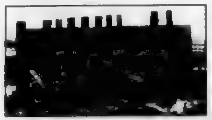
COMPREHENSIVE POLICY

There should be no misunderstanding as to who runs the Alberta Wheat Pool. It is owned by farmers, controlled by farmers and all policies are established by farmers. Pool policy is set by Alberta Wheat Pool Delegates, who are elected by the membership in their respective sub-district. The Alberta Wheat Pool Board of Directors is elected by the Delegates to administer the policies as set by the Delegate body.

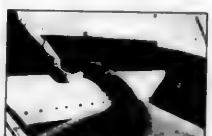
Over the past ten years, the Delegates of Alberta Wheat Pool have developed a very comprehensive policy on grain transportation. Alberta Wheat Pool supports the retention of the present statutory Crow Rate, as the basis for direct payment by farmers for grain transportation. The policy set by the Delegates also spells out five basic principles that must be considered in any discussion relative to grain transportation:

1. The rate formula must be statutory. (The freight rate must be statute, set by the Parliament of Canada, not set by the Railways and the C.T.C.)

2. The Crow-Snavely gap (shortfall in the transportation of grain), must be paid by government directly to the railways. (The Crow benefit represents the difference between the amount paid by producers under the Crow's Nest Pass rate and the actual cost of moving grain. Alberta Pool Delegates say the Federal Government should pay the shortfall to the railways because it is a transportation subsidy and would allow the railways to proceed with expansion programs.)
3. A commitment ensured by legislation be given by the railways that the required level of service will be implemented and maintained. (The Alberta Pool Delegates say there must be a guarantee that railways will provide the service required to move the projected amounts of grain to export position.)



4. The Federal Government provide adequate funds for rehabilitation of rail lines. (The Federal Government has been involved in a program of upgrading specified western branch lines. Alberta Pool policy says this program should continue.)
5. Rates charged for grain transportation by rail must remain distance related and not variable because of any other factor. (The freight rate for moving products should be based on the distance from the shipping point to the destination and not subject to change except by statute.)



The Alberta Wheat Pool supports the principle that the freight rate ceiling on export grain, be a percentage of the basket price received for export grain.

Reunion

A family reunion took place recently in Nordfjordied, Norway, when Marie (Gjerde) Plumb, Carl and Edna Gjerde were accompanied by Marie's son and wife from the USA, along with Inga Kubbernus of Wetaskiwin to visit Marie's, Inga's and Carl's half sister, Ragna Eikenes and her husband Martin. The sisters hadn't seen each other for 63 years. Left to right in the photo are Marie, Inga, Ragna and Carl.

Triumps defeated in semi-final match

The Tofield Triumphs completed the schedule June 29 in first place with 27 points and undefeated, but were knocked out in the semi-finals by the Ryley Bluejays in two straight games.

In the first game the Bluejays triumphed 19-7 and won the second game 17-7.

In the other semi-final match Viking Comets beat the Tofield Triggers two straight to go on to the finals. In the first game Viking won 9-3 and in the second game won 17-1.

The Viking Comets and the Ryley Bluejays were to have played the final game Wednesday evening.

In the scheduled games for June three games were not played.

One game was forfeited by the Bluejays to the Chickadees, one game was forfeited by the Chickadees to Holden and one game was forfeited by the Triggers to the Shawpee-ettes.

One game was played on June 27, with Tofield Triumphs beating Spilstead 13-7.

In games on the 28 the Triumphs beat the Shawpee-ettes 14-6, the Comets beat the Chickadees 18-11, the Triggers beat Spilstead 13-3, and Holden won over the Bluejays 34-27.

Final standings in the scheduled games were:

ANNOUNCEMENT!
As of August 1, 1983, Brian and Wanda Mason will be assuming the operation of the Holden Trading Company, Ltd.
. . . a message from Brian and Wanda
We're not out to fool anybody. Sure, we could have the bright lights, the high pressure advertising, the rock bottom sale prices and all the glamour of the big stores ... but we won't!! We just want to remain a friendly, comfortable community grocery store. You already know that we offer good selection, top quality brand names, and consistently low prices . . . and one other thing you won't find in too many businesses these days. That's the pride we take in making sure that every customer is treated fairly, and is valued as if they were part of the family. So drop in soon and see the difference at

BETWEEN THE COVERS

On the new book table this week are three new novels. Popular author Philippa Carr's new release Zipporah's Daughter is an historical romance set during the early 19th century in England and France. The Penthouse, by Elleston Trevor is a modern dramatic thriller involving the hostage of a psychopathic killer in a New York penthouse, and efforts by the police to obtain her release. The third is different again, being Brian Callison's latest, Spearfish, a British naval thriller.

On the non-fiction side, there is a new cookbook by Beulah Barass, whose first book, The Pioneer Cook was so popular. The new book, entitled Come'n Get It; Favorite Ranch Recipes includes such time-honoured standards as Raisin pie, Mulligan Stew, Sourdough bread and 24-hour Coleslaw. Chapters are included in such topics as Roundups and Ranch Activities, Cowboys and Bachelors, Ranch Women, and Chuckwagon cooking. Complete with original photographs from an era not so far back in our own Alberta history, this book will provide interesting reading and delicious recipes for many readers.

Trevor Hall has produced yet another extravaganza on the Royal Family, this time The Queen Mother. Profusely illustrated, this is more of a chronicle than a biography, and includes many members of her family as well.

This week's films for children include Strega Nona (a fairy tale), The Cow, and Kontiki Kids. The program lasts about 45 minutes, admission is free and films will be shown at 2:30 on Friday and again at 11 a.m. on Saturday.

The Library will soon have a Polaroid Sun camera available for loan to members. There will be no extra charge for this service, but patrons must provide their own film (Polaroid 600).

The camera will be provided by Polaroid Ltd., as well as a case and instructions for use.

Watch for further information on this new Library service next week.

FIGHT TO PROTECT CATTLE AGAINST INSECT PESTS

The fight to protect cattle against insect pests now is being waged on two new fronts by Agriculture Canada scientists.

In the past, insect control was provided mostly through sprays.

More recently, tags containing insecticide that are attached to the ears of cattle have been developed for specific pests.

Now scientists are probing further, looking into the use of vaccines. Already a vaccine has been tested against the warble grubs and, according to the scientists, the day may not be too far away when cattle could be lining up for their annual shots against this, and other, insect pests.

Round Hill district notes

by Evelyn Low

The Round Hill W.I. was held at the home of Mrs. Lucie Owen, Camrose, with 12 members present. The Round Hill Group had invited the Camrose W.I. to attend their July meeting. Six members of the Camrose W.I. attended, as well as Martha Lindsay of Ohaton, our new constituency convenor.

Betty Grudnicki, the Home Economist from Camrose also attended and showed slides and gave an interesting talk on the environment.

Plans were made for the W.I. 69th anniversary which will be held on August 6 at the Elks Hall at Round Hill at 2 p.m. Plans were also made to help the Round Hill Homecoming and Book presentation with a booth.

A week-long, supervised summer program for children will be held at the Hall, commencing July 18. Tot Spot, for three and four year olds will take place from 9:30-11:30 a.m. and Kinder Capers, for five and six year olds, from 1-4 p.m. Children will participate in singing, games and crafts, and a nutritious lunch will be provided. Please confirm your child's attendance by calling Dana, 662-3686, as soon as possible.

The Community Association will hold its monthly meeting on July 21 at 8 p.m. in the Hall. Further plans will be made for the annual family picnic.

The Pleasure Horse Association has planned two future events: a painting bee on the Hall grounds to complete the new corrals, followed by a potluck supper; and a trail ride to Cline River, which is in the Rock Mountain House area, to take place from July 30 to August 1st. If you're interested in participating please call Bruce, 662-2754 or Muriel, 662-3694.

Kingman district notes

A baby girl, Meghan Dawn, was born to Donald and Carol Schmidt on July 1 at St. Mary's Hospital in Camrose. Grandparents are Harley and Margaret Schmidt and Don and Muriel Murray.

Mrs. Annie Coykendall has been a patient in the Camrose hospital for the past three weeks.

On June 27, Kingman School staff and students were surprised by a visit from Terry Dashcavich of Dedza, Malawi, Africa. Terry has returned from his teaching job because of illness in the family and will be spending some time with his family in Edmonton. He showed slides of African scenery, animals, vegetation, buildings and ways of life which were very interesting, as he narrated on each picture.

Jeffrey Krezanoski of Edmonton has spent the last week at Annie and Ted Kozak's. Also staying with the Kozak's is Harley Edwards of Abbotsford, B.C.

Ruth and Clifford Gibson recently attended the kindergarten graduation of their granddaughter, Kelly Kerr, at Meeting Creek.

Rosie Kozack, Andrey Thomas, Nellie Kozack and Sharon Soady were to Edmonton on July 6 where they attended Kaleidoscope '83 at the Convention Centre.

Gerry and Colleen Wenger, Josephine Wenger and her mother and aunt were to Camrose on June 27 and 28th were they visited with relatives.

Several people from this area attended 50th wedding anniversary celebrations for John and Tillie Hoflin of Grande Prairie recently. Attending were Rudolph, Louisa, Kathy and Debbie Undin, Ruth and Clifford Gibson, Martha and Ernest Westfall, Gordie and Donna Kerr and family, Gail Dingman and boys, Rick Berglund and daughter, Agnes Matson and Leonard Busenius.

Visitors at Kozacks for Johns birthday on July 7 were Mary and Frank Trach of Tofield, Dick and Sharon Soady, Colleen Wenger, Marie, Darlene, Colleen and Brian Lee and Bobby and [illegible]
